Mrs. Sophie Binns, President Young People's Christian Temperance Union, Fruitvale, Bal., Cured of Congestion and Inflammation of the Ovaries by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Eighteen months ago I was a pretty sick woman. I had felt for some months that I gradually grew weaker, but finally I had such severe pains I could hardly stand it. I had taken cold during menstruation and this developed into congestion of the ovaries and inflammation, and I could not bear to walk or stand on my feet. The doctor recommended an operation which I would not hear of. One of my friends advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a trial. Can you imagine my feeling when within two months I felt considerably better, my general health was improved, and my pains had entirely disappeared. I kept taking it six weeks more and am now enjoying the best of health, thanks to you. Yours truly, MRS. SOPHIE BINNS."

$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Peculiar to Itself.

This applies to St. Jacobs Oil used for fifty years. It contains ingredients that are unknown to any one but the manufacturers and their trusted employees. Its pain killing properties are marvellous, as testified to by the thousands of once crippled human beings now made well and free from pain by its use. St J cobs Oil has a record of cures greater than all other medicines. Its sales are larger than those of any other proprietary medicine and ten times greater than all other embrocations, oils and liniments combined, simply because it has been proved to be the best.

Weak and Sickly Children

Who, perhaps, have inherited a weak digestion, continually subject to stomach troubles, loss of flesh and general weakness, can be made healthy and strong by the use of Vogeler's Curative Compound. Every doctor who is at all up to date will say that Vogeler's Curative Compound will make the blood pure and rich, bring colour to the cheeks, and put on flesh where health demands it. Children who have been weak and sickly since birth should be treated with small doses of Vogeler's Curative Compound, from two to five drops, twice daily, most satisfactory results will follow. It is the best of all medicines, because it is made from the formula of a great living physician.

The London Times in '61.

The Times, after a little wavering, carried its vast power to the side of the South, whose cause it embraced with an intensity, not to say with a fury, surprising in comparison with the surefooted discretion usually characteristic of its management. To the last it persisted with unabated confidence in assuring its readers of Southern victory. When from Grant's lines before Petersburg Richmond was almost in sight, and it was evident that the next move on the board would be checkmate, the Times continued to give ear to the asservations of Mr. Spence that the triumph of the South was at hand. The Times really represented only the wealthier and more aristocratic class in England. In America it was taken as representing the whole nation.—Prof. Goldwin Smith, in Atlantic Monthly.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

It Was a Cocktail Cherry.

Adriana came simpering to her mistress. Could she have the evening out? Mister Johnson was in the kitchen, and giggles told the rest. Consent, with the necessary warning to be in before 11, was given, and the shining pair of black faces soon went down the street. But in less than half an hour Adriana burst in, gasping and trembling. She had never been so frightened in her life. That-there black man had treated her scandalously.

"Why, he asked me if I wouldn't go into a restaurant to have somethin', an' I would. So we sat down to a table, an' the waiter brought some glasses, an' I had drunk half of mine, when I looked in, and what do you think I see? My, I was so scared I just jumped right up an' run all the way home, for there was a great, big red knockout drop in my glass!"

Such is the transforming power of a colored imagination at work upon a candied cherry.—New York Evening Post.

This Is the Way to Wareham.

Joseph Jefferson was driving from his summer residence in Buzzard's Bay to Onset—which is the next town west on Cape Cod—when he met two women from the camp meeting grounds at the latter place, who had dismounted from their bicycles and were acting as if in a quandary. "Please, Mister, is this the way to Wareham?"

Mr. Jefferson looked at the bloomers and then replied:

"The way to wear 'em? Certainly, madam. It is the way I wear mine."—New York Times.

FLY THROUGH SPACE

TRAIN ON MONO-RAILWAY TO MAKE 102 MILES AN HOUR.

English Company Plans to Construct Line Between Manchester and Liverpool on Which Conveyances Will Break All Existing Records.

A company has been organized in England, and parliamentary powers obtained, for the construction of a high-speed mono-railway between Manchester and Liverpool. The distance is thirty-four miles and the magnitude of the undertaking may be realized from the fact that the estimated cost of the line, including works, land, and buildings, is not far short of two millions sterling. This line is intended to be an express railway in the highest sense of the term for the thirty-four miles between the two cities is to be accomplished in twenty minutes, an average speed of one hundred and two miles an hour. This is about forty miles an hour faster than the highest speed attained by our fastest express trains drawn by steam locomotives.

Each train will consist of only one vehicle, carrying eighty passengers. The electrical equipment consists of a motor or motors with an equivalent of 2,000 horse-power. This power is applied by means of chain-gearing to two or more of the eight double-flanged wheels which rest on the mono-rail, and by which the carriage is suspended. There will be no gradients of any importance on the line, and as none of the curves, it is stated, will exceed a radius of seven hundred and fifty yards, it is expected that the trains will easily negotiate the curves without causing any discomfort to passengers even at the high speed contemplated. As regards derailment, the center of gravity will be kept so low that it will be an absolute impossibility for the train to jump the track. At one hundred miles per hour, however, it will be readily understood that the most perfect provision must be made for checking and stopping, both as regards signaling and braking-power.

The trains will follow each other at intervals of only ten minutes, the distance separating them being thus about seventeen miles. It is proposed to subdivide the line into five sections of about seven miles each, and the danger signal at each point will remain on until the train has passed the next, always giving the following train seven miles in which to pull up should anything have gone wrong with the preceding train. As regards brake-power, it is intended to use a combination of the Westinghouse and an electric brake, which can bring the train to a standstill from a speed of one hundred miles per hour in a distance of about five hundred yards. The word can is used advisedly, as the effect of such sudden retardation could hardly fail to be extremely disagreeable to passengers; and although an emergency brake is essential, the chance of it being called into requisition is in the highest degree remote. As regards acceleration, it is claimed that full speed can be attained in a distance of one and three-quarter miles from starting-point, as the railway will be free from all switches, points, level-crossings and intermediate stations.

A WONDERFUL AGE.

Most Wonderful of All Its Products If Young America.

From the corner of Juniper and Chestnut street, in Philadelphia, the top of the city hall tower is visible above the low roof of the old mint. The other afternoon a couple of riggers, with the aid of ropes suspended from the broad brim of William Penn's hat, were working about the statue, looking, at that dizzy elevation, no larger than flies.

Many people, walking along Chestnut street, stopped at the Juniper street corner and gazed upward at the intrepid workmen, nearly 500 feet above the pavement. A fussy old woman, who was near-sighted, elbowed her way through the crowd.

"What's the matter? What's the matter?" she asked.

"Why," spoke up a messenger boy, "Marconi is up dere sending a wireless telegram to de mayor down at Charleston fer to come home an' all will be forgiven."

"Is it possible!" exclaimed the old woman, according to the Philadelphia Record, peering upward through her spectacles. "This is indeed a wonderful age."

LOOKING FOR PRINCE HENRY.

New York Spectator Asked If He Was in Army Wagon.

Amusing incidents occurred in the crowds that were waiting at various times to see Prince Henry. In front of the Metropolitan Opera House the night of the gala performance for hours the driving rain had soaked the thousands that filled Broadway. Mounted police galloped up and down and trolley cars charged into the swaying lines of the people. The hours dragged along and the time set for Prince Henry's arrival passed, and still there was no sign.

Suddenly there was a scurry of hoofs and a rumble of wheels, and a squad of the troop accompanying a forage wagon galloped up.

"There he is! There he is!" shouted the excited crowd. Then one solemn old Yankee, who had been silently waiting for hours, peered out from under his umbrella, and, catching sight of the army wagon anxiously inquired of the driver:

"Say, Mr. Soldier, have you got Henry in there?"

The Price of Admission.

The only son had reached the histrionic period in his career, and was indulging in a juvenile edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." His mother's drawing room was converted into a temporary theater, and with a view, perhaps, of playing only to exclusive audiences, this notice was posted over the door:

Masquerade as "the Crisis."

"What title shall I take" asked a young woman about to attend a "book party," where each one present is made up to represent some particular literary creation. Her friend, having just finished listening to the tale of her vaccination experience, suggested:

"Why don't you go as 'The Crisis?'"—New York Evening Post.

She—"And you are not going to spend the evening with me?"

She—"Then take back your ring. I'm not going to be engaged to a man who isn't willing to do all his pressing here."

Letters That Are of Little Value.

It is my judgment that the first thing a young man starting in life should do is to master the groundwork of his chosen calling, as taught by actual practice. No matter how highly educated he may be, when he makes a beginning away from college, he ought to bear in mind that he has as much to learn that books do not contain and professors do not teach, as was imparted to him at his alma mater.

Letters of recommendation are of little value. It has grown to be the case that a individual is "sized up" for what he shows himself to be, and not according to some other person's written estimate. It really takes a year or two of hard knocks and rebuffs to bring a young fellow, who thinks his sheepskin is all he needs, to a point where he can properly estimate himself. When he reaches that stage, he will begin to get on in the world.—F. Augustus Heinz, in Success.

Bright's Disease Cured.

Sullivan, Ill., March 31st.—Mrs. Kitty F. Seaney was very ill for months, and notwithstanding the very best medical attendance, she got no better. The doctors said she had Bright's Disease, and gave her little hope of ever being well again.

She suffered great pain in her back, which nothing seemed able to relieve, till at last, encouraged by the reputation Dodd's Kidney Pills have attained in the community as a cure for Kidney Diseases, she began to use them.

The result was a surprise both to Mrs. Mrs. Seaney and the physicians, for soon after the treatment was commenced her kidneys threw off large quantities of dark, diseased matter and she improved rapidly. She used in all ten boxes, and has completely recovered good health, without pain or symptoms of the Bright's Disease.

Illustrating the Difference.

"Is he a statesman or a politician?"

"Oh, a statesman, beyond question."

"Are you sure?"

A Noted Knight Templar Owes His Health to Peruna.

Colonel T. P. Moody, a prominent Knight Templar, is well known in every city in the United States west of Buffalo, N. Y., as a Jeweler's Auctioneer. In the city of Chicago as a prominent lodge man, being a member of the K. T.'s and also of the Masons. The cut shows Colonel Moody in the costume of the Oriental Consistory Masons, 32nd degree.

In a recent letter from 5900 Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill., Mr. Moody says the following:

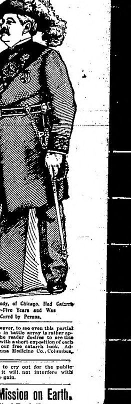
"For over twenty-five years I suffered from catarrh, and for over ten years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach terribly.

"I have taken all kinds of medicines and have been treated by all kinds of doctors, as thousands of my acquaintances are aware in different parts of the United States, where I have traveled, but my relief was only temporary, until a little over a year ago I started to take Peruna, and at the present time I am better than I have been for twenty years.

"The soreness has left my stomach entirely and I am free from indigestion and dispepsia and will say to all who are troubled with catarrh or stomach trouble of any kind, don't put it off and suffer, but begin to take Peruna right away, and keep it up until you are cured, as you surely will be if you persevere.

"My wife, as many in the southwest can say, was troubled with a bad cough and bronchial trouble, and doctors all over the country gave her up to die, as they could do nothing more for her. She began taking Peruna with the result that she is better now than she has been in years, and her cough has almost left her entirely. The soreness has left her lungs and she is as well as she ever was in her life, with thanks, as she says, to Peruna. Yours very truly,

T. P. Moody.



Col. T. P. Moody, of Chicago, Had Catarrh Twenty-Five Years and Was Cured by Peruna.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a general curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues, and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

If one were to make a list of the different names that have been applied to catarrh in different locations and organs, the result would be astonishing. We have often published a partial list of these names, and the surprise caused by the first publication of it to all people, both professionals and non-professional, was amusing. And yet we have never enumerated all of the diseases which are classed as catarrh. It must be confessed, however, to see even this partial list drawn up in battle array is rather appalling. If the reader desires to see this list, together with a short exposition of each one, send for our free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

St. Peter Was an Irishman.

There is a doorkeeper of the house of representatives who was born in the Green Isle, and is so proud of his native land that he never tires of telling of the famous men of the same extraction. Some of his assertions are in singular contradiction of history, and congressmen often cajole him to converse upon this favorite theme for their amusement. One day he said that St. Peter was an Irishman.

"Well," said Benton McMillin of Tennessee, who was then in congress, "you can bet he was not a negro. No colored man would have given that cock a chance to crow three times."—New York Times.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred and ninety (390) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by August Mardell and Caroline Mardell, his wife, mortgagors to the Security Building Loan Association of the city of Minneapolis, mortgagee, bearing date the twelfth (12) day of June, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the twenty-eighth day of June, 1890, at eight o'clock a. m., in book fifty-three of mortgages, on pages 428-432, which said records have since been transferred to Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Security Building and Loan Association, now Security Saving and Loan Association, mortgagee, to Waldron M. Jerome, by written assignment, dated the eighth day of December, 1900, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Red Lake county, Minn., on the 9th day of January, 1902, at two o'clock p. m., in book S of mortgages, on page 232.

There is also due upon said mortgage the sum of forty-four (44) dollars, which sum has been paid by said mortgagee and assignee as delinquent taxes on said premises.

No action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, wherefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: lots numbered one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), in block eight (8), in Hemmingsen's Addition to Thief River Falls, according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in Red Lake County and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by Sheriff of Red Lake County at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state, on 18th day of April, 1902, at one o'clock p. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of three hundred and ninety (390) dollars and interest and taxes if any on said premises, and said sum of forty-four (44) dollars paid as delinquent taxes by said mortgagee and assignee, and fifty dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated March 6, A. D. 1902.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1902. NUMBER 14

INTRODUCED

Bill for the Cession of Red Lake Lands.

The secretary of the interior last Friday forwarded to congress the bill providing for cession of the eleven townships of Red Lake Indian land just west of this city with a strong recommendation that it be passed. It was introduced in the senator by Moses E. Clapp and in the house of representatives by Page Morris. The bill provides that the land be opened under the homestead and town site provisions of the existing laws, and settlers will have to pay $4 per acre. Reports from Washington say that the bill will pass without opposition.

A telegram was recieved from Mayor F. H. Kratka Monday stating that the bill had passed the senate that day and that it would go to the house on Tuesday.

Married Tuesday.

Leo Kuklinski, chief of police of this city, and Miss Rose Scholska, of Winona, were married Tuesday, at the Catholic church in the home city of the bride. The The contracting parties have been acquainted for years and there is a little romance connecting them. When the bride was a girl of but nine years of age, she was stolen from her step-mother by Mr. Kuklinski, and taken to the home of her sister in Winona, with whom she has since made her home.

The New Creamery.

Work of driving piling for foundation of the creamery to be built in this city was commenced the first of the week, and it will not be long before it will be in operation. The benfit of this institution to the surrounding county is expected to be great, and all will be glad when it is in operation.

Herding Notice.

I have again decided to take the herd next season. I have rented plenty of grass lands adjoining the city on the East Side. Good grassing and good care guaranteed. Any body having cattle or horses wishing to have in herd please apply to Chas. L. Sandberg, city.

Eastern medical authorities assert that smallpox is becoming more and more severe, and grave fears are entertained that a serious epidemic may follow. Local authorities in every community, will do well to put forward exertions to help check the spread of this malady by looking well to the sanitary condition of every city and village.

SHAW'S PURE MALT.—Its value in sickness has been tried and proved. In the home it is not safe to be without it. Absolutely pure. Sold by John Morgan Thief River Falls Minn.

L. G. Browning, United States commissioner for the district of Minnesota, is prepared to give attention to homestead filings and take final proof.

INSTANT DEATH.

Settler from Thief Lake Town Killed.

Andrew Malvick, a settler living on section 5, town of Thief Lake Marshall county, was instantly killed in Crookston last Friday night by being run over by a train. The body was terribby mangled, parts of it being scattered along the track for a space of at least 50 feet. It is not known how the accident occurred, but it is stated that the man was under the influence of liquor.

Malvick is quite well known in this city, having done most of his trading here.

Later devolments indicate that Malvick was murdered. When he left Warren Friday afternoon for Crookston he was known to have about $50 upon his person, although when found in Crookston he had only 25 cents. It cannot be found that he spent any money in Crookston, and careful investigation fails to disclose any reason for his being in South Crookston, where the dead body was found. There are not any known relatives to the young man in this country.

Last but Not Least.

The third and last of the Slayton entertainments given under the auspices of the public school for the benefit of the school piano fund, will be given on tomorrow evening, April 11. There are four members of the concert company, and all are artists of high standing. Miss Rapp is a very charming soprano singer; Miss Gray entertains vast audiences with her excellent readings and recitations; Mr. Butler is a fine violinist who has attained a very high standing among leaders of his profession; Mr. Patricolo is a pianist of international repute. He has traveled far and wide and has won for himself an excellent reputation. Those who do not avail themselves of this opportunity to hear this concert will miss the finest entertainment of the season. Tickets are on sale at both drug stores and at N. W. Tarrant's confectionery store.

Final Closing Sale.

Being unable to arrange for extension of our lease beyond May 1st, 1902, we shall be compelled to close out our entire stock by that time. Everything must be sold regardless of cost. Come and save at least 50 cents on the dollar. Positively our last closing sale. Golden Rule Bargain Store, North Main Avenue.

To Whom It May Concern.

Thief River Falls, Minnesota
April 8th, 1902.

Complying with instructions from the city council, notice is hereby given that all orders for goods of all kinds for account of city shall be ordered by the City Clerk.

By order of the city council.

LARS BACKE,
City Clerk

For a good turnout go to Joe Ryson's livery stable.

WE LEAD.

And the Down River Town Follows.

As an indication that Thief River Falls is a larger town than Red Lake Falls, it may be stated that the postoffice receipts of this city exceed those of the down river town. A large portion of the postoffice receipts at Red Lake Falls is paid by county officers, too.

A Challenge.

Be it known by there presents, that we, the business men and clerks, on Main avenue, to settle all disputes which may hereinafter arise as to the baseball championship of the city of Thief River Falls, do hereby challenge whatever business men, clerks, janitors, dray men (having a shingle out), saloonkeepers or judges, who may be able to be picked up on La Bree avenue. Said game to be governed by national league rules and to be played on Sunday, April 20.

M. K. Wall,
Manager.

Bemidji continues to hold its reputation as a tough town. Eugene McGlouchlan, a lumbermen who has spent the winter in the woods employed by Halverson & Richards near Tenstrike, was given some knock-out drops in his liquor at one of the resorts in that place, the effects of which killed him.

A base ball game to be played between the business men of Main avenue against those on LaBree avenue is scheduled to take place at an early date. It would be a very one sided affair, and unless the people on Main avenue give a handicap to their side-street brothers, few people would turn out to see the game.

The city council held a special meeting Monday afternoon and purchased of William E. McGuffin, a representative of the W. S. Not company, a 55 gallon chemical engine for the fire department. This is said to be one of the latest and best improved engines of this kind on the market and will prove a valuable addition to the fire department's equipement.

Bishop Morrison, of Duluth and Dr. Green, rector of the Episcopal church at Crookston will hold services in the Methodist church on the East Side this evening. Bishop Morrison is one of the ablest ministers in the northern part of the state, and should be greeted by a large audience. The two held services at Red Lake Falls last evening, and will return to Crookston on tomorrow's train.

Louise Wilhelmina, the fifteen months old daughter of E. S. Alness, died Sunday. The funeral service were held on Tuesday afternoon from Zion church, Rev. Brederson officiating. Four little girls acted as pall bearers and the remains were interred in Greenwood cemetery. The parents wish to express sincere thanks to all kind friends who assisted them.

Found—The best cigars in the market, namely the C. P. and Sparto. Try them. They are O. K.

Home Brand Groceries.

There are all kinds of groceries. We need not enumerate, for you know them. Now we know you want those which you can ALWAYS rely on as being the BEST on the market.

Don't think by this that you NEED to pay a HIGH PRICE for the RIGHT KIND, you can get them reasonable if you buy the FAMOUS HOME BRAND GROCERIES.

Our line is attractive and positively second to none. Give us a chance to demonstrate the possibilities of the RIGHT GOODS BOUGHT RIGHT.

Carpets. Are you intending to buy a new carpet this spring? We have them in all kinds, all grades, the latest patterns, and at the right price to suit all. An examination of them will convince you that they are strictly first class, and up to date in every way.

Dry Goods. Our line of dry goods still leads them all. It consists entirely of new goods in all its branches. No shelf-worn goods here. We would especially call the attention of the ladies to our line of summer dress goods. We have some rare bargains to offer in these, and when you look our line over you are certainly looking at goods which cannot be duplicated in price and quality. All we request is, that you call and examine our goods, for we know they will please you as they have others.

AND THEY DUG UP

WESTERN MINING MAN MAKES CARD SHARPERS DISGORGE.

PULLED A GUN AND A KNIFE

REALIZED HE HAD PLAYED ROLL OF SUCKER AND GOT MAD.

EXCITING INCIDENT ON A TRAIN

GAME OF WHIST THAT FINALLY DRIFTED INTO A POKER GAME.

Duluth, April 4.—"Give up that money or I will kill all three of you scoundrels."

The foregoing demand was made by George Brackett, a Western mining man, early yesterday morning in one of the sleeping cars on the Omaha limited train from Chicago, a short distance this side of Eau Claire. The passengers in the sleeper who heard the words, uttered in stentorian tones, were alarmed at the prospect of possible bloodshed, for the demand was backed up by a revolver of great size in one hand and a huge bowie knife in the other.

"Must be Chinn," muttered one of the men addressed in an attempt to be loquacious, but his hand trembled as he hurriedly shelled out two $5 bills.

Thrilling Situation.

The passengers arriving from Chicago yesterday morning on the Omaha limited tell a story of thrilling interest. Many of the passengers in the Duluth sleeper were still up when the train arrived at Eau Claire. Three men who looked like everyday business men got aboard the train there. Conductor E. B. Ryan recognized two of them as professional card sharps from Chicago, but he did not know the third man. Conductor Ryan kept an eye on them for developments, and when they approached Mr. Brackett with a request that he join them in a game of whist he warned them they must not play for money. They said they did not intend to, and soon were absorbed in the game. Pretty soon the sharpers began to draw poker hands, of course. Mr. Brackett began to get good poker hands at the same time.

"I've got a hand here that would win a cattle ranch," said one of the sharpers looking at his hand admiringly.

"Mine aint so bad, either," said Brackett, unsuspiciously.

He Bites Twice.

The result of the exchange of comments on the respective hands led to a wager of $5 a side. Brackett held four jacks and the sharper held four queens. The play proceeded, and soon there was more talk about poker hands. Brackett had been dealt a good poker hand, and he fell into the net a second time. But he happened to observe what he thought was a crooked move by one of the other men, and when he lost he was convinced that he was being swindled. Brackett's face was black with passion. He realized that he had played the role of a sucker and was determined to get even. Without saying a word he got up and went back to his berth, where he took from his grip an enormous holster revolver and a large knife. He strode back to his stranger companions, flourishing the revolver in his right and the knife in his left hand. It was then he made the remark quoted, and the money was instantly produced.

ACTOR'S BRIDE DISAPPEARS.

She Either Changed Her Mind or Was Abducted.

Belvidere, Ill., April 4.—E. S. Norton, an actor in the Carlton Comedy company, has spent the day searching in the vicinity of Monroe Center for Miss Etta Johnson of Forreston, Ill., who was to have become his bride before the audience in the opera house at Kirkland. The marriage had been widely advertised and every seat in the house was sold. The two met at Forreston week before last, and their quick courtship was to end with a public marriage last night. The girl's arrival at Kirkland was followed by that of her brother and brother-in-law, and last night, while Norton was playing at the opera house, they secured the girl, either by consent or forcibly, and disappeared. Norton returned to Kirkland tonight, but says he will continue the search.

FIST FIGHT FOR BRIDE.

Michigan Youths Battle Strenuously for Their Lady.

Niles, Mich., April 4.—Herbert Stavely and Will Losey of Battle Creek, rivals for the hand of Miss Stasia Severs, fought a duel with bare fists, in which Losey came off victor in a double sense.

The two youths have been paying attention to Miss Severa for some time past, and lately their jealousy has grown acute.

The fight took place on the public street, and was ended by the arrest of both participants. Stevely suffered a broken nose, while Losey was uninjured except for a bruise on the forearm.

Miss Severa refereed the fight and declared Losey the winner. Their wedding is announced for May 1.

GOSPEL AND ALLEGED FRAUD.

South Dakota Preacher Accused of False Pretenses.

Deadwood, S. D., April 4. — Rev. Charles E. Giddings has been arrested at the instance of C. H. Krause of Deadwood, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. It is alleged that Giddings, who organized a mining company two years ago, sold $2,500 worth of stock in the company to Krause by representing to him that he was getting the control of the stock; that in reality Giddings had caused the capital stock to be increased without Krause's knowledge, and the latter found he had but one-fourth of the stock. Giddings was for several years pastor of the First Ward Methodist church in Deadwood and is now a resident of Spearfish.

EDUCATORS TO MEET.

Northwestern Minnesota Teachers to Gather at Moorhead.

Moorhead, Minn., April 4. — The fourteenth semi-annual meeting of the Northwestern Minnesota Educational association will be held here to-day and Saturday. A number of interesting papers will be read and discussed. Many of the members of the association arrived this evening and the attendance promises to be good.

Capt. Davis Dead.

Trempealeau, Wis., April 4.—Capt. A. J. Davis yesterday died here of diabetes. Mr. Davis was prominent in business and social circles of the town and was a well known Mississippi river steamboat man in the old days.

INTO STATE COURT

MERGER SUIT OF MINNESOTA BEGUN BY SERVING PAPERS ON MR. HILL.

ASKS PERPETUAL INJUNCTION

LEGALITY OF THE OPERATIONS TO BE TESTED IN RAMSEY DISTRICT COURT.

SIMILAR TO WASHINGTON SUIT

PROHIBIT RAILWAYS RESPECTING STOCK HELD BY SECURITIES COMPANY.

St. Paul, April 6.—The summons and complaint in the merger suit being brought by the State of Minnesota in the Ramsey county district court were served yesterday on James J. Hill, as president of the Great Northern Railway company, president of the Northern Securities company and individually, by Deputy Sheriff Reichow. The action is brought against the Northern Securities company, Great Northern Railway company, Northern Pacific Railway company, and James J. Hill, as president of the Northern Securities company, and individually.

The state asks that the Northern Securities be perpetually enjoined from acting in any manner as a stockholder of the Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railway company; that the railway companies be enjoined from recognizing or accepting as the owner or holder of its capital stock; and that James J. Hill be enjoined, individually, and as an officer or director of the Great Northern, from allowing any dividends to be paid on stock held by the securities company; from allowing any of these held by the securities company to be voted, and as an officer, director or stockholder of the securities company from directing the business affairs of either of the railway companies.

The complaint was prepared by Geo. P. Wilson, associated with Attorney General Douglas, as counsel in the merger proceedings, and has been ready for several days.

Like Washington's Suit.

"The suit is in its general nature similar to that being brought by the State of Washington in the United States supreme court," said Attorney General Douglas yesterday. "The Washington suit is against the securities company and the two railway companies. Mr. Hill is also made a defendant in the Minnesota suit, both as president of the Northern Securities company and individually. The object of the suit is to secure an injunction prohibiting the railway companies from respecting any stock held by the securities company."

The papers in the case are printed, and make a pamphlet of thirty-seven pages. The summons is in the usual form, and requires the defendants to serve their answer on Attorney General Douglas at his office in the capitol within twenty days after service.

ROSENBERG IS TOUGH.

Former Convict Arrested for Assault on Little Girl.

Vermillion, S. D., April 6.—State Attorney Tilton was called to Wakonda to give Sam Rosenberg a preliminary hearing on a charge of attempted rape committed on the eight-year-old daughter of Rev. Mitchell of that place. Rosenberg is a tough character and has already served a term in the penitentiary for counterfeiting, and was only recently released. Rosenberg has a wife and three children at Centerville.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.

Her Clothes Caught While Playing Near a Bonfire.

Prentice, Wis., April 6.—The three-year-old daughter of Peter Vandendent was so badly burned last evening that she died a few hours later. She was playing near a fire out doors when her clothes caught fire and burned her so bad that patches of flesh dropped off her face and body. Mrs. Vandedent had both hands badly burned trying to tear the burning clothes off her child.

QUARREL IN A SALOON.

Ends in Fatal Shooting of the Saloonkeeper.

Florence, Wis., April 6.—Albert Olson, a saloonkeeper, was fatally shot yesterday afternoon by Charles Swend, a cook from the lumber camps. The trouble was caused by a quarrel over the refusal of Swend to pay for some drinks. Three shots were fired, taking effect in the groin, back and left side. Swend was rescued from an angry mob and lodged in jail.

A Cemetery of Its Own.

Centerville, S. D., April 6.—A cemetery association was formed here this week with the following trustees: Edmund Stover, James Mee, Nathan Noble, S. S. Brown and A. Macfarland. A committee was appointed to report suitable grounds. The only available cemeteries are Mount Zion and Riverside, six miles distant.

Bicycle Thieves Sentenced.

Hastings, Minn., April 6.—J. C. Pryo and F. J. Kida have been sentenced by Justice Murphy of Rosemount to twenty days each in the county jail for the larceny of two bicycles in West St. Paul.

Wire Fence on the Boundary.

Great Falls, Mont., April 6. — The Canadian government has appropriated $10,00 to build a barbed wire fence along the boundary between Montana and the dominion, extending from St. Mary lake to Sweet Grass Hills.

At a Ripe Old Age.

Appleton, Wis., April 6.—Sherman R. Hopkins of the town of Dale died yesterday, aged ninety-four years. His death follows closely upon that of his wife, who died two weeks ago, aged ninety-three years.

TO TEST DENTAL LAW.

South Dakota Board of Examiners Arrest a Dentist.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 6.—Dr. John Schwartz, a prominent local dentist, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Dr. F. N. Palmer of Madison, president of the state board of dental examiners, and Dr. C. W. Collins of Vermillion, its secretary, for alleged failure to take out an annual license as required by a law passed by the last legislature. Dr. Schwartz furnished bonds for his appearance at the next term of the state circuit court. The arrest was made for the purpose of making the case a test one, many dentists in the state maintaining that the act of the legislature fixing a license fee is unconstitutional. Upon the outcome of this case, therefore, depends the validity of the law.

STRIKE BEING BROKEN.

New Men Being Secured to Work in Amalgamated Mines.

Butte, Mont., April 6.—New men are rapidly being found to fill the places of the hoisting engineers of the Amalgamated Copper Mining company, who three days ago walked out and tied up nine of the biggest producers of that company. The Brotherhood of Engineers is doing all in its power to assist the company in securing crews. By Sunday it is thought all of the mines will be fully equipped, though it may be a few days later before the properties will be running full blast.

CARLETON TAKES HONORS.

Result of the Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest.

Northfield, Minn., April 6.—As the result of the tenth annual contest of the Minnesota Intercollegiate Oratorical association held here last evening, the chief honors were captured by Northfield's two colleges. C. A. Culver of Carleton won first honors and A. A. Reece of St. Olaf secured second place. Fred W. Allen of Hamline was awarded third place. Mr. Culver will be Minnesota's representative in the interstate contest in St. Paul May 1, and Mr. Reece will attend as delegate.

EAR, NOSE AND LIP GONE.

Farmer Thrown by a Runaway Team Into a Wire Fence.

Elk Point, S. D., April 6.—A. Chausse and wife and D. Flannery, wealthy farmers living two miles west, were in a runaway while returning home last evening. The polestraps broke and Chausse and Flannery were thrown into a barbed wire fence. Chausse's ear was cut off and he received a gaping wound in the neck. His face was also lacerated. Flannery's upper lip and nose were almost cut away. Mrs. Chausse was badly bruised and the carriage was wrecked.

IN A DYING CONDITION.

Nephew of Former Senator Bruce Is Found at Deadwood.

Deadwood, S. D., April 6. — Alonzo Bruce, colored, a nephew of the former senator and registrar of the treasury, Blanche K. Bruce of Mississippi, was found yesterday in his room in Deadwood, badly beaten and bruised, and almost in a dying condition. He had numerous severe contusions about the head and fractures of the skull and has so far failed to recover sufficiently to relate what happened to him. He is in the hospital in a critical state.

WRECK INJURIES FATAL.

Winnebago City Man, Hurt in Texas Smash-Up, Dies.

Winnebago City, Minn., April 6. — A telegram from Houston, Tex., was received here yesterday announcing the death of Byron Sperry of this place. Mr. Sperry was one of the party who left in a special car for a Southern trip, and was hurt in a street car wreck at Houston some two weeks ago. Mr. Waldron, the other gentleman from here who was also severely injured, is in a critical condition. Very little hope is entertained for his recovery.

HIS GIRL WIFE DEAD.

Young Duluth Man Returns From Hunt for Work to Great Grief.

Duluth, Minn., April 6.—John Speng, a young man who had been out of the city seeking employment, received a sorrowful shock last night. He returned to his home to find it closed and neighbors told him his nineteen-year-old wife had been taken to the Red Cross hospital, as she had been taken very sick. He hastened thither to find that she was dead.

FOR MURDER OF HIS FATHER.

Young Man Goes to the Scaffold Without Fear or Trembling.

Deer Lodge, Mont., April 6.—Clinton Dotson was hanged yesterday for participation in the murder of his father. Dotson went to the scaffold without fear or trembling. Just before the trap was sprung he confessed the crime. He slept to within half an hour before he was led out to the scaffold. His neck was broken by the drop.

Petition in Bankruptcy.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 6.—There is no apparent decrease in the number of voluntary bankruptcy cases. Among the latest to file are Charles A. Sells and James M. Lowe. The former is a Sioux Falls traveling man, who places his liabilities at $1,932 and his assets at $2,709. Lowe is a farmer who lives near Sisseton, in Roberts county. He schedules his liabilities at $4,118 and assets at $2,920.

Appointed Clerk of Courts.

Olivia, Minn., April 6.—Judge Gorham Powers has appointed Carl O. Brecke of Renville to be clerk of the district court of Renville county for the unexpired term of Edgar E. Cook, deceased. Mr. Brecke is chairman of the Republican county committee.

An Immigrant Robbed.

Hankinson, N. D., April 6. — Henry Hendrickson of Sisseton, S. D., an immigrant bound for Wetaskawin, Canada, was held up and robbed of $600 near Wyndmere last night by two young men, who bound and gagged him.

Rule for Congress.

Mason City, Iowa, April 6.—Duncan Rule of this city has announced his candidacy for congress. He has been a leader in the Republican party in this section for a number of years. The probabilities are that he will win.

BRAVE CANADIANS

GALLANTLY HOLD THEIR POSITION IN AN ENGAGEMENT WITH BOERS.

BOTH LOSE HEAVILY IN FIGHT

DELAREY VAINLY ENDEAVORS TO KEEP HIS MEN FROM RETREATING.

REPELLED WITH STEADY FIRE

KITCHENER PRAISES THE WORK OF THE CANADIAN RIFLES.

London, April 6.—There was severe fighting all day long on March 31 in the neighborhood of Harts river, in the southwestern extremity of the Transvaal, between part of Gen. Kitchener's force and the forces of Generals Delarey and Kemp, resulting in repulse of the Boers after heavy losses on both sides. The Canadian Rifles especially distinguished themselves, one party, commanded by Lieut. Bruce Carruthers, holding its post until every man was killed or wounded.

Lord Kitchener's official report, dated from Pretoria, says:

"Gen. Kitchener (Lord Kitchener's brother) sent Colonels Keir and Cookson from Vriekuil, Western Transvaal, March 31, to reconnoiter toward Harts river. They soon struck the track of guns and carried on a running fight for eight miles, through the bush. Emerging on a plain, large Boer reinforcements advanced against their flanks, forcing the British troops to take up a defensive position, which they hastily intrenched. Fighting ensued at close quarters till the Boers were repulsed on all sides.

Following the Track

"Delarey, Kemp and other leaders vainly attempted to persuade their men to renew the action. Fifteen hundred Boers participated in the engagement, but they had suffered too heavily, and cleared away to the northwest and south.

"The British losses also were severe. The Canadian Rifles especially distinguished themselves, one party, commanded by Lieut. Bruce Carruthers, holding its position till every man was killed or wounded. Others of the force showed great steadiness, allowing the Boers to advance within 200 yards of them and repelling them with a steady rifle fire."

BOERS CLAIM VICTORY.

Six Hundred Men Relieved of Their Equipments.

London, April 6.—The Boer junta in London says that it has received news of a recent action in South Africa in which the burghers captured a loaded British convoy and 600 men, releasing the soldiers, according to custom, after having relieved them of rifles, cartridge belts, ammunition and superfluous clothing. The war office denies knowledge of such an engagement and the Boers assert that the information of the capture has been deliberately suppressed, either by Lord Kitchener or his subordinate commanders. The story of the alleged incident has reached the opposition and a question will be addressed to the government on the subject immediately after the reassembling of parliament.

BEQUEATHED BY RHODES.

American, Colonial and German Scholarships at Oxford University.

London, April 6.—The will of Cecil Rhodes provides for the establishment of colonial scholarships, as previously announced, and two American scholarships for each of the present states and territories of the United States. The will of Mr. Rhodes provides for five scholarships, for students of German birth at Oxford, to be nominated by Emperor William, and commenting on the bequest, Mr. Rhodes, in a codicil telegraphed from South Africa:

"For a good understanding between England, Germany and the United States will secure the peace of the world and educational relations form the strongest tie."

All of the Rhodes scholarships, American, colonial and German are at Oxford.

MISS STONE COMING.

She Sails From Southampton for New York.

London, April 6.—Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, yesterday sailed for New York on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, which left Southampton. Her departure from London was quiet. She was accompanied by R. B. McClure and R. S. Baker. She will begin lecturing, in aid of the missionaries, almost immediately after her arrival in the United States. The rest which Miss Stone had in England has improved her health, though she was obliged to refuse countless invitations to speak before religious and other bodies.

Robbed by Footpads.

Memphis, Tenn., April 6.—Michael J. Bennett, a Chicago turfman, has reported to the police that he was held up by six masked men at a place on Bean street. The robbers were armed with revolvers. They got $300 in money, and jewelery which Bennett values at $1,300. The keeper of the place and another man were also robed.

Rapid Telegraphy.

Berlin, April 6—The telegraph department of the imperial posts has decided to adopt the Rowland invention by which four telegrams can be sent simultaneously in each direction at a speed of from 300 to 350 words per minute.

Guilty of Smuggling.

Detroit, April 6.—In the United States district court yesterday Louis Busch of New York was found guilty of having smuggled 518 diamonds into the United States from Windsor, Canada, in 1899. The case will be carried higher.

CONGRESS.

Both Houses Commence Work on the Chinese Exclusion Bill.

Washington, April 5. — The senate yesterday began consideration of the Chinese exclusion bill, Mr. Mitchell of Oregon, making the opening speech. He pointed out forcefully the necessity for the exclusion of Chinese laborers and carefully and elaborately analyzed the bill. He said that it had been constructed on the basis of existing law, in the light of experience of the directions of the courts. While its provisions were drastic, the bill, he said, in some respects was more liberal than the Geary act.

The Indian appropriation bill was under consideration for a time but was not completed.

In the House.

The house yesterday began consideration of the Chinese exclusion bill. No opponents of the general principle of exclusion appeared, but members were divided in their support of the two bills presented. Messrs. Hitt of Illinois, Perkins of New York and Adams of Pennsylvania supported the majority bill and Messrs Clark of Missouri, Wahn of California and Naphen of Massachusetts spoke for the minority substitute.

SARGENT ACCEPTS.

He Will Succeed Powderley as Commissioner of Immigration.

Washington, April 6.—Frank P. Sargent, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, yesterday saw the president and was tendered the position of commissioner general of immigration. Mr. Sargent accepted the offer, but he told the president that it would be necessary for him to close up his business affairs before he could take charge of the office. The president informed him he could have all the time he wanted. In the meantime he is to familiarize himself with the duties of his new position. It is understood that the resignation of Messrs. Powderly and McSweely have been requested, or will be at once. Joseph Murray will succeed the latter and William Williams will be nominated soon to succeed Commissioner of Immigration Fritchie of New York.

EXCLUDES ANARCHISTS.

House Committee Favors the Bill by Representative Ray.

Washington, April 6.—The house committee on judiciary yesterday decided to substitute the bill of Chairman Ray dealing with anarchy and attempts on the life of the president for the senate bill recently passed on the same subject. The Ray bill goes further than that of the senate, and provides for the exclusion of anarchists and also for the suppression of incendiary propagandas.

GOPHER TALKERS WIN.

University of Michigan Is Defeated by Minnesota.

Chicago, April 6.—The arguments of the representatives of the University of Minnesota opposing the permanent government of the Philippines by the United States won from the University of Michigan men the fourth annual and final contest of the Central Debating league, held in the music hall at the Fine Arts building last evening. The decision of the judges was unanimous.

MURDER BY WHOLESALE.

Thirty-One Charges Against Australian Army Officers.

London, April 6. — A British officer who returned on the transport Dunera, which arrived at Southampton from Cape Town yesterday morning, states that thirty-one charges were brought against the Australian officers whose execution Lord Kitchener ordered recently. The officer adds that the crimes charged against them included the murder of women and children.

ASK MAYBRICK PARDON.

Petition Is Based on the Ground That She Has Suffered.

New York, April 6. — Women of the New York legislative league will, it is announced, send a memorial to King Edward praying that on the occasion of his coronation he will pardon Mrs. Florence Maybrick. They base their petition not upon the theory of her innocence, but on the ground that she has already suffered sufficiently for any crime she may have committed.

HONORS FOR SCHLEY.

City of Memphis Invites the Admiral to Be Its Guest.

Washington, April 6.—W. S. Schley yesterday promised a committee of citizens of Memphis that he would visit the Tennessee city the latter part of this month. He will leave Washington on the 26th and reach Memphis the next day, remaining there several days. The admiral is to be entertained at a banquet and will be presented a magnificent service of silver plate.

SEDITION IN PHILIPPINES.

Prominent Natives in Tabayas Join Hostile Societies.

Manila, April 6. — The authorities have discovered widespread violations of their oaths by many prominent natives in the Province of Tayabas, who are joining hostile societies. The fiscal (with the assistance of the officials here) is preparing charges of sedition against them. It is likely that Acting Gov. Wright will personally investigate the situation.

Relative of Dewey Gored to Death.

Hartford, Conn., April 6. — Lester Dewey, a well known citizen of Wapping, a few miles east of this city, was gored to death by an Alderney bull. He was eighty-three years old, and was a member of the old family of Deweys to which Admiral Dewey belongs.

Shah Goes Visiting.

Berlin, April 6.—The shah of Persia is expected here about May 20. He will be the guest of the kaiser at Potsdam and will occupy the apartments in the palace at Sans Souci, which were tenanted by Prince Chun last year.

Declared It a Draw.

Chicago, April 6.—Joe Walcott, the welter-weight champion, and Fred Russell of Minnesota, went six rounds to a draw here last night. Russell is a heavy-weight, but was unable to do anything with Walcott.

AFTER BEEF TRUST

CRUSADE STARTED AGAINST IT THAT MAY END IN ITS COLLAPSE.

MANIPULATE PRICES AND SUPPLY

DAMAGING EVIDENCE SUPPLIED TO INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

DENIED BY TRUST MANAGERS

SAY THERE IS NO COMBINATION TO ARBITRARILY FIX THE PRICES.

Chicago, April 6.—War against the beef trust that promises to smash the collusion between the great packing firms in the manipulation of prices and supply has been precipitated by the discovery of documentary evidence that exposes the secret operations of the combine. Fragments of a letter addressed to the Cudahy Packing company by its representatives which are now in the possession of the interstate commerce commission at Washington indicate the existence of a combination of Eastern agents that has for its purpose the Arbitrary Raising of Prices,

the reduction of shipments in order to put the market on a paying basis and the blacklisting of retailers who refuse to patronize the members of the trust. Although the trust managers deny that there is a combination among the large firms and maintain that the price of meat is regulated by the price of livestock, the Cudahy correspondence is supposed to be ammunition enough to start a fight against the combine that will begin in the East and will extend to the main houses as fast as evidence is gained that there is complete cooperation in the West.

BEEF'S THIRD BOOST.

Kansas City Packing Houses Give Notice of a Further Raise.

Kansas City, April 6. — Notice was served on the people of Kansas City yesterday that another advance in meat prices would become effective Monday. This action was taken by the packing house trust at a meeting held here yesterday and the raise will effect all beef meat products. This is the third raise in beef during two weeks. Butchers have raised their prices and restaurants have done the same. This action of the packers has greatly curtailed the consumption of meat in this city. The wholesale prices under the new schedule will be from 9 1-2 to 10 cents and 10 1-2 to 11 cents for general beef.

DANES ARE EXCITED.

Opponents of Treaty as Confident of Success as Its Supporters.

Copenhagen, April 6.—There was an exciting debate yesterday on the Danish West Indies islands treaty in the executive session of the landsthing. The opposition members violently attacked the treaty, and plied the foreign minister, Dr. Deuntzer, with numerous questions, to which he replied firmly and clearly. There is great public interest in the question, and the agitation and excitement are intense. Both sides are confident of success. A strong effort is being made to identify the members of the landsthing who are suspected of furnishing information to Congressman Richardson. So far it has not been successful.

Promise Broken.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 6.—Judge Burnham yesterday sentenced Mrs. Georgia Mason to the penitentiary at Fort Madison for two years for adultery. Mrs. Mason Pleaded guilty to this charge at the November term of court. At that time the court gave her freedom on a promise to live a better life. Recently, however, she was arrested for shoplifting.

Gets Ten Years.

Butte, Mont., April 6.—Frank Grey was convicted of assault with corrosive acid upon Agnes Downing last evening, and the jury fixed his punishment at ten years' imprisonment. Grey threw acid into the woman's face, scarring her for life and blinding one eye. The woman had refused to live with him. The defense was insanity.

Woolen Mills Sold.

Beaver Dam, Wis., April 6. — The Beaver Dam woolen mills were sold at public auction for $30,060. The mills will be reopened at once. The plant was bought by Peter Boule, J. C. Zander, M. A. Jacobs, J. W. Miller, Arthur Zander, B. Pfeffer, Joseph Harley and two Chicago men.

Farmer Murdered.

Winnipeg, Man., April 6.—A farmer named Rorke, living in the vicinity of Silver Heights, was found dead in bed, with a bullet hole in his head. He was undoubtedly murdered. No clue.

Dormitory for Women.

Missoula, Mont., April 6.—The state board of education in session here has accepted plans for a woman's building and dormitory for the state university to cost approximately $35,000.

Buy Brown County Bonds.

Aberdeen, S. D., April 6.—The Brown county court house bonds have been awarded to N. W. Harris & Co. of Chicago, who bid somewhat above par for the entire issue of $65,000.

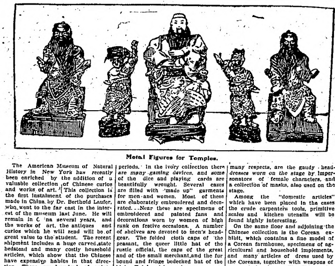
Noted Minister Dead.

Santee, Neb., April 6.—Rev. Artemus Ehnamani, the first Indian minister in Nebraska, and for thirty-five years minister of the Indian Pilgrim Congregational church on the Santee reservation, died yesterday.

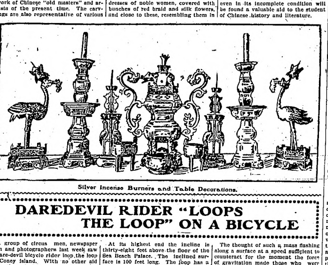
Will Renew the Fight.

Norfolk, Va., April 6.—At a meeting yesterday of street railway motormen and conductors who went out on the former strike against the Norfolk Railway and Light company, it was decided to renew the fight.

CHINESE CURIOS



Metal Figures for Temples.



Silver Incense Burners and Table Decorations.

The American Museum of Natural History in New York has recently been enriched by the addition of a valuable collection of Chinese curios and works of art. This collection is the first instalment of the purchases made in China by Dr. Berthold Laufer, who went to the far east in the interest of the museum last June. He will remain in China several years, and the works of art, the antiques and curios which he will send will be of great value to the student. The recent shipment includes a huge carved state bedstead and many costly household articles, which show that the Chinese have expensive habits in that direction. There are hundreds of paintings which have not yet been placed in the cases. These represent the work of Chinese "old masters" and artists of the present time. The carvings are also representative of various periods. In the ivory collection there are many gaming devices, and some of the dice and playing cards are beautifully wrought. Several cases are filled with "made up" garments for men and women. Most of these are elaborately embroidered and decorated. Near these are specimens of embroidered and painted fans and decorations worn by women of high rank on festive occasions. [illegible] headgear. The folded cloth caps of the peasant, the queer little hat of the petty official, the caps of the great and of the small merchant, [illegible] hats and caps are the head-dresses of noble women, covered with bunches of red braid and silk flowers, and close to these, resembling them in many respects, are the gaudy head-dresses worn on the stage by impersonators of female characters, and a collection of masks, also used on the stage.

Among the "domestic articles" which have been placed in the cases are the crude carpenters' tools, primitive scales and kitchen utensils will be found highly interesting.

On the same floor and adjoining the Chinese collection is the Corean exhibit, which contains a fine model of a Corean farmhouse, specimens of agricultural and household implements, and many articles of dress used by the Coreans, together with weapons of war and the chase. The Chinese department, as a whole, is one of the notable features of the museum, and even in its incomplete condition will be found a valuable aid to the student of Chinese history and literature.

DAREDEVIL RIDER "LOOPS THE LOOP" ON A BICYCLE

A group of circus men, newspaper men and photographers last week saw a dare-devil bicycle rider loop the loop at Coney island. With no other aid than the velocity accumulated by a rush down a steep incline the man rode up the concave surface until he hung head downward and continued on down out of the loop to dismount, cool and collected, 100 feet away.

The bicyclist was Robert B. Vandervoort, an electrician, who has gone over the loop-the-loop railroad known to almost every visitor to Coney Island until he has come to look upon centrifugal force as a real, tangible thing.

Time and again he made the circuit standing up straight in the car. Last October he saw a bicyclist attempt to loop the loop, saw him fall and be dreadfully hurt; saw what was needed to accomplish the looping successfully, and himself practiced and planned until he accomplished the thrilling act safely. An incline and loop was especially constructed. It is movable and will pack into a comparatively small space.

At its highest end the incline is thirty-eight feet above the floor of the Sea Beach Palace. The inclined surface is 100 feet long. The loop has a vertical diameter of twenty-one feet, four inches, but reckoning from the lowest level of the inclined surface of the loop, the distance is twenty-four feet. The loop has a horizontal diameter of eighteen feet.

The riding surface is three feet wide at its narrowest point, where the loop begins, and twelve feet wide at the end of the loop. A black stripe a foot wide serves to guide the rider in his head-over-heels trip.

Vandervoort's wheel is one especially constructed for the daring ride. It weighs about sixty-five pounds, has pneumatic tires on broad rims of steel, no pedals, no chain or gearing and no brake. There is no way for the rider to stop himself once mounted and in motion, except to fall off, and there is no mechanism to allow of the rider's attaining motion. It has two footholds for the rider's feet, where the crank shaft of a bicycle usually is.

The thought of such a mass flashing along a surface at a speed sufficient to counteract for the moment the force of gravitation made those who were about to witness Vandervoort's exhibition feel creepy.

Vandervoort was quite cool. Crying out that he was ready, he shot down the incline. Engineer Prescott explained that the speed was thirty-five miles an hour. Vandervoort began his ascent of the concave surface as straight and true as a bird might fly.

Everyone who saw the exhibition was intent to see Vandervoort hang downward for the moment he was passing the zenith of the loop. But he was past and out of the loop before those who watched could comprehend.

A rope arranged high enough to catch his handle bar and run through pulleys with a graded resistance helped to stop Vandervoort. The time was 6 2-5 seconds.

No matter how much money you may have, if you are poor in character, that means poverty for ever.

HAS A BIG BUFFALO HERD.

Millionaire Half-Breed Keeps 180 of Them and Won't Sell One.

Roaming in absolute freedom in the beautiful Flathead valley, on the Flathead Indian reservation, Montana, is the largest herd of buffalo on the continent. The noble animals have practically all the freedom that was theirs in the days when they were monarchs of the plains. The herd is the property of a half-breed of mixed Indian and Mexican blood named Pablo, whose home is on the reservation, and who is reported to be worth $2,500,000. He does not look it in his suit of citizen's clothes, broad-brimmed hat and blanket, but he is as shrewd a ranchman as is to be found on the western plains and he has increased his government allotment of cattle and lands until he has amassed a vast fortune. He has two houses, one on the reservation and the other in the dreary little shipping town of Selish, on the Northern Pacific railroad.

Pablo owns 100,000 head of cattle and takes a justifiable pride in them, but he especially glories in his herd of buffalo, which numbers 180. Pablo's regard for his buffalo is intense. He is not keeping them for profit, and will not sell a single specimen. He loves them because they are a part of the old free life he loved and loves still. He has a fellow feeling for bison because, like his own race, they have been driven from their old ranges. So he has gathered together all that he could get and has placed them on the magnificent range at the outlet of Flathead lake.

FAIRY TALES FOR CHILDREN.

Publisher Refuses Stories of Dragons or Tragic Themes.

"I am a lover of fairy tales," said a novelist the other day, "and for a long time I have had the desire to do a volume of them. So I visited a publisher recently and submitted to him the plots of ten or eleven stories that would make, I thought, a very charming little book. He disagreed with me.

"One story dwelt with dragons and another with the slaying of an ogre. According to the publisher they wouldn't do for child readers; they would scare the little ones and would cause them to believe in horrid monsters that don't exist. Another was a sad story, and that was impossible because little children should never be made to cry. And so on down through them all, until I couldn't see for the life of me what subjects were left to write about.

"Consider the best fairy tales—Hans Andersen's 'Tin Soldier,' Oscar Wilde's 'Happy Prince,' or 'Jack, the Giant Killer,' 'Little Red Riding Hood,' 'Bluebeard,' 'Aladdin,' 'Puss-in-Boots' and so on. Don't they deal with death and woe and slaughter and fear?

"It is all absurd for publishers to issue only namby-pamby stuff for children," said the novelist, according to the Philadelphia Record, "and one result of their foolishness is that good fairy tales are no longer written."

The Kaiser's Awful Power.

The mobilized strength of the German army is 2,310,000 infantry, 151,000 cavalry, 329,000 artillery, 78,000 technical troops, 168,000 other formations, making a total of 3,036,000 trained men. All these warriors are bound by oath of fealty to the kaiser. The Bavarians are exempt from the oath in time of peace. The kaiser controls all appointments, no matter what the province; he has the right of ordering the erection of fortresses in any part of the empire and of declaring any country or district in a state of siege in case of threatened disturbance. Every German is liable to serve, in the army or navy, and no substitution is allowed. Thus a martial spirit permeates the whole empire. The position of the kaiser at the head of these vast and terrible forces is one of fascinating interest, and the thought of what would be the effect on the other great armed powers of Europe were this mighty war machine set in motion is a fearful one.

Must Be One She Can Look Up To.

Ella Ewing, the giantess, has set at rest the rumor of her impending marriage to a Montana man or any one else so far as she knows at present. She told a friend in La Grange in a letter recently that there isn't anything in the story. She and her father are to start shortly for the Pacific coast, where Miss Ewing is to be on exhibition this summer. It may be said for Ella that if she remains single it is from choice and not from necessity. Her mail contains an average of at least three proposals a week, it is said. She is understood to insist, however, that she will only marry the right kind of a man, one she can really look up to, and in view of her eight and one-half feet of stature it can be readily realized that such may not be easy to find.—Kansas City Journal.

Politics in Canada.

A German vote is now added to the multitude of race, creed and class votes which divide the electorate of the long-suffering province.

Grits and Tories in the legislature are down on their hands and knees groveling to the German vote, which Nelson Monteith, M. P. P., proposes to tickle with a demonstration in honor of Prince Henry.

There is the French vote, the whisky vote, the Irish vote, the Orange vote, the Catholic vote, and now on top of all these and many others is piled the German vote.

Canadians and Prohibitionists are two elements in the population which have not a vote they can call their own.—Hamilton (Canada) Telegram.

Home and Fashions

Topics That Will Prove of Interest to the Feminine Mind.

Dress Accessories.

"Trifles" are of more importance than women sometimes think, for a very ordinary dress may often acquire an elegance which it has not, by a well-chosen, pretty detail, be it only a waist belt. Gloves and boots cannot be called details; they are necessaries, and cannot be too good in every respect. Details mean collars, ties, belts, veils—everything, in fact, which is not of the dress, but which forms the tout ensemble of a perfect toilet. The very purse in her hand, the chain around her neck, the combs in her hair, proclaim the taste of the woman. In collars the latest is of embroidered lawn or lace over an under collar of black silk. Another model is a high band of black velvet with a strass or jet band in the center and a sailor knot at the back. Transparent collars are threaded with the narrowest black velvet ribbon, as also are the lace yokes and fronts of some blouses.

A Point on Shirt Waists.

A point concerning shirt waists which is very definite just now, is that to be smart they must be belted with a similar color. A soft white linen belt, stitched along each edge and washable as often as occasion requires will be a necessary adjunct to the summer girl's wardrobe. Removable buckles may be used, or the belt may be gathered and pinned with one of the round pins whose uses are legion. These belts may be made of any material, but a special touch of completeness is given when they are of the same material as the waist with which they are worn. With a white linen stock stitched with a band of the shirt waist color, and a belt of the same material as the waist, the simplest outfit will look chic and modish.

Fancy Waist.

Evening waist of pastel green peau de soie, tucked all over. The fronts, which cross are bordered with ficelle lace, in which ribbon of the same shade as the silk is run. The ribbon is knotted in a pretty way on the left side, and on the outside of the sleeves, which are trimmed to correspond.

Inside of the lace on the fronts of the waist is a drapery of plaited mousseline de soie matching the silk, and the draped yoke or plastron is also of the mousseline de soie.—Le Costume Elegant.

New and Dressy Ideas.

Several handsome gowns are shown with the deep circular flounce made of material contrasting with the rest of the skirt, the sleeves and yoke matching the upper part of the skirt. This is an effective combination and in black and white is very fine, but as can be understood readily, is susceptible in these days of daring contrasts, of being overdone shockingly. Tucking has not gone out of fashion, but is abundant on summer gowns. In the skirts there is noticeable [illegible] at hips and almost to the knees. There comes [illegible] flare in graceful flounces or tiny ruffles. Yokes finish nearly all bodices, and some are outlined with fancy lace collars or berthas.

Charming House Gown.

Reception gown of fawn-colored poplin. The corsage is made with plaits stitched over the shoulders, opening out below to form a very full blouse. The waistcoat, the girdle and the deep cuffs are all of fancy cannele velvet.

The waistcoat opens over a full plastron of white mousseline de soie, ornamented with straps and bows of black velvet. The skirt is plaited at the sides and back, the plaits being stitched down over the hips, then opening out to give a graceful flare.—Le Luxe.

Women Should Sleep More.

A physician who is a specialist in nervous diseases say that women should sleep at least nine hours at night and one in the daytime, says the New England Farmer. A woman will plead that she hasn't time to lie down for a few minutes in the daytime, and she will infringe upon the hours of night, which should be given to sound, healthy, needed sleep, in order to finish some piece of work which could as well be completed on the morrow. She will rush and hurry all day long, and then when the household is hushed in slumber at night she will sit to read the daily paper, thinking she will not have to pay for the time she is stealing from the health-giving sleep that comes before midnight.

From the Club Woman.

To the woman who would be individual, who wants to be an inspiration and a beneficence, there is but one message: Be not afraid of yourself; get acquainted with the deeps of your own nature; face the shortcomings of your own spirit. Go into the open country alone if you can; if not, take a little time out of every twenty-four hours to think. Just as the observance of the Sabbath is a wise thing from a physiological standpoint, so are self-communion and its breathing spaces a blessing to the individual.

Shirt Waist Material.

Madras, ducks, linens, percales, silk ginghams, silk and mercerized chambrays all will be made up in shirt waists. The new figured piques and ducks are very fine and soft as a glove. White laced lawns are more beautiful than ever and may be found in numerous designs. Linen colored batistes seem to grow handsomer with each addition to the stock and make up prettily in separate waists. The shirt waist suit will be popular and may be made up in the same materials as the waists.

The Ever-Popular Black.

Black, which has already enjoyed an exclusive vogue so long, will be even more popular this spring in the production of tailor suits and demi-dress gowns of peau de soie, failles, cashmere and Muscovite silk.

NEW YORK GOES DRY.

Police Make an Effort to Close Up Saloons.

New York, April 8.—The police and the liquor dealers gave Greater New York a "dry" Sunday. Though there were degrees of dryness, so to speak, in different sections of the metropolis, the day has had no equal in the suspension of the liquor traffic since five years ago when Supt. Thomas F. Byrnes tightly closed the saloons one memorable Sunday. On that occasion those seeking spirituous refreshments were compelled to resort to places outside of Chief Byrnes' sphere of influence. His task, however, is said to have been easier than that which confronted the police this time, for he had no Raines law hotels with their sandwiches to contend with. These hotels must be taken into consideration, therefore, when the word "dry" is used in connection with the events of Sunday, for the man who had cash to buy a sandwich and a drink had small difficulty in slacking his thirst. Few liquor dealers had the temerity to keep open and serve drinks alone, and of those who did the majority were invited to visit the nearest police station, there to remain until bondsmen appeared.

AN IMPULSE TO GOOD FEELING.

Emperor William Discusses Cecil Rhodes' Will.

Berlin, April 8.—"This bequest shows the wide reach of Cecil Rhodes' mind and his vision of the future," said Emperor William to Dr. von Lucanus, the chief of his majesty's civil cabinet, who alluded to the will of Mr. Rhodes during an audience with the emperor yesterday morning. It was then pointed out to his majesty that Mr. Rhodes, while leaving precise directions as to the selection of the beneficiaries of the Rhodes scholarships in other countries, the selection of the beneficiaries of the fifteen scholarships set aside for Germans had been left to the discretion of Emperor William. The bequests of Mr. Rhodes are regarded at court as constituting an enduring impulse to good feeling between Germany, Great Britain and the United States and the colonies of these countries and as giving more substance to the grouping of the Teutonic powers.

BRIBERS RULE GREAT CITY.

Grand Jury in St. Louis Unearths Facts of Widespread Corruption.

St. Louis, April 8.—Startling charges are made by the February grand jury, which has been investigating bribery and official corruption in the municipal assembly, in its final report to Judge O'Neil Ryan in the criminal court. The report declares that the people of St. Louis have but a vague conception of the extent to which corruption and venality have for the past ten years existed among the sworn officers and public servants. It finds the true condition of affairs "almost too appalling for belief." A tribute is paid to Joseph W. Folk, the circuit attorney under whose leadership the investigation is being made.

WHITELAW REID TO PAY.

Special Ambassador and Suite to Foot Own Bills.

Washington, April 8.—Whitelaw Reid and the members of his special embassy to the coronation of King Edward VII. have decided to pay their expenses out of their own pockets. When Mr. Reid went to London as the special ambassador of the United States to the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria he was provided with an expense fund of $10,000, appropriated by congress. Four thousand dollars of this amount was turned back into the treasury by Mr. Reid, who, according to reliable information, spent $20,000 out of his private purse to keep up the dignity of the American representative.

DEALS OUT DEATH

DESPERATE NEGRO IN ALABAMA SUCCESSFULLY RESISTS ARREST.

THREE DEAD; THREE ARE DYING

HOUSES BURNED TO DISLODGE NEGRO FROM HIS HIDING PLACE.

KILLED AND THROWN INTO FIRE

RELIC SEEKERS CUT OFF NEGRO'S FINGERS AND OTHER PARTS OF BODY.

Tuscumbia, Ala., April 8.—Three men are dead, three mortally wounded and four seriously wounded as the result of an attempt by Sheriff Gassaway yesterday to arrest Will Reynolds, a desperate negro. Reynolds was slain in the fight.

All the casualties, except the death of Reynolds himself, are the result of the deadly fire of Reynolds with a 45-caliber Winchester. The negro was in his turn riddled and thrown into a fire.

Sheriff Gassaway went to a negro settlement, "Knardtown," yesterday morning to arrest Will Reynolds for obtaining goods under false pretense. The officer was met by the negro, who opened fire with a Winchester, wounding the sheriff and immediately firing upon the deputy, Will Gassaway, who was some 300 yards away, mortally wounding him.

As soon as possible every man in town who could procure a gun was in the neighborhood, but owing to the location none dared to venture within the open space.

Dynamite Was Procured, and the house in which the negro was barricaded was fired upon, but with no effect. At 1 o'clock Capt. Simpson, of the Wheeler rifles, arrived with twelve guns and one thousand cartridges, which were distributed among twelve picked men. This company was stationed around the house and riddled it but the negro had taken refuge in the cellar and returned the fire, killing Jones and wounding Finney. Coal oil was then procured and after four hours of hard work the houses adjoining that in which the negro was located were fired by the Wheeler Rifles who had arrived on the scene. The negro took refuge in a shed and opened fire, killing Wallace and wounding Davis, but the people and some militiamen riddled the negro, and the crowd, numbering 1,000, grabbed the body and threw it into the burning building. Wallace, who was killed, was closing in on the negro, who shot him through the body.

Dismembered by Relic Seekers.

His body fell into the burning debris, but was recovered. Davis, Wallace and Falkner were the men who fired the buildings. Relic seekers cut off the negro's fingers and such parts of the body as could be procured. Three houses were burned in the effort to reach the negro. Several horses were killed in the battle.

Last night it was reported that the sheriff and his brother had no chance to live. So deadly was the negroe's aim that it was possibly an hour before the body of Prout could be recovered. Not a shot was fired by Reynolds that did not tell when those whom he was firing upon were seen. The excitement was intense but there is no fear of an uprising among the negroes.

Fully 2,000 people from Florence and Sheffield were here and every surgeon in the two towns was pressed into service.

WEST SUPERIOR HAS WEALTH.

For the First Time in Years the City Will Have Money With Which to Pay Its Employes.

West Superior, Wis., April 8. — For the first time in years the city of Superior will be able to run without being behind in the payment of its employes and without borrowing money to tide over the last few months of the year, is probable this year. Everything looks now as though the financial difficulties of running the city through the year were over with. This is the first time that arrangements have not been figured on to borrow money. Last year the employes were behind seven and nine months in their salaries, and the indebtedness of the city to the employes has just been settled up by the payment of $120,000.

DOCTOR DIES OF BLOOD POISON.

Chief Surgeon of the Rock Island Railroad Succumbs to Malady Contracted in Operating.

Davenport, Iowa, April 8.—Dr. W. D. Middleton, surgeon-in-chief of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railway, and dean of the medical department of the Iowa State University, died from blood poisoning, contracted during an operation. Dr. H. U. Braunlich, another prominent Davenport surgeon who assisted in the same operation, also lies at the point of death from blood poisoning.

DRUMMER DROPS DEAD.

Des Moines Man Suddenly Stricken While "On the Road."

Adair, Iowa, April 8. — Charles D. Doyle of Des Moines, a traveling salesman for an Eastern drug house, fell dead here as he entered the store of a customer yesterday afternoon. He was prominently identified with the Iowa Traveling Men's association.

Fire Causes Heavy Loss.

Le Mars, Iowa, April 8.—Fire yesterday destroyed the grocery and dry goods stores of Baron Bros., the building and printing plant of the Le Mars Post and the stores of the Grand Rapids Furniture company. The loss is $50,000, with $31,000 insurance.

Postmaster Resigns.

Spring Valley, Minn., April 8.—W. W. Washburn, postmaster at this city, whose four-year term expired about six weeks ago, has sent to the department his resignation.

FOR BOER WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Fund Raised in Illinois Is Sent to President Roosevelt.

Chicago, April 8.—A certified check for $5,000, drawn to the order of President Roosevelt, was forwarded to the president on March 28 by the committee of citizens which Gov. Yates appointed in December to raise funds for the relief of Boer women and children in the concentration camps of South Africa. Inasmuch as the committee was without satisfactory means of forwarding the money, President Roosevelt was requested to accept the fund and have it forwarded through such channels as he might deem best, to be disbursed for the relief of the sufferers for whom it was intended. A letter from Secretary Hay under date of April 3 has been received by Peter Van Vlissingen, secretary of the Illinois committee, acknowledging the receipt of the check by President Roosevelt, and stating that, as directed by the president, the money had been forwarded to the United States consul general at Cape Town, that being, in the president's opinion, the most expeditious way of transmitting it to its destination. The consular officer at Cape Town, Secretary Hay states, has been directed to distribute the fund in the manner intended by the donors. President Roosevelt and the secretary of state having so readily complied with this first request, Mr. Van Vlissengen announced yesterday that it was now the purpose of the committee to undertake the collection of a much larger sum.

OFF TO CHARLESTON.

President and Party Goes to the Exposition.

Washington, April 8.—This afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the president and a party of friends left Washington for a visit to the Charleston exposition, going via the Southern railway. The personnel of the party is as follows: The president, Mrs. Roosevelt, Attorney General and Mrs. Knox, Secretary Wilson, Secretary Cortelyou, Assistant Secretary Loeb and Mrs. Loeb, Commander W. S. Cowles of the navy and Mrs Cowles, Dr. John F. Urie, J. K. Gracie, Hon. Murat Halstead and M. C. Latta.

FAMINE IN INDIAN TRIBES.

Twenty Thousand Redskins Suffer Because Whites Shut Off Water.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 8—Twenty thousand Indians on the Sacaton reservation are suffering from famine, which is certain to result in many deaths among the Pima and Maricopa tribes. Agent Hadley is here to secure relief for the Indians. White ranchers above the reservation have diverted all the water and the Indians have had none for many months. They are abandoning their ranches, and their cattle are dying by scores for lack of feed.

SWEPT BY STORM.

Much Property Destroyed in a Section of Texas.

Paris, Tex., April 8.—A special from Prattsville, Delta county, Tex., says a destructive storm swept over that place Saturday night between 8 and 9 o'clock. No lives were lost but much property was destroyed. The storm came from the North and for twenty minutes there was a perfect flood of rain and hail. As far as known it extended only between Prattsville and Paclo, towns eight miles apart.

COUP BY ALBANIANS.

Turkish Officials Are Captured and Held as Hostages.

Constantinople, April 8.—Advices received here from Uskup, European Turkey, announce that a number of Albanians recently surrounded the government offices at Ipek, took all the officials prisoners and then telegraphed to the Yildiz palace here demanding the release of the Albanians who are detained in custody at Constantinople. Two battalions of Turkish infantry have been dispatched to Ipek.

Won by Ortonville.

Ortonville, Minn., April 8.—The Ortonville-Graceville high school debate held in this city Saturday evening resulted in a victory for the Ortonville disputants. The subject, "Resolved, That the United States senators should be elected by a direct vote of the people," was contended for by the Graceville debaters, George Studdart, William Costello and S. Moran, and were opposed by Glenn, Whiteman, H. C. Scholberg and Percy Clark for Ortonville. The judges were Senator Young and Editor Stanton of Appleton and ex-Judge Steidl of Wheaton.

Suspected of Robbery.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 8.—George Carson, a well dressed stranger, was arrested at Union Star, Mo., yesterday and is being held on the suspicion that he is a member of the gang that held up the north-bound Burlington train near this city Thursday last. The Burlington engineer and fireman believe Carson is one of the robbers. He declines to give an account of himself or his movements.

Long Strike Is Ended.

Scranton, Pa., April 8. — Scranton's six months street car strike is at an end and the men will return to work to-day. An agreement was signed last night by General Manager Silliman and the executive board of the strikers. All the men are to be taken back as quickly as possible at the advance in wages recently announced by the company.

Leo's Silver Jubilee.

Baltimore, April 8.—The silver jubilee of Pope Leo XIII. was observed with solemn and unusually elaborate services at the cathedral yesterday. The ceremony was marked by the presence of two cardinals, Gibbons and Martinelli.

Lee Not a Candidate.

Charlottesville, Va., April 8. — Gen. Fitzhugh Lee authorized the Associated Press to say that he is not a candidate for the position of minister or consul general to Cuba. He seeks no diplomatic position whatsoever.

Buildings Blown Up.

El Paso, Tex., April 8.—The town of Santa Rosa, N. Mex., was almost destroyed by fire. Twelve business houses were burned. Dynamite was used to stop the flames, as no water could be secured.

LIKE PANEL GAME

"CREEPING JOINTS" ARE FOUND TO BE NUMEROUS IN NEW YORK.

POLICE ARE IN ON THE DEAL

DISTRICT ATTORNEY JEROME LOCATES FIFTY HOUSES IN ONE DISTRICT.

NO HELP FOR THE POOR VICTIM

GETS TIRED OF THE METHODS OF POLICE AND DROPS THE CASE.

New York, April 5.—To his collection of expert information District Attorney Jerome added a chapter on "creeping joints" yesterday.

"It is a variation of the panel game," the district attorney explained. "A man goes to a house with a woman. While she holds his attention a man creeps into the room, rifles his pockets and gets out. Then the victim rushes to a police station with his complaint. The wardman goes to the house with him. They find another woman there, but no trace of the one he was with.

Mysteriously Disappears.

"The wardman asks him if he wants to make complaint against this woman. He says he doesn't know this one. So the wardman takes him to other places near by and asks him if he can pick out the woman. She's not there to be picked out.

"Eventually the victim gets tired out. He wants to avoid the disgrace and humiliation of pressing the complaint when he isn't sure of getting any of his money back, so he drops the case. The wardman locates the woman, takes 50 per cent of the money, while the woman gets 25 per cent and the 'creeper' 25. I know of one precinct where there are fifty houses of this character," said Mr. Jerome, "and I have the addresses of fifteen of them."

The old-fashioned door bell of the district attorney's Rutgers street house was pulled out by the roots at 2 o'clock this morning. It was Mr. Jerome's first night in his new domicile, and the bell had been overworked. Mr. Jerome thought that whoever was so anxious to arouse him was entitled to his attention, and he went down to the door.

"Creeping Joint" Victim.

"The visitor breathlessly explained that he had been robbed of $650 in a 'creeping joint.' He wanted the district attorney to recover it for him.

"I don't see what I can do to-night," said Mr. Jerome, when he had heard the details. "I guess you'll have to wait until morning."

"But my $650 can't wait," pleaded the man. "They'll be spending it for 'hop' to-night and betting it on the horses to-morrow."

Mr. Jerome told the man to return later in the morning. He didn't come back.

Commissioner Partridge was asked if he was aware of the existence of "creeping joints," and if they were included in the police reports of suspicious places.

COLOMBIAN REBELS ARE WHIPPED.

Two Insurgent Armies Are Destroyed and Gen. Uribe-Uribe Is Defeated.

Panama, Colombia, April 5.—This city was the scene of wild enthusiasm on the part of the conservatives last night when Gov. Salazar made public the contents of the following dispatch received from President Marroquin:

"Bogota—Gen. Gonzales, Valencia, has defeated and completely destroyed the armies of Generals Focion Soto and Juan McAllister. Gen. Uribe-Uribe, who invaded Colombian territory, via Medina, in the department of Boyaca, was also defeated by Gen. Nicolas Pardamo."

Gov. Salazar informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that both victories were of great importance, because they meant practically the end of the revolution, leaving only the isthmus to be pacified.

Washington, April 5. — Senor Concha, the Colombian minister, has received a cablegram from President Marroquin of Colombia, confirming the press dispatches from Panama of the victories of Generals Valencia and Perdomo over the insurgents. It is believed at the legation here that this will end the insurrection in Colombia.

MANY LOSE BIG WADS.

Atlantic City Fire Serious for Many New Yorkers.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 5.—The origin of the big beach front fire is a still a deep mystery. In a special meeting of the city council yesterday a rigid investigation as to the cause of the blaze was ordered.

There is no truth in the statements printed that the guests from the hotels have nearly all left the city. All the large houses are crowded but there seems to be a good deal of uneasiness, which is natural among the visitors. The last thought before retiring is for another look from the bedroom window to see if everything is all right and safe.

The police department have over 100 names, many being New Yorkers who lost jewels and cash averaging $1,000 to each person. It is doubtful if any of the lost valuables will be ever recovered, as thieves ransacked the bed chambers.

DROWNED IN THE FLOOD.

Flooded Waters Overwhelm One Man —Another Missing.

Winnipeg, Man., April 5.—A son of John Moffatt, of Bethel district, Portage Plains, was drowned in the flood on the trail. The water is subsiding here, but at Westbourne two bridges have been washed away. It is feared that a farmer named Ackerman, in the Bethel district, has been drowned.

Wilson Fund Completed.

Lexington, Va., April 5.—A telegram received here yesterday from President Denny of Washington and Lee university announces the completion of the William L. Wilson memorial fund of $100,000 to found the Wilson chair of economics at the university.

Language of the Treaty.

Pekin, April 5.—It is authoritatively stated that the Manchurian agreement is finished. The only point unsettled is a decision regarding the language the treaty is to be written in.

Dr. Talmage Improves.

Washington, April 5.—There was a slight improvement yesterday in the condition of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

DENIED BY DANES

MINISTRY HAS HAD NO CONNECTION WITH CAPT. CHRISTMAS.

PREMIER REFUSED TO SEE HIM

TALK OF IMPEACHING MEMBERS FOR REVEALING STATE SECRETS.

CHARGES FALL TO THE GROUND

INVESTIGATION SHOWS THAT THEY HAVE NO FOUNDATION IN FACT.

Copenhagen, April 5.—An official note was issued yesterday formally announcing that the Danish ministry has had no connection with Capt. Christmas. The latter applied for an audience, but the premier, Dr. Deuntzer, refused to see him. The premier also refused to receive a copy of Christmas' report on the subject of the negotiations for the sale of the Danish West Indies.

The reports from Washington that members of the landsthing furnished Congressman Richardson with materials for his disclosures have created intense indignation here and there is talk of impeaching these members for revealing state secrets.

Charges Have No Foundation.

Washington, April 5.—It was further demonstrated yesterday before the house special committee investigating the charges made by Capt. Christmas that the hints at bribery have no foundation in fact.

Abner McKinley, brother of the late president, Col. W. C. Brown and Representative Gardner of New Jersey, whose names had been mentioned by Christmas, testified that they had never met Christmas but once, and that not a word had been said about the sale of the Danish West Indies. Mr. McKinley said that Carl Fisher Hansen had spoken to him about the sale and wanted to retain him in the matter, but that he refused.

Messrs. Brown and Gardner said that they had talked with no one regarding the proposed sale of the islands.

McKinley Was Indignant.

Mr. Hansen testified that he acted for a time as counsel for Christmas and tried to induce Abner McKinley to take up the matter of the sale of the islands, but that Mr. McKinley indignantly declined. Christmas told him of meeting a number of prominent men but Hansen finally concluded to drop him. Hansen said he had never received anything from Christmas and had loaned him $800 when he was hard up, which had not been repaid. There was much laughter and the inquiry took a rather ludicrous aspect as Mr. Hansen told of Christmas' promises to various persons.

Senator Lodge said that Christmas had spoken to him about the Danish transfer. Mr. Lodge had always taken an interest in the acquisition of the islands. He told Christmas, however, that there was no use staying here, as the Danish minister would attend to the negotiations. The senator specifically denied language said to have been used by him, according to the Christmas report.

GEN. PEARSON HAS PROOFS.

Says United States Has Furnished 42,000 Men and 201,107 Horses to British.

Washington, April 5. — Gen. Samuel Pearson, formerly of the Boer army, has returned to Washington from New Orleans, where he went to gather proof to substantiate his charge that the British authorities in Louisiana had, in violation of the laws of neutrality, set up a regular military establishment, from which their army in South Africa was being furnished with men, horses, mules and supplies. Gen. Pearson made this charge in a letter to President Roosevelt, who, he says, sent it to Gov. Heard of Louisiana for investigation and report, and the latter in turn called upon him (Pearson) for proofs. Gen. Pearson declared that America had contributed at least 42,000 men to aid the British in their fight against the Boers, and had furnished the British government with 201,107 horses and mules.

HEROIC BALL PLAYER.

Dick Bayles of Joplin Pulls Out Nine Workmen Through Smoke and Flame.

Joplin, Mo., April 5.—Dick Bayles, a member of the Joplin baseball team, proved himself a hero yesterday by saving the lives of nine men at the Walcott mine on the Missouri lead and zinc tract. Fire started in the hoister house. The hoister man became confused and was unable to render any assistance to the eleven men under ground. Bayles, who was employed in the engine room, came to the rescue and pulled out nine of the men, through smoke and flame, until he was overcome. The rescued workmen pulled up the two men just as the hoister house collapsed.

Lawmakers in a Row.

St. John's N. F., April 5—A violent scene took place in the colonial legislature last night between the minister of finance, E. Jackman, and Mr. Morine, the leader of the opposition. "Mean, dirty liar," "scoundrel," "blackguard" and "coward" were among the epithets exchanged between the two men.

Bust of McKinley.

Buffalo, April 5. — Edouard L. A. Pausch, formerly of New York city, the sculptor who made the death mask of President McKinley, is now making the cast from which a bronze bust of the martyred president is to be molded.

Capt. Carter May Die.

Leavenworth, Kan., April 5.—Oberlin N. Carter, former captain of engineers in the United States army, is seriously and probably fatally ill in the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth. He has typhoid fever.

CONGRESS.

Senators Baily and Depew Indulge in a Lively Colloquy.

Washington, April 3.—Discussion of the oleomargarine bill in the senate yesterday was enlivened by two or three bright colloquies between Senators Bailey of Texas and Depew of New York. Senator Bailey concluded his speech begun Tuesday in opposition to the measure, occupying most of the time devoted by the senate to the bill's consideration. His argument was brilliant and at times eloquent. He was followed by Mr. Depew of New York in a bright and witty speech in support of the measure. Mr. Depew matched his wit with that of Mr. Bailey on the subject of the American girl and the sallies of the two senators were greeted with shouts of laughter both on floor and in galleries.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed the sundry civil appropriation bill. This is the eighth of the regular annual supply bills which has passed at this session. Only a few unimportant amendments were attached to it. After it was disposed of debate on the revenue cutter bill was resumed.

BOUNDARY ROW AGAIN.

Controversy Assumes New Phase Which May Become Serious.

Washington, April 4. — The Alaska boundary controversy has assumed a new phase which may develop into a much more serious state of affairs between Great Britain and the United States over this important and troublesome matter, so long a cause of international friction. Reports have reached the state department that a monument erected by Russia to mark the boundary between Alaska, which until 1867 was a Russian possession, and the adjacent British territory, has been arbitrarily removed by a Canadian official surveying expedition, and in view of this Secretary Hay, by direction of the president, has ordered a personal investigation to be made by a commission of American officers to ascertain the truth of the sensational information. Capt. Willis P. Richardson of the Eighth infantry, U. S. A., and Lieut. George Thornton Emmons, U. S. N., retired, have been appointed as members of the commission.

HELP UP THE AGENT.

Robbers Enter Railroad Station and Loot the Office.

Braddock, Pa., April 4.—Last night when the Pennsylvania railroad station was almost deserted and Byron Thomas, the night agent, was the only man on duty, two men wearing uniforms similar to those worn by regular railroaders entered the ticket office and while one of them stood over Thomas with a revolver the other looted the office, securing about $20 in cash. A tin box containing $1,200 in bills was cast aside by the robbers because the jingle of coin could not be heard when it was shaken. The men escaped up the railroad track and at about midnight the officers in pursuit disturbed them while they were ransacking the station at Bessemer, but both got away.

NEW CURRENCY BILL.

House Committee Is Busy Perfecting the Measure.

Washington, April 4. — The banking and currency committee of the house yesterday made much progress on the comprehensive financial measure which has been framed embodying many proposed changes in the currency and banking laws heretofore urged in separate bills. The measure is entitled "To maintain the gold standard, provide an elastic currency, equalize the rates of interest throughout the country and amend the national banking laws." Many verbal amendments were made yesterday, and this work of perfecting the measure is still in progress.

THREATS OF LYNCHING.

Six Negroes Suspected of Murder and Robbery of Young Man.

Muskogee, Ind. T., April 4.—The dead body of Will Hayes, twenty-four years old, of Wheeling, W. Va., was found lying in a vacant lot near the business section of Wagoner, Ind. T., yesterday. A pair of bloody scissors, with which Hayes had evidently been stabbed to death, lay near the body. The man's watch was missing and his pockets had been rifled. Six men and three women, all negroes, were arrested on suspicion of connection with the murder, and, owing to threats of lynching at Wagoner, the prisoners have been brought to Muscogee.

IS A GENUINE VERNET.

Musty Painting Found in St. Louis Cafe Is Valuable.

St. Louis, April 4.—In an old cafe in Market street a painting has been found believed to be a masterpiece of Horance Vernet, who flourished in the early part of the last century. After a careful cleaning by James Kelly, an artist, the painting showed, in vivid colors, a battle scene in the Soudan between Bedouins and lions. Halsey C. Ives, director of the museum of fine arts, pronounces the picture a Varnet. It is probably worth $15,000.

False Teeth Seized.

Montreal, April 4. — The secret service department of the dominion customs has made a seizure of from ten to fifteen thousand dollars worth of false teeth, which had from time to time been consigned from New York to a well known dental manufacturing firm in this city and through an alleged conspiracy were passed through the customs house free.

Private Healy Hanged.

Manila, April 4. — Private Healy of the Twenty-seventh infantry was hanged yesterday for the murder of Sergt. Moreland in April, 1901.

Gov. Savage Overruled.

Lincoln, Neb., April 4.—The Nebraska supreme court has overruled Gov. Savage's contention, and assumes jurisdiction in the Omaha fire police case, where the governor claimed the right to act without regard to the courts.

Drunken Brawl in Pekin.

Pekin, April 4.—There was a drunken brawl between soldiers in a canteen yesterday. It resulted in four English soldiers being severely wounded by bayonets wielded by French and Germans.

DEATH AT A GAME

TERRIBLE DISASTER AT A FOOT-BALL GAME IN GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

21 ARE KILLED AND 250 INJURED

CRUSH OF SPECTATORS CAUSES THE COLLAPSE OF A GRAND STAND.

SEVERAL MORE DEATHS EXPECTED

SCENE THAT WILL NEVER BE FORGOTTEN BY THOSE WHO WITNESSED IT.

Glasgow, April 8.—The casualty lists of the Ibrox Park disaster, when a number of persons were killed or injured by the collapsing of a spectators' stand during the international football match Saturday afternoon between England and Scotland have been completed. They eclipse all the reports and estimates of the casualties which were current Saturday night.

The disaster has resulted in the death of 21 persons and the injury of 250. Nearly 200 of the latter were so seriously hurt that they were taken to infirmaries for operations and treatment. One hundred and fifty of them still remain in the city infirmaries. A large proportion of the injured had limbs broken, bodies crushed and mangled and heads and faces gashed. Several more deaths will undoubtedly result from the most critical cases of fractured skulls. Yesterday the infirmaries were besieged by friends and relatives of and heartrending scenes were witnessed when the names of those who died were posted outside the buildings.

The action of the authorities at Ibrox Park in averting a more general panic by permitting the game to proceed while they encouraged the impression that prevailed among the crowd within the inclosure that the accident was not so serious is now commended. The incongruity of yell of applause mingled with the groans of the struggling sufferers will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the scene at the rear of the terrace.

When the game began 70,000 spectators were on the ground and an immense crowd had gathered outside. Being unable to obtain admittance this crowd broke down some of the barriers and swarmed upon the field, whereupon the police charged and drove the intruders back back upon the terrace and seats, with the result that the railings dividing the crowds were broken and the people were thrown over each other. In the frantic struggle toward the exits the pressure toward the upper portion of the westerly terrace was so great that a hundred feet of the highest part of the structure collapsed under the weight of the crowd driven upon it, throwing a great mass of people to the ground below.

SWITCH TAMPERED WITH.

Two Coaches Thrown From the Track and One Person Killed.

Lansing, Mich, April 8. — While an east-bound Grand Trunk passenger train was passing through Milletts, a tank station seven miles west of here early yesterday, the rear coach and the pullman sleeper were thrown off the track. One person was killed and five were injured. The wreck occurred at a switch on which a freight train was standing. The first seven cars of the train crossed the switch safely, but as the last coach was passing over the switch points the track caught in such a way as to throw it and the Pullman car following off the track and over onto the engine of the freight train. The two cars and the engine were thrown into the ditch. It is said that the switch had been tampered with.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED.

Taken From Jail by Masked Men and Hanged to a Tree.

Lynchburg, Va., April 8.—James Carter, a young negro who shot and seriously wounded Don Thomas near New Glasgow, in Amherst county Thursday night, was taken from jail Saturday night just before midnight and lynched. A party of men estimated at 200 and supposed to have come from the neighborhood of Cliffords, seven miles away, where Thomas lives, rode into Amherst late Saturday night. All were masked or had their faces blackened. When Jailer John Jones left the jail for his home several members of the lynching party made him surrender the keys. The men secured Carter, took him a half mile north of the village, hanged him to a tree and fired thirty-five bullets into his body.

ORDER NEGROES FROM LAWTON.

Oklahoma City Rises Against Blacks and Governor Is Asked for Troops.

Guthrie, Okla, April 8. — The Comanche county authorities telegraphed Gov. Ferguson stating that proclamations have been posted all over the city of Lawton warning all negroes to leave town inside of twenty-four hours and that the city is wild with excitement, and asking that Gov. Ferguson order out the national guard. The governor answered that every Oklahoma militiaman will be sent to Lawson if necessary to protect the negroes. The trouble is the result of the city election on April 1, when attempts were made to keep the negroes from voting.

Kruger's Relatives Give In.

Pretoria, April 8. — Casper Kruger, the eldest son of President Kruger and twenty-four other relatives of Mr. Kruger, bearing the same family name, are among those who are said to have recently taken the oath of allegiance.

To Protect Animals in War.

London, April 8.—Rev. F. Lawrence, secretary of the Society of Kindness to Animals, says the Swiss government is about to call a conference of the great powers to consider the protection of animals employed in war.

SENATE PASSES OLEO BILL.

Disposed of After Lively Debate by a Vote of 39 to 31.

Washington, April 4. — At the conclusion of a lively debate yesterday the senate passed the oleomargarine bill by a vote of 39 to 31. The discussion was largely in the nature of a reinforcement of arguments previously advanced. Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin made the principal speech, maintaining that congress had ample authority to enact the proposed legislation because it was in the interest of the people. In an earnest protest against the measure Mr. Vest of Missouri held that congress was invading the powers of the states. Mr. Scott of West Virginia moved to recommit the the measure to the committee, holding that it was unsatisfactory to many senators and ought to be perfected. The motion was defeated, 55 to 37. During the afternoon a perfect flood of telegrams poured into the senate from all parts of the country, urging senators to support or to oppose the measure. The measure as passed by the senate differs in some respects from that passed by the house of representatives.

In the House.

The senate bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service passed the house yesterday by a vote of 133 to 49. The opponents of the measure fought it to the last ditch. At the very end they attempted a filibuster but were swept aside by the overwhelming majority in favor of the measure.

MINISTER CLAYTON EXPLAINS.

Submits Evidence in Contradiction of the Charges.

Washington, April 5. — Powell Clayton, United States ambassador to Mexico, had a talk with Secretary Hay yesterday about the charges preferred against him in connection with the cases of Mealey and Dr. Scott. Afterward Mr. Clayton paid his respects to the president. Before his departure from the City of Mexico the ambassador received copies of the charges preferred by the attorneys for Mealey and Scott. Consequently he arrived in Washington fully prepared, and he submitted to Secretary Hay documentary evidence in contradiction of the charges. It is believed that Mr. Clayton's presentation of the case was such as to completely satisfy Secretary Hay that the minister had not been culpable in any of the matters complained of. However, it will be for the president to render the final decision in this case. Minister Clayton declines to make any statement concerning the matter.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

Woman Goes Over the American Falls at Niagara.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 5.—Della Tansey of Buffalo went over the American falls at 6 o'clock last evening. It was the most sensational cataract suicide in years. The woman jumped over the railing of Goat Island bridge about ten feet from shore. William Connors of Liverpool, Eng., who was on the bridge at the time ran down the shore and waded into the river. A rake was passed to him, which he succeeded in fastening to her clothes. Miss Tansey begged piteously to be saved. He tried to draw the woman toward the shore, but her clothing tore and she was carried over the brink of the falls. Two hundred people saw the woman go to her death.

MANY NEW BANKS.

Nearly a Thousand Additional and Reorganized Institutions.

Washington, April 5. — A statement prepared in the office of the controller of the currency shows that during the period beginning March 14, 1900, (the date of the passage of the act authorizing the organization of national banks with minimum capital of $25,000, etc.), and terminating on March 31, 1902, there were added to the system 919 national banking associations, with capital of $50,339,000 and bond deposits as security for circulation of $13,339,500. A trifle over 55 per cent of the banks organized were those of primary organization, and the remainder conversions or reorganizations.

TO STAMP OUT ANARCHY.

Gov. Odell of New York Signs a Bill Imposing Penalties.

Albany, N. Y., April 5. — A bill designed to stamp out anarchy in this state was signed by Gov. Odell yesterday. It imposes a penalty of not more than ten years imprisonment or more than $5,000 fine, or both, on persons who advocate anarchistic doctrines by speech, writing or otherwise. It also makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $2,000 or imprisonment of not more than two years or both, upon editors or publishers who permit the publication of books, newspapers or serials advocating anarchy, and upon owners, agents or occupants who harbor avowed anarchists.

ANGEL IS A ROBBER.

Theatrical Man's Second Trial Cuts Sentence Fifteen Years.

Kansas City, April 5. — C. E. Morledge, an actor who robbed a bartender and a restaurant cashier in the downtown district to secure money to put his company of players on the road, was yesterday sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. At a previous trial he was given a twenty-year sentence. A new trial was granted on a technicality, and this time Morledge pleaded insanity.

Killed in a Runaway.

Colorado Springs, April 5. — W. J. Carton, sixty-one years old, said to be a wealthy merchant of Utica, N. Y., who has been stopping at the Atleta in this city, lost control of a team which he was driving yesterday and was thrown out and killed.

Murder and Suicide.

New York, April 5. — Charles H. Worthen, a promoter, and his wife, were found dead in their room in a boarding house at 49 West Ninety-fourth street yesterday. Worthen had shot his wife and cut her throat, and had then cut his own throat.

Military Prisoner Killed.

Cincinnati, April 5. — C. H. Ford, a military prisoner at Fort Thomas, Ky., was shot and killed yesterday by Edward Turpin, a sentry, while attempting to escape.

BOTH SIDES LOST HEAVILY

FIGHTING WAS SEVERE AND GENERAL FOR OVER THREE HOURS.

Klerksdorp, Transvaal, April 8.—Details received of the battle at Doornbalt farm March 31, in which the British had 3 officers and 24 men killed and 16 officers and 131 men wounded, while the Boers had 137 men killed or wounded, show that quite 2,000 Boers opened a strong attack from different points with three guns and a pom-pom. This attack was made at a moment when the British had left their luggage in a laager in charge of the Canadian contingent and were galloping across the open plain with the intention of capturing a Boer convoy which had been discovered five miles ahead. The British raced steadily, and having dismounted opened a return fusilade on the Boers.

While the luggage in charge of the Canadians was sent for the British formed a camp and started digging trenches. The shelling of the Boers stampeded the mules and caused confusion, but otherwise it was not very effective, as many of the shells

Failed to Explode.

The Canadians were attacked by strong numbers, but they gallantly repulsed every attempt made by the Boers to break through. One party of the Canadians fought until all were killed or wounded and the last man of his party, although mortally wounded, emptied two bandoliers of cartridges at the enemy and then broke his rifle. The fighting was severe and general for fully three hours, but after the British had intrenched and the guns got into action the forces repelled numerous and determined attacks made under the personal exhortations of the Boer leaders. Toward night the fire gradually ceased and the Boers retired.

The British then telegraphed for aid, and further intrenched their camp for the night to await the arrival of Gen. Kitchener, but the Boers made no attempt to renew the attack.

Peace Negotiations Go Slowly.

Kroonstad, Orange River, April 7.—Owing to the great distance separating the members of the Transvaal mission here from Mr. Steyn, the former president of the Orange Free State, and Gen. Delcary, the negotiations between the Boer leaders in South Africa, looking toward the conclusion of the war make little progress. It is expected, however, that Mr. Schalkburger and his colleagues on the mission will shortly leave here for a more convenient center from which to conduct the negotiations.

Strength of Boers.

Pretoria, April 8.—Careful computation gives the total strength of the scattered Boer commandos at between 8,000 and 9,000.

WAR'S VICTIMS MANY.

Harts River Losses on Both Sides Aggregate 164 Officers and Men.

Pretoria, April 8.—The British losses in the engagement in the neighborhood of Harts river in the southwestern extremity of the Transvaal March 31, were 3 officers and 24 men killed and 16 officers and 131 men wounded. The Boers admit that they lost 137 men, killed or wounded. The action occurred at Doornbalt farm.

-o-

London, April 7.—The South African Casualty list shows losses sustained by the Second Dragoon Guards in their sharp rear guard action with the Boers near Boschman's kop, during the evening of March 31, were severe. Two officers were killed and 5 were wounded and 18 men were killed and 56 were wounded.

DANISH TALK IS HOT.

No Result Is Accomplished by the Upper House.

Copenhagen, April 8.—The landsthing, in secret session Saturday, continued the discussion of the Danish West India islands treaty for three hours, with no result. The debate was heated and much excitement prevailed among the members. It is hoped that the meeting to-day will enable the house to report its deliberations. The press is engaged in a violent agitation against the government.

HIS NECK STRETCHED.

Negro Hanged Within Four Days From the Beginning of His Trial.

Sumterville, Fla., April 8. — Henry Wilson, a negro, was hanged here yesterday for the murder of Lee Graham, a prominent young white man. Great crowds witnessed the execution, but there was no violence, as had been anticipated from the fact that a previous effort had been made to lynch the negro. Wilson was legally executed within four days of the date of the beginning of his trial.

Minister Conger Goes to Shanghai.

Pekin, April 8. — Mr. Conger, the American minister, sailed from Taku for Shanghai on the gunboat Wilmington yesterday. Mr. Conger is to represent the United States government on the commission which is to revise the Chinese customs tariff.

Soon to Be Signed.

Pekin, April 8.—Prince Ching and M. Paul Lessar, the Russian minister, have fixed April 8 as the date for the signing of the new Manchurian convention.

PRIESTS DO NOT HELP.

Tell Filipinos That the Plague Is Not the Real Thing.

Manila, April 4.—Up to noon yesterday 117 cases of cholera had been reported and 73 death from the disease had occurred. The health board, since the establishment of the detention camp has been having much difficulty in finding the whereabouts of cases of cholera. As soon as the members of a household find a case they either send the sick person out of the house or flee themselves. Maj. Maus, the insular health commissioner, has written to the bishop, objecting to the action of the priests in informing the people that no cases of cholera have occurred, that only cases of cholerine have been discovered, and that the sanitary precautions are only taken to annoy the people. Maj. Maus has made a great number of post mortem examinations and found that they were all of the malignant type of cholera.

SPALDING STEPS OUT.

War in the National League Is Finally Settled.

New York, April 4. — The National league baseball war is practically ended. A. G. Spalding has resigned his claim as chief executive of the big organization and the office will be tendered to William G. Temple of Pittsburg. There will be no further contest in the courts. Mr. Spalding's letter of resignation was presented to the magnates at the second day's session of the peace conference at the Fifth avenue hotel. The letter was presented by James Hart, president of the Chicago club.

BRITISH MILITARY CAMP.

Louisiana's Governor Says One Is Being Maintained in That State.

New Orleans, April 4.—Gov. Heard of Louisiana has reported to the state department at Washington that, in his opinion, the British government is maintaining a military camp within the territory of the United States. The camp in question is the one located a few miles below this city for the transshipment of horses and mules to South Africa, there to be used by British soldiers in the war against the Boers.

DEMOLISHED DAM TO SAVE MILL.

Jamestown (N. D.) Plant in Danger Because of High Water.

Jamestown, N. D., April 4.—To save the Russell Miller Flour Milling company's new mill and elevator from being destroyed by the high water in the James river it was found necessary to demolish the dam by the use of dynamite. The elevator, with 30,000 bushels of grain in store, had sagged and threatened to fall into the river. The company has sustained a heavy loss, but the chances are now that the property can be saved.

APRIL 18 ARBOR DAY.

Gov. Van Sant Fixes the Date by Proclamation.

St. Paul, April 4.—Gov. Van Sant issued a proclamation to-day fixing April 18 as Arbor day in Minnesota and urging the people of Minnesota to observe the occasion by planting trees. The day is generally marked by special exercises in all schools. This year the proclamation will call attention to the desirability of preserving song birds that are fast disappearing.

PUSH CARS OVER LAKE.

McKenzie's Broad Expanse of Water Safely Crossed.

Jamestown, N. D., April 4.—At McKenzie the railway company yesterday succeeded in pushing the passenger coaches through one and a half miles of water, fifteen inches over the rails, and safely crossed the lake. To-day all passenger coaches will cross the lake and the business will be resumed. The new track around the lake will be completed by Sunday.

POISONING SUSPECTED.

Woman Who Was With a Seattle Man When He Died Is Arrested.

Seattle, Wash., April 4. — Annie L. Trewella, who was in company with Benjamin Franklin Jones at the time he was suddenly taken ill at the Hotel York Tuesday, was arrested yesterday. Jones died under peculiar circumstances, indicating poisoning. The woman will be held pending the post-mortem examination.

SHOT HIMSELF DEAD.

Appleton (Wis.) Man Votes and Then Takes His Life.

Appleton, Wis., April 4.—Edmund G. Welmar, a prominent resident, committed suicide last night by shooting himself through the heart with a shotgun. The charge passed through his body and lodged in the wall. The deed was committed immediately after he returned home from the polls. Despondency was the cause.

DROWSY SPREE IS FATAL.

Unidentified Man Is Killed on Tracks at Hayward.

Hayward, Wis., April 4. — An unidentified man was killed by Train No. 60 last night about 8 o'clock. One leg was cut off and the man died this morning. The man was evidently drunk and had laid on the track to sleep.

Rose's Plurality.

Milwaukee, April 4. — Complete returns give the following vote for mayor: David S. Rose, Democrat, 29,031; Charles H. Apson, Republican, 20,742; Howard Tuttle, Social Democrat, 8,373. Plurality for Rose, 8,289. The common council is also Democratic by a small majority. Warren D. Tarrant, nonpartisan candidate for circuit judge, has a plurality of 8,750 over Lyman G. Wheeler, Republican. Republicans will have control in the new board of supervisors.

Boy Held for Burglary.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 4.—Burd Hammond, the Deer Creek boy who was brought in on the charge of burglarizing Rev. Mr. Koch's residence, was bound over to the grand jury, bail being fixed at $500. He went to jail.

All About a Fence.

Virginia City, Mont., April 4.—John Bellis of Cherry Creek, eighteen miles east of Norris, was fatally shot by Alfred J. Sheldon. The men had quarreled over a fence dividing their property.

DEFECT VI PAGE

The Higher Sacrifice.

By MYRTLE CONGER.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub Co.)

The sound of gay voices came in faintly from the distant campus.

He looked at her and smiled.

"I wonder if they recall any part of 'The Higher Sacrifice' they heard this morning?" she asked as she returned his smile.

"Not now, I think. The lecture was not for the campus grounds. They may remember it after awhile. Some years hence, perhaps."

"But doesn't it seem that anything affecting life so deeply must be remembered all the time?"

"No; I think not. You, for instance, are the dearest part of my life, and I'm afraid I don't remember you always. In my laboratory, for example, in my work before those eager young men and women, I forget you, Elinor. My demonstrations are never mixed with thoughts of this couch with its cool pillows and you."

"But you do not really forget me. You may not remember me in that way, perhaps, but you are conscious of me all the time, just as I am of you, when my class and I go creeping inch by inch through the Inferno, shrinking and quivering before the sights that confront us there. One's consciousness doesn't need to imply couches nor pillows nor any objective things at all, need it?"

He laughed happily. The voices on the campus grew gayer.

"There," he said. "They're filled with the consciousness of 'The Higher Sacrifice.'"

She smiled a little. "I think he made it beautiful," she said.

"He made it too beautiful. Sacrifice—real sacrifice isn't like that. It is harsh and horribly commonplace, though it is not common. I don't think it especially productive of the qualities of character he described. It makes character neither sweet nor great. On the contrary, it makes hard lines, both mentally and physically. It ages and embitters. Look at Miss Loswell. She has sacrificed. I don't know of any one more unloved or unlovely. She always makes me feel an undercurrent of sarcasm or pessimism or something equally disagreeable in the smallest things she says and does."

"Winfred."

"Well, dear, I thought you wanted my opinion."

"Yes, of course."

"Well, it isn't much longer. I wasn't much impressed by the lecture at all."

"You don't believe in sacrifice?"

"Yes, I do, but I don't believe it's either attractive or beatific, and I don't think it should be presented in that light to those who know so little of life. Sacrifice is difficult and forbidding."

"To me it is beatific," she said.

He patted her arm tenderly. "Play for me, dear," he said. "Sing to me."

She rose and went over to the piano. He settled back into the cushions.

She played. She sang. It grew dark. She had sung all the songs he loved best.

"How good you are, Elinor," he said. "Come here."

She went and sat down beside him, where he had made room for her without raising his head from the pillows. She smoothed back his hair with her hand. She kissed him.

"Oh, Winfred," she whispered. "My love, how I love you."

He drew her closer to him and closed his eyes contentedly.

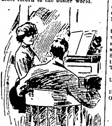
The voices died away on the campus. The moon came up.

He slept. She did not stir for fear of waking him. She sat looking out into the quiet night, thinking of the lecture they had heard that morning and of the divine sublimity of the higher sacrifice.

II.

They had been spending their vacation together with her mother at her cottage in the mountains. Her cousin Lucie was with them.

And the time was near when they all must return to the busier world.



"Play for me, dear," he said.

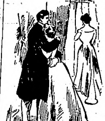
On one of the last days, Winfred and Lucie went off to the cliffs together. He begged Elinor to go with them, but she had some reason for remaining. Neither could ever remember what reason she gave, but then human affairs do not turn upon reason. After they had gone, Elinor's mother spoke to her about her lover and her friend, but Elinor only smiled. She knew that it would come and she had prepared to smile.

When they returned later in the evening Lucie's face was flushed and there was a light in her eyes that Elinor knew. It was the light her own had held when Winfred kissed her for the first time.

She went up to them and took Lucie's hands in her own. "You may as well tell us, you two," she said gently and steadily. "Winfred, my dear friend, am I to wish you happiness? The mother here has been questioning me. She was afraid that you and I—that you were more than my friend, but I have told her that you are free, free to love my cousin Lucie. I saw it long ago. Before you had begun to dream of it, Winfred. Before either of you had, I think."

She took Lucie in her arms. She hid her white face against the girl's warm cheek. She felt that Winfred was looking at her, and she dreaded the happiness in his eyes.

Lucie freed herself. She took a step toward her lover, then stopped and held out her hands to him. "Why, Winfred," she exclaimed, delightedly, "they have guessed it."



"Were you never in love before, you great, grand man?"

He looked past her at Elinor. Their eyes met. The soul of the woman looked out of them, calm in its agony.

"Elinor!" he said.

His impulse was to go to her. The old days could not die.

"Elinor."

But Lucie stood between them. He felt her hands upon his breast. He felt her silky hair against his throat. He heard her laugh softly.

"Why, Winfred," she was saying. "I do believe you are frightened. Were you never in love before, you great, grand man?"

Elinor had turned, and passing her arm through that of her mother, left the room with her.

Out of the Past, rose the voices on the campus, submerging that of the little girl who clung to him and laughed because of love. And in that still, far-off night, he heard Elinor speaking, "To me, it is beatific."

Water with Fixed Air.

A magazine published in 1823 gives the following method to improve water for drinking: Let the water, when boiled, be put into a common barrel churn, where it may be agitated to any degree that may be wished for. In the course of its being thus agitated it will absorb atmospheric air, and other elastic fluids with which it may come in contact. It will thus become a liquor, safe, palatable and wholesome, to be obtained with little trouble and expense, and accessible in its utmost perfection to the poorest individual. Those who wish to drink this wholesome beverage in its utmost perfection should, after having it boiled and filtered, cause it to be churned as above directed, then bottled, with a couple of dried raisins in each bottle; this will give it a sufficient quantity of fixed air. If then used it becomes truly delicious.

Epigram on Clubs.

The immense growth of London clubs and of the opportunities afforded for games of chance may serve to recall an epigram which "Bentley's Miscellany" attributed sixty years ago to Sydney Smith.

He was at a Sunday dinner at Holland House, when the hostess said that woman's passion for diamonds was surely less ruinous than man's passion for play at his club. Thereupon Sydney Smith took a card and wrote the following impromptu:

Thoughtless that all that's brightest fades,
Unmindful of that knave of spades,
The sexton and his subs;
How foolishly we play our parts!
Our wives on diamonds set their hearts,
We set our hearts on clubs.

An Esteemed Contemporary.

A one-horse Republican contemporary run by a one-jackass power mental dynamo says that the only silverites now in Nevada are office-seekers. We are willing to bet his head against a pumpkin (the most even odds we can think of) that if there is any nonsilverites in Tonopah he is the one. And if good writing means good thinking he really doesn't know what he is; the idea that two and two makes four being yet in progress of filtration through the slum deposit he fondly imagines to be a brain.—Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle.

Prince and Poet.

Prince George of Prussia, 76 years old, is the eldest member of the house of Hohenzollern and is known as the "Hohenzollern poet." He has written under the pseudonym of "George Conrad" a number of tragedies, notably "Phaedra."

MADE PRINCE HENRY SMILE.

Odd Labeling of the Steins at the White House Dinner.

The impressive military reception of the royal visitor to the capital city, the display of gorgeous scarlet, mauve, cream and buff uniforms with their yards of gold braid and silver lace, was not without its humor. One little feature of the famous dinner at the White House in the evening served to cause considerable merriment among the notable guests, which little incident having leaked out has served as a merry horse on a well-known boniface.

This same patron saint of the weiner schnitzel, the pumpernickel and Hofbrau is famed for his fondness for decorating all of the utensils of his place of business with more or less perfect likeness of himself.

Mine host received an order from the White House on Monday. It was for certain butts of brown and lusty Wuerzburger, brought from far across the seas, from the famous brewmasters of the old country. The beverage was to be accompanied by a large number of steins from which the guests might quaff the nectar and imagine themselves back once more in their own Vaterland. The brown-staved kegs were sent and sundry boxes of steins. Each guest, Prince Henry included, glanced down at the tall white mug as the foamy was placed in front of him, and few could keep down the emotions when they saw, painted brilliantly into the side of each stein, the familiar picture of the Pennsylvania avenue landlord and beneath the picture this motto, "Stolen from Ernst Gerstenberg."—Washington Post.

IRRESISTIBLE APPEAL.

Tale That Was Calculated to Touch Even Hearts of Ice.

"I will tell you what it is for," said the demure little trained nurse who had just asked for a contribution, "and I believe you will agree that it is a sad case and well deserving any aid you may care to give.

"Near my old home, down South, in Alabama, is a lake which, until last winter, had never been frozen, when for the first time a solid sheet of ice covered the surface of the water. On the shore of this lake was a cabin, the home of a happy family of negroes.

"One evening a large flock of wild geese alighted on the ice and settled down for the night. When darkness came the whole family armed themselves with clubs, went out on the ice, and started in to kill the geese, which they thought were asleep. But here they mistook the situation.

"The poor geese were wide awake, but could not get away because they were all frozen tight to the ice. Still, they made one mighty combined effort to escape and in doing so carried with them the layer of ice which had covered the lake, and with it the negroes, and flew straight up until finally they disappeared from view and were never seen again.

"None of this unhappy family was left behind except the aged blind grandfather, who had remained in the cabin, and it is for his benefit I am taking up the collection."—New York Times.

The Corinth of St. Paul Has Vanished.

Old Corinth, that St. Paul visited so frequently and which was one of the most important, luxurious, immoral and enterprising cities of his day, is dead and buried. Buttercups and dandelions are growing upon his grave as bright and cheerful as those that decorate the prairies of Kansas or the dooryards of New England. New Corinth, a modern town, which lies at the head of the gulf, resembles Santa Fe and other of the adobe towns of New Mexico and Arizona. It is surrounded by clay cliffs, weatherworn into fantastic shapes and the dust is quite as deep in the unpaved streets. The same lean cattle, mangy dogs and halfnaked children playing in the sunshine; the same diminutive donkeys, the modern "Greek slaves," bearing burdens that hide their bodies and leave only their legs and ears exposed; the same mud fences and adobe walls; the same bake ovens beside the cabins and women of similar features, wearing similar garments, picking the live stock out of the children's hair. Crowds of men are sitting at tables in front of the cafes drinking coffee and talking politics, and the same dilapidated vehicles that you see in the old Spanish-American settlements await the traveler's arrival at the railway station.

Iceland to Have Wireless System.

Up to the present Iceland has been without a telegraphic communication with the outer world, partly owing to the poverty of the island itself and partly owing to the disinclination of the Danish government to provide the necessary funds. The Icelandic Althing has voted a sum of $50,000 for the purpose, but as the Northern Telegraph company refuses to lay a cable with subsidies from foreign powers, the project has not resulted in anything tangible. The Marconi syndicate has approached the government with a view to the establishment of wireless telegraphy between the Shetlands and the Faro Islands.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Church Keeps Its Pastors.

Rev. Dr. Roble of Greenland, N. H., on Feb. 25 rounded out a ministry of fifty years over the Congregational church in that city. He is the seventh minister of the congregation, which was organized in 1706. Its first pastor served for fifty-three years and its second for forty-eight years.

SOME WONDERFUL CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA.

The Territorial Government Reports Show Results Beyond Belief.

Regina, Assiniboia, Canada, January 10th.—At the Agricultural Statistics Branch of the Department of Agriculture for the Territories, reports are now being received from grain threshers throughout the Territories, for statistical purposes. The reports are somewhat delayed this year, owing to the extensive crop and the delay in getting it threshed. The Department of Agriculture is leading the way in a new departure, with regard to the collection of crop statistics. In the older provinces, crop estimates are based entirely on the opinion of persons interested in the grain business who ought to be, and no doubt are, well posted upon the probable yields. Still the reports are simply a matter of opinion, in which a mistake may easily be made. The Territorial Department, however, has adopted the system of returns of crops actually threshed, upon which to base their reports. The accuracy of the reports cannot, therefore, be gainsaid, for they represent a compilation of actual threshing results. In this connection, it might be mentioned that the Department is organizing a system of growing crop returns, which will be in operation next summer. The information thus obtained, with estimated acreage, will be available for business men, banks, railway companies, and other interests which have to discount the future in making provision for the conduct of their business.

The crop reports already to hand show some remarkable cases of abnormal development. In the Regina district, many returns are given of crops of wheat running from 40 to 45 bushels to the acre.

J. A. Snell, of Yorkton, threshed 28,000 bushels of oats from 450 acres, an average of 63 bushels per acre for a large acreage.

W. R. Motherwell, of Abernethy, threshed 2,650 bushels of wheat from a 50-acre field, an average of 53 bushels per acre.

In the Edmonton district, T. T. Hutchings threshed 728 bushels of wheat from a ten-acre plot, an average of nearly 73 bushels per acre.

S. Norman threshed 6,950 bushels of oats from 60 acres of land, an average of 116 bushels per acre.

The publication of the actual yields or grain threshed will likely open the eyes of the people to the great capabilities of the Western Canadian prairies.

Stage Divinities on China Plates.

China is being brought up to date in an interesting fashion on modern Parisian dinner tables. The China service has twelve covers, which have a portrait of a different feminine celebrity of the Parisian stage on each plate or dish. Sarah is displayed in the gorgeous imperial vestments of Theodora, Rejane as a fairy, Cleo de Merode as dancing an eighteenth century step, and Bartet in the part of the patient Griselda.—New York Herald.

In the Wild West.

Everybody seemed to avoid the man. "What's the matter?" asked the stranger from the East.

"He is lacking in public spirit," was the scornful reply.

"How is that?" asked the stranger.

"Oh, he doesn't care anything for the general welfare or the enjoyment of the community. Only a mean man would spoil a lynching after a dull season when the boys were just dying for a bit of sport."

"Did he do that?"

"Sure! Everything was all framed up right, and we had the rope on him, when the darned mean critter up and proved that he wasn't the man we wanted, and we had to let him go. The boys'll never forgive him for that."—Elliott Fowler, in the Brooklyn Eagle.

Threw His Canes Away.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 7th—Mr. C. L. Smith of 309 Anne street, the secretary of the Trades Council, has written this startling statement for publication:

"I feel it my duty to make public the facts of my recent illness and recovery. I was very sick and sore, and had to walk with the aid of two canes. It was a very painful attack, but I don't know what it was. Some said it was Lumbago, and others that it was Sciatica or Rheumatism.

"I was told to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and began a treatment. After I had used one box I could walk with one cane, and after two boxes were used I could walk without any help. I kept on, and three boxes cured me completely.

"I am now well and happy, without a pain or an ache, and I can very truly say that Dodd's Kidney Pills are worthy of my greatest praise."

I have used St. Jacobs Oil for several years for lumbago and sprains and find it the greatest pain reliever before the public. I had a severe sprain on my right ankle which I received last week, and by using half a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil it is thoroughly cured. It acts like magic. All my friends in Gorleston, through it having cured me, are using it when occasions require, and say it is worth its weight in gold.

SURGICAL OPERATIONS

How Mrs. Bruce, a Noted Opera Singer, Escaped an Operation. Proof That Many Operations for Ovarian Troubles are Unnecessary.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Travelling for years on the road, with irregular meals and sleep and damp beds, broke down my health so completely two years ago that the physician advised a complete rest, and when I had gained sufficient vitality, an operation for ovarian troubles. Not a very cheerful prospect, to be sure. I, however, was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash; I did so, fortunately for me. Before a month had passed I felt that my general health had improved; in three months more I was cured, and I have been in perfect health since. I did not lose an engagement or miss a meal.

"Your Vegetable Compound is certainly wonderful, and well worthy the praise your admiring friends who have been cured are ready to give you. I always speak highly of it, and you will admit I have good reason to do so."—MRS. G. BRUCE, Lansing, Mich.

Culture of Sugar Beets.

(From Farmers' Review Stenographic Report.)

At the agricultural mass meeting held at Madison, A. F. Postel, agriculturist at the Menomonee sugar factory, spoke on the culture of sugar beets. In part he said:

We have made a successful beginning and no doubt will be able to achieve great success if the farmers of our state will take up beet culture as willingly as did those of Michigan. One of the decided advantages the raising of a crop of beets offers the farmer is the fixing of the selling price of beets before the seed is even planted. This eliminates the speculative feature from the marketing of the crop. The successful growing of sugar beets necessitates thorough culture and a rotation of crops, thereby bringing about heavier crops, diversified farming, the elevation of the status of farming in general, and last, but not least, a consequent rise in the price of farm lands.

To get the best results in beet culture it is necessary that the proper soil be chosen. A sandy loam, loam or easily tillable clay soil well drained and with a substantial sub-soil that will hold moisture well in case of a dry season are the soils best adapted to beet culture. The soil must be rich, although not too one-sidedly rich in organic or nitrogenous matter. It should above all not be freshly manured the same spring that the beets are planted. The preparation of the soil should begin the year before the seed is sown. If beets are to follow small grain, remove the latter from the field as soon as it is cut and pulverize lengthwise and crosswise, harrow, roll and harrow again. In case the pulverizer should not work, plow shallow, harrow, roll and harrow again lightly. The rolling and harrowing combined will preserve the moisture in the soil if there be any. As soon as the field looks green with vegetation apply your manure. Late in the fall plow deep. The very deep stirring of the soil is essential. Soil prepared in this way will store more moisture over winter and will produce a smooth beet with one long root.

The first work to be done in the spring is to harrow the soil as soon as it becomes dry enough on top and the horses can walk over it without leaving too heavy footprints. By pulverizing the soil as finely as possible on top, we preserve the moisture that has been stored in it over winter. After this harrow at least once a week until the time for planting arrives, which is in May. If the soil must be plowed in spring do so as early as possible. The heavier the soil the shallower the planting must be as otherwise the plants may not come up at all. Have your rows twenty, eighteen, or still better, sixteen inches apart, and the plant not less than from eighteen to twenty pounds of seed per acre.

As soon as the beets show above the ground, which may be from one to two weeks after planting, cultivation begins. In some cases it may be necessary to cultivate before that time; for instance, if, after a heavy rain a crust should form on top, it would then be advisable to break it. One shallow cultivation a week will suffice to keep the weeds down and the soil stirred on top, so as to preserve the moisture in it. When all the beets are well out of the ground and begin to develop the third and fourth leaf, the bunching may begin. Take a six inch hoe and hoe right across the row, leaving the buches standing about six inches long. As soon as this is done and the beets show four well developed leaves, the thinning should begin. Take care that but one beet remains standing, preferably a beet that stands singly outside of the bunch, as this is generally the strongest plant. As soon as the tops grow together and no more cultivating can be done without breaking off leaves, it is time to lay by the crop. The breaking off of the leaves should be avoided, as it is through the influence of the atmosphere and sunshine upon the leaves that the sugar is elaborated in the beets. The latter part of September or the beginning of October the harvest begins. The first work in harvesting the sugar beets consists of the lifting of the beets with the help of the horse beet lifter. The lifter is drawn by two horses and straddles the row. It loosens the beets, but leaves them standing on the ground. The capacity of the lifter is about two acres per day. After the beets are lifted they are pulled and thrown in rows or piles. Then they are topped, thrown in larger piles and immediately covered with the tops to protect them from sun and wind.

Q.—What is the cost of raising an acre of beets?

A.—That varies. It depends very largely on whether the men do as we tell them or not. If they do as we tell them and begin the work at once—the work of thinning and the like—it is soon disposed of. But frequently they think they know more than we do about it and then the work becomes very expensive. Under good management the cost, including harvesting, should be about $30.

Q.—How far apart should the rows be?

A.—About 14 inches, though they may be farther apart.

Q.—Does growing sugar beets exhaust the soil?

A.—No, sir; not if the pulp of the beets is fed back to farm animals and returned to the land in the manure. The only thing that is taken out of the beet at the factory is the sugar. That is produced from the starch in the plant and does not come from the soil at all, but from the air.

Q.—If we want to locate a sugar factory in any place, what are the chief requirements?

A.—The first requirement is a good supply of water. When the present factory was located at Menomonee it was supposed that the supply of water in the river was sufficient. Such proved not to be the case, and we had this past season to use bore holes, and then had an insufficient water supply. Then you must have a supply of beets. If the farmers won't raise beets your factory will be of no use. In addition there must be capital enough to run for some years, until some profits begin to come in. Profits will not come till you get a full supply of beets.

Q.—What kind of soil is needed for sugar beets?

A.—A soil with a lime stone formation.

Rockefeller and the New York Milk Commission.

Although the City Milk Supply is not exactly within the scope of the Review, we have published several articles on the subject, and it may not be amiss to say a few words on this all important subject as the daily press has lately been full of sensational and conflicting articles, writes J. H. Monrad in New York Produce Review. The inciting cause for these seems to have been the report of the New York Milk Commission appointed by the New York County Medical Society, supported financially by a fund created by Mr. Rockefeller.

The most absurd claims were made. One in describing the dangers of the bacteria in milk mentioned the fact that while 300 to the c. c. were considered suspicious in water, there were often found from 800,000 to 900,000 in milk, forgetting to state that possibly the 890,000 were inocuous or even beneficial. Another described the process of sterilization and pasteurization (the learned doctor did not seem to discriminate between the two) as killing babies by the thousand. The truth is, that if the city authorities would only stamp out the dangerous practice of using chemical preservatives, the question of a good milk supply partly solves itself, as without these (for infants) death dealing chemicals in milk producers and milk-dealers are compelled to be fairly clean in their work, as otherwise the milk will spoil before reaching the consumers. The truth is, that a large proportion of the milk sold is fairly good and only skimmed to a moderate extent. The truth is, that the danger in milk is always exaggerated more or less when the daily press gets a spasm of virtuous indignation. The truth is, that 990 of a thousand of the bacteria found in milk are inocuous or beneficial and an aid to digestion, and that the ten dangerous ones are only liable to hurt the weak constitutions.

The truth is, that with average milk, pasteurization, if properly carried out, is a safeguard, and that its effect on the average child is beneficial rather than detrimental, and that while it is the best plan to have the doctors prescribe in each case whether a child is to have raw or pasteurized milk, the greatest danger lies in the sudden change from one to the other, and that for the average consumer who has not an abundance of ice for cooling facilities, the pasteurized milk must as a rule be the safest.

Meanwhile, as said before, reasonable cleanliness, from the cow to the consumer, may be ensured by a strict enforcement of an anti-preservative ordinance. However, we understand that the aid given by Mr. Rockefeller has been withdrawn and that the commission is left to carry out its plans—if it can—by charging the dealers for the inspection, and this in our estimation kills the whole thing. It seems as if Mr. Rockefeller, having through the commission demonstrated the need of a practical inspection, withdraws under the impression that such inspection is in the interest of the dealers, and we hope that he yet may be made to see that no more philanthropic work could be undertaken in the interest of the great mass of people—of the consumers—than to continue to support the Milk commission with a liberal fund, which would enable them to carry out the idea of voluntary certification in a practical manner.

Tom Thumb's Title.

The manner in which Tom Thumb secured his title of "General" makes a pretty little story. On one of his visits to Queen Victoria, when Barnum's show was exhibiting in England, the midget was introduced to the Prince of Wales (now king of England), and to his sister, who afterwards became empress of Germany. A courtier comparing them with Tom Thumb remarked to some one standing near, "Their royal highnesses are getting shoulders taller than Tom Thumb." The queen, who overheard the remark, turned to the duke and said by way of correction, "General Tom Thumb." Bowing low to his queen the duke gave the military salute and repeated the title, those present following his example, and from that time on Tom was known as General Tom Thumb, his real name being Mr. Stratton.

FEAR OF HIS LIFE

LEADS AN ALEXANDRIA BOY TO COMMIT A TERRIBLE CRIME.

BREAKS DOWN AND CONFESSES

HIS EMPLOYER, HE ALLEGES, ORDERED HIM TO COMMIT THE DEED.

ROBBERY WAS THE SOLE OBJECT

BOY WOULD ROB THE BODY AND EMPLOYER WOULD LOOT THE HOUSE.

Alexandria, Minn., April 3.—As an outcome of the murder of Mangus Johnson, who was found dead in his granary near here several days ago, Gustaf Larson and his employer, Andrew Jacobson, will undoubtedly be held for trial on charge of murder, the former having broken down and confessed, implicating the other. Larson says Jacobson told him to buy the revolver and do the shooting for the money that was on the person of the old man. Larson said he bought the revolver on Saturday and told Jacobson he was ready. Jacobson told him to do it while he, Jacobson, was in town. It was understood Larson was to have the money that was on the old man and that Jacobson was

To Loot the House.

Larson said he wanted to back out at one time, but was told by Jacobson that if he did so he shold die. This threat so frightened him that he carried out the crime as it had been planned. On the day of the murder Jacobson was in town, and, as it appears now, was very conspicuous and was with many people about town. He left that evening about 7 o'clock and rode part of the way with a farmer. He walked the last two miles and reached home about 10 o'clock. The murdered man was found before that time. Tuesday morning Sheriff Lundgren was at Jacobson's house just as he was up and before he was entirely dressed and washed. The evidence showed that Jacobson had either been from his home to Johnson's or from Johnson's house to his own some time between the day before and at the Jacobson residence early Tuesday morning. It was late Monday night when the authorities left the Johnson house after making the investigation. The theory is that some time during the night Jacobson went over to the Johnson house looking for what money the old man had hidden away, thinking the man who did the shooting would only get what was in the old man's pockets. Whether he got anything or not is not known. About $1,800 in bank certificates were found in the house, but no one knows how much money the old man had. The evidence also showed that Jacobson was anxious that the guilt should be fastened on young Larson.

The Sheriff's Arrival

LIFTING THE BLOCKADE.

Northern Pacific Experts to Complete Temporary Track To-Night.

St. Paul, April 3.—The blockade on the Northern Pacific was materially improved yesterday, and it is expected that by to-night the temporary track being laid around the newly formed lake will be completed and that trains will commence to move. The transfer of passengers across the lake is progressing more rapidly and with perfect safety at the present time, as the company has delivered at "Lake McKenzie" a number of large launches obtained at Duluth. The boats are of the same pattern used by fishermen on the bay, and are eighteen feet in length. Northern Pacific officials received a large quantity of mail yesterday which had been transferred by means of these boats, showing that the situation was much better. Reports were received to the effect that the waters in Apple creek had subsided to normal stage, and that it was only the high wind which was keeping the water banked up over the tracks.

MAY TRESTLE OVER LAKE.

McKenzie Slough in North Dakota Presents Difficulties.

Bismarck, N. D., April 3.—The railroad company will take steps to prevent further trouble with the track at McKenzie slough as soon as the water recedes, by elevating track and grade beyond high water mark. It is possible that, with continued heavy rains, McKenzie may be permanently a lake and it may be necessary to trestle through. Several hundred laborers are at work building a temporary track.

KILLED BY A BUCKET.

Wisconsin Farmer Meets Instant Death in Well.

Cumberland, Wis., April 3. — While working in a well on a farm near Clayton, south of here, Christ Olson was struck by a falling bucket and instantly killed.

Stock Round-Up May 25.

Pierre, S. D., April 3.—The Missouri Stockman's and Horsemen's associations yesterday held their annual meetings at Fort Pierre, with a large attendance, and outlined the territory to be covered by the different round-up outfits. The date set for beginning the work is May 25.

WRECKED AT A CROSSING.

Soo Freight Crashes Into Twilight Limited.

Turtle Lake, Wis., April 3. — A Soo freight train at 8 o'clock last night crashed into the Omaha Twilight limited from Duluth and due in St. Paul at 10 p. m. Several people were injured and a fire was started that burned the mail and baggage cars and the depot building. The loss is placed at $50,000. The Soo and Omaha tracks cross at Turtle Lake close to the depot building. As the south-bound passenger had nearly cleared the crossing the Soo engine struck between the baggage and day coach, overturning both of them on the depot platform, where several persons were waiting for the train. The coach was filled with lumbermen returning from the woods. They miraculously escaped injury. The baggage car was telescoped by the engine and a fire started, which rapidly spread to the depot building. G. Wickenberg, a general merchant of Turtle Lake, was seriously injured. The wreck is said to be due to a blunder on the part of the Soo train crew. All trains are supposed to come to a dead stop at the junction.

HOLE IN THE RIVER.

Only Plausible Reason for the Missouri's Action.

Crow Creek Agency, S. D., April 3.—There is a hole in the bottom of the Missouri river somewhere in this vicinity. On no other theory can the recent disappearance of water be accounted for. When the vast volume of water disappeared the phenomenon staggered everybody. The only explanation that could be offered was that an ice gorge had formed in the upper river somewhere, threatening destruction to everything below when it let go. Prospectors were sent up the stream to find the trouble, but no gorge was found. The channel from Chamberlain south became almost dry. It is settled that it was not attributable to an ice gorge, and the only feasible theory is that an artesian crevice opened, diverting the immense flow of the stream to the subterranean basin. Evidently, when the basin was replenished to its utmost capacity, the outflow ceased and the waters assumed their old surface course down between the banks.

ELECTIONS IN WISCONSIN.

Many Cities Name New Municipal Officers.

Milwaukee, April 3.—The results of municipal elections in Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee show that the Republican tickets were successful in the greatest number of instances. Among the larger cities the greatest interest was shown in the contest at Madison, where Mayor Storm Bull, Democrat, was unseated by his Republican opponent, John W. Grover, who had a plurality of about 500. Republicans also won important victories in Beloit, Eau Claire, Black River Falls, Fox Lake and Fond du Lac. Democrats swept Manitowoc, Marinette, Neenah, Menasha, Waupaca and Ripon. In many places citizen's tickets were successful.

ROSE IS RE-ELECTED.

Milwaukee's Mayor Gets a Large Plurality.

Milwaukee, April 3.—Mayor David S. Rose, Democrat, candidate for re-election, carried the city by a plurality estimated at from 7,000 to 10,000 over Charles H. Anson, Republican. Rose carried the balance of the Democratic ticket with him, thus insuring the election of William H. Graebner for treasurer, Peter Pawinski for controller and Carl Runge for city attorney. While the returns are far from being complete the indications are that the Democrats will also control the common council by a safe majority.

CHARGE IS SERIOUS.

St. Paul Man Under Arrest Accused of Sodomy.

St. Paul, April 3.—Leonard Swanson, forty years of age, was a prisoner in the municipal court yesterday afternoon on a charge of unnatural conduct toward Paul Laukhuf, a twelve-year-old boy living in Minneapolis. Swanson pleaded not guilty, waived examination and was held to the grand jury. The complainant is C. J. Miller, a deacon of the First Baptist church of Minneapolis. Rev. W. B. Riley, pastor of the church, assisted Mr. Miller in placing the case before the county attorney. The Laukhuf boy is a member of the church Sunday school.

TAKEN TO BLACKFOOT.

Carey and Irwin Charged With Horse Stealing.

Butte, Mont., April 3.—Sheriff Davis of Blackfoot, Idaho, arrived in this city last night with Charles Cary and Charles Irwin, two desperate characters wanted at Blackfoot for wholesale horse stealing. The men are accused of stealing ten head of horses of James Williams at Idaho Falls. They were captured by the Idaho sheriff at Hamilton, Mont.

Saws Bass at New Richmond.

New Richmond, Wis., April 3.—The Willow River Lumber company's mill started up here this week with full crew, and are putting in full time. They have an exceptionally good run of logs this season, which will reach the ten-million-mark. The logs are brought from Pratt by the Omaha. A refuse burner one hundred feet high has been installed.

Republicans Carry Madison.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—The Republicans carried the city yesterday by 500 majority, a gain of 1,000 over last year. John W. Grover was elected mayor over Prof. Storm Bull, the present incumbent. The council will have a Republican majority.

"TIRED ALL THE TIME,"

Women in the Springtime Need a Tonic. Spring Fever is Spring Catarrh. Peruna Cures Catarrh.

A Beautiful Club Woman's Recovery.

Los Angeles, Cal.,
509 S. Olive Street,
May 5, 1901.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio

Gentlemen:—"I suffered with pain in my right side for over eight years. Doctors said my liver was affected. My complexion was dark and yellow, I had a bad taste in my mouth, and was tired all the time. I took a great deal of medicine, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I read in the paper of Peruna, and decided to give it a trial. I felt better before the first bottle was gone, and after taking three bottles I was cured, and I have enjoyed perfect health since." LENA HILTON.

Miss Lena Hilton, is President of the Wednesday Whist Club, of Los Angeles.

As a spring medicine Peruna is a never failing remedy. It cleanses the blood through digestion; and gives tone to the whole system by increasing the nutritive value of the food. "Spring fever," as it is sometimes called, which produces a tired out, sleepy feeling, and inability to do much mental or physical work, is the result of a sluggish digestion.

The great popularity that Peruna has is due to the fact that in all such cases it at once corrects digestive derangements and enriches the blood by purifying this very important source of that vital fluid.

Mrs. J. E. Finn, 89 East High Street Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely, as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete change and rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look around for other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated it, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need." MRS. J. E. FINN.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Attorney Street says that all the politics in this senatorial district seem to be down in Norman county. Street is a candidate for senator and ought to know.

The Morris bill to open up the lands around Cass Lake passed the senate the first of the week. This is very good news for the people living in that town, and Thief River Falls extends congratulations.

According to the vote on congressman in this district two years ago there are 16355 Republican voters and 14404 Democratic and Populist voters. While the vote will be somewhat larger this fall, the increase will be favorable to the Republican party.

Ray Jones, who now resides at Minneapolis, has announced that he is a candidate for lieutenant governor. People in this city can testify to the fact that he is a fighter, although he does not always get what he goes after.

A bill has been introduced in congress by Senator Nelson to appropriate $75,000 for purpose of building a public building in Crookston. This city is undoubtedly entitled to a building of this kind, as Uncle Sam transacts a large amount of business there in a year.

A determined effect is to be made by the people living east of the Thief river in Marshall county to elect a county commissioner who resides in that territory this fall. J. P. Jenson, of Germantown and Milton Forder, H. C. Naeseth and Andrew P. Nelson are mentioned as candidates. All are good men.

If there are four candidates for the Republican nomination for congress in this congressional district, it will not require more than 5000 voter to nominate the successful candidate. A large portion of the votes reside upon farms and the indications are that nothing like a full vote will be cast at the primaries.

The Stephen Leader calls the attention of the people of Marshall county to the fact that if every township in the county would vote bonds to the amount of $10,000 and spend it in building roads it would increase the value of land in the township fully $50,000. The payments would be deferred so long and so gradual that it would not be noticed.

"If Senator Nelson becomes Roosevelt's manager for the North Star state there is no doubt that his astuteness and ability will direct matters along lines of the greatest success," says the Crookston Journal. While Senator Nelson is as good a campaign manager as the president could secure, there is no need of one. Nearly every Republican voter in the state is for the re-nomination of Roosevelt, and there is not much danger, but that he will secure a solid delegation from Minnesota.

Sam Langum, the secretary of the state senator, writes as follows to his paper, the Presston Times, regarding some of his observations during a connection of six years with the legislature:

"This closes my sixth and presumably my last session's legislative work and while the lessons learned may prove valuable in after years, I cannot say that my observations have tended to increase my faith and confidence in my fellow men as a whole. True I have met many who approch the ideal—men with brains and sterling integrity whose services to their state cannot be measured by dollars and cents, and whose very presence has served as a check and prevention against evil legislation but I have also been an unwilling observer of so much that is questionable from every point of view that I sometimes wonder that the people's birth right has not long since been bartered away."

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred and ninety (390) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by August Mardell and Caroline Mardell, his wife, mortgagors to the Security Building Loan Association of the city of Minneapolis, mortgagees, bearing date the twelfth (12) day of June, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the twenty-eighth day of July, 1890, at eight o'clock a. m., in book fifty-three of mortgages, on pages 428-433, which said records have since been transferred to Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Security Building and Loan Association, now Security Saving and Loan Association, mortgagee, to Waldron M. Jerome, by written assignment, dated the eighth day of December, 1900, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Red Lake county, Minn., on the 9th day of January, 1902, at two o'clock p. m., in book S of mortgages, on page 232.

There is also due upon said mortgage the sum of forty-four (44) dollars, which sum has been paid by said mortgagee and assignee as delinquent taxes on said premises.

No action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, wherefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: lots numbered one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), in block eight (8), in Hemmingsen's Addition to Thief River Falls, according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in Red Lake County and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by Sheriff of Red Lake County at the front door of the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state, on 18th day of April, 1902, at one o'clock p. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of three hundred and ninety (390) dollars and interest and taxes if any on said premises, and said sum of forty-four (44) dollars paid as delinquent taxes by said mortgagee and assignee, and fifty dollars, attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated March 6, A. D. 1902.

WALDRON M. JEROME,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

JAMES MCINTYRE,
Attorney for Assignee. 3-6 6t 4-10

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1902. NUMBER 15.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

RED LAKE BILL

Copies of It Received the First of the Week:

Copies of the bill introduced in congress to ratify the treaty made with the Red Lake Indians by Inspector McLaughlin, have been received here. It provides that settlers shall pay $3,90 per acre to be paid in five annual installments in advance, except in cases of commutation, when the settler will be required to pay $5,15 per acre. Sections 16 and 36 are granted to the state of Minnesota for school purposes. After the bill passes congress it is to be opened by proclamation of the president, who will prescribe the manner in which these lands are to be settled upon.

SEWERAGE.

City Council to Take the Matter Up.

There will be a meeting of the city council this evening and the matter of establishing a system of sewerage will probably be discussed. The members of the council are all in favor of sewerage, and in this they are supported by nearly all of the citizens of Thief River Falls.

A good system of sewerage would result in improving the roads of this city a great deal, and especially is this true of the road leading to the depot, which will probably be one of the first streets to be drained.

NEW BUILDINGS.

A Large Number Now Being Erected.

Never before in the history of the city was there more buildings being constructed than at present, and every man in the city capable of driving a nail is employed at good wages. Most of the buildings being erected are residences, but the demand is far greater than the supply.

In this connection it may be stated that five families arrived here last week with the intention of remaining here, but were forced to leave as they could not find any building to rent.

Regular Term.

A regular term of the municipal court was held Tuesday. The case of M. Stern vs. P. Cummerford was put over to the next term owing to the absence of a material witness. The case of M. K. Wall vs. James Meehan was postponed for thirty days, and Oen & Granum received a judgement against John A. Dahl for $35.84 and costs.

D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, is prepared to receive Homestead Entries and make Final Proofs. Office at his residence on the East Side.

FOR BLOOD.

Game of Ball to Be Played Here Sunday.

The aggregation of ball players on Main and LaBree avenues will meet in the ball park Sunday and decide for once and all the championship of Thief River Falls. Last week the News published a challenge written by the doughty little Main street manager, Mike Wall. It fell as a bomb among the LaBree avenue people, but on Tuesday their manager had so far recovered as to be able to write the following acceptance:

In last week's issue of your family journal there appeared a challenge from an aggregation of rooters, horn-tooters, printer's devils, ex-wrestlers, old time sluggers, illegally imported Chinamen ex-real estate men, and broken down sports of Main avenue for a game of base ball with business men, clerks, janitors, draymen (having a shingle out,) saloon keepers and judges, who may be picked up on LaBree avenue. Therefore be it known by these presents, that the above challenge is accepted with much pleasure. All those wishing to witness the discomfiture of the Main avenue players are requested to be present. It is strictly understood that no withdrawal from this challenge will be considered.

C. A. Nason,
Manager.

It is the intention of the News to remain impartial in the matter, but in order to give its readers a fair idea which side will win a few bets that have been made may be quoted. Mike Wall has bet $75 against $15 that Main avenue will win. Wm. Murphy has bet $20 against $20 that LaBree aveuve will not get a man as far as Second base. H. M. Hicks has bet $35 against $10 that the Main avenue players will knock more than one home hit, and F. J. Stebbins is so confident that Main avenue will win that he offers to bet on any proposition any La Bree avenue man will make, and will give odds to suit.

GOOD CHANCE.

To drain the Street Going to the Depot.

W. C. Smiley the first of the week took the levels on First street from the bridge to the depot. He found that the bridge is two feet lower than the lowest portion of the street, which demonstrates that this section can be drained at very little cost.

Nothing for Gunderson.

In the United States court at Fergus Falls last Friday, the jury in the case of Andrew Gunderson vs. the Thief River Falls Lumber company, a $10,000 damage suit for personal injuries brought in a verdict for the company. Halvor Steenerson was Gunderson's attorney.

FREE LIBRARY.

No Subscription Charges to Be Made.

At a meeting of the library board held last week, it was unanimously voted to make the Thief River Falls public library free, and subscribers will not be obliged to pay for books. This will not go into effect until July, however.

It was also decided to erect a library building, and it will be built on the north side of the city hall on a vacant lot owned by the city. The proposed building will be larger than the present one, and there will be ample room for a reading room.

The following committees have also been named:

General Committee—Mesdames Stebbins, Winslow and Meehan.

Finance Committee—Helgeson, Ballard and Borry.

Book Committee—Knox Eastman and Jackson.

Building Committee—Crowe, Kratka and Dobner.

Herding Notice.

I have again decided to take the herd next season. I have rented plenty of grass lands adjoining the city on the East Side. Good grassing and good care guaranteed. Any body having cattle or horses wishing to have in herd please apply to Chas. L. Sandberg, city.

To Whom It May Concern.

Thief River Falls, Minnesota April 8th, 1902.

Complying with instructions from the city council, notice is hereby given that all orders for goods of all kinds for account of city shall be ordered by the City Clerk.

By order of the city council.

Lars Backe,
City Clerk.

The postal authorities at Washington, recognizing the liability of postmasters to make mistakes in getting letters in wrong boxes, have fixed a penalty of $200 on persons taking mail out of the office other than their own and not returning it. The law is that people shall look at their mail before taking it out of the office and if they should have mail other than their own they must return it at once. It also includes newspapers. An exchange in commenting on the ruling remarks that the excuse that it is the postmaster's fault "cuts no ice." If you have been getting other people's mail you had better take warning or you may get yourself in trouble.

The news that Andrew Carnegie has refused to become Achilles II. of Araucana shows how really great is the American millionaire who prefers to invest in libraries instead of spending his fortune in coronation ceremonies.

After the Brooklyn women got through hugging and kissing Fiddler Kubelik he was so limp that he couldn't walk alone. It is beginning to look as if the poor boy may in future be able to fiddle only under police protection.

An Illinois teacher inflicted corporal punishment on a pretty girl pupil, and then they were married. The sudden development of love on the part of the teacher is understandable, but how about the girl? Are we to understand that that is the proper way to woo?

The sultan of Turkey is giving away some of his wives to favorite pashas. The sultan has a large supply of old and slightly passe wives that he can spare just as well as not; but hasn't he wit enough to see that his method of getting rid of them may be the cause of a good many of the troubles that are cropping out in Turkey?

The News Of the Week

From Washington.

President Roosevelt has ordered an investigation of the charges that the neutrality laws are being violated at New Orleans.

The president has directed the consolidation of the three land offices in Alaska and the establishment of the consolidated office at Juneau, to take effect June 1.

An effort will be made by the South Dakota delegation to secure a sufficient appropriation at this session to inaugurate the scheme for the permanent military post at Fort Meade, contemplated in the recent report of the war board.

Secretary Hay, representing the United States; Luis F. Corea, representing Nicaragua, and Don Joaquin B. Calvo, representing Costa Rica, will probably sign in a few days treaties authorizing the United States to construct the Nicaragua canal.

A telegram from United States Minister Bowen at Caracas says the American Bermudez steamer was fired upon in the San Juan river. The minister asked for an explanation at the foreign office, and was informed that the government knew nothing about it. It was probably the work of revolutionists.

The president has directed that seventy townships in Northern Montana be withdrawn from public entry for use in the big irrigation scheme known as the St. Mary's canal and Milk river project. By another executive order three townships in the Wind Cave region in South Dakota have been temporarily withdrawn.

Secretary Root, after consultation with the treasury officials, has issued instructions to Acting Governor Luke Wright of the Philippine islands, to give effect to that part of the Philippine tariff act which provides for the rebate of export duties on goods shipped from the Philippines into the United States.

The war department has decided to withhold from publication the name of the officer selected to inquire into the actual conditions at Port Chalmette, La., whence animals and supplies are being shipped to the British army in South Africa. It is felt that the officer's purpose might be thwarted by publicity at this stage.

Personal.

Col. Mott Hooton, Twenty-eighth infantry, will retire on the 16th inst.

Stuart Robson says the influence of the stage for good is greater than that of the pulpit.

Rt. Rev. Sebastian Messmer, bishop of Green Bay, Wis., has declined to accept appointment as archbishop of Manila on the ground of ill health. The Vatican insists that he shall accept.

Gen. Ira M. Hedges, past department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic of New York State, died at his home in Haverstraw in his sixty-third year. He served in the Ninety-fifth regiment, New York volunteers, during the Civil war.

Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter, retired, has agreed to accept the Republican nomination for governor of California should it be tendered him. There is a strong feeling among many influential Republicans against the renomination of Gov. Gage, and if this opposition unites on Shafter there is good hope of his nomination.

Casualties.

Pennsylvania and Maryland were visited by severe snow storms and floods.

A hundred Atlantic City hotel guests lost an average of $1,000 each by the recent big fire.

The six-story building occupied by the Pacific Coast Borax company at Bayonne, N. J., was gutted by fire recently, involving a loss estimated at $150,000.

The explosion of a saw mill boiler at Peoria, Iowa, literally tore James Shaffer, Frank Myers and Dudley Boyd into fragments. James Carter, proprietor of the mill, was probably fatally injured; Harry Myers was seriously injured.

FATAL DOMESTIC QUARREL.

Woman Slashes and Shoots Her Husband.

Ottawa, Kan., April 13. — In a domestic quarrel here yesterday George Gassage was fatally wounded by his wife. Mrs. Gassage was shot in the head and seriously wounded by her husband. Gassage was arrested last week for assaulting his wife, and since then the two have not lived together. According to his version of the affair he was summoned by his wife yesterday, and when he arrived at her home she slashed him across the neck with a pocketknife, severing his windpipe, and she then shot him in the head. Either wound is likely to be fatal. Gassage shot his wife in the forehead, inflicting a painful wound.

CONGO NATIVES REVOLT AND COMMIT TERRIBLE DEPREDATIONS.

MASSACRE ALL THE OFFICIALS

MUCH UNEASINESS FELT AS TO THE FATE OF THE OTHER DEPOTS.

REBELS ARE ALL CANNIBALS

LOCAL MILITIA DEFEATS REBELS WHO MOVE ON—MANY ARE KILLED.

Paris, April 13. — The Journal announces that grave news has been received from the French Congo. On March 4 a large body of natives came down the banks of the Sangha river. They looted all the factories, massacreing all of officials, European and native, at Eleinpa.

M. Cazeneuve, director of the Sangha River company, was killed and the factory, containing goods worth £65,000, was pillaged. The factory belonging to M. Fortin, director of the French African company, was looted the following day. M. Fortin only escaped death through the fact that he had gone to help M. Cazeneuve and did not meet the natives. Much uneasiness is felt as to the fate of the depots of eight colonial companies up country above Sangha.

The minister of the colonies, M. Decrais, has received a dispatch from Brazzaville, confirming the report of the revolt. The local militia defeated the rebels. Reinforcements of Bengalese troops were dispatched to the scene of the trouble.

This report states that the rebels, who are cannibals, marched, later on, to attack other factories, and it is feared that many persons have been killed.

MERCY FOR WOMEN.

Gov. Nash of Ohio Grants a Respite for Sixty Days.

Columbus, Ohio, April 13. — Mrs. Frances L. Taylor, Sr., aged seventy-eight years, and her daughter, Miss Frances L. Taylor, Jr., arrived here yesterday from Cincinnati to serve a one-year sentence in the penitentiary on the charge of child stealing. They were convicted on the evidence furnished by a son and brother of the two women. Gov. Nash granted them a respite of sixty days on condition that they remain in Franklin county.

SEND TROOPS TO ERIN.

Coercion Act to Be Enforced by Ten Militia Battalions.

London, April 13.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Dublin says that ten battalions of English and Scotch militia are to be embodied and sent to Ireland within a month, in pursuance of the British government's determination to apply the coercion act. The correspondent understands that Lord Londonderry, the postmaster general, threatened to resign from the cabinet unless active measures were taken to circumvent the United Irish league.

Kenosha, Wis., April 13.—Prof. William Griffith, former county superintendent of education and chairman of the executive committee of the Wisconsin State Teachers' association, was sent to jail yesterday on a charge of intoxication.

Held Office Thirty Years.

Marquette, Mich., April 13.—Henry Nelson, who has just been re-elected justice of the peace at Menominee, has held office continuously for thirty years. At Hancock, in the copper country, Michael Finn was elected township clerk in 1867 and justice of the peace and village clerk of Hancock the following spring. He has held all three offices continuously since that time, and this year has again been chosen without opposition to succeed himself.

Supt. Harvey to Instruct.

Eau Claire, Wis., April 13. — State Superintendent Harvey met about seventy-five high school teachers from various Wisconsin towns at the assembly room of the Eau Claire high school yesterday and a program of technical subjects was taken up. The conference lasts all day to-day. Supt. Harvey was indisposed yesterday afternoon, suffering with the grip, but expects to attend to-day.

Threatened Lynching.

Racine, Wis., April 13.—In a clash last night between union and non-union molders Howard Fristoe of Bourbon, Ind., shot August Reiman, union molder, through the left arm and in the right side. The wounds are not fatal. The strike has been on since January. A mob of 300 men threw bricks and clubs at Fristoe and threatened to lynch him. He was placed in jail.

Dug a Well and Found Ore.

Iron Mountain, Mich., April 13. — While Andrew Michaels was digging a well on his property, just west of the electric light station, he struck a deposit of Bessemer iron ore. The attention of the steel trust officials has been called to the find and a force of men has been set to work to explore the property. The ore is believed to be a continuation of the Luddington vein.

Torrance of Minneapolis, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, is visiting the Black Hills towns this week, accompanied by his wife and daughter. Big receptions are tendered at every place he visits, approaching ovations in some of the towns. He came to the Black Hills chiefly to inspect the site of the proposed national sanitarium at Hot Springs and to inspect the various posts of the Grand Army.

INDIANS AT WORK.

Half a Thousand Reds Advertise for Employment.

Bismarck, N. D., April 13. — Agent Bingenheimer of Standing Rock sends out an announcement to the effect that there are 534 able-bodied Indians on the Standing Rock reservation who desire to work as farm laborers or day laborers at any kind of work, and contractors are asked to give them employment and state what wages will be paid. The Indians are anxious to work and the result of their efforts to compete with white labor will be watched with interest.

IOWA TAX LEVY.

Four-Mill Assessment Required to Meet Current Expenses.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 13. — The Iowa legislature adjourned at noon yesterday. The appropriations are such that the executive council was requested by law to fix a levy to raise $2,260,000 this year and $2,000,000 next year for state purposes, which means a levy of 4 mills. The appropriations are $1,100,000 larger for the biennial period than for the past one, and there will be a deficit left, whereas there is now a surplus in the treasury.

HARDWARE COMBINE.

Duluth Jobbing Firm Admits It Is in the Proposed Consolidation.

Duluth, Minn., April 13.—A. M. Marshall, president of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company of this city, admitted that a consolidation of hardware jobbing houses along the lines reported, with a capital of $120,000,000, and including forty or more houses, is under way. It is not yet consummated, however, but he believes it will be, and says it is working successfully.

EXILED FROM HOME.

Judge Hally Drives Wife-Abuser From West Superior.

West Superior, Wis., April 13.—Judge Hally, of the municipal court, has a new way of treating wife assailants. Isaac Moe drove his wife out of their home at 1 o'clock on a cold morning. She was compelled to travel without shoes, and she was severely frozen. Judge Hally gave him a short workhouse sentence and then exiled him from the city for three years.

NOT IN CONTEMPT.

City Officials of Mayville, S. D., Go Free After Trial.

Fargo, N. D., April 13.—The city officials of Mayville are not in contempt of court. An order has been issued on the complaint of certain Traill county farmers to have the officials show cause as it was alleged they had tapped a sewer and permitted sewerage to run into the Goose river in violation of an injunction issued by Judge Pollock. The farmers failed to make a case and Judge Pollock dismissed the contempt proceedings.

SHOOTS BARKEEP DEAD.

Prominent Montana Man Says Saloonist Insulted Him.

Helena, Mont., April 13.—B. S. Keert, ex-president of the Montana Society of Civil Engineers and a prominent mining engineer, yesterday shot and probably fatally wounded Thomas Crystal, a bartender in a Main street saloon. Keert declared that Crystal had insulted him. In an ante-mortem statement to the county attorney Crystal declared that Keert shot him without provocation. Keert is in custody.

Sobered by a Shot.

Kenmare, N. D., April 13.—Theo Farrington, who lives near here, had a bit of strenuous life recently. Two intoxicated men insisted on his furnishing them with whisky, and when it was shown he had none they loaded up his lumber and started to drive away. His orders for them to desist were disregarded, and a careful aim with his old shotgun was so effective that the pain sobered the trespassers and caused them to hastily unload his lumber.

Three Brothers Sentenced.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 13.—Charles and James Lambertson were sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for burglary, and their brother William got eighteen months for the same offense. William Long was sentenced to five years for burglary; James Bowman, two years for grand larceny, and Rufus Fancher, one year for the same offense. These prisoners all pleaded guilty.

He Dies of Scalds.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., April 13. — News reached here of the death of the fireman, William O. Chemler, who was badly scalded in the wreck of Train No. 4 on the Great Northern near Kalispell. The remains will arrive here to-day.

Register of Deeds Drowned.

Madison, Wis., April 13. — Gov. La Follette is advised of the death, by drowning, of James Walker, register of deeds of St. Croix county. No details were given.

DOVES OF APHRODITE.

BY. F. H. LANCASTER.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"And hecatombs of doves were slain upon the altars of Aphrodite, for the Greeks admired this goddess of love greatly and made daily sacrifices to her."

The student leaned back and closed her book unwillingly, her fingers caressing its covers while her eyes wandered to the sunset beginning to glow among the pines. As she gazed an odd smile twisted her lips.

"In these later days we sacrifice not only doves, but eagles," she murmured dreamily. Then with sudden passion: "Oh, love, what monstrous murders are committed daily in your name—murder of mind and moral! Life after life broken and bruised at your breast." Her brows knitted slowly and again that odd smile crept to her lips.

Two years ago Helen Nord had found herself alone in the world. That she was penniless had not troubled her. She knew of a place where she could live on ten dollars a month and save money. Moreover she fancied that she could go to that place and make the ten dollars. It was in the Pine Barrens of south Mississippi. There were a couple of small public schools there, lying a few miles apart, one of which was taught in summer and one in winter, each having a term of four months and paying about a hundred dollars per term. When she applied to the county superintendent for information, he gave her besides a bit of advice three bits—"Teach the schools honestly; keep your mouth shut; don't flirt with the girls' sweethearts." She thanked him, feeling the advice to be sound, and went away to follow it.

As teachers go, she had been successful She held her schools against all rivals and had a hundred dollars in bank; and her pupils, without the aid of chart, diagram, or blackboard, were steadily acquiring a sound English education.

For two years she had boarded at six dollars per month, dressed plain, worked hard, and studied. She had gratified her heart's desire and was a happy woman. Books banked up steadily in her little room, books that she had yearned all her life to possess, and she read them over and over in the long, delicious hours after her day's work was done.

Two years of Eden and, lo, the serpent.

She had paid small attention when he first entered her garden. Only by degrees had it dawned upon her that he was, like young David, strong of body and with a ruddy countenance good to look upon. Later on she noted that he neither drank nor swore; that he kept his nails in order and was always neat. He lived at the house where she boarded, and brought her mail from the far-away post office. He was always polite, was this Cajan-born Donician, yet his presence troubled the fair young teacher. Vaguely he interfered with her studies, and she resented the interference.

But the sunset glow was fading while she dreamed of Aphrodite and her doves. What was Aphrodite to her? Or the doves? Dreadful, melancholy birds that made even the glad pine woods mournful with their plaintive cooing. Helen laughed a little as she put away her much-loved books and went out into the bold fresh air for that delightful half hour between the lights.

She threw back her tired shoulders and drank in deep breaths of vigor. Glorying in the reckless pride of youth. Standing between the fading sunset glow and the brightening gleam of the rising moon. Appropriating the grandeur and understanding nothing. Seeing in the light-tipped pines only glorified pride. Blind to the serenity that is born of suffering; deaf to the note of sadness that thrilled through their melodious chanting—to her only a burst of deep-throated triumph.

Oddly enough, in the midst of these shaken vibrations of her soul came the practical reflection:

"I can live on ten dollars a month and save money; and I can make the ten dollars." She dropped her eyes from the pine crests and saw Donician before her.

"The student leaned back and closed her book unwillingly."

"I fin' some mail for you at the office, Miss Helen." He spoke with a slight accent in a voice deep toned and musical.

Helen started and her nerves quivered.

"Oh, thank you so much," she took the mail and their hands touched. The young fellow colored slowly, but she tried not to see.

"Thank you so much," she repeated, with tense civility.

"Not 'tall," he returned, lifting his hat and moving away. He was every inch a man was M. Donician, in spite of his predilection for blushing.

Helen stared down at the little packet of mail and saw instead a small cottage furnished cosily with that hundred dollars in bank. It was unfortunate, that hundred dollars, in that it formed a solid foundation for a temptation that must have otherwise have remained chimerical. For an hour she struggled with it, sitting in the dark in her little ten by ten room. Then she laughed, an echo of that slighting laugh with which she had put away her books, and struck a light. She had forgotten her mail!

Presently a crisp bit of paper cracked between her fingers. Her first check. Ambition leaped up wildly. Poor Donician! Alas, for the doves of Aphrodite.

"I love you, Miss Helen. 'Tis right you should know."

Poor Donician? He sat on a sawlog in the moonlight wrapped in a dream as warm as heaven. His breath came unsteadily, deep-chested, and quivering. His fingers still felt the touch of hers. His ears still throbbed to that unconsciously caressing "thank you." He had forgotten its civil repetition. Poor Donician! He knew nothing of that strong-seated ambition that had ridden unceremoniously over the pleasant things of her life. Nothing of that bit of crisp paper with a few figures in one corner. Had he seen it, he would not have understood; yet it was the death warrant, signed and sealed, for his happiness.

Why should he suspect the existence of such things? To him the fair-faced young teacher was as a dainty wild flower, half open in the early dew. He sat on in his warm dream of heaven-born happiness, joying in the resistless might of his strong-hearted love.

Helen Nord was right. In these later days eagles are frequently sacrificed upon the altars of Aphrodite.

The next evening when she carried her ambition out in the forest that it might soar bold and unrestrained as the breath of the pines, Helen saw him coming toward her over the soundless needles. Strong and happy-hearted he swung along, bearing the beauty of a Greek god upon his brow. A strange, reeling fear seized upon the woman's heart. She sat down weak, inert, upon a fallen trunk and stared miserably at the dead straws.

Donician came on swiftly. He bared his head as he sat down beside her.

"Any mail for me to-day?" she questioned, failing dismally in her effort to appear unconcerned.

"No," he said softly. Had he kissed her the caress could scarcely have been more endearing.

Helen flung up her head desperately. Her choice had come to her in narrow lines, love or ambition. Aphrodite demanded a sacrifice. Should it be dove or eagle? Alas, for the dove. The ambition that had ridden roughshod over all the pleasant things of life was not to be unseated by its poor, plaintive pleading.

Donician spoke with manly simplicity.

"I love you, Miss Helen. 'Tis right you should know."

"Thank you," she muttered incoherently. She was plunging wildly against the strain of stern asceticism in her blood. It seemed such a senseless sacrifice—two spotless doves for one wild eagle. Then the old glamor came again upon her eyes. She saw herself as she would be—a proud, free woman, working her way up into the high white light.

She tried to make it easy for him.

"We should not talk of such things, you and I, M. Donician," she said, looking beyond him lest she should see that in his wonderful eyes that would haunt all her after days. It was an unnecessary caution. He was not the man to bare his wounds.

"I love you," he said, with quiet insistence. "I can make you happy."

"Yes," she returned, suddenly conscious of extreme weariness. "Yes, I know. But it must not be. I—I have other work to do."

Donician hesitated a moment as though unwilling to believe that his glad dream was shattered.

"When two people love one another they belong to each other for all time. Is it not so?" he asked tenderly, and his eyes compelled hers to meet them in one brief, truth-telling glance.

"No, it is not so, not always," she stammered, hurriedly. "It must not be!" she started to her feet, but his hand checked her flight.

"Wait," he said, "I will go."

She watched him move away. Farther and farther his upright, swift-moving figure glancing at rare and rarer intervals between the tree-trunks. Suddenly she turned and fled, goaded by intolerable pain.

And the pines were left alone in their eternal serenity, chanting the requiem over the fair white doves of Aphrodite.

WONDERFUL GROWTH OF OKLAHOMA

In That Territory the Rich Soil Is Attracting Thousands of Settlers.

That portion of the west comprised in Oklahoma and Indian Territory is the center of interest for the ever-present emigration movement that marks American civilization. The states to the north and south have been drained of their surplus population for a decade to build up these virgin lands, but the process is not complete. The land offices of Oklahoma, outside of the newly opened reservations, have done during the last summer, the largest business in years.

Western Oklahoma lands that were considered fit only for the herder are being taken for small ranches, and the cattlemen are nervously watching the destruction of their barbed-wire fences by the advent of the man with the plow. Indeed, this is the only portion of western land outside the irrigated areas that can be secured for new settlement. While vast tracts are yet open to homesteading in other parts of the west, they are the refuse, the arid, rough or worthless claims undesired by the settlers of the last three decades.

Little wonder, then, that the virgin lands of the Indian Territory, capable of producing a bale and a half of cotton, seventy bushels of corn or forty-five bushels of wheat per acre, should be in demand; or that Oklahoma farms, with almost equal fertility, and which are to be subdivided and rearranged to suit the development of the country and the increasing population, should attract both settlers and investors.

Peopled to a larger extent than almost any other part of the union by native American stock, says a writer in the Review of Reviews, with the advantages of example in the organization and development of other communities, guided by the knowledge of to-day and following modern business methods, there should be a marvelous future for this region.

NATURE PROVIDES ICE HOUSE.

Food for Birds That Is Preserved in the Arctic Regions.

The number of birds that go to the arctic regions to breed is vast beyond conception. They go not by thousands, but by tens and hundreds of thousands, and because nowhere else in the world does nature provide at the same time and in the same place such a lavish prodigality of food.

The vegetation consists of cranberry, cloudberry and crowberry bushes, and these, forced by the perpetual sunshine of the arctic summer, bear enormous crops of fruit. But the the crop is not ripe until the middle and end of the arctic summer, and if the fruit-eating birds had to wait until it was ripe they would starve in the meantime, as they arrive on the very day of the melting of the snow.

But each year the snow descends on an immense crop of ripe fruit before the birds have time to gather it. It is thus preserved perfectly fresh and pure, and the melting of the snow discloses the bushes, with the unconsumed last year's crop hanging on them or lying, ready to be eaten, on the ground.

The frozen meal stretches across the breadth of northern Asia. It never decays and is accessible the moment the snow melts. The same heat which thaws the fruit brings into being the most prolific insect life in the world—the mosquito swarms on the tundra. No European can live there without a veil after the snow melts. The gun barrels are black with them and clouds of them often obscure the sight.

Thus the insect eating birds have only to open their mouths to fill them with mosquitoes, and thus the presence of swarms of cliff chaffs, pipits and the wagtails in this arctic region is accounted for.

No Salvation Army Divorces.

In these latter days, when the divorce courts are crowded with mismated pairs, the claim of the Salvation Army that in its ranks divorce is unknown where the weddings were performed by the hallelujah ceremony prescribed in their ritual, comes as a bright spot in the view of the domestic life of America, which has been painted in most pessimistic colors by social students.

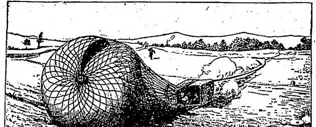
The Salvation Army is the first religious society to lay claim to the honor of being unstained in its record by an example of broken vows which were taken with its sanction. For thirty-five years the army has been marrying its people with its characteristic ceremony which binds the persons not only to each other, but to work in the army as long as both shall live.

Remarkable Cork Output.

The production of cork in the world, estimated at 1,000 metric tons (a metric ton equals 2,204 pounds avoirdupois), is confined to Portugal, Spain, France, Italy and North Africa (Tunis, Algeria and Morocco). The area of French forests, including those in North Africa, really producing cork is more than one-half of the total extent of cork forests. These forests are composed mainly of cork trees, intermixed with pines and evergreen oaks. The demand for cork increases from day to day, and it is added that France, the United Kingdom, Germany, Russia and the United States absorb 85 per cent of the total production of cork.

How Aeronauts Land Safely From Balloons

To find a method for effecting a safe landing for the occupants of balloons and airships of various constructions and at the same time preserving the balloon from destruction, has been one of the most difficult problems of aerial navigation. Until a few years ago the only appliances for effecting a landing with which balloons were equipped was a valve at the top of the balloon that could be opened from the basket by means of a line and an anchor, suspended from a rope, about fifty yards in length. Soon after the balloon had ascended to a sufficient hight the anchor, a small thing, with four or six flukes, was dropped and remained hanging during the entire trip, fifty yards below the basket. The upper end of the anchor cable was attached to the ring from which the basket was suspended.



How a Balloon Was Upset With Its Passengers.

When the balloon had been allowed to sink within a short distance from the surface and a landing was to be made, the anchor came in contact with the ground. The balloon, driven by the wind, bounced over the ground, dragging the anchor behind, until the latter caught firmly enough to bring the racing balloon to a stop. In cases where the ground was too soft to allow the anchor to catch hold the balloon was frequently dragged for long distances, until all the gas had escaped. In such saces, not only the balloon itself, but the lives of the passengers in its basket, were endangered, and many aeronauts met with a terrible death while they attempted to land.

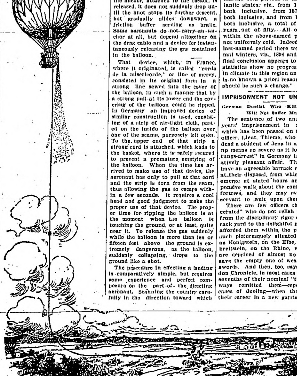
More rational methods have supplanted that primitive style of effecting a landing during the last few years. Balloons have ceased to be mere objects of curiosity; they have won an important position as means for scientific investigations and as instruments of warfare. For that reason it is necessary to equip a balloon with various appliances adapted to the manifold exigencies of an attempt to effect a landing. The most important parts of such equipment ment consist in a drag cable and an arrangement which enables the aeronaut to quickly release the gas contained in the balloon, in case the hold of the anchor should prove insufficient to bear the strain. The valve of the balloon is not mentioned in the list, as it merely serves to let part of the gas escape, so as to bring the balloon nearer to the ground. To decrease the weight of the balloon one cable, about a hundred yards long, may be used both for dragging purposes and for holding the anchor. In attempting to effect a landing the long cable is paid out and a part of it rests upon the ground. The balloon, relieved of the weight of that part of the cable resting upon the ground, rises again, until it reaches a height of thirty to fifty yards. If it is propelled by the wind it will drag the cable behind. The lower part of the cable is purposely of rough texture, so as to increase the friction and reduce the speed of the balloon. If there is enough ballast left in the basket the voyage may be continued for miles, until a place is reached which seems favorable for landing purposes.

Andree had intendel to reach the pole in this manner, by allowing himself to be driven by the wind, remaining in close proximity to the surface by means of one or more drag cables.

While the lower half of the cable is intended primarily for dragging purposes, the upper part is to serve for connecting the balloon with the anchor. A large knot forms the dividing point between the two parts of the cable and, at the same time, a firm resting place for the anchor. When the anchor, attached to the basket, is released, it does not suddenly drop until the knot stops its further descent, but gradually slides downward, a friction buffer serving as brake. Some aeronauts do not carry an anchor at all, but depend altogether on the drag cable and a device for instantaneously releasing the gas contained in the balloon.

That device, which, in France, where it originated, is called "corde de la misericorde," or line of mercy, consisted in its original form in a strong line sewed into the cover of the balloon, in such a manner that by a strong pull at its lower end the covering of the balloon could be ripped. In Germany an improved device of similar construction is used, consisting of a strip of air-tight cloth, pasted on the inside of the balloon over one of the seams, purposely left open. To the upper end of that strip a strong cord is attached, which leads to the basket, where it is safely secured to prevent a premature emptying of the balloon. When the time has arrived to make use of that device, the aeronaut has only to pull at that cord and the strip is torn from the seam, thus allowing the gas to escape within a few seconds. It requires a cool head and good judgment to make the proper use of that device. The proper time for ripping the balloon is at the moment when the balloon is touching the ground, or at least, quite near it. To release the gas suddenly while the balloon is more than ten or fifteen feet above the ground is extremely dangerous, as the balloon, suddenly collapsing, drops to the ground like a shot.

The procedure in effecting a landing is comparatively simple, but requires some experience and perfect composure on the part of the directing aeronaut. Scanning the country carefully in the direction toward which the balloon is drifting, he chooses a suitable place for the landing. The valve is opened and the balloon begins to sink. When it has reached a distance of about fifty yards from the surface the drag cable is dropped. The progress of the balloon becomes a great deal slower, owing to the friction of the cable, and the aeronaut can now decide where he wishes to land. A convenient creek or ditch, with high banks, offers a suitable hold for the anchor, and the latter is allowed to slide down. For a short distance it is dragged over the ground, but finally it takes a firm hold and the wind lays the balloon on its side, the basket resting upon the ground. Then the moment has arrived for the pulling of the "ripping cord." One strong pull and with a sigh the gas escapes from the balloon. The voyage has reached its end.



Dragging the Cable.

OUR CLIMATE IS NOT CHANGING.

Weather Bureau, After Investigation Arrives at This Conclusion.

The following paragraph from a recent letter of the Chief of the Weather Bureau bears on the question whether the climate has changed in recent times. "In the first place, instrumental data are not available in any part of the world for a longer period than 300 years, and even these are not accurate. The effect of man's occupancy of the earth is an unknown factor. Through his agency large areas of the earth's surface have been deforested and cultivated. Water has been diverted from streams and spread over the soil, thus transforming deserts into fertile plains. The latter, in turn, through the varying fortunes of empires, have again become arid. While the total effect of such changes as man has wrought is probably small, who shall say that it is absolutely nil? In the second place, the records of the weather bureau show that during the last fifty years there have been three marked cold periods in the South Atlantic states, viz., from 1852 to 1857, both inclusive, from 1871 to 1875, both inclusive, and from 1892 to 1901, both inclusive, a total of twenty-one years out of fifty. All of the years within the above-named periods were not uniformly cold. Indeed, within the last-named period there were two normal winters, viz., 1894 and 1898. The final conclusion appears to be that the statistics show no progressive change in climate in this region and that there is no known a priori reason why there should be such a change."

IMPRISONMENT NOT UNPLEASANT

German Duelist Who Killed Student Will Not Suffer Much.

The sentence of two and a quarter years' imprisonment in a fortress, which has been passed on the German officer, Lieut. Thieme, who lately shot dead a student of Jena in a duel, is by no means so severe as it looks. "Festungs-arrest" in Germany is a comparatively pleasant affair. The offenders have an agreeable barrack room placed at their disposal, from which they can emerge at stated hours and enjoy a pensive walk about the confines of the fortress, and they may even have a servant to wait upon them.

There are few officers thus "incarcerated" who do not relish the change from the disciplinary rigor of the barrack yard to the delightful promenades afforded them within the precincts of such picturesquely situated fortresses as Konigstein, on the Elbe, or Ehrenbreitstein, on the Rhine, where they are deprived of almost no privileges save the empty one of wearing their swords. And then, too, says the London Chronicle, in most cases about five-sevenths of their nominal "time" is always remitted them—especially in cases of dueling—when they resume their career in a new garrison.

DEMANDS THE TAX

GOVERNMENT WANTS $2,000,000 OF DANIEL WELLS' MONEY.

SOME SENSATIONS EXPECTED

INTERESTING FACTS IN LIFE OF WELLS MAY BE BROUGHT OUT.

LIVELY TIME FOR THE LAWYERS

ESTATE WILL NOT PAY INHERITANCE TAX IF IT CAN BE AVOIDED.

Milwaukee, April 14. — The federal authorities intend to demand over $2,000,000 inheritance tax on the will of the late Daniel Wells, Jr., and in enforcing it the facts regarding the adoption of Mrs. Fannie Wells Norris will be involved.

Mrs. Norris was adopted a great many years ago by Mr. Wells, and Mr. Upham, the attorney for the estate and one of its beneficiaries, contends that she is therefore a lineal heir. But this question will probably not be settled short of the United States supreme court. It is reported to-night that there will be claimants not mentioned in the will and that there is to be a lively time and much to do for the legal fraternity in establishing relationships for clients or disproving them. Some interesting and regarding the life of Wells may be brought out in the court proceedings in the establishment of some of the claims of ninety-four known heirs and perhaps many more that have not been heard from and who are not mentioned or provided for in the will.

The war revenue inheritance tax provision says specifically that where the beneficiary "shall be a stranger in blood to the person who died possessed" and the bequest shall be more than $1,000,000 the tax shall be at the rate of 15 per cent. Mr. Upham says that Mrs. Norris was the adopted child of Daniel Wells, Jr., and the legal process of adoption is on file in the probate court under a date of many years ago. Therefore Mrs. Norris, not being a blood relative, may be obliged to pay at the rate of $15 per $100. Assuming the estate to be $13,000,000 the United States government will put in its claim for over $1,400,000 for an inheritance tax on the legacies bequeathed to Mrs. Norris and her son Daniel Wells Norris, who would receive together about $9,375,000.

The Will of Mr. Wells gives no clue whatever as to the size of the estate nor to the amounts that will go to the heirs, excepting the seven provisions for bequests to friends and $5,000 to charitable institutions.

Apparently it is the intention of the estate not to pay the tax if it can be avoided. The aggregate of the inheritance tax on the rest of the bequests, barring those to charitable institutions, will be in the neighborhood, figuring on a basis of $15,000,000, of about $700,000. This would make the entire tax, if collected according to the provisions shown, about $2,100,000—one of the largest ever imposed by the government. Mrs. Fannie Wells Norris is a leading society woman and takes a prominent place in the affairs of the Milwaukee-Downer College Endowment association, of which she is a member.

DULUTH'S NEWEST SENSATION.

Starvation, Filth, Vermine and Even Work Figure in Affidavits Made by Former Patients.

Duluth, Minn., April 15.—Quite a sensation has been produced here by affidavits made by persons who have been detained at the Duluth pest house. Starvation, filth, vermin and general neglect are charged. It is alleged that medicine has been wanting for days at a time. The patients claim they are obliged to do all their own work, except cooking, and often have to assist at kitchen work. All are required to pay for their expenses. One patient who refused to work says that he was threatened with detention until he did a day's work.

PLEADS FOR HIS MURDERER.

Man's Dying Wish Is That His Slayer Be Not Prosecuted.

Valparaiso, Ind., April 14.—Pleading with his last breath that his slayer be not prosecuted for his murder, Lewis Vosburg died yesterday afternoon at his Lowell home from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted by Clarence Green several weeks ago. The altercation started upon the street and in the presence of a young woman whose escort was Green.

MRS. SEWARD'S FUNERAL.

Many Former Friends Are Present the Services.

Stillwater, Minnesota, April 14. — The last sad rites over the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Seward occurred yesterday. Service was conducted by Rev. S. J. Kennedy in the First Presbyterian church. Among the members of the editorial fraternity present were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. David Ramaley, C. P. Stine, H. P. Hall and Mrs. Weidman of St. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Meyst of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Stanton of Appleton. Many other St. Paul friends were present.

IN LAND OF GUN PLAYS.

Four Men Reported Killed and Seven Others Wounded.

Arkansas City, Kan., April 14.—In a fight between officers and desperadoes near Braggs, Ind. T., four men are reported killed and seven wounded, among them a noted outlaw. It is impossible to reach Braggs by telegraph or telephone and details are lacking.

FOR THE STARVING TEXANS.

An Appeal Is Issued by the Governor of the State.

Austin, Tex., April 14.—Gov. Sayers has investigated the conditions which prevail in Zapata county and yesterday issued an appeal calling on the people of Texas to extend relief to that section.

An Old Resident Gone.

Hastings, Minnesota, April 14. — Nicholas O. P. Wagner of this city, who returned from Rochester last week, died at the residence of his son, H. J. B. Wagner, in Vermillion, yesterday, aged seventy years. He was an old and well-known resident of Dakota county, and leaves a wife and grown-up family.

MILES MUST GO.

Enforced Retirement of the General Is a Certainty.

Washington, April 15.—The issues are fairly joined between the lieutenant general and the secretary of war. The troubles which began long ago under the Cleveland administration have finally reached so critical a stage that the compulsory retirement of Gen. Miles at an early date is an open secret and is not denied at the White House. In explanation of President Roosevelt's position one of his close friends, who unquestionably speaks by authority, says: "The question is not a personal one between Gen. Miles and Secretary Root. At present Secretary Root has on his shoulders a heavier burden than any other member of the administration. No man less strong could carry it at all; and now, at the very time when he requires the most loyal support of every subordinate who wishes well to the army and the nation, he has to spend much of his strength in meeting the opposition of the commanding general. If Gen. Miles is retired it will be simply because after patient trial President Roosevelt feels that on the highest ethical grounds his retention would work grave and lasting injustice to the army as a whole.

DEATH COMES TO TALMAGE.

Eminent Presbyterian Divine Dies at His Home in Washington.

Washington, April 15.—The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmadge, the noted Presbyterian divine, died at 9 o'clock Saturday night at his residence in this city. It had been evident for some days that there was no hope of recovery and the attending physicians so informed the family. The patient gradually grew weaker until life passed away so quietly that even the members of the family, all of whom were watching at the bedside, hardly knew that it had gone. The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the brain. Dr. Talmage was in poor health when he left Washington six weeks ago for a vacation and rest in Mexico. He was then suffering from influenza and serious catarrhal conditions. Since his return to Washington some time ago he had been quite ill. Until Thursday, however, fears for his death were not entertained. The last rational words uttered by Dr. Talmage were on the day preceding the marriage of his daughter, when he said: "Of course I know you, Maud." Since then he had been unconscious.

MUST GET RID OF THE FRIARS.

But No Diplomatic Relations Will Be Made at Rome.

Washington, April 15. — In administration circles in Washington there has been some amusement over the talk raised over the so-called mission to Rome. The facts are that Gov. Taft has impressed very strongly upon the president and the secretary of war that the question of getting rid of the friars was of vital consequence to peace in the Philippines, and that to accomplish this it was necessary to deal directly with the head of the corporation involved, Rome. After much consideration it was decided that Gov. Taft should stop at Rome on his way from the Philippines to consult with the church authorities and see if it would not be possible to reach some agreement on behalf of the Philippine government. There would be nothing of any kind or shape in the matter which would suggest anything in the way of diplomatic Relations. It would be purely a business transaction.

POSTPONE EXPOSITION.

Official Announcement Expected in a Few Days.

Washington, April 15.—The Louisiana Purchase exposition is to be postponed until 1904. Announcement to this effect will be made within the next fifteen days. This is a statement made by John M. Allen, after a conference with Former Senator Thomas Carter, chairman of the National commission for the fair, who reached Washington Saturday, direct from St. Louis, where he conferred with the officials of the exposition company. It is believed here that formal announcement will be made shortly after the passage of the sundry civil appropriation bill, which is under consideration in the senate committee on appropriations. The bill carries an appropriation of more than $1,000,000 for the fair. It already has passed the house of representatives.

JEWELER SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Worried Over Finances and a Police Investigation.

Youngstown, Ohio, April 15.—Max M. Rollins, one of the most prominent jewelers in the city, committed suicide by shooting himself. He was despondent over money matters, and the fact that the Cleveland police were investigating the fact that he once had in his possession a $200 diamond brooch stolen from Forris B. Newman of Cleveland. After the robbery there Rollins went into the wholesale jewelry store where he trades and asked to have the brooch cleaned. It was recognized as the one made by that firm and stolen from Newman. Rollins claimed that it had been given him to be cleaned and that he returned it. He has resided in this city for thirty years, and not a person believes but that his story is true.

SERIOUS SHOOTING AFFRAY.

One Man Fatally and Another Seriously Wounded.

Carbondale, Ill., April 15.—A shooting affray occurred yesterday at Murphysboro in which Zeke Morgan was fatally and Henry Grogan seriously wounded. Zeke and John Morgan had gone to the house of a woman whom Grogan was visiting and demanded admission. They were met at the door by Grogan, who refused to let them in. Arguments followed and the three men drew weapons and began firing. Both of the wounded men will probably die.

Steers Bring High Price.

Huron, S. D., April 15.—A day or two since Charles Miner of this county sold fifty-two corn-fed steers raised on his ranch north of this city for $5,000, an average of about $96 each. The products of Mr. Miner's farm the past year have brought $8,000.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Omaha, April 15.—Martin S. Rowley, head timekeeper for the Armour Packing company at South Omaha, was arrested early yesterday, charged with the embezzlement of $4,300.

HOPES FOR PEACE

BRITISH EXPECTATIONS AROUSED BY SEVERAL IMPORTANT EVENTS.

CABINET IN MIDNIGHT SESSION

IMPORTANT DISPATCHES PASS BETWEEN KITCHENER AND LONDON.

UNUSUAL SUNDAY ACTIVITY

CHAMBERLAIN CLOSETED WITH KING EDWARD FOR OVER TWO HOURS.

London, April 15. — The announcement of the presence at Pretoria of the Orange Free State and Transvaal leaders and generals who have been at Klerksdorp considering terms of peace, has caused a decided increase in the hopefulness of the public concerning the possibilities of peace. The expectations aroused by the conference at Pretoria have been further heightened by the movements of Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, and other members of the cabinet in London and evidences that important dispatches are passing between Lord Kitchener and the government. A conference of members of the cabinet was held Saturday night at midnight in Mr. Chamberlain's house. Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Brodrick, the war secretary; Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the chancellor of the exchequer, and the duke of Devonshire, president of the council, were present. The Conference Terminated

at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and yesterday Mr. Chamberlain and several of the colonial officials were at their offices. Messengers passed between them and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach at his residence. At 1:30 yesterday afternoon Mr. Chamberlain drove to the Buckingham palace and remained with King Edward for two hours. During the afternoon messengers carried dispatches from the foreign office to Lord Salisbury, who, with Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the house of commons, was at Hatfield house. These outward signs of Sunday activity have not been supplemented with any authentic official statement. The thus far has been whether the peace negotiations would affect the government's financial proposals which promise to be submitted to parliament today. The fact that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach was engaged in his office nearly all day yesterday is taken in some quarters to indicate a modification of the budget statement. There appears to be no doubt that the Boer leaders have communicated the results of their deliberations to Lord Kitchener. Attempts will be made in parliament today to draw out what information the government has on the South African situation and to learn its intentions, but it is not expected that the government can forecast the probable outcome of the negotiations. Whatever instructions have been sent to Lord Kitchener are believed to be only provisional in character.

Question Most Discussed

FEAT OF ENGINEERING.

Large Railway Bridge Is Moved Thirty Feet.

Pittsburg, April 14.—One of the most remarkable and cleverly executed pieces of engineering work ever performed in the country took place yesterday when the 2,000-ton bridge of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railway spanning the Allegheny river here was moved a distance of about thirty feet to temporary piers to make way for a new double-deck structure that is to take its place. The moving was done in less than two hours, and there was practically no interference with traffic.

HERE'S WAR TO DEATH.

Bulgarian Brigands in Tower Defy Turks and Are Exterminated.

Constantinople, April 15.—A band of seven Bulgarian brigands has been exterminated in the Vilayett of Monastir, in Macedonia, by Turkish troops. The brigands occupied the tower of the village of Kadi-Koi and there fortified themselves. The troops surrounded the spot and demanded the surrender of the brigands, who replied with a fusillade, which was returned by the Turks until all the occupants of the tower were dead.

INVASION OF TURKEY ORDERED.

Macedonian Leader Arranges for a General Rising on April 27.

Vienna, April 15. — The Neue Freie Presse Saturday published a dispatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, announcing that a proclamation has been issued by M. Saratoff, the Macedonian leader, calling on the Macedonians in Bulgaria to join in a general rising on April 27. Bands collecting on the Turkish frontier are to co-operate and invade Turkey at different points.

SCARCITY OF ENEMY.

Colombian Fleet Returns to Panama Without a Fight.

Panama, Colombia, April 15. — The government fleet, which sailed from here Thursday returned last night. The gunboat Chuchuito patrolled the coast to the Bayamo river, whither 200 men had been sent to bring cattle for the troops. The Boyaca went as far as San Carlos without meeting any revolutionary vessels.

Pension for Mrs. McKinley.

Washington, April 15.—The house on Saturday passed the bill granting a pension to the widow of President McKinley of $5,000 per year. It had previously passed the senate and now goes to the president for signature.

Bank Robbers Secure Cash.

Dearborn, Mich., April 15.—D. P. Lapham's private bank here was entered by burglars last night, who blew open the vault and stole $1,000 in cash. The vault was completely wrecked. There is no clue.

HINGES ON A BROKEN RIB.

Supreme Court Will Decide an Interesting Insurance Case.

Bismarck, N. D., April 15.—An interesting insurance case has been argued before the supreme court, that of Thompson vs. The Travelers Insurance Company, from Valley City. The suit is brought by Mrs. Thompson to collect on a policy of insurance held by her husband. When he applied for the insurance he stated in his application that he was suffering from a broken rib. Notwithstanding this the policy was issued and his premium accepted. Two weeks after this he died as a result of the broken rib. A clause in the policy of the company provided that if the insured was not in good health when the policy was delivered, it should be void. The plaintiffs claim this clause was waived by the issuance of the policy and the acceptance of the premium.

LAID DOWN TO DROWN.

Prominent Albert Lea Man Deliberately Commits Suicide.

Albert Lea, Minn., April 15.—Saturday afternoon Frank B. Fobes, who had been partially paralyzed and almost helpless, although able to walk about, left the Gilbert house, where he boarded. When an investigation was made Sunday morning and he was not at the house of a relative searching parties were sent out, as it was believed he had committed suicide. He had many times intimated to friends that he would end his life. His body was found in shallow water on the shore of Fountain lake. He had left his overcoat on the shore and deliberately walked out a few feet and laid down and drowned. Mr. Fobes had been county treasurer here three terms, was a prominent Mason and was prominent in business some years ago.

PATRIOTS IN A FIGHT.

Dispute as to Which Is the Better State to Be Born in, Ohio or Indiana, the Cause of Battle.

Duluth, Minn., April 15.—A stabbing affray occurred at Swan River last night, and as a result John McDonald is lying in a serious condition, with a cut over the heart, and his wrist gashed. The stabbing was done by Ed Wilkinson, a negro. Both men were employed as section hands on the Eastern Minnesota railway. They got into a dispute as to whether Ohio or Indiana was the better state in which to live. The negro hailed from the Hoosier commonwealth, and emphatically expressed the opinion that it was a better state than Ohio. McDonald, who is a Buckeye, averred that his own state was "it" when came to being a real place to be born in.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

Young Couple in Wisconsin Are Injured, But Not Fatally.

Clear Lake, Wis., April 15. — While Fred Firehammer and Miss Ethel Holliday, young people from here, were driving home last night from a Good Templars lodge three miles south, and when crossing the railroad track the buggy was struck by a north-bound freight train. Both occupants were injured, but not fatally. They were thrown some distance, and with such force that Firehammer's body broke down a fence it came in contact with. He is severely cut and bruised. Miss Holliday escaped with a broken arm and slight bruises. The horse was killed and the buggy was completely demolished.

GREEKS FEAR BOERS.

Emigrants Refuse to Embark at Havre, Fearing They Would Be Taken to Africa.

Paris, April 15.—Eight hundred Greek emigrants who had been booked to sail from Havre Saturday on the steamship La Gascogne, refused when at the docks to embark. They said they were convinced that the steamship had been chartered by the British government to convey them to South Africa, where they would be compelled to fight the Boers. The Greek consul intervened and persuaded most of the emigrants to go on board, but a number of them persisted in demanding the return of their passage money.

HUDSON JAIL DELIVERY.

Two Prisoners Escape by Means of False Keys.

Hudson, Wis., April 15.—There was a jail delivery here by which Bert Strasbusch and John Clark made their escape. They did it by means of false keys, opening the locks of two heavy iron doors in the new modern county jail. A reward of $100 each is offered for capture of the convicts. Clark was up on six months' sentence for larceny. Strasbusch was convicted of attempted assault and was to have been sentenced to-day by Judge Helms.

EXPRESS ROBBER IS CAUGHT.

He Had Stolen $3,000 of Government's Money at Hudson, Ohio.

Red Oak, Iowa, April 15.—Frank E. Fuller, alias F. L. Foster, was arrested here last night on the charge of taking $3,000 contained in a package addressed to the treasury department at Washington on Feb. 7 while he was agent of the American Express company at Hudson, Ohio. The money was worn out paper being returned for redemption. Fuller confessed. A partner who came West with Fuller is supposed to be at Atlantic.

Goes to the Philippines.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 15. — William Walters, Jr., has been appointed architect on the United States architectural commission recently organized for the Philippines. He was one of the four successful candidates in civil service examinations held at various cities in the United States. Mr. Walters is about thirty years old. His wife will accompany him to the Philippines.

Hand Cut Off in Feed Mill.

Winona, Minn., April 15.—Fred Bohri, Sr., a merchant and banker of Fountain City, met with a serious accident in his feed mill yesterday, resulting in the loss of one of his hands. He will be brought to Winona for an operation.

Pine Island Fire.

Pine Island, Minn., April 15. — Fire destroyed George Dickinson's meat market early yesterday morning. An adjoining building was also damaged. The loss is estimated to be $1,500; fully insured.

BELGIANS SHOCKED

BLOODY REPRESSION OF DISORDERS CAUSES PAINFUL IMPRESSION.

BALL CARTRIDGES ARE USED

FOR THE FIRST TIME THE POLICE ARE IN DEADLY EARNEST.

CITY'S GAY ASPECT ON SUNDAY

AUTHORITIES ARE ANTICIPATING MORE TROUBLE WHEN STRIKE IS ORDERED.

Brussels, April 15. — The bloody repression of the disorders of Saturday evening has created a painful impression among all classes here, although it is appreciated that the majority of the victims of the encounters do not belong to the better class of workmen. Saturday for the first time the police really fired their rifles loaded with ball cartridges. Previous to that time they had used their swords and their revolvers, the latter being usually loaded with blank cartridges. Saturday's rioters were composed of the dregs of the population, with a sprinkling of what is called the young socialistic guard, composed of mere boys with little regard for the orders of F. Van der Velde, a member of the chamber of deputies, and the leader of the Socialist movement in Belgium and the Socialist committee. The mob was mainly composed of the rough population of the quarter, who jeered and reviled the police when they were forced along the streets by the cordons of officers. Serious troubles began when a number of roughs from a safe distance, fired revolvers in the direction of the cordons. The gendarmes then Charged With Drawn Swords.

After firing at the crowd with revolvers loaded with blank cartridges they were greeted with a hail of missiles, such as stones, bottles and heavy iron rivets. This happened in several streets. It was worse in the Rue Hauete, where the occupants of the houses rained missiles upon the heads of the gendarmes. An officer of the gendarmes then shouted to the crowd to disperse. No notice was taken of this order. Then for the first time in many years the gendarmes fired their Mauser carbines, loaded with what are called strike cartridges, which contain a ball, but a minor charge of powder. The gendarmes fired only one volley, but when the mob scattered several bodies were lying on the ground. Two were mortally wounded and died while being conveyed to the hospitals. It is impossible to ascertain the exact number of the victims of Saturday's rioting. Many who were slightly wounded had their wounds dressed in pharmacies or went home. The doctor of the hospital of St. Pierre, however, told a representative of the Associated Press that three rioters had died in the hospital and another one there was believed to be Mortally Injured.

Thirty others who are badly hurt were received at the hospital Saturday night. A doctor who was returning home after having visited a patient, was caught between two bodies of charging gendarmes and had his nose cut off with a sword. A woman was also among the wounded. Among those killed was the assistant secretary of the jewelers' union. Four policemen are missing.

From the gay aspect of the city yesterday no one would suspect the bloody scenes which were enacted Saturday. The inhabitants of Brussels took advantage of the beautiful weather to promenade along the spacious boulevards and terrances. The cafes were crowded with holidaymakers and a considerable crowd visited the quarter where the riots occurred. But except for a furled red flag tied with crape over the Maison du Peuple, nothing was visible to recall the events of Saturday evening. In the same square where the cavalry charged Saturday, yesterday a dozen workmen in their shirt sleeves were playing a Flemish game of ball.

No Revisionist demonstrations have occurred and in order to avoid collisions between the strikers and the police the Socialist committee has countermanded the orders for the monster meeting which it was intended to hold to-day in the industrial suburb of Molenbeek St. Jean. The authorities are anticipating to-day with anxiety as the Socialist committee has decided to order a general strike in Brussels and its environments.

MURDER AND ROBBERY.

Wealthy Farmer Killed and His House Ransacked.

Uniontown, Pa., April 15.—Alfred J. Jones, a wealthy farmer and uncle of District Attorney Jones, was murdered and his house robbed near Gans Saturday night by three burglars. A voice inquiring the way to the railroad about 9 o'clock attracted Jones to the door and as he opened it he saw three men who quietly slipped up. While Jones was trying to push the door shut one of the burglars reached around the door with his revolver and fired at Jones. He fell to the floor at the first shot and the burglars had everything their own way. Two sisters who lived with Jones were locked in the kitchen and guarded by one of the men while two went to the room where Jones kept his chest. The heavy chest was broken open and everything of value taken.

Snow Storm in Nebraska.

Omaha, April 15. — A snowstorm which set in early yesterday in Western Nebraska continued a greater part of the day and in a number of counties fell to a depth of several inches. At Kimball six inches fell.

Big Fire in Brooklyn.

New York, April 15.—Fire in Brooklyn destroyed the furniture factory of Masel & Huebner and the pipe foundry of David Binns. Several frame tenements near-by were also burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

CONGRESS.

Senator Depew Starts a Lively Spat in the Senate.

Washington, April 12.—Some remarks which Mr. Depew of New York made Thursday concerning the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the election of senators by popular vote, in the course of which he adverted to Southern election methods, yesterday precipitated a lively three-hour debate in the senate. Mr. Money of Mississippi, to whose state reference had been made by the New York senator, replied partly to some of the statements of Mr. Depew, and defended the suffrage clauses in the Mississippi constitution. Mr. Depew made a warm reply and attacked the election methods not only of Mississippi, but of several other Southern states. His remarks drew a sharp fire from several senators. Mr. Money and his colleague, Mr. Laurin, explained Mississippi election methods, and Mr. Simmons of North Carolina pointed out that Mr. Depew had been entirely mistaken about the operation of the constitution of that state and that his statements were erroneous. Mr. Blackburn of Kentucky warmly arraigned the New York senator for his comments on Kentucky elections.

When the Chinese exclusion bill was taken up an agreement was reached that a vote should be taken on it next Tuesday at 10 o'clock.

In the House.

Debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill continued in the house yesterday, the principal speeches being made by Mr. Long of Kansas, a member of the ways and means committee, who, from the first ardently supported the proposition for reciprocity and who originally favored a reduction of 40 per cent, and by Mr. Shafroth of Colorado, who vigorously opposed the bill on the ground that the sugar trust, which he said was waging a war of extermination against the beet sugar industry, would be its chief beneficiary.

MOB WANTED HIS BLOOD.

Prisoner Shoots and Kills the Chief of Police.

Elkins, W. Va., April 13. — Chief of Police P. C. Marstiller was shot and killed yesterday by Wilfred Davis, a woodsman whom he had arrested and was taking to the city prison. Davis appeared willing to go to jail and offered no resistance until within thirty feet of the jail door, when he told Marstiller that he would go no further. A slight scuffle followed when Davis pulled a 38-caliber revolver from his pocket and fired, the ball striking Marstiller just above the left ear. Mayor Woodford heard of the shooting and in less than ten minutes had thirty men on horseback scouring the country for Davis. These were joined later by the sheriff and posse until there were 100 men in the chase, all armed with shotguns and rifles. Davis was sighted as he came to where the creek crosses the county road. They ordered him to halt, but he started to run and the posse opened fire. He then surrendered and begged them not to shoot him. When Davis was brought back to town a mob of about 1,000 surrounded the officers having him in charge, and the cry of "lynch him" soon became a roar, but after hard work the posse got him on a train and landed him safely in the jail at Phillippi.

PEACE RUMORS DENIED.

Government Officials Say There Is No Foundation for Them.

London, April 13. — In the house of commons at midnight last night A. J. Balfour, the government leader, replying to a question asked by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, declared that the government had no information concerning the peace rumors, and that there was no foundation for them.

Inquiries made at the war office by the Associated Press elicited the statement that that office knew nothing of the rumors of peace or the alleged telegram from Lord Roberts to Dover in which he is reported to have said the war was over.

-o-

Amsterdam, April 12.—Mr. Kruger and those who surround him appear to attach little credence to yesterday morning's reports regarding the acceptance by the Boer leaders of the British terms of peace in South Africa.

FIGHTING CONTINUES.

Preparations Being Made to Send More Troops to South Africa.

London, April 13.—That the fighting continues in South Africa is shown by a casualty list given out yesterday, which contains the names of a few of the killed and wounded in engagements which occurred at three separate points as late as April 8 and 9. Preparations here continue for the dispatch of 20,000 additional troops for the winter campaign. Lord Roberts yesterday inspected the first draft of the guards, which will sail for South Africa next week.

ONE YEAR FOR MOST.

He Has Not the Right to Advise the Commission of Murder.

New York, April 12. — The appelate division of the supreme court yesterday affirmed the conviction of Johann Most on a charge of printing in his paper, the Freiheit, an improper article entitled "Murder Versus Murder." The article was published about the time of the assassination of President McKinley. Most was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. Regarding his contention that the Constitution gave him the right to publish the article, the court says: "The Constitution does not give to a citizen a right to murder, nor does it give to him the right to advise the commission of that crime by others. What it does permit is liberty of action only to the extent that such liberty does not interfere with or deprive others of an equal right."

Named by the President.

Washington, April 13.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate: James R. Garfield, Ohio, United States civil service commissioner; William Williams, New York, commissioner of immigration, port of New York.

President Roosevelt Returns.

Washington, April 13. — President Roosevelt and party arrived here at 7:30 yesterday morning. The president expressed himself as greatly pleased with his Southern trip.

HARDWARE TRUST

BIG JOBBING INTERESTS OF THE COUNTRY EFFECT A CONSOLIDATION.

CAPITALIZED AT $120,000,000

ALL IMPORTANT TRADE CENTERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARE INTERESTED.

LATEST GREAT MERGER OF TRADE

WILL CONTROL TWO-THIRDS OF JOBBING TRADE IN HARDWARE LINE.

New York, April 10.—Authoritative announcement of consolidation of the great hardware jobbing interests of the country, a combination capitalized at $120,000,000, will be made by the Iron Age in its current issue to-morrow.

The consolidation embraces the Simmons Hardware company of St. Louis; William Bingham company of Cleveland; Supple Hardware company of Philadelphia; Pacific Hardware and Steel company of San Francisco; Marshall-Wells Hardware company of Duluth; Bigelow & Dowse company of Boston; Van Camp Hardware and Iron company of Indianapolis; George Tritch Hardware company of Denver; Janney, Semple, Hill & Co., Minneapolis, and forty other houses, representing nearly every important trade center of the country.

Negotiations are still pending with other houses, and it is expected that there will be further accessions to the number already enrolled in the combination. The Iron Age will say:

"Several names have been suggested for the consolidation, such as the International Hardware company, National Hardware and Metal company, International Hardware and Metal company, and there is little doubt that one of these will be chosen.

The Organization

not being technically completed, there has been no formal choice of officers. It is purposed that the officials shall be as follows:

"E. C. Simmons, president; John Bindley, vice president, and W. D. Simmons, There will be a board of directors, consisting of from twenty-five to thirty persons, representing the different sections of the country. There will also be an executive committee of nine.

"The financing of the company is attended to by Moore & Schley of New York, and George R. Hill & Co. of Pittsburg. It is intended to incorporate under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital of $120,000,000—$40,000,000 preferred and $80,000,000 common stock. The preferred will be a 6 per cent cumulative stock, preferred both for liquidation and dividends.

Don't Want It All.

"The general headquarters for buying and selling and transportation of goods will be in St. Louis. The Eastern headquarters will be in New York city. The members of the executive committee residing in the East, with Mr. Bindley, will manage the Eastern business of the corporation.

"As at present constituted it is estimated by the company that they embrace something like two-thirds of the distributing efficiency of the jobbing trade of the country in the hardware line. They are content that the other third should remain competitors, as it is not intended to monopolize the jobbing business."

Chicago, April 9.—The promoters gave the Chicago field a wide berth in their organization. Members of leading wholesale hardware firms to-day said that no Chicago dealers had joined and it was believed none would.

CANNOT EXPECT INDEPENDENCE.

Once More the Boers Are Given to Understand This.

London, April 10—Gerald Balfour, president of the board of trade, in a speech at Leeds last night, said that if the Boers still insisted upon independence the present so-called peace negotiations in South Africa might as well be broken off immediately.

Pretoria, April 10—The British are making preparations for a great series of "drives" on the arrival of reinforcements. The general outlook for the Boers is said to be most disheartening. It is thought here that the bulk of them are only waiting a promise that they will not be banished to come in and surrender.

Mr. Steyn, the former president of the Orange Free State, who is taking part in the peace negotiations in South Africa, is suffering from severe ophthalmia, and is threatened with total blindness.

BRITONS HONORED.

Order of the Red Eagle for Admiral Seymour and Capt. Jellicoe.

Berlin, April 10.—The emperor has conferred upon Rear Admiral Sir Edward H. Seymour, formerly naval commander of the first British expeditionary force in China, the Order of the Red Eagle, with a sword of the first class, and upon Capt. Jellico of the British navy the same order of the second class. The emperor said that he was prompted to decorate these officers by reading the report of Capt. von Usedom, the senior German naval commander present on the operations of the relief of Pekin legations.

JESSIE IS OUT OF JAIL.

Miss Morrison Has Been in Retirement for Eight Months.

Eldorado, Kan., April 10.—After imprisonment eight months in the county jail, Jessie Morrison, awaiting her third trial for the murder of Mrs. Olin Castle, yesterday was released on $10,000 bond.

WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

Disastrous Blaze in Business Section of an Illinois Town.

Bloomington, Ill., April 10. — The town of Fisher, east of here, was swept by fire yesterday. All the business houses were destroyed, involving a loss of $100,000.

FLOOD IN MORAVIAN MINE.

Thirteen Unfortunate Men Lose Their Lives in Austrian Disaster.

Vienna, April 10. — Water from a great flood poured into the mine at Ostrau, Moravia, drowning thirteen miners.

CONGRESS.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Obtain a Vote on the Chinese Bill.

Washington, April 11.—An effort was made late yesterday in the senate to obtain an agreement for a vote on the Chinese exclusion bill, but it was unsuccessful. The indications now are that the vote will be taken next Tuesday. The measure was under discussion during the entire session yesterday except for about an hour, in which time the postoffice appropriation bill was considered and passed. Three speeches were made against the Chinese bill in its present form, Mr. Dillingham of Vermont concluding his remarks, and Mr. Stewart of Nevada and Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts stating their objections to the bill.

In the House.

The debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill in the house yesterday was devoid of enlivening features. The most notable speech of the day was made by Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio. He answered the critics who have charged him with inconsistency by saying that reciprocity was sound Republican doctrine and that tariff schedules were not sacred. He predicted that the time would come, although it had not yet arrived, when there would be an inexorable demand for revision of the present rates. Mr. Prince of Illinois made a strong speech against the measure.

OVATION FOR PRESIDENT.

Warmly Greeted on His Return Journey to Washington.

Summerville, S. C., April 12. — The visit of President Roosevelt and party to the South terminated here yesterday. No special programme had been arranged. When the president came down stairs in the morning he held an informal reception in the hotel parlors, and shortly afterward, accompanied by most of his party, was taken for a drive to Dorchester, the site of the old Spanish fort under the escort of Capt. F. W. Wagner and B. F. Hemphill. The party was next driven directly to the Southern station where the special train was in waiting. The train pulled out for Washington amid the cheers and hurrahs of an immense crowd which had gathered at the station. Through the towns that the presidential party passed on the return journey crowds of cheering people lined the tracks to catch a sight of Mr. Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt was greeted in North Carolina with demonstrations no less enthusiastic than those in the Palmetto state.

CONTRACTORS LOST MONEY.

Building of Torpedo Boats More Expensive Than They Figured.

Washington, April 11.—The building of twenty-six torpedo boats for the United States government cost the contractors something over $2,000,000 more than the price they received from the government, according to the report of the torpedo boat board which has just been submitted to Secretary Long. The builders themselves claim that their losses aggregate over $3,000,000. The contractors want congress to make good their losses; basing their claim on the assertion that the boats were all of types new to them. Secretary Long does not indorse this application; he has simply collected the necessary information for the guidance of congress, if it entertains the appeal.

TURNED LENTZ DOWN.

Elections Committee Makes a Unanimous Report.

Washington, April 12.—The report in the contested election case of Lentz vs. Tompkins of the Columbus, Ohio, district, was filed yesterday. It is out of the ordinary for the emphasis of the language employed. The report is unanimous, both Democrats and Republicans joining in it. It says that many of the charges of fraud by Mr. Lentz were abandoned, as they were "evidently not intended to have any bearing upon the contest, but simply to play upon the records as charges and insinuations against outside persons."

PENSION FOR MRS. M'KINLEY.

Favorable Report on the Bill by the House Committee.

Washington, April 12.—Yesterday the house committee on pensions made a favorable report on the bill granting Mrs. McKinley a pension of $5,000 per year. The report cites the military career of President McKinley and his service in congress and as president, and adds: "He left the nation for which he worked and lived in a prosperous condition, and, like Lincoln and Garfield, he was assassinated because he was president of the United States and lost his life in the service of his country."

WYNNE LANDS.

Newspaper Man to Be First Assistant Postmaster General.

Washington, April 12. — Robert J. Wynne, the Washington correspondent of the New York Press, has accepted the office of first assistant postmaster general. The nomination probably will be submitted to the senate immediately after the president's return from Charleston. The change will take effect May 1 or earlier, as W. M. Johnson of New Jersey, whom he succeeds, is anxious to retire.

GOUGING OUT EYES.

Alleged Cruelty by Catholic Missionaries the Cause of Outbreak.

London, April 12.—A dispatch to a news agency from Shanghai says that allegations of cruelty against Catholic missionaries have caused an anti-foreign outbreak at Ning-Po, a city in the Province of Cho-Kiang, where a statement was circulated that some of the missionaries gouged out a boy's eyes. Two British and two German warships have been dispatched to Ning-Po.

On the Retired List.

Washington, April 12.—Pay Director F. C. Crosby of the navy was put on the retired list yesterday after many years of service. Mr. Walter A. Greer, one of the secretaries of Secretary Long, will succeed him.

Big Crops on Coast.

San Francisco, April 12. — Reports from all sections promise unusually heavy crops this season. All deciduous fruits are in good condition. Grain is growing rapidly in the coast and bay sections.

BLOODY HATCHET

STRONG LINK IN A CHAIN OF CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

BEING WOVEN ABOUT A TEACHER

SUSPECTED OF THE BRUTAL MURDER OF A YOUNG GIRL AT DETROIT.

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY

BATTERED AND LIFELESS BODY OF A MAN FOUND ON THE STREET.

Detroit, Mich., April 12.—What the police consider to be a strong link in the chain of circumstantial evidence that they are weaving about Prof. Joseph M. Miller, aged forty-seven, a music teacher and a married man with a family, who is under arrest on suspicion of brutally murdering Miss Carrie M. Jennett on Thirteenth street just before midnight Wednesday night, was discovered last evening. It is a bloodstained hatchet which was found in the drawer of a table in Miller's kitchen. There is now the following circumstantial evidence against Prof. Miller, who was the girl's music teacher and had paid her such marked attentions that her father had asked him to keep away from the house: When he was examined at the Grand River avenue police station yesterday morning what are supposed to be bloodstains were found on his shirt sleeves, his trousers, shoes, hat and overcoat; a towel was discovered in his kitchen with what are supposed to be bloodstains on it; when he was asked for an explanation of the he gave none; and, finally, the bloodstained hatchet found last night. Miss Jennett, who was twenty-two years of age and who would have become a mother in a few months, was most brutally murdered just before midnight Wednesday night. She was felled by a terrific blow on the head which broke her neck and her throat was cut from ear to ear. A blow from some instrument made a hole in the middle of her forehead and behind her left ear was a deep stab wound evidently made by the same instrument that was used to cut her throat. In addition to these ghastly wounds a heavy blow had been struck on the side of her face, fracturing the cheek bone. Her mutilated body was found in this condition in a lonely spot on Thirteenth street. The fact that the girl was in a delicate condition is given by the police as a motive for the crime. Nothing can be gained from Miller by questioning. He simply insists that he knows nothing of the murder.

Stains on His Clothing

Another Mysterious Tragedy.

The police admit that they have not reached a solution of the murder of George Heywood, head bookkeeper of the Michigan Malleable Iron works, whose battered and lifeless body was found at daylight yesterday morning within 100 yards of his home. William Jones, who roomed in Heywood's home, was arrested on suspicion. A sweat-box examination lasting all day and evening failed to bring from him any damaging admissions. Mrs. Heywood, who was escorted to police headquarters at noon and closely examined yesterday afternoon and evening, was permitted to return to her home last night. The officers say that no information was secured from her that would help identify her husband's slayer. Heywood's murderer first shot him and then crushed in his forehead with some heavy instrument. The bullet took effect behind his right ear and itself would have caused death. The murderer apparently then stooped over his victim and dealt him an awful blow on the forehead.

FIVE KILLED BY OUTLAWS.

Bloody Battle With Sheriff's Posse in Virginia.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 12. — Meager details of a bloody battle between a sheriff's posse and outlaws in Scott county, Va., yesterday afternoon reached Knoxville last night. Five men, all members of the sheriff's posse, were killed; two other possemen wounded, and Jim Wright, an escaped Hancock county, Tenn., murderer, was shot and captured. Wright was under a life sentence for murder and escaped from the state prison at Brushy Mountain two years ago. He returned to his haunts in Hancock county and there defied the officers, although there was a reward of $500 for his arrest. Not long after his return home Sheriff Lagere of Hancock county was shot from ambush and killed. The crime was charged to Jim Wright, John Templeton and the latter's brothers. Its alleged motive was that Lagere had killed the father of the Templetons. Recently officers have been planning to trap Wright at his home, and he, together with John Templeton and other members of his gang, crossed the state line into Virginia. They have been in Scott county about a month. Yesterday the sheriff organized a strong posse and attempted to arrest them. The outlaws had been notified and a pitched battle resulted. In addition to the five of the sheriff's posse killed, Deputy Sheriffs Joe Moss and Sam Wax were wounded. Although Wright was wounded and captured, all the other members of the gang escaped. They are being pursued, but the mountains of the county afford them every possible chance of escape.

Streets Under Water.

Winnipeg, April 12.—An ice jam in the Assiniboine river at Portage la Prairie is causing serious trouble. All the streets in town are under water. The river rose seven feet in two hours. The bridge on the Canadian Pacific road's main line was washed away and the through express is running by way of Souris.

Alice Is Home Again.

Washington, April 12. — Miss Alice Roosevelt returned to Washington yesterday from Cuba.

MANY LAND LEASES.

Strong Demand for South Dakota Tracts Is Indicated.

Pierre, S. D., April 12.—The lease returns which are coming into the state land department indicate a strong demand for leased lands this spring. In the eastern counties of the state sections are returned as cut up into forty-acre tracts, and all leased above the minimum fixed for leasing in those counties. In the counties west of the Missouri river a larger acreage is being taken than for any past year, ranch owners protecting themselves by leasing tracts near their home ranges, instead of allowing them to remain as general property as in past years.

MEN HAVE A GRIEVANCE.

Five Hundred Miners in Rockford (Mont.) District Go on Strike.

Red Lodge, Mont., April 12. — The whole force of the Rockford mine in this district went on strike yesterday. Over 500 men are involved. The miners principal grievance is an order forbidding them from riding out on hoisting cars in the afternoon at the end of the work. Formerly the practice had been for the men to ride out, until the state mine inspectors ordered the practice stopped. The miners are for the most part Finns.

IOWA RAILROAD BILL.

A Measure Which, in Effect, Is Not Different From the Vetoed Bill.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 12. — The Hubbard bill relates only to the right of railroad companies to do business in states beyond those adjoining Iowa. As they already have the right to do business in Iowa and adjoining states, it permits Iowa companies to purchase lines not competing or parallel in any state or territory. The bill is especially intended to help the Burlington, the Rock Island and the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern, the only Iowa lines which run into other states.

OLD WALLS DYNAMITED.

Secret Effort Made at Excelsior to Remove an Eyesore.

Excelsior, Minn., April 12.—Some one made an attempt to blow up with dynamite the ruins of an old bank building which was burned several years ago at Walter and Third streets. One corner of the ruin was blown away and the whole was left in such a dangerous state that the property owners or authorities will have to arrange for removal. The ruins have been an eyesore for a long time and the resort to dynamite is not condemned in very loud tones.

LUTHERANS AT CEDAR FALLS.

National Board of Trustees of Danish Church Meet in Iowa.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, April 12.—The national board of trustees of the Danish Lutheran church of the United States held a business session in this city yesterday. The board is composed of M. Holst of Cedar Falls, Rev. P. Kjolkede, Newell, Iowa; Rev. P. Rodholt, Marietta, Wis.; M. Rasmussen, Chicago; J. S. Faaborg, Clinton, Iowa. Matters pertaining to the work of the national society were taken up and nothing was given out to the public concerning the meetings.

BURNED TO A CRISP.

Racine Woman Loses Her Life by Flames.

Racine, Wis., April 12.—Mrs. George Sproat, widow of one of the prominent pioneer residents of the city, was fatally burned yesterday morning, her clothing catching fire from a bonfire, while assisting in cleaning up the lawn. Before assistance could reach her the flesh of almost the entire body was so badly burned that portions of it fell off. She was removed to a hospital, where physicians say there is no hope for her recovery.

HEAVY SNOWSTORM.

Electrical Rainstorm Followed by Snowfall.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 12. — An electrical storm occurred here on Wednesday night, accompanied by considerable rain, and a genuine blizzard set in yesterday morning. The snowfall is heavy, and a strong northwest wind rapidly lowered the temperature.

Weather Bad, Farm Hands Few.

Huron, S. D., April 12. — Rain and snow here, preceded by unusually cold weather, interfered with seeding operations throughout the county. The ground will be too wet to resume this work for several days. The scarcity of farm laborers is likely to decrease the small grain acreage unless more favorable weather comes soon.

Sioux Falls Strike Ends.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 12.—Differences resulting in a strike of freight handlers in the local warehouse of the Milwaukee company were amicably adjusted by Supt. Beardsley of Sioux City. The men demanded a change in the hours of labor. Their demands were acceded to, and in addition, the number of men was increased.

Death Charged to Woman.

Helena, Mont., April 12.—A Kalispell special says the coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Will Hawkes returned a verdict charging Nettie Russell with causing the death by striking him over the head with a cuspidor.

Asa D. Crocker Dead.

Sheboygan, Wis., April 12. — Asa D. Crocker, vice president of the Crocker Chair company, died of pneumonia. Mr. Crocker was well known in manufacturing circles throughout the state.

South Dakota Arbor Day.

Pierre, S. D., April 12.—Gov. Herreid has issued his Arbor day proclamation, fixing Friday, April 25, as the day.

Boy's Clothing Caught Fire.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, April 12. — Stan Johnson, aged 12, died here yesterday morning from burns received on Wednesday. His clothing caught from a bonfire and were burned from his body.

Pearl Worth Finding.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., April 12.—An 18-grain double button pearl was purchased by J. Peacock yesterday for $350 from Mike Sturnot. The man who found it had been clamming just one day.

FIGHT BEEF TRUST

FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE IS QUIETLY INVESTIGATING.

THE LAW MUST BE EXECUTED

ATTORNEY GENERAL SATISFIED PACKERS VIOLATE ANTI-TRUST LAW.

HOWL ABOUT INCREASED PRICES

CHICAGO PACKERS WILL BE PROCEEDED AGAINST IN FEDERAL COURTS.

Washington, April 15. — The department of justice has been quietly conducting an investigation into the methods of the Chicago packers to determine whether they are in conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law, and to-day Attorney General Knox will send a communication to Congressman Ray, chairman of the judiciary committee of the house, giving the information called for in the Thayer resolution introduced last week and now before that committee.

The attorney general will inform congress that the department of justice has already instituted an investigation into the methods of the so-called beef trust. It cannot be stated what information that letter will contain regarding the result of the investigation, but the letter has been written and to-day will reach Chairman Ray. The revelations concerning the methods of the railroads in granting rebates to the Chicago packers, of the interstate commerce commission in Chicago, suggested the further investigation as to the methods of the packers, and it is said that this investigation satisfied the attorney general that the packers had violated the anti-trust law. He has consulted with the president, and the administration takes the same attitude toward the beef trust that it does toward the railroad trust.

Brought Out by the Hearings

The law must be executed, and if the packers have an agreement by which they interfere with commerce to control prices, not only of dressed meat, but also of cattle, they will be proceeded against in the federal courts. The president insists that the law must be executed without favor.

There has been loud complaint from Eastern cities against the beef trust. New York and Philadelphia people have been particularly agitated over the increased price of Chicago beef.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER KILLED.

Stepson Is Arrested Charged With the Crime.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 15. — Mrs. Martha J. Calhoun, aged seventy-five, and her daughter, Mrs. Vaughn, aged forty-six; were shot and killed yesterday two miles east of Mantua, a village forty miles southeast of this city. Will Vaughn, a stepson of the younger woman, is locked up in Ravenna jail, charged with the crimes because of circumstances which are alleged to incriminate him. What are believed to be bloodstains were found on his trousers. These, Vaughn says, came from a cut finger. Vaughn's father died a few days ago, and it is believed he left the bulk of his estate to the two women.

CAR BLOWN UP.

Dynamite Placed Between Joints of Rails Explodes.

Brazil, Ind., April 15. — One of the early interurban cars on the Terre Haute Electric line yesterday afternoon was blown up by a stick of dynamite placed between the joints of the rails near Kennedy's Crossing. When the car struck the dynamite it was exploded, tearing up several of the rails. A piece of the rail was hurled through the car. Two passengers were in the car and both escaped injury.

HOUNDED TO DEATH.

Wolves and Coyotes Are Cleverly Killed by Dogs.

Sturgis, S. D., April 15.—George Ingram was in last week from Bixby, north of this city in the cattle country. Out there he says they have a pack of about twenty hounds that make life a burden to the wolves and coyotes. Two of them can catch any wolf and kill him. Mr. Ingrath also reports stock losses during the recent storm greatly exaggerated.

DECIDE ONE ARTICLE OF FAITH.

Members of Presbyterian Revision Committee Agree on Framing of An Important Section.

Washington, April 15.—The Presbyterian revision committee Saturday finished one article on the life and work of Christ, after a long discussion, which developed at times considerable difference of opinion. The article finally was framed so it met the unanimous assent of the committee.

BAVARIA BARS NUNS.

Prince Forbidden to Offer an Asylum to Sisters of St. Clare.

Munich, April 15. — The government has forbidden the prince of Thurn and Taxis to offer an asylum to the Sisters of St. Clair, just driven from France. The prince had placed his castle of Zeitzkofen at the disposal of the nuns, but they will not be permitted to enter Bavaria.

Boy Charged With Murder.

Lincoln, Neb., April 15. — Lawrence Stulbe, aged fourteen, is dead, and Louis Fairchild, of the same age, was taken yesterday to the city hall with a charge of murder placed against him. The boys quarreled at a ball game.

Hit by a Street Car.

Indianapolis, April 15. — A rapidly moving street car jumped the track in a densely crowded business street yesterday afternoon and struck a phaeton containing three people. All were seriously injured.

POISONER CONFESSES.

Butte Woman Admits Giving Rich Widow Poison.

Butte, Mont., April 11.—Mrs. Minnie Grady, charged with drugging Mrs. Emma Proulx, a rich widow, robbing her of her diamonds and leaving her to die by the roadside in the country, has made a full statement and confession to Chief of Police Reynolds, admitting all that is charged. She said it was her intention to give Mrs. Proulx enough poison to kill her, and that after taking her diamonds while she was unconscious and in convulsions she left Mrs. Proulx in the buggy alone and walked back to the city. When charged with havving caused the death of her husband and fifteen-year-old son about a year ago she exhibited no emotion, but denied that she was guilty. She said two physicians had performed autopsies on her husband and determined that his sudden death was from natural causes, but the two doctors deny it. The police and county attorney have decided to have the bodies exhumed and examined. It develops that Mrs. Grady had the lives of both insured, and collected $5,000 insurance. She also has insured the lives of her other three children in her own favor. The police are expecting some striking discoveries and believe Mrs. Grady will make further confessions.

STARTS FIRE WITH GASOLINE.

Girl Receives Injuries Which Cause Her Death.

St. Paul, April 11. — Mary Franzwa, seventeen years old, employed as a servant at the home of E. W. Wilson, 1172 Rose street, was fatally burned yesterday afternoon by her clothing catching fire. She was taken to the city hospital, where she died at 11 o'clock last night. Nine-tenths of the girl's body was burned. Her face and hands were horribly burned. Her parents live at 1250 East Minnehaha street. Miss Franzwa started to make a fire in the Wilson home yesterday afternoon, and to hasten the fire got a can of gasoline, thinking it kerosene. As soon as a match was applied to the saturated fuel an explosion took place, which burst the covers from the stove and a sheet of flame enveloped the girl's body, igniting her clothing.

BOY KILLS ANOTHER.

Wisconsin Lad Puts Bullet Into His Playmate's Head.

Plymouth, Wis., April 11.—A seven-year-old son of George Taylor was shot in the head and almost instantly killed by Jakie Siles, a neighbor's boy, eight years of age, at the Taylor home, ten miles from here. The two boys were playing with a 22-caliber rifle, when the Siles boy pointed the weapon at the Taylor boy, telling him he was going to shoot. The rifle was accidentally discharged, the ball entering the boy's head near the eye and penetrating the brain.

ELEVATOR BURNED.

Immense Quantity of Wheat Is Destroyed at Glencoe.

Glencoe, Minn., April 11. — The elevator of the Treadway Bros., of this place, caught fire in the cupola yesterday at 1:15 p. m. and was a total loss. There was 16,000 bushels of wheat and several hundred bushels of corn in the building. This was the old A. H. Reed & Co. elevator, built in 1873, and thoroughly repaired by the Treadways last fall at an expense of $6,000 or more, and was the main shipping house of the firm.

ROB TWO POSTOFFICES.

Charge Contained in Indictments Returned at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 11. — The grand jury in the United States court here yesterday returned indictments against John O'Brien and Hans Johnson, charging them with robbing Underwood and Millerville postoffices. Oscar Palm has also been indicted on the charge of raising a postoffice money order.

THREE DEAD.

Casualties in a Sawmill Boiler Explosion at Peoria, Iowa.

Grinnell, Iowa, April 11. — Frank Meyers, Dudley Boyd and James Shaffer were instantly killed yesterday by a boiler explosion at Peoria, a small town south of this place. The men were employed in a sawmill. James Caror, the proprietor, was seriously injured.

BURGLAR ESCAPED.

Electric Alarm Disturbs Him While Robbing Montevideo Store.

Montevideo, Minn., April 11.—A burglar entered H. I. Bergh's store early yesterday morning. An electric alarm aroused Bergh, who appeared soon with a shotgun. The burglar escaped, leaving all the goods he was stuffing into a sack, Bergh firing after him without effect.

BURNED WITH RED HOT IRON.

Ontario Indian Who Mutilated His Wife Is Captured.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 11.—Joseph Buzenaw, the Gordon River, Ont., Indian who brutally mutilated his wife by burning her with a red-hot iron and terribly injuring her New Year's day, was captured last night on Sugar island, where he has been in hiding.

Brave Aged Lady Buried.

Sherton, S. D., April 11.—The funeral of Mrs. Maria Winters, aged mother of Robert Winters, a farmer living two miles west of town, occurred here yesterday. Last Saturday her grandchildren, while playing with matches around the barn accidentally set it on fire, and the old lady rushed into the barn to get the horses out. She was burned to death.

The Soo Pays Damages.

Turtle Lake, Wis., April 11.—The Soo Railroad company has settled with James Gaffney, Sr., and his son, for injuries sustained by the wreck here last week, paying them $50 each. Eddie Wickenburg, who was also injured, has not recovered, and his father will put in a claim for a larger amount.

Fire at Ellsworth, Wis.

Ellsworth, Wis., April 11.—The residence of H. O. Junkman burned last evening. Loss, $2,000; insurance, $1,700.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER I.

"Who Speaks?"

David Steel dropped his eyes from the mirror and shuddered, as a man who sees his own soul bared for the first time. And yet the mirror was in itself a thing of artistic beauty—engraved Florentine glass in a frame of deep old Flemish oak. The novelist had purchased it in Bruges, and now it stood as a joy and a thing of beauty against the full red wall over the fire place. And Steel had glanced at himself therein and seen murder in his eyes.

He dropped into a chair with a groan for his own helplessness. Men have done that kind of thing before when the cartridges are all gone and the bayonets are twisted and broken and the brown waves of the foe come snarling over the breastworks. And then they die doggedly, with the stones in their hands, and cursing the tardy supports that brought this black shame upon them.

But Steel's ruin was of another kind. The man was a fighter to his finger-tips. He had dogged determination and splendid physical courage; he had gradually thrust his way into the front rank of living novelists, though the taste of poverty was still bitter in his mouth. And how good success was, now that it had come!

People envied him. Well, that was all in the sweets of victory. They praised his blue china, they lingered before his Oriental dishes and the choice pictures on his panelled walls. The whole thing was still a constant pleasure to Steel's artistic mind. The dark walls, the old oak and silver, the red shades and the high artistic fittings soothed him and pleased him, and played upon his tender imagination. And behind there was a study, filled with books and engravings, and beyond that again, a conservatory, filled with the choicest blossoms. Steel could work with the passion flowers above his head and the tender grace of the typical ferns about him, and he could reach his left hand for his telephone and call Fleet street to his ear.

It was all unique, delightful, the dream of an artistic soul realized. Three years before David Steel had worked in an attic at a bare deal table, and his mother had £3 per week to pay for everything. Usually there was a balm in this recollection.

But not to-night. Heaven help him, not to-night! Little grinning demons were dancing on the oak cornices, there were mocking lights gleaming from Cellini tankards that Steel had given far too much money for. It had not seemed to matter just at the time. If all this artistic beauty had emptied Steel's purse, there was a golden stream coming. What mattered it that the local tradesmen were getting a little restless? The great expense of the novelist's life was past. In two years he would be rich. And the pathos of the thing was not lessened by the fact that it was true. In two years' time Steel would be well off. He was terribly short of ready money, but he had just finished a serial story for which he was to be paid £600 within two months of the delivery of the copy; two novels of his were respectively in their fourth and fifth editions. But these novels of his he had, more or less, given away, and he ground his teeth as he thought of it. Still, everything spelt prosperity. If he lived, David Steel was bound to become a rich man.

And yet he was ruined. Within twenty-four hours everything would pass out of his hands. To all practical purposes it had done so already. And all for the want of £1,000! Steel had earned twice that amount during the past twelve months, and the fruits of his labour were as balm to his soul about him. Within the next twelve months he could pay the debt three times over. He would cheerfully taken the bill and doubled the amount for six months delay.

And all this because he had become surety for an absconding brother. Steel had put his pride in his pocket and interviewed his creditor, a little, polite, mild-eyed financier, who meant to have his money to the uttermost farthing. At first he had been suave and sympathetic until he had discovered that Steel had debts elsewhere, and then—

Well, he had signed judgment, and to-morrow he could levy execution. Within a few hours the bottom would fall out of the universe so far as Steel was concerned. Within a few hours every butcher and baker and candlestick-maker would come abusively for his bill. Steel, who could have faced a regiment, recoiled fearfully from that. Within a week his oak and silver would have to be sold and the passion flower would wither on the walls.

Steel had not told anybody yet; the strong man had grappled with his trouble alone. Had he been a man of business, he might have found some way out of the difficulty. Even his mother didn't know. She was asleep up stairs, perhaps dreaming of her son's greatness. What would the dear old mater say when she knew? Well, she had been a good mother to him, and it had been a labor of love to furnish the house for her as for himself. Perhaps there would be a few tears in those gentle eyes, but no more. Thank God, no reproaches there!

David lighted a cigarette and paced restlessly around the dining room. Never had he appreciated its quiet beauty more than he did now. There were flowers, blood-red flowers, on the table under the graceful electric stand that Steel had designed himself. He snapped off the light, as if the sight pained him, and strode into his study. For a time he stood moodily gazing into its flowers and ferns. How every leaf there was pregnant with association. There was the Moorish clock, droning the midnight hour. When Steel had bought that clock—

"Ting, ting, ting! Pring, pring, pring, pring! Ting, ting, ting, ting!"

But Steel heard nothing. Everything seemed as silent as the grave. It was only by a kind of inner consciousness that he knew the hour to be midnight. Midnight meant the coming of the last day. After sunrise, some greasy lounger, pregnant of cheap tobacco, would come in and assume that he represented the sheriff, bills would be hung, like banners on the outward walls, and then—

Bells, somewhere. Like the bells in the valley where the vicarage used to stand. Steel vaguely wondered who now lived in the house where he was born. He was staring, in the most absent way, at his telephone, utterly unconscious of the shrill impatience of the little voice. He saw the quick pulsation of the striker and he came back to earth again.

Jefferies, of the Weekly Messenger, of course. Jefferies was fond of a late chat on the telephone.

Steel wondered, grimly, if Jefferies would lend him £1,000. He flung himself down in a deep lounge chair and placed the receiver to his ear. By the deep, hoarse clang of the wires, a long-distance message, assuredly.

"From London, evidently. Halloa, London! Are you there?"

London responded that it was. A soft, clear voice spoke at length.

"Is that you, Mr. Steel? Are you quite alone? Under the circumstances, you are not busy to-night?"

Steel started. He had never heard the voice before. It was clear, and soft and commanding, and yet there was just a suspicion of mocking irony in it.

"I am not very busy to-night," Steel replied. "Who is speaking to me?"

"That for the present we may not go into," said the mocking voice. "As certain old-fashioned contemporaries of yours would say, 'We meet as strangers!' Stranger yet, you are quite alone!"

"I am quite alone. Indeed, I am the only one in the house."

"Good! I have told the exchange people not to ring off until I have finished with you. One advantage of telephoning at this hour is that one is tolerably free from interruption. So your mother is asleep? Have you told her what is likely to happen to you before many hours have elapsed?"

Steel made no reply for a moment. He was restless and ill at ease to-night, and it seemed just possible that his imagination was playing him strange tricks. But, no. The Moorish clock, in its frame of celebrities droned the quarter after 12; the scent of the Dijon roses floated in from the conservatory.

"I have told nobody as yet," Steel said, hoarsely. "Who in the name of Heaven are you?"

"That in good time. But I did not think you were a coward."

"No man ever told me so—face to face."

"Good, again. I recognize the fighting ring in your voice. If you lack certain phases of moral courage, you are a man of pluck and resource. Now, somebody who is very dear to me is at present in Brighton, not very far from your own house. She is in dire need of assistance. We can be of mutual advantage to one another."

"What do you mean by that?" Steel whispered.

"Let me put the matter on a business footing. I want you to help my friend, and in return I will help you. Bear in mind that I am asking you to do nothing wrong. If you will promise me to go to a certain address in Brighton to-night, I promise that before you sleep the sum of £1,000 in Bank of England notes shall be in your possession."

No reply came from Steel. He could not have spoken at that moment for the fee-simple of Golconda. He could only hang, gasping to the telephone. Many a strange, weird plot came and went in that versatile brain, but never one more wild than this. Apparently, no reply was expected, for the speaker resumed:

"I am asking you to do no wrong. You may naturally desire to know why my friend does not come to you. That must remain my secret—our secret. We are trusting you because we know you to be a gentleman, but we have enemies who are ever on the watch. All you have to do is to go to a certain place and give a certain woman information, you are thinking this is a strange mystery. Never was anything stranger dreamt of in your philosophy. Are you agreeable?"

The mocking tone died out of the small, clear voice, until it was almost pleading.

"You have taken me at a disadvantage," said Steel. "And you know—"

"Everything. I am trying to save you from ruin. Fortune has played you into my hands. I am perfectly aware that if you were not on the verge of social extinction, you would refuse my request. It is in your hands to decide. You know that Beckstein, your creditor, is absolutely merciless. He will get his money back, and more besides. This is his idea of business. To-morrow you will be an outcast—for the time, at any rate. Your local creditors will be insolent to you; people will pity you or blame you, as their disposition lies. On the other hand, you have but to say the word, and you are saved. You can go and see the Brighton representative of Beckstein's lawyers, and pay them in paper of the Bank of England."

"If I was assured of your bona-fides," Steel murmured.

A queer little laugh, a laugh of triumph, came over the wires.

"I have anticipated that question. Have you Greenwich time about you?"

Steel responded that he had. It was five and twenty minutes past 12. He had quite ceased to wonder at any questions put to him now. It was all so like one of his brilliant little extravaganzas.

"You can hang up your receiver for five minutes," the voice added. "Precisely at half-past 12 you go and look on your front doorstep. Then come back and tell me what you found. You need not fear that I shall go away."

Steel hung up the receiver, feeling that he needed a little rest. His cigarette was actually scorching his thumb and forefinger, but he was heedless of the fact. He flicked up the dining room lights again and rapidly made himself a sparkling soda, to which he added a little whisky. He looked almost lovingly at the gleaming Cellini tankard, at the pools of light on the fair damask. Was it possible that he was not going to lose all this, after all?

The Moorish clock in the study droned the half-hour.

David gulped down his whisky and crept shakily to the front door, with a feeling on him that he was doing something stealthily. The bolts and chains rattled under his trembling fingers. Outside the whole world seemed to be sleeping. Under the wide canopy of stars some black object picked out with shining points lay on the white marble breadth of the top step. A gun-metal cigar case set in tiny diamonds.

The novelist fastened the front door and staggered to the study. A pretty, artistic thing such as David had fully intended to purchase for himself. He had seen one exactly like it in a jeweler's window in North street. He had pointed it out to his mother. Why, it was the very one! No doubt about it whatever. David had had the case in his hands, and had reluctantly declined the purchase.

He pressed the spring, and the case lay open before him. Inside were papers; soft, crackling papers; the case was crammed with them. They were white and clean, and twenty-five of them in all. Twenty-five Bank of England notes for £10 each—£250!

"Are you there?" he whispered, as if fearful of listeners. "I have found your parcel."

"Containing the notes. So far, so good. Yes, you are right; it is the same cigar case you admired so much in Lockhart's the other day. Well, we have given you an instance of our bona-fides. But £250 is of no use to you at present. Beckstein's people would not accept it on account—they can make more money by 'selling you up,' as the poetic phrase goes. It is in your hands to procure the other £750 before you sleep. You can take it as a gift, or, if you are too proud to do that, you may regard it as a loan. In which case you can bestow the money on such charities as commend themselves to you. Now, are you going to place yourself entirely in my hands?"

Steel hesitated no longer. Under the circumstances, few men would, as he had a definite assurance that there was nothing dishonorable to be done. A little courage, a little danger, perhaps, and he could hold up his head before the world; he could return to his desk to-morrow with the passion-flowers over his head and the scent groves sweet to his nostrils. And the mater could dream happily, for there would be no sadness or sorrow in the morning.

"I will do exactly what you tell me," he said.

"Spoken like a man," the voice cried. "Nobody will know you have left the house—you can be home in an hour. You will not be missed. Come, time is getting short, and I have my risks as well as others. Go at once to Old Steine. Stand on the path close to the shadow of King George IV., and wait there. Somebody will say 'Come,' and you will follow. Good-night!"

Steel would have said more, but the tinkle of his own bell told him that the stranger had rung off. He laid his cigar case on the writing table, slipped his cigarette case into his pocket, satisfied himself that he had his latch-key, and put on a dark overcoat. Overhead the dear old mater was sleeping peacefully. He closed the front door carefully behind him and strode resolutely into the darkness.

CHAPTER II.

The Crimson Blind.

David walked swiftly along, his mind in a perfect whirl. Now that once he had started, he was eager to see the adventure through. It was strange, but stranger things had happened. More than one correspondent with queer personal experiences had taught him that. Nor was Steel in the least afraid. He was horribly frightened at disgrace or humiliation, but physical courage he had in high degree. And was he not going to save his home and good name?

David had not the least doubt on the latter score. Of course he would do nothing wrong, nor would he keep the money. This he preferred to regard as a loan—a loan to be paid off before long. At any rate, money or no money, he would have been sorry to have abandoned the adventure now.

His spirits rose as he walked along; a great weight had fallen from his shoulders. He smiled as he thought of his mother, peacefully sleeping at home. What would his mother think if she knew? But, then, nobody was to know. That had been expressly settled in the bond.

Save for an occasional policeman, the streets were deserted. It was a little cold and raw for the time of year, and a fog, like a pink blanket, was creeping in from the sea. Down in the Steine the big arc lights gleamed here and there like nebulous blue globes; it was hardly possible to see across the road. In the half-shadow behind Steel the statue of the First Gentleman in Europe glowed gigantic, ghost-like in the mist.

It was marvellously still there, so still that David could hear the tinkle of the pebbles on the beach. He stood back by the gate of the gardens watching the play of the leaf silhouettes on the pavement, quaint patterns of fantastic designs thrown up in high relief by the arc-light above. From the dark, foggy throat of St. James's street came the tinkle of a cycle bell. On so still a night the noise seemed bizarre and out of place. Then the cycle loomed in sight: the rider, muffled and humped over the front wheel, might have been a man or a woman. As the cyclist flashed by, something white and gleaming dropped into the road, and the single word, "Come!" seemed to cut like a knife through the fog. That was all. The rider had looked neither to the right nor to the left, but the words were distinctly uttered. At the same instant an arm dropped and a long finger pointed to a gleaming white square in the road. It was like an instantaneous photograph—a flash, and the figure had vanished in the fog.

"This grows interesting," Steel muttered. "Evidently my shadowy friend has dropped a book of rules in the road for me. The plot thickens."

It was only a plain white card that lay in the road. A few lines were typed on the back of it. The words might have been curt, but they were to the point:

"Go along the sea front and turn into Brunswick Square. Walk along the right side of the square until you reach 218. You will read the number over the fanlight. Open the door and it will yield to you; there is no occasion to knock. The first door inside the hall leads into the dining room. Walk into there and wait. Drop this card down the gutter just opposite you."

David read the directions once or twice carefully. He made a mental note of 218. After that he dropped the card down the drain trap nearest at hand. A little way ahead of him he heard the cycle bell trilling, as if in approval of his action. But David had made up his mind to observe every rule of the game. Besides, he might be rigidly watched.

The spirit of adventure was growing upon Steel now. He was no longer holding the solid result before his eyes. He was ready to see the thing through for its own sake. And, as he hurried up North street along Western road, and, finally, down Preston street, he could hear the purring tinkle of the cycle bell before him. But not once did he catch sight of the shadowy rider.

All the same, his heart was beating a little faster as he turned into Brunswick Square. All the houses were in pitchy darkness, as they naturally would be at 1 o'clock in the morning, so it was only with great difficulty that Steel could make out a number here and there. As he walked, slowly and hesitatingly, along, the cycle bell rung impatiently ahead of him.

"A hint to me," David muttered. Stupid that I should have forgotten the directions to read the number over the fanlight. Also, it is logical to suppose that I am going to find lights at No. 218. All right, my friend; no need to swear at me with that bell of yours."

"This is the church where you hold your service, I suppose?"

"We used to call it a church, but we have outgrown all that. It is a temple of progressive thought now."—Chicago Tribune.

Goddard Ezekiel Dodge Diamond of San Francisco, Cal., on his 100th birthday, thus describes him: "Expecting so old a gentleman to be very feeble, on the day appointed for the sitting I made preparations accordingly. I covered my skylight with cloth, thinking that eyes at that age would not be able to stand the light. I remember, also, placing an easy chair ready for the sitting. Presently my friend came in with another gentleman, and announced the arrival of Mr. Diamond. I asked them to have the old gentleman's carriage driven around in the court, when, to my great astonishment, my friend introduced the gentleman as Captain Diamond. I was dumfounded! Here was a man, standing straight as a young prince, moving with an elastic, sprightly step, with a bright, youthful twinkle shining in his eye!" Captain Diamond seemed to have discovered the fountain of youth, yet he declares that he has used no means for the preservation of his vitality other than those open to all who desire to be healthy.—Success.

Wine in France.

The French minister of finance has just issued an official statement showing that the quantity of wine consumed in France in 1891 was 995,642,380 gallons, as against 789,681,902 gallons in 1900, or the enormous increase of 160,000,000 gallons—over 21 per cent. This increase is, no doubt, partly due to the abundant vintage of 100, with the consequent fall in prices, but the chief factor has been in the abolition or reduction of duties that took place under the law of December 29, 1900, by which taxes on wine and beer are equalized. The figures above quoted indicate an annual consumption of wine for the whole population of France of 147 bottles per head, as compared with 121 bottles per head on the previous year—an increase of twenty-six bottles per head. In the United Kingdom the entire annual consumption of wine is less than three bottles per head.—London Times.

The Belief in a Devil.

A maid servant belonging to one of the women's colleges had been out with her lover without leave from her mistress, and was returning late along the road, at the top of which lived the lamented Prof. Nettleship. Now, the latter had a large yellow dog that took the usual canine delight in seeing cats scatter and flee, and, the better to pounce on them when they were stealthily crossing the street, he would perch himself on the top of the professor's garden wall, surrounded and half-hidden in foliage. As the truant maid servant passed beneath him, he caught sight of a cat in the middle of the road, and, making a spring at it, collided with her and knocked her down. She picked herself up and ran, screaming, home, almost mad with terror, because, as she said, the devil had jumped on her back and thrown her down.—International Monthly.

Learned the American Slang.

Fritz Kreisler, the violinist now touring here, before coming to this country, wanted to learn English. He knew some American girls in Berlin, and they said they would teach him. They taught him all the slang they knew.

He was going to play at a musicale given by one of the most prominent members of society. On entering, the hostess said:

"How do you do, Mr. Kreisler. I hope you are well."

CONGRESSMAN WILBER SAYS

[To The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., of Columbus, O.]

"Pe-ru-na is All You Claim For It."

Congressman D. F. Wilber, of Oneonta, N. Y., writes:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen---"Persuaded by a friend I have tried your remedy and I have almost fully recovered after the use of a few bottles. I am fully convinced that Peruna is all you claim for it, and I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are afflicted with catarrhal trouble."---DAVID F. WILBER.

Peruna a Preventive and Cure for Colds.

Mr. C. F. Given, Sussex, N. B., Vice President of "The Pastime Boating Club, writes:

"Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave aftereffects on my constitution the most of the winter.

"Last winter I was advised to try Peruna, and within five days the cold was broken up and in five days more I was a well man. I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it.---C. F. Given.

Gave New Life and Strength.

Mr. Edward Laws, Crown Point, Ind., writes the following:

"I must tell you what a grand help Peruna has been to me. For over two years I suffered with catarrh of the lungs and throat, and although I doctored for it, nothing brought me relief until I tried Peruna. One bottle helped me greatly, and three more effected a complete cure, while at the same time it gave such new life and strength to my whole body that I feel like a new man and ten years younger.

"I hope that my testimonial may induce others who are similarly afflicted to try Peruna."—Edward Laws.

A Prominent Singer Saved From Loss of Voice.

Mr. Julius Weisslitz, 176 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., is corresponding secretary of The Sangerlust, of New York; is the leading second bass of the Sangerlust, the largest German singing society of New York, and also the oldest.

In 1899 The Sangerlust celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a large celebration in New York City. The following is his testimony:

"About two years ago I caught a severe cold while traveling and which settled into catarrh of the bronchial tubes, and so affected my voice that I was obliged to cancel my engagements. In distress, I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but illy describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down."—Julius Weisslitz.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Not Filling.

"Yes, I took luncheon at the 'Liberty' to-day," said Mrs. Stravem. "You'd enjoy a luncheon there, I'm sure, Mr. Sharpe, the atmosphere is so delightful, so bohemian."

"Yes," returned Mr. Sharpe, the snappy boarder. "But, having atmosphere for breakfast and dinner, I need something more substantial for lunch."—Philadelphia Press.

Indian With Eyeglasses.

"I noticed the other day what was to me in the nature of a novelty," remarked a prominent local court stenographer, who has spent considerable time in a business way among the descendants of the American aborigines. "What struck me as strange was meeting here in Washington with an Indian who wore eyeglasses. In the course of all my experience with the red men I never before observed Poor Lo making use of lenses to aid his sight. Perhaps the name of this particular Indian has something to do with his adopting what is unquestionably a very necessary custom of civilization. He bears the cognomen 'Foggy Cloud,' and is a member of the Chippewa tribe. All the other Indians of my acquaintance are blessed with keen sight of the most pronounced type, and I do not remember hearing that any of them ever had eye-trouble of any character."—Washington Star.

A Catch in His Back.

Palmer, Oregon, April 14th.—W. J. Uppendahl of this place has had a great of trouble recently with his back. Every time he went to do the least bit of lifting he used to have what he called "a catch" in his back. He says:

"It did not have to be very hard work to give me such a severe strain that I could not move.

"I suffered quite a long time before I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used four boxes, and now I can work as hard as any one and my back is as stout and strong as it ever was.

"My wife used some of the pills, too, and she thinks there is nothing that beats them.

"I can positively recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any one who has a pain in his back, for I know they will cure it."

A Nasty Practice.

A nasty practice is what the Chicago Inter Ocean calls the pasting of repeated layers of wall paper, one upon another, thus covering up the filth and germs of disease that may be propagated in the very absorbent and decaying mass of flour paste, paper, animal glue, colors, etc.

They give opinions of eminent health officers and sanatarians, urging that such practice should be stopped by legal enactment, and also take occasion to say that these sanitarians recommend Alabastine as a durable, pure and sanitary coating for walls.

The Inter Ocean says: "This is a very important question, and, as it costs nothing to avoid this danger, why take any chances?"

How much of the alarming spread of smallpox and other diseases may be due to unsanitary wall coverings?

Lydia E. Pinkham

How Truly the Great Fame of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Justifies Her Original Signature.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life.

It has cured more cases of Backache and Leucorrhœa than any other remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Irregular, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Flooding, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yields to it.

Womb troubles, causing pain, weight, and backache, instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the laws that govern the female system, and is as harmless as water.

It quickly removes that Bearing-down Feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, Dizziness, Faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues," and backache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the Uterus, which this medicine always cures.

Kidney Complaints and Backache of either sex the Vegetable Compound always cures.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want —a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Lost His Rheumatism

By the use of a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil.

SERGEANT JEREMIAH MAHER, of Ardeath, Royal Irish Constabulary, says: "My friend, Mr. Thomas Hand, has been a great sufferer from rheumatism in the back and joints for the last four years, during which time he has employed many different methods of treatment, but obtained no relief whatever, and for the last two years has been unable to walk without a stick, and sometimes two sticks, and was in great pain constantly. I induced him to procure a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, which he applied with the most astonishing and marvellous effects. Before he had finished using the contents of the first bottle he could walk readily without the aid of a stick, and after a few applications from the second bottle he was free from pain, and has been ever since; and although fifty years of age and a farmer, he can walk and work without experiencing any pain or difficulty whatever."

A WISCONSIN PAPER ON WESTERN CANADA.

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, One of the Favored Districts.

The following clipped from the correspondence columns of the Eau Claire (Wisconsin) Leader is but one of many letters of a similar character that might be published concerning Western Canada, the land of No. 1 hard wheat and the best cattle on the continent. It is a simple matter to reach the lands spoken of, the Canadian Government having agencies established at St. Paul and Duluth, Minnesota; Grafton, North Dakota; Watertown, South Dakota; Omaha, Nebraska; Kansas City, Missouri; Des Moines, Iowa; Wausau and Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Chicago, Illinois; Indianapolis, Indiana; Sault Ste. Marie and Detroit, Michigan; Toledo and Columbus, Ohio, and by writing to or calling upon any of these agents at these points full information can be secured. This is a great opportunity to secure a home free of cost or if you desire to purchase lands they can be bought now at prices much lower than will exist in a few months. But read what the correspondent referred to has to say of one particular district.

"To the Editor of the Leader—The rush of the land seekers will be to the prairie provinces of the Dominion of Canada. The allurements of a soil that yields 40 bushels of wheat to the acre are too great to be resisted and an immense migration from this country may be confidently predicted. People here laughed at first at the idea of any one leaving the United States for Canada, but the Dominion authorities knew they had a good thing and they stuck to it. Their officials evidently knew the value of printers' ink. They spared no expense in letting the people of this country know that these lands were there and that they were exactly as represented. They did more. They sent out specimens of the crops raised and samples of the grain. We have had them here at four consecutive street fairs, presided over by one of their ablest immigration officers. This gentleman spared no pains. He explained the value of the lands and the richness of the soil from morning to night to all comers.

"All this told in the long run. Several went up from here to spy out the land and like Caleb, the son of Jepunneh, and Joshua, the son of Nun, brought back a good report, and now some ten families will leave here in a few weeks for Saskatoon to settle upon farms there, and others are preparing to follow. Of course many will appear shocked at the idea of any one leaving the stars and stripes for the Union Jack, but patriotism is but a nomenclature after all, and our experience has been that in nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand a man is the most patriotic where he can make the most money and do the most harm to those whom he hates."

THE WORLD'S SUPPLY OF GOLD.

Some Interesting Statistics as to the Yellow Metal.

It has been reckoned that in the deposit of clay on which the city of Philadelphia now stands there is sufficient gold to gild the fronts of all the buildings in the place. There the amount is so small that it has no more prospective value than that contained in the sea water. Thus, while it may be said that wherever a person may be on the surface of the earth, or on the ocean, there is likely to be enough gold within a mile of his feet to make him a millionaire, the places where gold can be won at a profit are relatively few.

The most important increase that is to be looked for in vein mining arises, however, from the rapid improvement in the modes of applying power to such work. The gain in this regard in the last half century, through the invention of the power drills, more effective explosives, better hoisting systems and more efficient methods of treating the ores, is such that, on the average, in terms of labor, it probably does not, at present, cost one-third as much to mine and treat a given amount of ore from underground mines as it did in 1850.

Making no allowance for future improvements in mining, we may evidently expect a very great and rapid increase in the annual supply of this precious metal from the betterment already effected. As to the extent of this gain, there is no basis for a trustworthy reckoning; but those who have some idea of the amount of gold bearing veins which can, with skillful mining, be made to yield a profit at the present rate of interest, will probably be disposed to agree with me in the opinion that, at anything like the present price of labor, the yield from this group of deposits is likely within 20 years to exceed $500,000,000 per annum.

MONEY LENDING IN THE SLUMS.

Poverty-Stricken People Who Pawn Their False Teeth.

An old woman lately residing in Birmingham left over £1,000 to her nieces and nephews, the money having been earned in a peculiar fashion. Towards her neighbors she acted the part of money lender and pawnbroker, poor people visiting her from remote quarters of the town, the privacy of transacting business in a cottage appealing to their inclinations. Willing was she to lend small amounts on any articles likely to be redeemed. Things that a licensed pawnbroker would not accept found an abiding place in her garrets. The old lady was good any day for the loan of a shilling in the case of a strang visitor whose trustworthy character could be vouched for by a neighbor. In this fashion she gleaned riches and, strange to say, escaped the attentions of the police, says Tit Bits.

One of her regular patrons was a female of intemperate habits, who, with the return of Monday morning brought her false teeth to be cared for till the Saturday. On these articles a crown was willingly given, an extra six pence being required when the grinders were again needed. During the week the teeth were of little use to the owner, there being no meat to masticate until wages came in. Lots of articles equally popular, things that a legitimate pawnbroker would not consider, were handed over to the crafty old woman, who always threatened to acquaint the pledger's husband were the money and interest not readily forthcoming.

Enormous Printing Bills.

If the shade of Herr Guttenberg could come back to earth when the new government printing office is completed and roam through the establishment he would note a few changes in the art of which he is the father. The biggest printing shop in the world will be established under the roof of the mammoth building now nearing completion on North Capitol street.

The printing bills of Uncle Sam are enormous. He is a great promoter of publicity. He drives thousands of men, day and night to turn out millions of copies of every kind of printed document from a single leaflet to a fifty-volume set of 600-page books. He publishes a daily journal during a portion of the year. He loads entire cars with bulky documents and ships them thousands of miles to ultimately gladden the heart of the ragman. He runs a bindery and turns out marvels of leather and satin coverings. He has an illustrated department and makes maps and beautiful half-tone pictures.

And all of this work has been done heretofore in a ramshackle old shop, so shaky that every workman has kept one eye on his case and the other on the nearest exit. But there will be no excuse for criticism in the new building. It will be a marvel of convenience, safety and equipment.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

The oppositon to Gov. Van Sant in the Republican party has at last conceded that he will be re-nominated by acclamation.

If the citizens of Crookston want to nominate one of their number for congressman in the new Ninth district, why not present the name of J. W. Wheeler?

Of the fifty-one fire insurance companies that have a million or more dollars assets only eight did business at a profit the past year which was $521,543. The other 43 companies lost $8,280,123, leaving a net loss of $7,858, 510 on the years business. The total fire losses during the year equals $93,083,000.

The supreme court has decided that the primary election law is valid, and that hereafter party nominations cannot be made by means of conventions. The case was brought in connection with the attempt to nominate a prohibition candidate for mayor of St. Paul by old convention method. The court holds that nominations must be made at the regular primaries or by petition. This establishes the legal status of the law.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1902. NUMBER 16

GOOD WORK.

The City Saved From Destruction by Fire.

The members of the Thief River Falls Fire Department are receiving a great deal of praise—all of which they are entitled to—for the good work they did last Saturday evening. Fire was discovered in a barn on O. J. Rollis' lot at about 11:30, and in a short time Bradley & Beardsmore's bowling alley, the C. O. D. Clothing house, O. Ramstad's livery stable, and two small buildings owned by O. J. Rollis was a mass of flames. It seemed that to save the town was an impossibility, but all worked with a will, and the fire was confined to the buildings above mentioned. There was a strong wind from the northeast, and sparks were blown to quite a distance. A large number of men with buckets of water kept upon the tops of buildings on La Bree and Main avenue, and soon as a spark fell it was put out. The Odd Fellows' block being of brick, greatly favored the firemen, for had this been wooden building the whole town would surely have been burned.

All who burned out are big losers, as they carried but a small amount of insurance. Kenison, Conery and Robinson's loss is hard to estimate. All of their clothing was removed, but it has been greatly damaged and a large amount of it was stolen. They had $3,900 insurance, and it is estimated that their stock was worth $8,000. Bradley & Beardemore bowling alley was worth about $1000 and they had only $400 insurance. John Kivel had $500 insurance on the C. O. D. Clothing house building, and it was worth about $1000. Ole Ramstad had $400 insurance upon his barn; $300 upon his horses, all which were saved, and $20 upon his stock of hay and feed. Alex Dixson lost about $100 with no insurance. O. J. Rollis is about the heaviest loser. He had no insurance upon his barn or upon the two building occupied by Alex Dixson and Rollis & Johnson had but $1000 upon their stock and $750 upon the building. The building was damaged considerable, but it is fully covered by insurance. The stock was all removed into the street and was damaged considerably more than $1000. Mr. Rollis also removed his household furniture, and this was also greatly damaged, and he had no insurance upon it. Chris Jacobson removed his stock of goods and they were greatly damaged. He had $800 insurance. Buildings across the street were damaged to considerable extent by heat, most of the windows being broken in, but they are all covered by insurance.

NOTES.

A large amount of the goods removed were stolen, men could be seen going in every direction with bundles under their arms. Frank Halda saw one man going across the river with a bundle of clothes under his arm. He commanded him to stop and the fellow threw the clothes into the river and started on the run.

C. L. Dobner took the precaution to telephone to Crookston for the fire engine. It was loaded upon the cars down there, but the Crookston firemen were informed before they had started that the fire was under control and they did not come up.

Just how the fire originated is a mystery, but the general belief is that some drunken man or tramp went in the barn and dropped a cigar which set fire to the building.

The firemen all worked until long after day light Sunday morning. They had a hard fight and all should be rewarded.

F. J. Stebbins removed most of the drugs and jewelry in his store to his home.

The damage to the city's electric light plant was about $100.

A horse belonging to O. J. Rollis was consumed in the fire, and a dog in C. O. D. clothing house was also burned.

He Wanted To Stay.

Wiley Tindolph, the genial Thief River promoter and capitalist was down Monday on business. And this reminds us of a story that is told on Wiley. It all happened at church last Sunday night. The minister was in the midst of a profound and eloquent discourse, when the electric lights suddenly failed and darkness reigned supreme. After waiting several minutes for a return of the current the minister asked his audience as to the advisability of dismissing. But Tindolph was seated beside an unusually handsome school ma'am, and in the stillness of the shadows his voice resounded not unlike a trumpet call when he said: "No, go on, we want to hear the rest of the sermon!"

If the minister ever learns the circumstances under which the appeal was made we doubt if he will be entirely satisfied that it was meant to be a compliment to his powers as an exponent of the Word.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

Another Lodge.

A new lodge—the Mystic Toilers—was orignized in Thief River Falls last Saturday evening. It starts out with a membership of 17 and the following are the officers:

President—Rev. Dade.
Vice President—Ed Rolf.
Secretary—Mrs. Shea.
Treasurer—W. J. McCrum.
Chaplin—Mrs. Dade.

SOME OBJECTION.

Down River Lumbermen Want to Be Protected.

The following appeared in the St. Paul Pioneer Press Sunday:

Washington, April 19.—Unexpected opposition has developed against the ratification of the treaty made with the Chippewas providing for the cession to the eleven townships on the western portion of the Red Lake reservation. It comes from lumbermen operating on the Red river. They say that unless safeguards are provided in the bill opening this land to settlement they may be held liable for overflow of lands on both sides of the river. The matter has been investigated by the interior department and the house committee on Indian affairs. The testimony before the committee tends to show that the lands are not subject to overflow. Further investigation shows that the complaint of the lumbermen is well founded. Some plan will doubtless be adopted to protect the lumbermen from what they term the blackmail of bogus settlers.

The lumbermen referred to are probably in Crookston and East Grand Forks, and the Clearwater is the river meant as there is no danger of the banks of the Red Lake river overflowing. These lumber companies have had considerable litigation with the settlers along the Clearwater in the past.

Bought More.

J. M. Bishop, who came up from Marshalltown, Iowa, last week to sell some of his numerous town lots here, has not succeeded in reducing his holdings here to any great extent. He has faith in the town, however, for the first of the week purchased of C. J. Knox 40 lots in the original townsite of the city. This makes Mr. Bishop one of the largest individual owners of city property here He returned to his home in Iowa, Tuesday.

He Can Do It.

SHUT OUT CHINESE

SENATE RE-ENACTS THE OLD EXCLUSION LAW WITH CHANGES.

HOUSE BILL WAS TOO DRASTIC

SENATOR HOAR OF MASSACHUSETTS CAST THE ONLY NEGATIVE VOTE.

DEBATE IN HOUSE CHOKED OFF

FRIENDS OF CUBAN RECIPROCITY WIN A SUBSTANTIAL VICTORY.

Washington, April 17.—The drastic Chinese exclusion measure originally framed by the senators and representatives of the Pacific coast met defeat yesterday and in its place was substituted a measure offered by Mr. Platt (Conn.) extending the provisions of the present exclusion law and also applying that exclusion to all insular territory under the jurisdiction of the United States. The vote by which the substitute took the place of the original bill was 48 to 33. Once the substitution had been made all senators joined in its support with the single exception of Mr. Hoar, the substitute being passed by a vote of 76 to 1. The friends of the substitute showed their strength throughout the voting on amendments that preceded final action and succeeded in preventing any material change in its features. Some minor changes were made, admitting Chinese persons connected with national expositions and providing for certificates of identification of Chinese in our insular possessions. Otherwise, however, the substitute was adopted substantially in the form that Mr. Platt presented it. The senate, after disposing of the Chinese exclusion bill, made the Philippine civil government bill the unfinished business. The senate failed to substitute the enacting clause of the house measure for the senate measure so that the bill will now go to the house as an original measure, and from a parliamentary standpoint will have to be acted on and treated the same as though the house had not passed a Chinese exclusion bill already.

In the House.

The friends of the Cuban reciprocity bill won a substantial victory in the house by carrying a motion to close general debate on Friday at 2 o'clock. The vote was 163 to 123. Thirty-three Republicans voted against the motion but this defection was offset by thirty-two Democrats who voted with the great body of the Republicans for it. The strength of the Republican opposition to the bill, judging from this vote, has decreased six since the vote was taken on the motion to go into the committee of the whole to consider the bill.

TANGLE OF MATRIMONY.

Marriage, Divorce and Bigamy Are Features.

Chicago, April 18.—An alleged elopement in Germany, a divorce in Chicago, a subsequent annulment of the divorce by the former wife and the issuance of warrants charging bigamy, all figure in a case which was reported yesterday to the police at detective headquarters by Mrs. Katherine Hacke. As a result Fritz Hacke is being sought by the police of the central station in Chicago. His divorce, according to Mrs. Hacke, was obtained in Chicago through misrepresentation of facts, and she says she has succeeded in securing the annulment of the decree. This has resulted in the issuance of the warrant for Hacke's arrest on a charge of bigamy. Mrs. Hacke was married in Germany to Fritz Hacke, an expert marble cutter, many years ago. They lived happily, according to Mrs. Hacke, until the appearance upon the scene of Marguerite Neumeyer. Then, Mrs. Hacke alleges, her husband's affections began to wane. One morning she awoke to discover that he had left her. The other woman was never seen in Germany after that. This led Mrs. Hacke to the conclusion that they eloped. She followed them to Chicago.

ADDS ANOTHER MURDER.

Man Charged With Murder Stabs His Wife and Attempts Suicide.

Washington Court House, O., April 18. —Henry Cross, the negro who was recently indicted for murder in the first degree for beating an adopted child to death, last evening probably fatally stabbed his wife and attempted to kill himself at the county jail. Mrs. Cross went to the jail to see Cross and was left alone with him for a short time. While the jailer was gone Cross attacked his wife with a barlow knife, stabbing her many times, and cutting his own throat. The woman will die but Cross will probably survive.

TO KILL SUBSIDY BILL.

Two Methods of Arriving at the One End Are Proposed.

Washington, April 18.—It has been decided at a conference of Republican leaders of both houses to shelve the ship subsidy bill recently passed by the senate. Two propositions looking to this end are under advisement, one to allow the bill to die quietly in the committee on merchant marine and fisheries, where it now is, and the other to report it back with a motion to proceed to its consideration December next. The result of either plan will be the same.

PREACHED FOR FIFTY YEARS.

Rev. George Foster Filled a Pulpit Although Blind and Deaf.

Humboldt, Iowa, April 18.—Rev. Geo. Foster, familiarly known as "Granpa" Foster, was buried from the Methodist Episcopal church here yesterday. He had been an active minister for more than fifty years. He was in his eighty-eighth year. For more than sixteen years he has been blind and deaf, yet he retained his mental faculties in a wonderful manner, and until a few years past he often conducted services.

RUSSIANS SUFFERING GREATLY.

What Was the Grain Belt of the Steppes Now a Region of Starvation and Illness.

St. Petersburg, April 20.—The reports received here from the famine stricken districts of Russia more than justifying the anticipations of acute suffering in those localities. Scurvy and typhoid fever are devastating the peasantry throughout the whole of the Altai highlands of Siberia region, formerly the chief granary of Siberia. The starving people there have consumed even the last remnants of their seed grain and no spring crops have been sown. In some places the scarcity of fodder is so great that half the houses have been unthatched to save the lives of cattle and horses.

INVITATION BY WIRELESS.

Message Received on Board the Campania From New York.

New York, April 20.—A wireless telegraph message was sent yesterday afternoon from the Nantucket station addressed to Lord and Lady Kelvin on board the steamship Campania, inviting them to be present to-day at the ceremonies attendant on the inauguration of Nicholas Murray Butler as president of Columbia university. The committee in charge of the ceremonies received a reply by the same medium accepting the invitation. A reception in honor of Lord and Lady Kelvin will be given at Columbia university on Monday evening next. Lord Kelvin is president of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and one of the most famous scientists in the world.

Belmont's Ambition.

New York, April 20.—Perry Belmont is going to run for congress again next fall in the Seventh district. His nomination will establish a record of two runs in one calendar year. If Lewis Nixon remains in the leadership of Tammany Hall Mr. Belmont's path to nomination will be unobstructed.

New Commanders Greeted.

Washington, April 20.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt left here last night for New York where they will attend the exercises incident to the installation of Nicholas Murray Butler as president of Columbia university.

BOERS WILL VOTE

THEIR REPRESENTATIVES WILL MEET FOR ACTION ON PEACE TERMS.

KITCHENER DENIES ARMISTICE

BUT GIVES SPECIAL FACILITIES FOR THE BOERS TO SELECT DELEGATES.

BAFOUR TELLS ALL ABOUT IT

BOER LEADERS LEAVE PRETORIA TO CARRY OUT THE PLAN.

London, April 20.—The government leader, A. J. Balfour, in the house of commons, made the following important statement:

"After two conferences between Lord Milner, the British high commissioner of South Africa, and Lord Kitchener and the Boer Delegates at Pretoria, Lord Kitchener, while refusing to grant an armistice, on military grounds, has agreed to give facilities for the election and meeting of representatives of the various Boer commanders to consider the position. The Boer leaders have, therefore, left Pretoria to carry out this plan."

Favor British Peace Terms.

Mr. Balfour added that it was not expected that communication between the British authorities and the Boer leaders could be resumed in less than three weeks' time.

Mr. Balfour's statement made a generally favorable impression. It was argued among the members that the action of the Boer leaders demonstrates that, at any rate, a majority of the delegates favor the acceptance of suggested British peace terms. The submission of the question to a plebiscite of the burghers is, according to Boer law, which requires the leaders of armed forces in the field to take the opinion of their followers before concluding peace.

BOND FOR RATHBONE.

Accepted by the Court With Stipulations That Involve Time and Money.

Havana, April 20. — Late yesterday the audencia court accepted the bond of $100,000 offered by a fidelity company for the appearance of Estes G. Rathbone. The court requires, however, that this bond be drawn before a notary. This involves much time and expense, as the notary's fees and a state tax must be paid. Rathbone's attorney's insist that the habeas corpus proceedings be continued and claim that the bond should be drawn before the court, as is customary, without further delay or further expense. In the habeas corpus petition Rathbone's attorneys declare the court's delaw illegal, and intimate the court may be impeached for such action. The habeas corpus petition will be heard to-day. A number of Cuban senators and representatives-elect have sent a telegram to President-elect Estrada Palma at Gibara, petitioning him to ask the United States to pardon all Americans now under arrest in Cuba. Rathbone's case seems to have stirred Cuban sentiment strongly, and the movement to act for a general pardon is prompted by this sentiment.

QUEEN HAS TYPHOID.

No Doubt Now as to Nature of Queen Wilhelmina's Illness.

The Hague, April 20.—An official bulletin was issued yesterday morning from Castle Loo, stating that Queen Wilhelmina passed a fairly quiet night. Her fever continues. The alarming fever which complicated the queen's condition is now officially admitted to be typhoid. A special edition of the Official Journal publishes the doctor's statement, as follows:

"The supposition entertained by the queen's physicians since the commencement of her majesty's illness has become a certainty. It is now established that the queen is suffering from typhoid fever. Up to the present time the malady has run its ordinary course."

The question of a regency is being earnestly considered by The Netherlands government, and it is considered likely that in the event of a probable long illness of the queen that the states general (parliament) would be summoned in joint session at an early date to consider the matter.

REPRIEVE FOR MILES.

Senators Appeal to the President to Delay Action.

Washington, April 20. — Gen. Miles has been given a reprieve. President Roosevelt has determined not to retire the lieutenant general commanding the army, for the present, at least. This was the immediate result of a visit made to the White House by Senators Allison of Iowa, Hoar of Massachusetts and Hale of Maine, who urged that the forcible retirement of Gen. Miles at the present time, within a year and a half of his limit of legal service, would precipitate upon the country another military controversy, similar to the Sampson-Schley disturbance. The president said frankly it had been his intention to retire Gen. Miles, and it was admitted that the statement made by the press last Sunday night was by authority. In view of the personal and political pleas made by the three distinguished senators the president stated that he would delay matters, at least for the present.

Resume Operations.

Wausau, Wis., April 20.—The paper-making department of the Wausau Paper Mills company's plant at Brokaw, which was shut down April 3 owing to a strike among its skilled workmen, has resumed work with one machine.

Many Horses Burned.

Kansas City, April 20.—Fire destroyed the building occupied by the Depot Carriage and Baggage company here last night. The loss is estimated at $50,000; fully insured. Forty-six horses were burned.

BIG SALE OF CATTLE.

One Thousand Head Change Hands in Montana.

Helena, Mont., April 20. — M. K. Parsons of Salt Lake yesterday sold to the Robert Coburn Cattle company, 1,500 head of two-year-old Oregon cattle, which are to be delivered at Malta, on the Coburn range, early in May. This is one of the largest cattle deals in the state this year. The price was not made public, but is said to be a stiff one. Mr. Parsons, who is here, is also negotiating with the Coburn's for the sale of 600 additional head.

FELL TO SUDDEN DEATH.

Peter Mintel Found at the Bottom With His Neck Broken.

St. Paul, April 20.—Peter Mintel, employed at the St. Paul steam dye works, was found dead at the foot of a flight of stairs leading into a room he occupied in the basement at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. His neck was broken. The body was still warm, showing that Mintel had met death only a short time before his body was found. Mintel undoubtedly plunged headforemost down the stairs while going to the basement.

WEDS HOUSEKEEPER.

Brother of Gen. Lloyd Wheaton Surprises His Friends.

St. Joseph, Mich., April 20.—Arthur Wheaton, trainmaster on the Lake Shore railroad, and a brother of Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, was married yesterday at Kenosha, Wis., to his housekeeper, Mrs. Margaret Snyder. The announcement of the wedding caused a surprise here, as the couple had kept their engagement a secret.

Carnegie Library Site.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, April 20.—Mayor Robinson has received a letter stating that Andrew Carynegie has approved of the site tendered by Mrs. M. N. Dayton for the library which he has given to the city, to cost $15,000. Mrs. Dayton has signed the deed conveying the property to the city and the plans and other preliminary arrangements will be disposed of as soon as possible so that active construction work may begin at an early date.

Woman Missing From Home.

Granite Falls, Minn., April 20.—Mrs. David Buchanan, wife of D. Buchanan, an old settler here, left home Tuesday, and it is feared she has committed suicide. Her mind is not what it was before she accepted spiritualism, and people are apprehensive for her present whereabouts, as nothing has been seen or heard of her since she left. A husband and sixteen-year-old daughter are anxious about her.

Concessions to the Men.

Waterloo, Iowa, April 20.—As a result of conferences yesterday between Business Agent Roderick of the machinists and the Illinois Central officials a new proposition was submitted by the company to its striking employes late last evening. It is said to give added concessions to the men. The strikers will determine by vote whether to accept the new scale or not.

Preacher to Teach School.

Fargo, N. D., April 20.—Rev. [illegible] W. Reed, who has been pastor of the First Baptist church here, and was recently elected a pastor-at-large for the state, has accepted the principalship of the Lisbon schools. The will do the state religious work in the summer months. Mr. Reed was a teacher of some years' standing before he became a minister.

Cow in Tight Place.

Jordan, Minn., April 20.—Omaha train No. 8, east-bound, was suddenly stopped while going at high speed between Henderson and Blakeley by the carcass of a cow that became so tightly wedged in between one of the drive-wheels of the locomotive and the air brake as to make the wheel slide.

Johnson Will Sell Land.

Fargo, N. D., April 20. — Ex-Mayor Johnson of Fargo has decided to embark in the real estate and loan business and will also have charge of the North Dakota branch of the Dakota Farmer which has been established here, and will handle the business of that publication.

Judge Kenyon Out of Race.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, April 20. — Judge W. S. Kenyon, of the Eleventh judicial district of Iowa, has authorized the announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-election at the judicial convention of the district, which will be held this spring or summer.

Farmers Fight Over Right of Way.

La Crosse, Wis., April 20.—A farmers' feud, growing out of claims of Fred Schlabach to use a wagon road crossing a farm owned by Williams brothers in Pine creek valley, culminated in a fight in which Schlabach received what may prove fatal injuries.

Governor Offers a Reward.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 20. — Gov. Cummins yesterday offered a reward of $1,200 for the murderers of the Peterson children who were found dead in the suburbs of this city a week ago. The city will purchase a pack of bloodhounds.

Divorced After Fifty Years.

Jefferson, Wis., April 20. — Willard Lanfare, aged eighty-four, and his wife, Catherine, aged sixty-six, were divorced yesterday after fifty years of married life. There was no contest.

Faribault Raises Saloon License.

Faribault, Minn., April 20.—The city council raised the saloon license from $500 to $1,000. Sixteen saloonkeepers will be affected, and it is said several of them will go out of business.

Farmer Drops Dead.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 20. — Samuel Copenhaver, aged sixty years, dropped dead while on his way to his farm from Sioux City. He got out of the wagon to fix the harness, when he was stricken. Heart disease caused it.

Meals to Cost More.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 20.—Seven of the centrally located restaurants of this city have gone into an agreement to raise the prices of all meat, fish and egg orders 5 cents above the present schedule.

LOVE AND A GHOST

By ELIZABETH CHERRY WALTZ.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was Cousin Susan's idea that the house in which she had been born and reared was haunted by the ghost of her father who had died of yellow fever somewhere in the early part of the nineteenth century. So she not only refused to live at "The Maples" herself, but also refused to allow others of her kith and kin who had not a comfortable habitation to dwell there. As Miss Susan Pennyfeather was rich and could dwell in Egypt or the Philippines if she so willed, it was all very well for her to leave the roomy old house to the ghost of her progenitor. It seemed very hard to the family of Peter Crosley, her cousin, who had no place to lay their heads save as Mr. Crosley sold a poem or a song or a piece of fiction by the error of some publisher and rented them a place. In other and more frequent intervals the family scattered to relatives and stored their few bits of furnishings.

"But it has all got to stop," declared Arabelle, the oldest girl, one summer day. "I shall go and live at 'The Maples,' and when Cousin Susan returns from India and finds it out she can eject me."

"But the ghost?" protested Peter, the father. "Cousin Susan says it is there and walks about the house as in life."

"That is highly probable," returned Arabelle, impudently winking her left eye, "but the ghost must expect the friendly visit of relatives. How original it all is! First cousin to a ghost! Why, is it not delicious? Anyhow, I'm going. If Cousin Susan had not wanted me to do something desperate, she should have traveled me, taken me with her, and thus added to the long list of international marriages."

"We certainly must do something," said Mrs. Peter, "and that quickly. We have no money."

"I shall move to 'The Maples' and invite you all for a long visit," said Arabelle decidedly. "Is there enough in hand to buy me a railroad ticket, or must I sacrifice that hideous idol Cousin Susan just sent me to show me that there was a crying need of missionaries to Whangpur or some such province?"

"I wonder what Lionel will say?" put in Sophronia, the second girl.

Arabelle swept her a mocking courtesy.

"As a young Englishman he will rejoice in ancestral ghosts. As a discarded second son trying to live on nothing but work in America, he may say, 'Oh, what rot!'"

Peter Crosley looked up from a bundle of papers fretfully.

"I don't see why Mr. Lionel Carr's name is brought in at all. Arabelle has promised me to give him no encouragement."

Arabelle's rosy mouth quivered.

"Me encourage Lionel? Far be the thought from me. Why, papa, I have told you a thousand times that he doesn't need—or get—any encouragement from me. There, are you satisfied? Now, I shall sell my idol and go to 'The Maples.' I will prepare the way and you will pack up and follow at once. Don't mind parting with a few airy nothings in order to get there. Because, once there, we are housed, at least."

She sailied forth, light of heart, gay of speech and smile. No one ever knew whether Arabelle Crosley felt all she acted or not, but she was the life preserver that held up the whole family in their dark hours.

The idol was rather a cumbersome fellow and Arabelle looked strange enough carrying the awkward bundle, head first, to the elevated road.

"I hope he will sell well," she was thinking. "He's a very holy idol, Cousin Susan wrote. I know that he is unearthly ugly and that his green eyes make me shudder. I wish I had a half dollar to take a cab."

But she had not the half dollar and struggled up the steps bravely. She was a shrewd bargainer and was going to the best curio store in the city. She was sure she might get as much as ten dollars for the thing, maybe more. She would go down to "The Maples," scare out the ghost and take possesion. In her heart she did not believe in the ghost. The adventure had zest, however.

But Arabelle proposed and could not dispose. As she stepped from the steps of the train station onto the pavement a hurrying man jostled her and she staggered with her burden. There was a sharp crack against the nearest post and Cousin Susan's idol lay in several fragments. A crowd at once gathered and there was much laughter at the rolling head with its horrible green glass eyes.

Suddenly a hand grasped it, a long brown hand that drew it away. Arabelle sprang forward.

"That is mine! Give it to me."

She was clinging to a sinewy arm that tried in vain to shake her off.

"You shall not have it. It is mine!" she panted.

Suddenly a strong blow threw the man backwards. Arabelle sprang for the idol's head and saved it a further humiliation. A voice said:

"Arabelle! You?"

"Yes," she gasped, "and Cousin Susan's idol. Isn't it a shame?"

The tall, fair Englishman was horrified.

"Here, boys, pick up the parts. Arabelle, we may be able to piece it together. But what were you doing with it out on the street?"

The idol lay in several fragments.

Ere he replied a stout gentleman with gold spectacles pushed forward.

"I was going to sell it," pouted Arabelle at the Englishman. "It's a horrid old thing."

"Perhaps," said the stout gentleman, "the young lady will sell even the pieces or the head. I will buy the head as it is."

Lionel Carr looked at the man and then at the hideous face of the idol. He looked from the one to the other and a light came on to his countenance, the light of knowledge.

"Keep the head, Arabelle," he said coldly and to the man: "we will not sell."

Arabelle saw him gather up the pieces, then he called a cab.

"Let us go home," he said tersely.

This was Lionel in a new phase, but Arabelle loved cabs and she jumped in gayly. Lionel placed the head in her lap.

"Now explain," he said, "and I shall have several things to tell you after that."

Arabelle related her project of the ghost hunt with gusto. Lionel was relieved.

"That is a great lark," he said kindly, "but I must go with you. You cannot go alone."

But Arabelle was never foolish.

"You know that is impossible," she said, coldly.

"Oh, no, not if we just quietly slip away this afternoon and are married. It has to be—you say things are at a crisis. Now consent—and I'll tell you two large and blooming reasons why—after you have said yes."

Her curiosity got the better of her in half an hour. Anyhow she had always meant to marry Lionel. He suited her. It was a half-hour more ere he allowed her to question him.

"But the two things, Lionel?"

"One is that I am called home to England. My uncle has left me some money."

"Oh—oh! And the other?"

"The other? Well, little girl, you do not have to go ghost-hunting or worry over your trousseau money. The eyes of that blamed old idol are about the finest emeralds I ever saw and are worth a pretty penny. But we will not inquire about that until after this other little matter is attended to—and then we'll invade 'The Maples' as a very lively place in which to spend a honeymoon."

Vaccination Teas.

Vanity Fair thus describes a London function:

One of the most "fetching" social shows of last week was the "vaccination tea" given by a renowned hostess. In one drawing-room the lady received her guests, comprising notable beauties, party leaders and favorite members of the household brigade. In other rooms four leading stars of the medical profession waited to vaccinate the fair "companions in arms," the sterner sex being operated on in yet another dainty boudoir. Some of the women displayed the greatest ingenuity in the arrangement of their sleeves, having had them divided at the top, then reunited with ribbons, which, when untied, revealed enough of the "marble arm" to enable the vaccinator to set his seal thereon.

God's visits if gratefully received will be graciously repeated.

NILE THE SALVATION OF EGYPT.

Wonderful River That Fertilizes the Bare, Brown Sands.

The Nile is Egypt and Egypt is the Nile. The long, turbid tide stretches through the desert and where its waters touch the before-time lifeless sand gardens spring up and cotton grows luxuriant. It is a constant battle between the Nile, a yellow thread and the bare, brown sands for Egypt's life, a conflict continually in progress. Each fall, fattened by the Abyssinian rains, the Nile, muddier than the Missouri and mightier than the Mississippi, dashes out upon the sands and drives back the encroaching desolation. Each summer time it retreats into its narrow bed, and the grim desert grasps the hard-won sands again. Sometimes the Nile does not rise to the conflict with full vigor, and, in consequence, the clutch of the desert is unloosed, the thin ears devour the fat and there is famine, actual or threatened, in the land. Once upon a time notable in the last century's religious calendar, it held back from its tall campaign against the desert desolation. There was no rain—it never rains in Egypt save a few drops each winter—and the Nile-god sulked or slept. Then came a strange sight in an old Cairo mosque. In the Gamia Amr Ibn el-As, where stands the gray marble pillar miraculously transported from Mecca, at the Khalif Omar's prayers, the whole of the Mohammedan priesthood, the Christian clergy of every sect and the Jewish rabbis bowed in prayer with one accord to petition for the rising of the Nile. And the Almighty, to whom Moslem and Jew and Christian pray, heard and answered.

TOO TICKLISH TO BE MEASURED

Affliction That Compelled an Irishman to Wear Old Clothes.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Twichell told a story at the dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, which won him the hearty applause of the four hundred Irishmen present.

"I was making my first trip about Dublin," said Dr. Twichell, "and I had engaged a jaunting car. While I went into a store my 'jarvie' fell into a conversation with another carter, who was the most tattered specimen of humanity I ever saw. When we started driving again I asked my 'jarvie' if the other carter was a friend of his.

"'Shure, an' he is, yer honor; he's my best friend,' was the answer.

"'Isn't he a bit ragged?' I asked.

"'Shure, an' he ain't nawthin' else.'

"'Is it because he's so poor?'

"'Naw, yer honor, he's plenty o' money.'

"'Why, doesn't he buy some decent clothes, then?'

"'Why, yer honor, I'll tell yer, he's that ticklish there ain't a tailor in Dublin that can measure him, so he has to wear what he has on.'"—New York Tribune.

Wild Animals in Captivity.

Once a keeper, by secrecy and much guile, saw a lioness teaching her cage-born cubs—two squealing, furry infants—the ancient lore of the jungle which no beast ever forgets. How to leap from the brush upon a buck's back at the exact angle to break that back at a single blow—through a pile of straw, says Everybody's Magazine. How to follow a blood trail to where the quarry lay—through sawdust. The prize was a bit of raw beef, but the cubs did not care. They had never known—never would have known—the fierce joy of the hunt and the kill, the lust of clean, hot blood in the free desert. Not for them the knowledge of what it meant to send a challenge rolling across the desolute plain beneath the stars, to hear the answer pealing forth in distant thunder from the ends of the earth; to know themselves the masters of their world. Later on in life, the blood and the soul that was in them would teach them what they had missed and lost, as instinct teaches all wild things even unto the third and fourth generation of them that are born in bondage.

A Judge of Art.

The seller of pot-boilers came into the office of the shrewd broker with the air of one who is about to sacrifice a priceless treasure. It was a seascape; a troubled sea beat upon purple rocks, and wind-driven gulls wheeled in wild circles above the familiar pot-boiler ship. The seller of pot-boilers looked upon the treasure long and yearningly. It could be seen that a grievous struggle between art and appetite was raging within him. "How much do you want for it?" demanded the shrewd broker. "One hundred dollars," said the pot-boiler man; "it's giving it away." "Give you three for it," said the shrewd broker. "It's yours," said the pot-boiler man. "That follow[illegible] across the way only offered me 75 cents, [illegible] he ain't no judge of art." —New York Pos[illegible]

Cat Novelty for a Bazaar.

A remarkable novelty—it [illegible] alive—distinguished a bazaar recent[illegible] held in Gotham by aristocratic dames, assisted by smart belles.

This remarkable feature was a cat table. Live cats and kittens of high degree were sold at fabulous prices—and Tabby and Tom of no pedigree pretensions were shuffled off for rational sums of cash.

Cat baskets, blankets, collars, shoes and other articles of the cat's wardrobe were salable accessories of the table.

This innovation in the swell bazaar is an adaptation of an English fashion. Dog and cat tables are usual sights in a London bazaar.

Youth is fresh, but as it attains age it is salted with the tears of disappointment.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Potato Growing.

Professor C. D. Woods, director of the Maine Experiment Station, in his talk to Wisconsin farmers at the recent convention at Oconomowoc, laid special stress on the great value of the potato crop. It is valuable because it does not exhaust land as do some other crops. Its starch is made out of carbon, and this has been gathered from the air by means of the leaves. So it does not come out of the ground at all. The man that grows potatoes is not taking from the soil a great mass of fertilizer that is to be sent away never to return. The tops are not sold off, but are permitted to lie on the ground or in the ground and decay.

There is no best way of growing potatoes. Place and circumstances must dictate methods. To grow potatoes successfully a man must be sufficiently intelligent to understand the soil and other conditions on his own farm. No man can afford to follow the methods of public speakers or his neighbors without first finding out whether they apply to his case. The selection of seed is important, because we do not plant the seeds but cuttings from the tubers. The tubers from which the cuttings are to be made should be ripe and should have been kept over winter in a temperature of from 33 to 40 degrees. It is, however, a mistake to select seed potatoes from those that have lain in the ground too long. The potatoes for this purpose should be dug while the tops are still green, so much so indeed that the potatoes on being cooked will be what we call "watery." In the planting, potatoes should be put in deeper in clay than in sandy land. This may appear unreasonable, but if the potatoes are planted near the surface in clay land, they will, as they grow, cause the clay to split open and this will let in the sun. The result is a sun-burned potato, which is of no value for eating.

Fertilizer Facts.

Press Bulletin 40, New Hampshire Station: A curious sign of the prejudice of fertilizer buyers for a name was shown by the brands put on our market by one large company. This corporation had in our state fourteen different brands guaranteed to contain 2 per cent of nitrogen, 8 per cent of available phosphoric acid and 3 per cent of potash, while ten more of its brands differed from the above lot by each having a guarantee of 1.6 per cent of potash instead of 3 per cent. In other words, this company had twenty-four brands to represent only two different formulas, because fertilizers are bought by name instead of by composition.

The last census states the value of fertilizers bought in New Hampshire in 1900 to have been $368,000, making an average for each farm of $12.55. The most common fertilizers sold in the state were those costing $30 per ton. For the average sum per farm there was purchased of such a mixed fertilizer 837 pounds, containing 17 pounds of nitrogen, 67 of available phosphoric acid and 25 of potash, or a total of 106 pounds of plant food. By buying the highest grade of chemicals, including nitrate of soda, dried blood, acid phosphate and sulphate of potash, and paying cash, $12.55 could have purchased 800 pounds of chemicals containing 20 pounds of nitrogen, 58 of available phosphoric acid and 80 potash, a total of 158 pounds of plant food, or one and one-half times as much as by following the usual method of buying. Long credit and commissions to agents make fertilizers costly.

In the past year the trade in ashes has taken up an inferior grade, which is sometimes sold under the name of lime-kiln or lime ashes. They contain much less soluble potash than good hard wood ashes and their value is problematical on that account because the availability of insoluble potash is unknown.

Outlook for Fruit.

(Farmers' Review Special Report.)

J. W. Stanton, Southern Illinois: Tree fruits promise good crops on trees that were not full last year.

Prof. F. A. Waugh, Vermont: The general outlook for fruits was never better at this time of year than it is now.

O. M. Lord, Minnesota: Plenty of fruit buds, and they are entirely unhurt. Season opens ten days earlier than usual.

E. A. Riehl, Southern Illinois: So far as can be seen now all fruits except peaches are in good condition and may give a good crop, if favorable conditions are maintained throughout the season.

Geo. N. Parker, Eastern Illinois: The present outlook for apples is good. The peach crop will be very short. We will have over 10,000 [illegible] of apples [illegible] sale in this county (Crawford) for [illegible] fall, if the present outlook is verified.

[illegible]n, Indiana: The outlook

Prof. J. Troo[illegible] The buds are pretfor peaches is bad. Other kinds seem ty generally killed. [illegible]dition. I do to be in fairly good co[illegible] crop, ow-

not look for a heavy apple [illegible]ummer

ing to the dry weather last [illegible] and fall.

Prof. John Craig, New York state: The prospects at present are excellent for a full crop of apples, peaches and plums. This applies especially to the western part of the state, but I think is true of most of the fruit-growing sections.

Prof. L. R. Taft, Michigan: All trees (fruit) are in good condition, except the peach, and these are not injured, except in the southwestern part of the state, where tender varieties have had their flower buds killed and some injury has been done to the hardy sorts in many townships.

Benjamin Buckman, Central Illinois: The prospects for peaches are gone. Very few strawberry plants are left. Other small fruits promise an average crop. The same may be said of apples, pears, cherries and grapes. Calculations on crops of apples, pears, cherries and grapes at this time of year usually do not amount to much, for the critical time comes later, when spring frosts, rains in blooming time, insects and fungi get in their work.

Prof. Chas. A. Keffer, Tennessee: The freeze of two weeks ago injured the peach buds very much in this vicinity. Fully 90 per cent were killed. Pears also were injured, but not seriously. Japanese plums suffered less than peaches, but seriously. I have no returns from other parts of the state, but as the freeze was general, I think the injury widespread.

Prof. H. J. Waters, Missouri: Prospect for apples good, except on trees that bore a heavy crop last year. Plums, cherries, pears, splendid prospect. Peach fruit buds were killed in nearly all parts of the state by severe cold in December. In a few specially favored localities in the Ozarks, it is estimated that there are sufficient live buds to produce almost a full crop. In one or two of these localities some of the largest commercial peach orchards of the state are located.

Disposal of Inferior Fruits.

From Farmers' Review: In reply to yours will say that it would be impossible to give you any idea in the way of figures as to what extent the different varieties of fruit in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan are disposed of in the dried form, but as a guess, we should say that perhaps 25 per cent of the green fruits are either dried or canned. The largest quantity of dried fruit in the way of evaporated raspberries and apples comes from New York state. There are also a good many berries and apples evaporated in Michigan, and a good many apples evaporated and sun dried in Indiana and Illinois. The fruit that is dried and canned is not first quality, it being usually marketed green, and the second and third quality are canned and dried. This refers to apples more than berries, as berries, that is strawberries, raspberries and blackberries must be of good quality to go into the can, although of course, they are not selected as closely as they would be if they were put on the market in the green state, and take for instance, apples, if they could not dry and can this quality of apples referred to above, they would probably have to throw them away, as they could not be put on the market green.—Miller & Davis Co., Chicago, Ill.

Eggs of Common Squash Bug.

The accompanying illustration shows the eggs of common squash bug. They are shining and dark coppery or bronzy in appearance. When first laid they are whitish, but change in color. They are flattened on three sides, and when viewed from the ends are triangular. Egg masses are deposited usually on the lower surface of a leaf, but very often also on the upper surface and on the stems. The nymph makes its escape by forcing a hole through one end of the egg, as shown at "b" of the illustration.

—Egg of Anasa tristis: a, from below, showing point of attachment; b, from side, showing place of escape of nymph; c, sculpture of egg; d, egg cluster—a, b about five times natural size; d, one-fourth enlarged; c, greatly enlarged (original).

Bulk in Swine Food.

Swine are by nature omnivorous feeders. They eat flesh, herbage, cereals, roots and fruits. Their food in their natural state has a good deal of bulk. The bad results sometimes obtained by feeders is due to forgetfulness of this fact. The salvation of pigs kept in confinement has been the general impression that swill was preeminently a hog feed. This has given bulk to an otherwise condensed ration. The pig has to a large extent been the victim of a wrong system of feeding. He has been too often confined in a small space and fed a condensed ration. As a result disease and death have cut short the profits of the pig raisers. The feeding of a ration of cereals is not in keeping with the natural requirements of the porcine money-maker. It is not a difficult matter for the swine feeder to increase greatly the bulk of food fed. Silage, roots and vegetables can be fed in the winter. If the farmer have not these, he can feed clover hay. This should be cut in a feed-cutter and soaked by pouring boiling water over it. To this may be added the meal or other concentrate that is to be fed.

Forests of the Philippines.

Capt. Ahern of the forestry bureau says he saw large tracts of virgin forests in the Philippines with 10,000 to 20,000 cubic feet of magnificent lumber per acre, where the trees were more than 150 feet high, with trunks clear of branches for 80 feet. Fifty valuable hard woods are now offered to the world.

Sheep Raising in New Mexico.

New Mexico is a great sheep country. There is but one other state or territory which excels in sheep raising. That is Utah, where there are [illegible] or 9,000,000 sheep. New Mexico [illegible] 6,000,000. The industry [illegible] prosperous as at present.

Weak Lambs.

We have recently received several complaints from shepherds to the effect that their lambs come weak, season after season, and are again showing similar and even worse symptoms this year. They say that the lambs can scarcely stand when born, and even although they try to suck it seems a difficult undertaking and they fail to derive strength from the nourishment taken. Invariably is added the fact that the ewes have been fed apparently well upon coarse fodders, such as clover hay, timothy hay, corn fodder, wheat or oat straw. This is one of the explanations of the trouble. It has been noticed that unless ewes when pregnant are fed additional concentrates such as bran, crushed oats, oil meal or oil cake they tend to become constipated and in this condition there is either trouble at lambing time or weakness among the lambs. The weakness is due to the fact that the ewes merely manage to derive personal nourishment from the food given but an insufficiency of surplus from which to build up a strong, well-formed foetus. It is also reported in the same connection that many of the lambs come into the world showing enlargements of the glands of the throat. The enlargements are of the thyroid glands and constitute "goitre," a trouble that always indicates debility and lack of uterine nourishment. It also bespeaks a lack of mineral matters in the food of the ewes and in the milk first furnished—a lack of such salts as lime and phosphate—minerals which are always freely imparted to the blood circulation in bran and other grain foods of the nitrogenous class. In addition to the aggravating causes of weakness in lambs may be mentioned in-and-in breeding, or too seldom changes of breeding stock. The ram is used year after year, and at last there is too close connection in mating, with the result of loss of vitality, constitution and strength of bone. To prevent weak lambs from troubling in the flock the following measures consequently become necessary: Use of new rams of strong constitution and if possible, from a higher altitude; and generous feeding of concentrates to ewes before and after service and during pregnancy.

Milkmen's Organization.

From Farmers' Review: The milkmen of Evansville, Indiana, have organized an association for the advancement of their interests. This association, of which J. C. Wallenmeyer is secretary, co-operates with the city food inspector in securing better sanitary conditions on the farms of its members. Meetings are held regularly at which prominent physicians of the city have delivered lectures on the requisites for healthful milk for infant feeding and family use. Veterinarians discuss the prevention and care of diseases among dairy cows. At a recent public meeting one session was given to the discussion of those phases of the subject which should interest the consumers of milk and cream. At the second session, H. E. Van Norman, instructor in dairying at Purdue University, lectured on selection and feeding of the dairy cow, and care and handling of milk for city trade. The educational feature of this association's efforts is a new one and cannot help but improve the sanitary condition of milk delivered to city consumers. This move is one that could be followed with advantage by the milkmen of other cities.—W. C. Latta, Purdue University.

Treatment of Seed Oats.

From Farmers' Review: Nothing of greater interest and more importance occurs to me at present than "treatment of seed oats to destroy smut." We have been thoroughly successful with the following—much easier and pleasanter than the soaking method and seeding with wet grain:

Mix one ounce of formalin with one gallon of water for every six bushels of oats. Spread the oats about three inches thick and apply the liquid with a sprinkling can as evenly as practicable, and stir thoroughly; then shovel into a snug elongated heap about three feet deep along the center, and cover with the oat sacks turned and shaken, and a light blanket to complete if needed, and leave twenty-four to forty-eight hours. Then reshovel and heap and cover for another day or two, when the moisture applied will be diffused through the mass and evaporated, so as not to be perceptible. The grain may then be sacked or stored ready for use when wanted.—P. F. Nye.

Old and New Corn Seed.

From Farmers' Review: I would like to have the experience of some of the readers of The Farmers' Review as to the planting of old seed corn. Will it sprout and grow as well as new corn?—J. S. * * * We hope our readers will send in their answers at an early date, as corn-planting time is approaching.

Professor Crookshank, a governor of the Royal Veterinary College of England, says that Koch is wrong in affirming that tuberculosis has never been given to bovines by human virus. He believes that it is a mistake for scientists to send abroad the idea that it is right to sell tuberculous milk. His remedy for tuberculous milk is a rigid inspection of all dairies.

SIXTY LIVES LOST

STEAMER CITY OF PITTSBURG IS BURNED TO THE WATER'S EDGE.

PASSENGERS IN A WILD PANIC

MOST OF THEM AWAKENED FROM SLEEP TO FACE AN AWFUL DEATH.

RESCUERS WORK HEROICALLY

TERROR-STRICKEN CROWDS INTERFERE WITH THE STEAMER'S CREW.

Cairo, Ill., April 22.—The side-wheel steamer City of Pittsburg, en route from Cincinnati to Memphis, was burned to the water's edge shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday morning at Ogden's Landing, twenty-four miles from this city. The early reports stated that sixty-five lives were lost and that many were badly burned and otherwise injured, but the list of casualties is not yet definitely determined. Two boats and every available craft from this city went to the scene to extend relief. Efforts were made to catch the New South, of the same line, at Paducah and have her steam back for relief, but the New South had passed Paducah, upward-bound before the telegram was received.

Most of the passengers were still in bed when Second Clerk Oliver Philips gave the alarm. The engineers at once started all the pumping engines, while the crew brought all the hose into play. Amid the streams of water on all sides, the flames from the lower deck and the dense clouds of smoke, the passengers rushed from their state rooms and a frightful panic ensued. The appeals of the officers and crew could not appease the

that interfered with those throwing water on the flames, as well as with those working with the life boats. Few could adjust life preservers or do anything else for themselves. The smoke was stifling. Great clouds floated through the blazing steamer, choking the passengers and adding to the terror. Children cried pitifully, begging that they be saved. They knew, as well as their elders, that death confronted them, and clung to their mothers as though they alone could save them. Life boats were manned and every effort was made to save the passengers from the floating furnace of flames. Sturdy boatmen rowed as they never rowed before in their heroic work of rescue. From the river banks the burning craft and the dense clouds of smoke, tinged with tongues of flames from the vicious bed of fire, made a most impressive, yet wierd spectacle. Boats were sent from the shore to help in the work of rescue, but the flames were only too surely consummating their

to save all from the flames. Boats laden to their limit with passengers in the scant attire they were able to gather were landed at the river banks. As fast as one boat could be emptied it returned to the ill-fated steamer, the heroic rescuers not waiting to catch a breath of rest. The burning steamer was quickly headed to the bank, but passengers had to jump off the stern, and trying to swim ashore through the swift current, many were drowned. Many also perished in the flames.

Capt. Philips says twenty or twenty-five of the passengers are missing and the same number of the crew. Two women passengers were severely burned but will recover.

The fire started in the forward hatch, larboard, and burned fiercely when the steamer ran ashore. Very few of the passengers or crew were aware of the fire until it was too late.

The captain and clerk last night claimed that in all eighty persons have been accounted for, leaving sixty persons lost or unaccounted for.

MANY FAMILIES HOMELESS.

Fifty Dwelling Houses Destroyed at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 22.—A destructive fire visited the southwestern part of this city yesterday, laying waste a section of dwelling houses almost a block wide and doing damage to the amount of $75,000. John Stinne of Quincy, Ill., a spectator, was seriously injured by a falling piece of iron and Edward Bennett, a fireman, was overcome by heat. About fifty dwelling houses were destroyed and sixty or more families were rendered homeless. A high wind was blowing and the flames spread with alarming rapidity. Because of a mistake in the alarm sent in, the arrival of the firemen was delayed and the fire had gained much headway before they commenced operations. Most of the residents who suffered loss are poor. Those who need assistance are being cared for temporarily by neighbors and charitable institutions.

EULOGIES ON LIFE OF KYLE.

Senators Do Honor to Memory of Late South Dakotan.

Washington, April 22.—Little business of national importance was transacted Saturday in the senate. Numerous measures of minor character and nearly sixty private pension bills were passed. At 3 o'clock eulogies were pronounced upon the life and character of James Henderson Kyle, late a member from South Dakota.

SEVERE SHAKE.

Quake Felt in Mexico Extended Down Into Central America.

Mexico City, April 22.—The earthquake Friday evening covered a large extent of territory and reached down into Central America. The lower section of the Pacific coast of this country felt the shock very severely, and at Tapachula, an important town in the State of Chiapas, near the Guatemalan frontier, the damage done to property is estimated at fully $100,000,000. One man estimates his loss at $200,000.

WANTS MERGER IN STATE COUR

Attorney General of Minnesota Will Object to Trial Before Federal Judge.

St. Paul, April 22.—Gen. W. B. Douglas, the attorney general of Minnesota, will oppose the removal of the merger suit from the Ramsey county district court to the United States circuit court. After filing his motion in the federal court he must give the other side eight days' notice, unless the judge in his discretion shortens the time of notice. Gen. Douglas said, after a consultation with associate counsel in the case: "I shall look into the matter carefully before deciding upon the exact method of procedure. The transfer of the case will not embarrass or hinder the action of the state."

BADGER SUGAR BEETS.

Twelve Manufacturing Plants Will Be Built Next Fall.

Milwaukee, April 21. — Twelve beet sugar manufacturing plants, each with a daily capacity of 500 tons of beets and costing in the aggregate over $5,000,000, will be built in different parts of Wisconsin next fall by Wisconsin and Michigan capitalists who own and control the Menominee Falls Beet and Sugar company. R. J. Wagner, president and general manager of the Menominee Falls plant, who is at the head of the syndicate, will build the plants. He said last night that the sites of eight of the plants had been decided upon, the places selected being Beaver Dam, Watertown, Kaukauna, Ripon, Oconto, Dorchester, La Crosse and Racine.

CHARGE FOR KELLY.

Elk Point Priest Is Now Located at Montrose, S. D.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 22. — It was learned here last evening that Father Kelly, the priest whose name was connected with that of an Elk Point young lady in a recent affair, and concerning whose future there has been considerable speculation, especially in Catholic circles throughout the state because of the refusal of Elk Point Catholics to permit him to return to that city, has arrived at Montrose, a little town on the Omaha railroad about twenty-five miles northwest of Sioux Falls, where he has been assigned to the rectorship of the local Catholic church.

EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID.

Sixty-Four Cases in a Camp Where Sixty-Eight Men Worked.

Helena, Mont., April 22.—J. A. Ferguson, commissioner of labor, agriculture and industry, has called the attention of the state board of health to the epidemics of typhoid fever in West side lumber camps, caused by the unsanitary surroundings. In one camp in Missoula county where sixty-eight men were employed sixty-four suffered from typhoid. Many of the men, including both the proprietors, McKeen and McQuorie, died of the disease. The board has taken up the matter and will improve the conditions.

WILD MAN ON ISLAND.

Reported That Mysterious Creature Is at Large Near La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., April 22.—The authorities have been notified that a wild man is at large on a small island in the Mississippi near Dresbach, a few miles north of here. Sheriff Linna and a posse have gone to the island in search of the alleged maniac, who it is said, lives entirely on fish and other available game. According to reports it has been impossible for parties to land on the island, some being doubtful about their safety and the more timid avoiding the spot.

Hot Time for the Hens.

Appleton, Minn., April 22.—The barn of H. M. Hayes was burned, with its contents, including 200 hens. This is the first fire Appleton has had for nearly two years.

CUBAN BILL GOES

RECIPROCITY MEASURE PASSES HOUSE AFTER A LONG STRUGGLE.

SUGAR DIFFERENTIAL REMOVED

INSURGENT REPUBLICANS RIDE ROUGH-SHOD OVER HOUSE LEADERS.

BIG MAJORITY FOR THE BILL

FIFTY-TWO VOTES AGAINST IT, FORTY-TWO OF THEM REPUBLICAN.

Washington, April 19. — The Democrats and the Republican insurgents rode rough-shod over the house leaders yesterday when the voting began on the Cuban reciprocity bill. They overthrew the ruling of the chair in committee of the whole on the question of the germaneness of an amendment offered by Morris of Minnesota to remove the differential from refined sugar during the existence of the reciprocity agreement provided for in the bill. The vote to overrule the decision of the chair, made by Mr. Sherman of New York, was 171 to 130, Republicans to the number of 57 joining with a solid Democratic vote to accomplish this result.

Having won this preliminary victory, the amendment was adopted in committee, 164 to 111, and later in the house by a still larger majority—199 to 105. On this occasion 64 Republicans voted with the Democrats for the amendment. The bill then was passed by an overwhelming majority—247 to 52.

An analysis of the vote shows that 128 Republicans and 123 Democrats voted for the amended bill and 42 Republicans and 10 Democrats against it. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, Morris, Fletcher, Stevens, McCleary and Tawney of Minnesota, were among those who voted against the bill. The voting on the bill was the culmination of which began almost with the opening of this session of congress, and after two weeks of continuous debate, during which much bitterness was aroused. Yesterday's debate was of an exceedingly lively character, the feature being echoes of Thursday night's Democratic caucus. To that caucus the defeat of the Republican leaders, who sought to pass the bill without amendment, is attributable. Previous to the holding of the caucus the Democrats were very much divided, and the opposition of the Republican beet sugar men showed signs of disintegrating. Yesterday, when it became apparent that the Democrats would act together the beet sugar men decided at a meeting attended by 22 of them to take the bit in their teeth and overrule the chair. As soon as this combination was effected the Republican leaders realized that they would be defeated so far as the removal of the differential was concerned, and Mr. Payne, the Republican leader, contented himself with warning his beet sugar colleagues that in removing the differential they were taking off a bit of protection placed in the Dingley bill especially for the benefit of the beet sugar producers. The Democrats attempted to follow up their advantage when the

Differential Amendment

was adopted by offering the Babcock bill and other amendments to reduce the Dingley schedules, but on these amendments the Republicans declined to stand with them and the Democrats did not press them vigorously. One of the surprises of the session was the attempt of Mr. Roberts, a Massachusetts Republican, to take the duty off hides. He offered two amendments and appealed once from the decision of the chair, but was voted down each time. The bill as passed authorizes the president as soon as may be after the establishment of an independent government in Cuba and the enactment by said government of immigration, exclusion and contract labor laws as restrictive as those of the United States, to negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement with Cuba by which, in return for equivalent concessions, the United States will grant a reduction of 20 per cent from the Dingley rates on goods coming into the United States from Cuba, such agreement to continue until Dec. 1, 1903. During the existence of such agreement the duty on refined sugars and all sugars above No. 16 Dutch standard, is to be 1.825 cents per pound.

In the Senate.

At yesterday's session of the senate, consideration was begun of the bill temporarily to provide a form of government for the philippine islands. The measure was read and the committee amendments were agreed to tentatively, but no action on the bill was taken. Fifty-five private pension bills and a few other measures were passed.

Charged With Incest.

Muskogee, Ind., T., April 20.—W. H. Means, the Lexington, Mo., farmer who killed his niece, Miss Lydia Means, at Henrietta early Tuesday morning, was discharged yesterday at Wewoka. The evidence showed that he killed the woman in self-defense and that she had seriously stabbed him. Means was held, however, for incest.

Robbed the Doctor.

THAT BRITISH CAMP.

Crowder Tells President Roosevelt the Results of His Investigation.

Washington, April 22.—Col. Enrich H. Crowder of the judge advocate general's department of the army, who has been in Louisiana investigating the British camp at Port Chalmette, returned to Washington last evening. He went to the White House immediately after dinner, accompanied by Assistant Secretary of War Sanger and Judge Advocate General Davis, and made an informal report to the President. The result of Col. Crowder's investigation of the alleged violation of the neutrality laws by the British agents at Chalmette could not be learned last night.

KILLED BY A MARSHAL.

Result of a Fight in a Gambling House.

Guthrie, Okla., April 22.—Charles E. Growles was shot and instantly killed by a deputy marshal at Lawton last night as the result of a fight in a gambling house wherein Growles and a partner named Lewis had fired a number of shots at each other without serious injury. Lewis had accused Growles of cheating at cards and the shooting followed. The officer attempted to arrest Growles and the latter fired in resisting, forcing the officer to fire in defense.

RUSSIAN STUDENTS WANT BLOOD.

Three Shots Are Fired at the Governor General of Warsaw.

Vienna, April 22.—The Prague Tageblatt says that on Friday night a student fired three shots at the governor general of Warsaw, who was standing at a window of his residence. Two of the bullets hit him, but only wounded him slightly. Dispatches from Warsaw state that six professors of the university have been arrested on the charge of supporting the revolutionary agitation among the students.

RIOTING IN JAMAICA.

Fierce Conflict Between Police and a Number of Coolies.

Kingston, Jam., April 22.—A riotous outbreak occurred at Annotta Bay, on the north coast of the island. It was confined chiefly to a conflict between the police and coolies employed on an estate. Police reinforcements, which were immediately sent from Port Antonio, put an end to the fighting. Many persons were injured and numerous arrests were made. Hundreds of persons are being prosecuted in the island for the non-payment of taxes.

150 LIVES LOST.

Conservatives Blow Up a Military Barracks in Nicaragua.

New York, April 22.—A dispatch from Managua, Nicaragua, to the Herald, says: "Some members of the Conservative party caused an explosion in the military barracks here on Wednesday night. Nearly 150 lives were lost in the explosion and the barracks were destroyed. There has been considerable bitterness shown by the conservatives against the Liberal party, which is in power, and of which President Zelaya is the leader."

KILLED AT A FIRE.

Inmates of an Apartment House Cut Off From Escape.

Chicago, April 22. — Several persons were painfully burned and a little girl was killed in a fire that destroyed the "Monterey," a five-story apartment house at 95 thirty-ninth street last night. The flames spread so rapidly that many of the occupants of the upper rooms who had retired for the night were cut off from escape by the stairways, and were rescued by the firemen.

A DEADLY AMBUSH

OVER TWO THOUSAND CHINESE SOLDIERS ARE KILLED OR CAPTURED.

SURPRISED IN A NARROW DEFILE

SITUATION IN SOUTHERN CHINA GROWING DAILY MORE DESPERATE.

RUSSIANS SEE SOME FIGHTING

SURROUND FORCE OF 830 CHINESE AND ONLY THIRTY ESCAPED.

Hongkong, April 18.—A courier who arrived at Canton yesterday reported that over 2,000 imperial soldiers, sent by Marshal Su against the rebels, were ambushed in a narrow defile and all were killed or captured.

The situation in the rebellious districts of Southern China is increasingly alarming. The viceroy of Canton has telegraphed to Pekin urging immediate forwarding of reinforcements. Lack of news from Gen. Ma and Marshal Su is taken to indicate that the rebels have surrounded the imperial troops and cut off communication with them.

-o-

St. Petersburg, April 18.—An official dispatch received here from Port Arthur, dated April 12, announces that serious fighting has occurred in the vicinity of the boundary of the provinces of Mukden and Kiran, Manchuria, between Russian frontier guards and Chinese robbers, who had been raiding railroad stations. The Russians surrounded 800 Chinese at Kiang Tung Tal, and only thirty of them escaped. The Russian losses were very small.

CANNIBALS MAKE MERRY.

They Have a Fierce Fight and Then Eat Their Prisoners.

Victoria, B. C., April 18.—The steamer Moana, which reached port yesterday from Sydney, via the South sea ports, brought details of a big tribal war and cannibalistic feast. The steamer Mambare had just returned to Sydney from the New Hebrides, just prior to the departure of the Moana, and, according to the report furnished by her purser, the steamer's company found on their arrival at Tanna that a big cannibalistic feast was being held by the natives. The natives had secured a number of prisoners in a recent raid on some villages of their rivals, and when the steamer reached port some distance from the native village, they were engaged in eating the unfortunates who had been captured or killed during the tribal engagement. Some of the prisoners were brought to the fire of the feasting people, and after they had seen some of their unfortunate fellows being roasted for the feast they were slaughtered before the assembled company.

MRS. LUETGERT LIVING.

Demented Woman Who Is Believed to Be the Sausagemaker's Wife.

Chicago, April 18. — The Chronicle says: An apparently demented woman, believed by many who have seen her to be the wife of Adolph L. Luetgert, and supposed to have been murdered by her husband, is being cared for at the Alma Mott home, 589 Austin avenue. "For the supposed murder of his wife Luetgert was sentenced to the penitentiary to serve a life sentence and died in prison. The woman, who gives her name as Mary Robbins, answers all the descriptions of the supposedly murdered Mrs. Luetgert. The mental condition of the woman is such that no comprehensive examination can be made. When asked who she is she becomes rambling in her talk and can answer no questions intelligently, it is said. No effort will be spared, however, to make an identification. Further work will be done in the to-morrow. Ever since the trial there have been persistent rumors that the wife of the convicted sausagemaker was in hiding.

FILED WAY TO LIBERTY.

Prisoners Are Frustrated in a Plan to Escape.

Newark, N. J., April 18. — Warden Hosp of the county jail here was told last night that preparations had been made by the prisoners for a general delivery next Saturday night. He at once went to the cells of John Wikoff, awaiting trial for murder, and John Hench, who has pleaded guilty to highway robbery, and found several bars of the cell filed away, the filed parts being deftly filled with soap. Eight other prisoners were said to be in the plot. The ten were removed to other cells where they could hold no communication with each other. The warden says that his information is that a band of men from Philadelphia were to be on hand Saturday night to assist the prisoners in getting away.

BRYAN WILL INVESTIGATE.

British Remount Station to Be Inspected.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 18.—William J. Bryan and a party of pro-Boer sympathizers will to-day inspect the alleged British remount station at Lathrop, Mo., according to a dispatch received by one of Mr. Bryan's friends here. Mr. Bryan will visit the camp at the solicitation of friends of his in congress, who will follow his advice in the matter of urging congressional action.

OPENING NEW TRADE.

First Shipment of Oregon Wheat Has Reached Bremen.

Bremen, April 18.—The German sailing ship Nesal arrived here yesterday from Portland, Or., with a full cargo of Oregon wheat. This is the first shipment of the kind. A local mill has installed machinery for the purpose of grinding the hard-grained product of the American Northwest, which will hereafter be regularly used in making flour for the German market. The cargo is in excellent condition.

CONGRESS.

General Debate on Cuban Reciprocity Bill Closes To-Day.

Washington, April 18. — General debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill closes to-day at 3 o'clock, and it is the intention of the house leaders if possible to force a final vote on the passage of the bill before adjournment to-night. All day long yesterday the leaders were counting noses and preparing for the final struggle to-day. The opponents of the bill occupied most of the time of the debate yesterday, the feature being a vigorous speech by Mr. Cushman (Rep., Wash.) against the measure. Mr. Cushman arraigned the committee on rules and the house leaders in a breezy and at times sensational fashion. A portion of his criticism was in a semi-humorous vein, but some of it was decidedly caustic. Mr. De Armand, one of the leading Democrats of the house, delivered a forcible speech in favor of tariff reduction on trust articles.

In the Senate.

For more than four hours yesterday Mr. Morgan of Alabama, chairman of the isthmian canal committee, addressed the senate on the subject of the Nicaraguan canal. He devoted the greater part of his speech to a consideration of the desirability and practicability of the two principal routes, Nicaragua and Panama. He strenuously favored the former, maintaining that in every possible respect it had many advantages over the Panama route.

DEMOCRATS AGREE.

Favor the Removal of the Differential on Refined Sugar.

Washington, April 19. — The Democrats of the house at a caucus held last night by a very large majority estimated at 3 to 1, adopted the following resolution introduced by Mr. Swanson of Virginia:

"Resolved, That we favor the removal of the differential on refined sugar, both from Cuba and elsewhere, and believe that such amendments are properly in order, and we insist that it is the duty of all Democrats to vote whenever opportunity is given to have these amendments added to the pending bill providing for Cuban reciprocity. We are opposed to the adoption of the previous question when the bill is reported to the house unless it shall have been properly amended in committee of the whole, as this will prevent an opportunity for just and proper amendment with recorded votes on the same.

Resolved, further, that the action of this caucus is binding."

The caucus was rather turbulent during the early part of the evening, but toward the close the differences disappeared and it broke up amid evidences of harmony and good feeling.

NELSON BILL MAY BE BLOCKED.

Measure Creating Department of Commerce May Not Be Passed This Session.

Washington, April 19.—Some doubt is expressed by members of the house that Senator Nelson's department of commerce bill, which recently passed the senate, will get through at this session. Representative Fletcher of Minneapolis, member of the commerce committee of the house, before which the bill is under consideration, said it was too early to determine what the decision of the committee will be. Mr. Fletcher is much interested in the success of the measure, but he is by no means confident that it can be reported favorably from the committee. Considerable time has been devoted to the measure by the committee, not only in the way of hearings, but in executive session the committee has gone over more than half of its provisions, with a view to reporting it favorably.

DATTOS MUST GIVE UP BAD MEN.

Gen. Chaffee Demands Deliverance of Murderers.

Manila, April 19.—Gen. Chaffee has returned here from Malabang, Island of Mindanao. He says the dattos have not responded to his invitation to take part in a conference, but that the datto grande came to the American camp and through him Gen. Chaffee sent a message to the other dattos, assuring them of the friendly intentions of the United States, but warning them that they must deliver up the assassins of the American soldiers. The general reminded the dattos that the Island of Mindanao had passed into the possession of the United States by the treaty of Paris, and that the Americans intended to explore the country and build roads, etc., peaceably if possible, but that they will not brook interference on the part of the native chiefs.

THANKS FOR GEN. BELL.

President Expresses His Pleasure at Capture of Malvar.

Washington, April 19. — Adjt. Gen. Corbin has sent the following cablegram to Gen. Chaffee at Manila:

"The acting secretary of war directs me to inform you that the president wishes, through you, to express his gratification of the American people at the results of the campaign of Brig. Gen. J. Franklin Bell and the officers and men of his command, in the Batangas and Laguna provinces, which culminated in the surrender of the insurgent forces under Malvar, and which will further extend the territory in which civil government is exercised."

Colonels Promoted.

Washington, April 19.—The president nominated Colonels Carter R. Bird, Simon Snyder and William Auman to be brigadier generals in the regular army to fill existing vacancies. The president nominated James S. Clarkson to be surveyor of customs of the port of New York.

Gorki Is All Right.

St. Petersburg, April 19.—The reports of the dangerous illness of Maxim Gorki, the author, prove to be unfounded. He is in excellent health.

Live Bird Contests Illegal.

Columbus, Ohio, April 19.—The Brannock bill making it unlawful to trap-shoot any living bird or fowl in Ohio was passed by the senate yesterday and is now a law. The penalty is a fine not exceeding $100, or thirty days, or both.

To Bridge the Mississippi.

Washington, April 19. — The senate passed a bill authorizing the county commissioners of Crow Wing county, Minn., to construct a bridge across the Mississippi river between Pine river and Dean brook.

BOERS WILL QUIT

BELIEVED THAT THEY WILL ACCEPT BRITISH TERMS OF PEACE.

DISLIKE A WINTER CAMPAIGN

THE BOER LEADERS WILL SUBMIT BRITISH TERMS TO THE BURGHERS.

NO CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES

LEADERS IN EUROPE HAVE NO INFLUENCE ON NEGOTIATIONS.

Balmoral, Cape Colony, April 22—Gen. Lucius Meyer, commander-in-chief of the Orange Free State forces; Secretary of State Reitz of the Transvaal, and the other members of the party arrived here Friday night and proceeded for the north. They were accompanied by a British escort, and it is their intention to consult with the Boers in the field.

Leaders Will Talk to Burghers.

Pretoria, April 21.—Gen. Dewet has gone to Heilbron, Orange River Colony; Gen. Botha, the Transvaal commander-in-chief, has gone to Vryheid, Transvaal, and Gen. Delarey, together with Mr. Steyn, ex-president of the Orange Free State, has gone to Klerksdorp, Transvaal. They have arranged to meet the burghers at different rendezvouses and submit the British terms. It is believed the Transvaalers will everywhere accept the terms, as they are in no way anxious for a winter campaign. The only difficulty likely to occur will, it is thought be with the Orange Free Staters, many of whom are expected to prove recalcitrant. In the meantime there will be no cessation of hostilities. The delegates are expected back in Pretoria the middle of May, and in anticipation of their return they have given orders here for new clothes, provisions, etc.

Early Cessation of Hostilities.

London, April 22.—The Pretoria correspondent of the Standard cables that there is good reason to believe a tentative agreement has been arrived at which will prove mutually cordial and lead to an early cessation of hostilities. The Utrecht correspondent of the Daily Mail says it is recognized there that the Boer delegates at Pretoria have full powers to negotiate without reference to the Boer leaders in Europe, who have no real influence on the peace negotiations.

MURDERER OF MAYER.

Tennessee Police Think They Have Man Who Is Wanted at St. Paul.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 22.—A man believed to be badly wanted in St. Paul for the murder of Policeman Mayer Feb. 1 is in jail at Maryville, twenty miles south of here. He has been identified by detectives as the man wanted. Feb. 4 Deputy Sheriff Jake Lipton arrested near the North Carolina line a man who gave his name as John Williams. The man secured a horse from a citizen at Friendsville to ride to see a brother whom he claimed had been severely injured in a fight near Maryville. Instead of stopping at Maryville, he passed through. The owner of the horse became suspicious and telephoned ahead to have him arrested, which was done.

IN VIOLENT FIT OF RAGE.

Negro Mate Murders Employer Who Had Discharged Him.

Chicago, April 22.—Bisnett Rodgoger, a negro mate, while in a fit of rage last night because he had been discharged shot and killed his former employer, Lee Robinson, a colored barber, and fatally wounded James Jefferson, a customer who was sitting in a chair being shaved. As Rolgoger ran out of the shop he tried to shoot a policeman who had been attracted by the noise. The cartridge missed fire and Rolgoger was disarmed and arrested before he could do any further damage.

RIOTING IN STOCKHOLM.

Result of Agitation for Universal Suffrage.

Stockholm, April 22.—Mass meetings in favor of universal suffrage were held yesterday in all the towns in Sweden. In Stockholm the meeting was attended with considerable disorder. The demonstrators tried to march to the palace of King Oscar. They were charged by the police and several of them were wounded. Others were arrested. The approaches to the palace are now guarded by troops. The meeting at Malmoe was attended by about 15,000 persons.

BIG [illegible]

Minnesota Society of New York Will Have [illegible]

New York, April 22.—The proposed Minnesota Society of New York will start off with a membership of some 250, according to the report of the meeting of the executive committee. The society will be organized at the first annual dinner of Minnesota residents in New York on Wednesday night.

Montana's Exposition Site.

Helena, Mont., April 22.—A. J. Davidson, president of the Montana-St. Louis fair commission; Thomas C. Kurtz, its secretary; Gov. Joseph K. Toole and J. S. M. Neill have gone to St. Louis, where the executive committee of the board will select a site for the Montana building at the fair.

Damage to Vegetation.

Topeka, Kan., April 22.—A dry, hot wind from the south has swept over Kansas since early yesterday morning, doing much damage to vegetation of all kinds. Those interested say the wind has done incalculable harm to the wheat.

Engineer Killed.

Newcastle, Pa., April 22. — A west-bound Pennsylvania passenger train crashed into a work train near Covert's station, two miles west of here yesterday, killing Engineer W. W. Irwin.

INDIAN HAS WEALTH.

Geronimius Silas, Oneida Indian and a Railroad Brakeman, Is Heir to Small Fortune.

Duluth, April 20.—An Oneida Indian named Geronimius Silas, a brakeman in the employ of the Northern Pacific railroad, on the Lake Superior division, has discovered that he is heir to property in Michigan, on and near the Oneida reservation, worth $5,000. It is an interesting story. A few weeks ago a well dressed young man of swarthy appearance and a prosperous air called on Judge J. B. Middlecoff, and said that his mother, an Oneida Indian woman, had died in 1901 and was supposed to have some property. He said that he would like to have the matter investigated. Judge Middlecoff went to Michigan and found that the administrator was just winding up the Silas estate. He petitioned the court to defer the case until he had an opportunity to investigate. This was granted and Judge Middlecoff found that the mother had deeded a farm worth $1,500 to her son before she died. In addition to that it was discovered that the son is entitled to an allotment in the Oneida reservation and that the mother also had one there.

STOCKMEN PROTEST.

Don't Want to Unload Cattle Every Twenty-Four Hours.

Helena, Mont., April 20.—The North Montana Round-up association yesterday adopted a resolution protesting against the re-inspection of stock by the inspectors of Colorado and Wyoming while in transit from the South to Northern ranges, when federal inspectors have given a certificate of health for them. The association also asked congress to amend the law requiring the unloading and feeding of stock in transit every twenty-four hours, so that the limit will be placed at forty-eight hours; indorsing national irrigation; protesting against the oleomargarine bill, and indorsing W. E. Skinner, manager of the Chicago International Live Stock show, for the position of manager of the live stock department of the St. Louis fair.

BRILLIANT MILITARY BALL.

University of Iowa Outdoes Itself in a Social Way.

Iowa City, Iowa, April 20.—The University of Iowa yesterday eclipsed all past events in its social history when Col. George R. Burnett, commandant of the battalion, gave the military ball, which has been subject of discussion here for many weeks. The function was in honor of Gov. A. B. Cummins, who was attended by his entire staff. The staff officers were in full military regalia, and the university battalion also appeared in uniform. Gov. and Mrs. Cummins, followed by Adjt. Gen. and Mrs. Byers, led the grand march, in which 200 persons from all parts of the state participated. The members of the staff and their wives aided the chief executive of Iowa in receiving the guests.

GOOD BERRY CROP.

Wisconsin Growers Report That Bushes Wintered Well.

Sparta, Wis., April 20.—Berry growers in the vicinity of Sparta (the greatest berry growing center in the Northwest) are in the midst of uncovering strawberry beds and taking up and wiring the bushberry cane. Bushes and vines of all kinds wintered well and are in good shape. The spring thus far has been cold and dry, but with good weather from now on a good crop can be confidently predicted. Hundreds of carloads of berries are shipped from here each year. The industry gives employment for many hundred pickers from June to September.

HUSBAND AN INSANE HERMIT.

Iowa Woman Appointed Guardian of Her Spouse.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 20.—Mrs. J. A. Eveleth, residing in a mansion in the country south of this city, was yesterday appointed guardian for her husband, whom she asserts in her petition to be of unsound mind. She states he left home for California for his health four years ago with a large sum of money. He lost his mind out there and she had not heard from him until her son recently located him in Los Angeles county, living a hermit, alone and insane. Eveleth is worth $75,000. They have seven children, the youngest being five years old.

EVIDENCE IS STRONG.

George La Due Is Held to the Grand Jury.

Bemidji, Minn., April 20.—The hearing of George La Due, charged with the murder of Eugene McGlauchlin, was finished yesterday, and he was committed to Crookston jail to await the action of the next grand jury. His accomplice, John Berry, will have his hearing to-day. State Chemist Catlin, who examined the stomach of the victim, gave his testimony, showing that death was caused by shoebery poison. The state has a strong case against both the accused.

Jail Sentences and Fines.

Fargo, N. D., April 20.—Judge Amidon of the United States court has sentenced a batch of prisoners indicted at the Bismarck term of court. Three of them were on liquor charges and were given sixty-day jail sentences with fines of $100. The others were fined $30 each and given twenty days in jail on timber trespass charges.

Montana Cattle Men in Session.

Helena, Mont., April 20.—The annual business meeting of the North Montana Round-up association was held here yesterday. The forenoon and afternoon sessions were of an executive nature. In the evening Jerry Simpson, formerly of Kansas, addressed the gathering at the Auditorium.

"Harmless" Bull Attacks Boy.

Osage, Iowa, April 20.—Louie Dromer, the twelve-year son of a farmer living east of here, was attacked by a bull yesterday and had two ribs and an ankle broken. The animal was supposed to be harmless.

Select a Carnegie Site.

Yankton, S. D., April 20.—The Carnegie library has been located on the corner of Fourth and Capitol streets and work will begin on the building as soon as the plans can be submitted and approved.

WORK OF FIREBUGS

DALLAS, TEXAS, SUFFERS A PROPERTY LOSS OF ABOUT $400,000.

TWO PERSONS FATALLY INJURED

FIRE CHIEF RESCUED FROM THE FLAMES BY THE POLICE.

BREAKS OUT IN THREE PLACES

POLICE AND FIREMEN BELIEVE THAT ALL WERE DUE TO INCENDIARISM.

Dallas, Tex., April 22.—Two persons were fatally injured; Fire Chief Magee was prostrated, and a property loss of fully $400,000 was caused by several fires which occurred here shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour an alarm was turned in from the Dorsey Printing establishment and in a short time one of the fiercest conflagrations which has visited Dallas in years was in progress. To add to the troubles of the firemen several other alarms from different parts of the city were turned in in quick succession. After fighting the fire for two hours Chief Magee was prostrated and command was turned over to an assistant. The chief was rescued from the flames by the police and was unconscious for several hours, but later was reported out of danger. Fireman Will Spurr was struck in the face with a brick and fatally injured. The young son of Fire Chief Magee was found on the floor of the engine room at central station,

With a Fractured Skull.

It is supposed that the lad attempted to slide from the bunk room to the engine room on one of the iron poles used by the firemen, and fell to the floor below. He probably will die.

The Dorsey printing plant was totally destroyed, the loss being about $200,000, half-covered by insurance. While the Dorsey fire was in progress a fire broke out on Lamar street, near Collin, and twenty buildings were destroyed. Half of them were ordinary business houses and the remainder boarding houses and dwellings.

While the two big fires were raging a third one broke out in the residence district of Fisher Lane, South Dallas, two miles distant, which destroyed four cottages worth $20,000.

Insurance men are positive that the fire on Fisher Lane was incendiary and the police and fire departments are strongly inclined to believe that all were due to incendiaries.

CITIZENS TRY WALKING.

San Francisco Street Car System Tied Up by a Strike.

San Francisco, April 22.—San Franciscans were without the usual facilities of rapid transit yesterday and many walked. The street railway strike has become effective. Only three lines were in operation, California, Hyde and Union streets. Business on every line of the United railway of the Baltimore syndicate which recently took over the Market street system were suspended. The cables were running but they drew no cars. Early yesterday a few cars under police supervision were run over the different lines of the system to comply with the franchise requirements, but no attempt was made to carry passengers. The only facility for traveling over the affected district was furnished by automobiles and carry-alls. The day passed very quietly.

FRANK R. STOCKTON DEAD.

Well-Known Novelist Dies From Hemhorrhage of the Brain.

Washington, April 22. — Frank R. Stockton, the well-known novelist, died suddenly here yesterday morning. The cause of Mr. Stockton's death was paralysis immediately resulting from a hemorrhage in the brain. He was a guest at the banquet held Wednesday night of the National Academy of Sciences, when he was taken suddenly and mysteriously ill. The ailment did not at that time appear to be serious, and for awhile the sufferer seemed to be improving, but a change for the worse came yesterday morning and death occurred at 11 o'clock.

PROMINENT MAN MURDERED.

Neighbor With Whom He Had Quarreled Is Arrested.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 22. — Alex Woodward, aged sixty-three, a prominent citizen, was assassinated at his home near Ellijoy yesterday. James Cumins, a neighbor, ran to Woodward's home on hearing a shot and found Woodward dying and unable to speak. J. H. Ogle, who lives on a farm near by, is under arrest charged with the crime. Woodward and Ogle had been parties to many suits and Woodward recently testified he would not believe Ogle on oath.

REBELS COME IN DAILY.

Surrenders Increase Since Gen. Malvar Gave Up.

Manila, April 22.—Surrenders to the American authorities of small parties of insurgents are received daily, and these have increased since the recent surrender of the insurgent Gen. Malvar. Gen. Ruino, with 26 officers and 375 soldiers, has surrendered to the native constabulary in the Province of Misamis, in Mindanao, where the constabulary are co-operating with the military.

LIGHTNING KILLS BOYS.

Panic Is Caused in Baseball Audience in Ohio.

Akron, Ohio, April 22.—Richard Roan and Arthur Rogers, aged about twelve and fifteen years respectively, were killed by lightning, which struck the grandstand at Buchtel college athletic park just before the beginning of a ball game between a local team and one from Canton. There was a panic among the spectators but it was quickly ended. Several other persons were slightly hurt by the lightning.

CLERK AND STOCKS MISSING.

New York Brokers Ask Police to Clear Up a Mystery.

New York, April 18.—Ames, Swain & Co., bankers and brokers, last night asked the police to aid them in clearing up the mystery of the disappearance from their office yesterday of 100 shares of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul stock, said to be worth about $17,000. The firm also asked that the nonappearance of their confidential bookkeeper, Allen F. Hedges, be looked into. He went out at about his usual time for luncheon and a minute later a member of the firm had occasion to ask for the 100 shares of stock which had been brought in from A. Sealand & Co. When inquiry was made for it no trace of the shares was to be had and Hedges did not come back from lunch. Inquiry was made at both the stock and consolidated exchanges and from the latter word was received that the shares had just been handled there and sold to Zimmerman & Forshay, bankers. That house was notified and further sale of the stock stopped until the mystery could be explained. The stock had not been purchased outright, but had been taken as collateral for a loan of $5,000, and no greater sum was involved as far as the loss to Ames, Swan & Co. might be considered.

LEADS JAIL DELIVERY.

James Ryan, for the Second Time, Breaks Out of Prison.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 18.—For the second time within a month James Ryan of New York city, who is awaiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny, led a jail delivery here last night. A few weeks ago Ryan and another prisoner named Anderson escaped from the old Duchess jail by sawing a bar from the window. Ryan was captured at Yonkers. Since then the old jail has been torn down and the prisoners were confined in the old Vassar brewery, which has been equipped as a temporary jail while the new combination court house and county prison is being built. Last night Ryan and three other prisoners escaped from the brewery jail by removing bricks from the partition between their cells and an adjoining one and then repeating the operation in a second wall which admitted them to an abandoned part of the brewery which was wide open. Up to midnight none of the prisoners had been captured.

GIVE UP BOCAS OR FIGHT, FOR IT.

Colombian General Sends Ultimatum to Rebels.

Colon, Colombia, April 18.—A launch belonging to the Panama Canal company returned here yesterday morning from Bocas del Toro, bringing reports that the situation there is growing more serious. The Liberal troops under Gen. Buendia have reached Old Bank, a settlement on the island near the entrance to Bocas del Toro. Gen. Buendia notified the government commander at Bocas that fourteen hours would be given him in which to surrender the town, and that his non-compliance with this ultimatum would result in immediate attack. The commander of the government forces declined the terms offered by the revolutionary general.

MURDERER BROUGHT TO BAY.

Attempts to Drown Himself but Police Rescue Him.

Springfield, Mass., April 18.—Bernard Werthans, murderer of his wife, attempted to drown himself yesterday when brought to bay by man hunters near Palmer. With great difficulty he was resuscitated and then taken through shouting mobs to the Springfield police headquarters, where he fully confessed his deed. Werthans shot his wife in the Highland hotel of this city, where he was employed. He escaped by keeping away at the point of his revolver those who tried to stop him and fled, after tearing off a disguise of woman's clothing.

WITH BROOMS AND MOPS.

Scrubwomen Prevent a Wholesale Jail Delivery.

Kokomo, Ind., April 18.—A wholesale daylight jail delivery was frustrated by scrub women here yesterday. In the absence of the sheriff the prisoners sawed the bars and escaped through them. When the women opened the door to scrub the floors of the corridor the prisoners made a dash for liberty, but were clubbed back by the women, who did good work with the brooms and mops. After the prisoners were repulsed and driven back Turnkey Applegate came to the assistance of the women.

TO HIS NEW DUTIES.

President-Elect Palma Is on His Way to Cuba.

Washington, April 18. — President-elect Tomas Estrada Palma, of the new Cuban republic, passed through here yesterday afternoon en route to Cuba. He will visit a number of Cuban cities and towns, going first to Jibara, thence to Holguin and his native home, Bayamo. From there the president-elect will proceed to Manzanillo and Santiago, and go to Havana about May 9. The president-elect is suffering from a cold and his health is apparently far from perfect.

IS FORCED TO ENLIST.

American in South Africa Is Fighting the Boers Against His Will.

Lowell, Mass., April 18.—Alexander Ramsey writes his brother, James P. Ramsey, probation officer in the superior court, that he was forced to enlist in the British army in South Africa or go to jail for six months. Mr. Ramsey writes that he contracted to go from New Orleans to South Africa on a mule transport and was arrested while sightseeing. He says in his letter that he is serving with the Canadians.

Did Not Burn the Jail.

White Earth, Minn., April 18.—After being out five hours the jury in the incendiary case in district court at Fergus Falls against Will Burnett and John McArthur, on charge of burning down the White Earth jail, returned a verdict of not guilty.

School Lands Leased.

Dickinson, N. D., April 18.—Yesterday the state lands in Stark county were leased, and brought many anxious stockmen to the city. The bidding for some tracts was very spirited.

STORY IS DENIED

IMMIGRANTS ARE NOT WHIPPED BY NEW YORK SPECIAL POLICE.

ARE GIVEN PROTECTION INSTEAD

RAWHIDE WHIPS ARE FOR HOTEL RUNNERS, IDLERS AND "SHARKS."

ONLY WAY TO HANDLE THEM

PESTS WHO MENACE THE IMMIGRANTS AS THEY LAND AT THE BATTERY.

New York, April 21.—Commissioner of Immigration Fitchie has received orders from Washington to investigate published stories that immigrants who land in this city at the Battery are brutally treated by the special police on duty there.

A Brooklyn resident sent a batch of these stories to President Roosevelt and accompanied it with a statement that one of the instances he knew, from personal observation, to be true. The president, after looking over the papers, sent them to Secretary Shaw, who in turn forwarded them to Mr. Fitchie, with orders to apply the probe.

The instance mentioned was that the special police carried rawhide whips, with which they beat the immigrants, driving the foreigners before them like so many cattle.

Commissioner Fitchie is already out in a denial of the charges. He and his police declare it is not the immigrants who are lashed with whips. It is, they say, the horde of hotel runners, idlers, "sharks" and other men who have no legitimate business at the Battery and who menace the immigrants as they land. The officers declare that the only way to get rid of these pests, as they term them, is to use violence.

COLLISION ON NORTHERN PACIFIC.

West-bound Flyer Meets a Freight Train.

Watab, Minn., April 21.—Five people were injured in a head-end collision of the Northern Pacific west-bound flyer, known as train No. 11, with an extra freight train about half a mile east of this place, at 12:22 yesterday. Both engines were badly damaged. A carload of horses was telescoped and piled on top of a car of lumber. None of the persons injured were fatally hurt.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED.

Wagon in Which They Were Riding Is Struck by a Train.

Bolivar, Tenn., April 21.—At Loone, seven miles north of here yesterday, four persons were killed and a fifth fatally hurt by an Illinois Central excursion train. The persons killed or wounded were in a wagon and attempted to cross the tracks when the second section of a special struck the vehicle.

Lamberton Wants Light.

Lamberton, Minn., April 21. — The citizens of Lamberton have petitioned for, and the village council has called a special village election on May 5 for the purpose of voting on the proposition to bond the village for $5,000 for installing a lighting plant in the village. Our village has up to the present been accommodated only with kerosene and gasoline lamps, which do not illuminate extensively, and our progressive business men feel that a change to a more substantial light will greatly redound to the benefit of the people. It is claimed that the proposition will carry, as with a very few exceptions everyone is in favor of the new light.

Lumber Burned at Lead.

Lead, S. D., April 21.—Fire destroyed the office and a warehouse of the Stearns Lumber company in Lead, causing a loss amounting to $5,000. The buildings were the property of Emil Faust and were insured for $500. The contents consisted of lumber, fuel and feed. The firemen had difficulty in saving buildings in the region. The streets were so muddy that there was delay in getting the fire apparatus to the blaze and it looked for a time as if there would be a general conflagration. A building across the street belonging to James Halloran was considerably damaged.

Poisoning of McGlauchlin.

Bemidji, Minn., April 21. — The hearing of Joseph Seguin begins to-morrow for alleged complicity in the McGlauchlin murder case. He was bartender in Spider's saloon, where McGlauchlin was poisoned, and was implicated by the confession of John Berry, one of the principals. Berry probably will waive examination. The case against C. A. Williams, another suspected bartender, was dismissed by the state. La Due was held to the grand jury and was taken to Crookston yesterday to await trial.

Fatal Shooting Ends Quarrel.

St. Louis, April 21.—In a quarrel over a baseball that was said to have been thrown into his yard by neighbors' children, Abe Slupsky, a prominent local politician, yesterday shot and fatally wounded Charles Pinckard, a saloonkeeper, with the latter's revolver. Slupsky, who is under arrest, says he shot in self-defense, after securing possession of Pinckard's revolver.

Business Men Organize.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 21. — At a meeting of the business men and other citizens of Plankinton a business men's association was organized and a constitution and by-laws adopted. The following officers were elected: President, T. C. De Jean; vice president, J. D. Stemler; secretary, W. L. Anderson; treasurer, W. T. Lathrop.

Aged Scandinavian Dead.

Spring Valley, Minn., April 21.—Ole Hellickson, residing nine miles south of this city, is dead at the age of ninety years. His wife, aged sixty years, and seven children survive him. He came to this country in 1855 and was a great factor for good among the Scandinavians of Southern Minnesota.

They Can't Hear Huron.

Sturgis, S. D., April 21. — At the recent session of the board of county commissioners of Meade county, that body declined to appropriate $400, or any sum, for a South Dakota exhibit at the St. Louis exposition in 1903, as suggested by the Business Men's association at Huron.

IMPURE BAKING POWDER SEIZED

The New York Board of Health Find It Contains Alum and Rock, Declare It Dangerous to Health and Dump It Into the River.

The New York papers report that the Health Department of that city has seized as dangerous to health nearly two tons of cheap mixtures sold for baking powder and dumped them into the offal scow to be destroyed. More of the powder was found in a Sixth ave. department store. The report of the analysis of the Health Department stated that it was "an alum baking powder" containing alum and pulverized rock.

The different Health Authorities seem to have different ways of repressing the sale of bad baking powders. In England they have prosecuted the grocers under the general law and broken up the traffic. In Missouri the sale of alum baking powder is actually prohibited by law. In New York they seize the unwholesome stuff and cast it into the river without any discussion. The latter way is certainly effective.

The alum baking powders are usually offered at a low price, ten to twenty cents a pound, or with some prize, as a temptation to the housewife.

Consumers can protect themselves by buying only high-grade baking powder, of established name and reputation. Do not be tempted by the grocer to take something else as "just as good" or "our own brand," for the trials show that the grocer himself is often deceived by unscrupulous makers, and is selling an alum powder without knowing it.

There are several good powders on the market; let the housekeeper insist on having what she knows is right, and not be induced to risk the life of the family for an imaginary saving of a few cents.

Returned With Interest.

A country farmer was driving down a narrow lane on his way to visit a friend, when he espied an old woman in the middle of the road picking up some pieces of turf, which had evidently fell from some passing wagon.

Pulling his horse up, to avoid running over her, he said, rather sharply: "Women and donkeys are always in the way!"

"Sure, sir," she said, stepping to one side, "I'm glad you've the manners to put yourself last."—Cassell's Journal.

The Sun a Poor Timekeeper.

The sun does not keep good time. He is almost always too fast or too slow. Once, about the middle of April, he is just on time; then not again before the middle of June. At the beginning of September he joins the clock a third time, and, lastly, once more in December. Now it would seem as if he were startled at the way he had neglected us. In February he fell back until he was fifteen minutes late. By the middle of March he had made up five minutes of the loss, and before the month is over he will have caught up to within five minutes of the schedule. Meanwhile the days have been growing longer very rapidly. We begin March with our nights longer than our days. We end it with the days longer than the nights. In the one month we have added to the length of our day an hour and twenty minutes, a bigger gain than any other month can show.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Worth of Some London Property.

Land at £2,613,000 an acre does not frequently come into the market, even in London, but a few years ago, when the freehold of Cheapside was sold, the sum it realized was at the above rate per acre: that is to say, a piece of ground that could be covered by an ordinary penny postage stamp realized is 11 1-2d, not at all a bad price for a paltry five-sixths of a square inch of real estate. Judging from the ground-rents secured on No. 10 Cornhill, which, five or six years ago, realized £42,500, that is to say, at the rate of practically £55 per square foot, or £2,452,022 per acre, there are many other delectable spots in the city worth their area in beaten gold, and it is wonderful how prices fall away when the site has not got a frontage on a main thoroughfare. Twenty-two pounds sterling for a piece of ground measuring twelve inches by twelve inches, would doubtless be a price that would tempt even an Irish landlord to part with his property.—Good Words.

A Postmaster's Discovery.

Lancaster, N. Y., April 21st.—Mr. John Remers, postmaster of this village, was taken with Diabetes four years ago. For two years he doctored with local physicians, and tried several specialists from Buffalo, but got no better. Indeed, he was gradually growing worse.

He stopped taking the doctors' medicine and commenced a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He used in all about ten boxes, and is as strong and well to-day as ever he was.

He attributes his recovery to nothing but Dodd's Kidney Pills, and says:

"If I could only talk five minutes to every one who has Diabetes I am sure I could convince them that they need'nt suffer a moment longer, when Dodd's Kidney Pills are on sale in every drug store.

"I will cheerfully answer any letters from sick men or women, as I think every Diabetes sufferer should be told of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the remedy that saved my life."

The Same Old Party.

Little Ben is the only son of J. B. Wilbur, president of the Royal Trust company of Chicago. Until Ben was seven years of age he always addressed his parents as "Papa" and "Mamma." Then his mother struggled with him to speak to and of them as father and mother. He was corrected many times before he could make up his mind to address them as she wished. One night while saying his prayers, he, as usual, asked God to bless his dear papa and mamma. Suddenly he stopped praying, and, in a perfectly solemn and respectful manner, said:

"Excuse me, God, I should have said father and mother; but, Lord, they are the same old party."—New York Times.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER II. (Continued.)

He quickened his pace again, and finally stopped before one of the big houses where lights were gleaming from the hall and dining room windows. They were electric lights, by their great power, and save for the hall and dining room, the rest of the house lay in utter darkness. The cyle bell let off an approving staccato from behind the blankety fog as Steel pulled up.

There was nothing abnormal about the house, nothing that struck the adventurer's eye beyond the extraordinary vividness of the crimson blind. The two side windows of the big bay were evidently shuttered, but the large center gleamed like a flood of scarlet overlaid with a silken sheen. Far across the pavement the ruby track struck into the heart of the fog.

"Vivid note," Steel murmured. "I shall remember that impression."

He was destined never to forget it; but it was only one note in the gamut of adventure now. With a firm step he walked up the marble flight and turned the handle. It felt dirty and rusty to his touch. Evidently the servants were neglectful, or they were employed by people who had small regard for outward appearances.

The door opened noiselessly and Steel closed it behind him. A Morrish lantern cast a brilliant flood of light upon a crimson carpet, a chair and an empty oak umbrella stand. Beyond this there was no atom of furniture in the hall. It was impossible to see beyond the dining room door, for a heavy red velvet curtain was drawn across. David's first impression was the amazing stillness of the place. It gave him a queer feeling that a murder had been committed there, and everybody had fled, leaving the corpse behind. As David coughed away the lump in his throat the cough sounded strangely hollow.

He passed into the dining room and looked eagerly about him. The room was handsomely furnished, if a little conventional—a big mahogany table in the center, rows of mahogany chairs, upholstered in red morocco, fine modern prints, most of them artists' proofs, on the walls. A big marble clock, flanked by a pair of vases on the sideboard. The red distemper had faded to pale pink in places.

"Tottenham Court Road," Steel smiled to himself. "Modern, solid, expensive, but decidedly inartistic. Ginger jars, fourteen guineas a pair, worth about as many pence. Moneyed people, solid and respectable, of the middle class. What brings them playing at mystery like this?"

The room was brilliantly lighted, both from overhead and from the walls. On the shining desert of the dining table lay a small, flat parcel, addressed to David Steel, Esq. The novelist tore off the cover and disclosed a heap of crackling white papers beneath. Rapidly he fluttered the crisp sheets over—seventy-five Bank of England notes for £10 each.

It was the balance of the loan—the price paid for Steel's presence. All he had to do now was to place the money in his pocket and walk out of the house. A few steps and he would be free, with nobody to say him nay. It was a temptation, but Steel fought it down. He slipped the precious notes into his pocket and buttoned his coat tightly over them. He had no fear of the coming day now.

"And yet," he murmured, "what of the price I shall have to pay for this?"

Well, it was worth a ransom. And, so long as there was nothing dishonorable attached to it, Steel was prepared to redeem his pledge. He knew perfectly well, from bitter experience, that the poor man pays usurious rates for fortune's favors. And he was not without a strange sense of gratitude. If—

Click, click, click! The three electric switches were snapped off almost simultaneously outside, and the dining room was plunged into pitchy darkness. Steel instantly caught up a chair. He was no coward, but he was a novelist, with a novelist's imagination. As he stood there, the sweetest, most musical laugh in the world broke on his ear. He caught the swish of silken drapery and the subtle scent that suggested the fragrance of a woman's hair. It was vague undefined, yet soothing.

"Pray be seated, Mr. Steel," the silvery voice said. "Believe me, had there been any other way, I would not have given you all this trouble. You found the parcel addressed to you? It is an earnest of good faith. Is not that a correct English expression?"

David murmured that it was. But what did the speaker mean? She asked the question like a student of the English language, and yet her accent and phrasing were perfect. She laughed again, noiselessly, and once more Steel caught the subtle, entrancing perfume.

"I make no further apology for dragging you here at this time," the sweet voice said. "We knew that you were in the habit of sitting up late at night, hence the telephone message. You will perhaps wonder how we came to know so much of your private affairs. Rest assured that we learned nothing in Brighton. Presently you may gather why I am so deeply interested in you; I have been so for the past fortnight. You see, we were not quite certain that you would come to our assistance unless we could find some means of coercing you. Then we go to one of the smartest inquiry agents in the world and say: 'Tell us all about David Steel without delay. Money is no object.' In less than a week we know all about Bechstein. We leave matters until the last moment. If you only knew how revolting it all was!"

"So your tone seems to imply, madam," Steel said, dryly.

"Oh, but truly. You were in great trouble, and we found a way to get you out of it. But your trouble is nothing as compared with mine—which brings me to business. A fortnight ago last Monday you posted to Mr. Vanstone, editor of the Piccadilly Magazine, the synopsis of the first four or five chapters of a proposed serial for the journal in question. You open that story with a young and beautiful woman who is in deadly peril. Is not that so?"

"Yes," Steel said, faintly. "It is just as you suggest. But how—"

"Never mind that, because I am not going to tell you. In common parlance—is not that the w r d?—that woman is in a frightful fix. There is nothing strained about your heroine's situation, because I have heard of people being in a similar plight before. Mr. Steel, I want you to tell me, truthfully and candidly, can you say the way clear to save your heroine? Oh, I don't mean by the long arm of coincidence or other favorite ruses known to your craft. I mean by common-sense, logical methods, by brilliant ruses, by Machiavellian means. Tell me, do you see a way?"

The question came eagerly, almost imploringly, from the Darkness. David could hear the quick gasps of the questioner, could catch the rustle of the silken corsage as she breathed.

"Yes," he said, "I can see a brilliant way out, that would satisfy the strictest logician. But you—"

"Thank Heaven! Mr. Steel, I am your heroine. I am placed in exactly the same position as the woman whose story you are going to write. The setting is different, the local coloring is not the same, but the same deadly peril menaces me. For the love of heaven, hold out your hand to save a lonely and desperate woman whose only crime is that she is rich and beautiful. Providence had placed in my hands the gist of your heroine's story. Hence this masquerade; hence the fact that you are here to-night. I have helped you—help me in return?"

It was some time before Steel spoke.

"It shall be as your wish," he said. "I will tell you how I propose to save my heroine. Her sufferings are fiction; yours will be real. But if you are saved by the same means, Heaven help you to bear the troubles that are in front of you! Before God, it would be more merciful for me to be silent and let you go your own way!"

CHAPTER III.

The Voice in the Darkness.

David was silent for a long time. The strangeness of the situation had shut down on him again, and he was thinking of nothing else for the moment. In the dead stillness of the place he could hear the quick breathing of his companion; the rustle of her dress seemed near to him and then to be very far off. Nor did the pitchy darkness yield a jot to his now accustomed eyes. He held a hand close to his eyes, but he could see nothing.

"Well?" the sweet voice in the darkness said, impatiently. "Well?"

"Believe me, I will give you all the assistance possible. If you would only turn up the light—"

"Oh, I dare not. I have given my word of honor not to violate the seal of secrecy. You may say that we have been absurdly cautious in this matter, but you would not think so if you knew everything. Even now the wretch who holds me in his power may have guessed my strategy and be laughing at me. Some day, perhaps—"

The speaker stopped, with something like a sob in her throat.

"We are wasting precious time," she went on, more calmly. "I had better tell you my history. In your story a woman commits a crime; she is guilty of a serious breach of trust to save the life of the man she loves. By doing so she places the future and the happiness of many people in the hands of an abandoned scoundrel. If she can only manage to regain the thing she has parted from the situation is saved. Is not that so?"

"So far you have stated the case correctly," David murmured.

"As I said before, I am in practically a similar case. Only, in my situation, I hastened everything and risked the happiness of many people for the sake of a little child."

"Ah!" David cried. "Your own child? No! The child of one very near and dear to you, then. From the mere novelist point of view, that is a far more artistic idea than mine. I see that I shall have to amend my story before it is published."

A rippling little laugh came like the song of a bird in the darkness.

"Dear Mr. Steel," the voice said, "I implore you to do nothing of the kind. You are a man of fertile imagination—a plot more or less makes no difference to you. If you publish that story you go far on the way to ruin me."

"I am afraid that I am in the dark in more senses than one," David murmured.

"Then, let me enlighten you. Daily your books are more widely read. My enemy is a great novel-reader. You publish that story, and what results? You not only tell that enemy my story, but you show him my way out of the difficulty, and show him how he can checkmate my every move. Perhaps, after I have escaped from the net—"

"You are right," Steel said, promptly. "From a professional point of view, the story is abandoned. And now you want me to show you a rational and logical, a human way out?"

"If you can do so, you have my everlasting gratitude."

"Then you must tell me, in detail, what it is you want to recover. My heroine parts with a document which the villain knows to be a forgery. Money can not buy it back, because the villain can make as much money as he likes by retaining it. He does as he likes with the family property; he keeps my heroine's husband out of England by dangling the forgery and its consequences over his head. What is to be done? How is the ruffian to be lulled into a false sense of security by the one man who desires to throw dust in his eyes?"

"Ah!" the voice cried; "ah, if you could only tell me that! Yet my ruffian only imagine that I am dead; let him have proofs of it, and the thing is done. I could reach him then; I could tear from him the letter that—but I need not go into details. But he is cunning as the serpent. Nothing but the must convincing proofs would satisfy him."

"A certificate of death, signed by a physician beyond reproach."

"Yes; that would do. But you could not get a medical man like that to commit a felony."

"No; but we could trick him into it," Steel exclaimed. "In my story, a fraud is perpetrated to bind the villain and to deprive him of his weapons. It is a case of the end justifying the means. But it is one thing, my dear lady, to commit fraud actually, and to perpetrate it in a novel. In the latter case you can defy the police; but, unfortunately, you and I are dealing with real life. If I am to help you, I must be a party to the felony."

"But you will? You are not going to draw back now? Mr. Steel, I have saved your home. You are a happy man compared to what you were two hours ago. If the risk is great, you have brains and imagination to get out of danger. Show me how to do it, and the rest shall be mine. You have never seen me; you know nothing, not even the name of the person who called you over the telephone. You have only to keep your own counsel, and if I wade in blood to my end, you are safe. Tell me how I can die, disappear, leaving that one man to believe I am no more. And do not make it too ingenious. Don't forget that you promised to show me a rational way out of the difficulty. How can it be done?"

"In my pocket I have a cutting from the Times which contains a chapter from the history of a medical student who is alone in London. It closely resembles my plot. He says he has no friends, and he deems it prudent, for reasons we need not discuss, to let the world assume that he is dead. The rest is tolerably easy. He disguises himself and goes to a doctor of repute, whom he asks to come and see his brother—i. e., himself—who is dangerously ill. The doctor goes, later in the day, and finds his patient in bed, with severe internal inflammation. This is brought about by a free use of albumen. I don't know what amount of albumen one would take, without extreme risk; but you could pump that information out of a doctor. Well, our medical man calls again, and yet again, and finds his patient sinking. The next day the patient, disguised, calls upon the doctor with the information that his brother is dead. The doctor is not in the least surprised, and, without going to view the body, gives a certificate of death. Now, I admit, that all this sounds cheap and theatrical; but you can't get over facts. The thing actually happened a little time ago in London, and there is no reason why it shouldn't happen again."

"You suggest that I should do this thing?" the voice asked.

"Pardon me, I did nothing of the kind," Steel replied. "You asked me to show you how my heroine gets herself out of a terrible position, and I am doing it. You are not without friends. The way I was called up to-night and the way I was brought here, prove that. With the aid of your friends, the thing is possible. You are only to find a lodging where people are not too observant and a doctor who is too busy, or too careless, to look after dead patients, and the thing is done. If you desire to be looked upon as dead—especially as a powerful enemy—I cannot recommend a more natural, rational way than this. As to the details, they may be safely left to you. The clever manner in which you have kept up the mystery to-night convinces me that I have nothing to teach you in this direction. And if there is anything more I can do—"

"A thousand, thousand thanks!" the voice cried, passionately. "To be looked upon as 'dead,' to be near to the rascal who smiles to think that I am in my grave, . . . And everything so dull and prosaic on the surface! Yes, I have friends who will aid me in the business. Some day I may be able to thank you face to face, to tell you how I managed to see your plot. May I?"

The question came quite eagerly, almost imploringly. In the darkness, Steel felt a hand trembling on his breast, a cool, slim hand, with many rings on the fingers. Steel took the hand and carried it to his lips.

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure," he said. "And may you be successful. Good-night."

"Good-night, and God bless you for a real gentleman and a true friend. I will go out of the room first, and put the lights up afterwards. You will walk away and close the door behind you. The newspaper cutting! Thanks. And once more, good-night but let us hope not good-bye."

She was gone. Steel could hear the distant, dying swish of silk, the rustle of the portiere, and then, with a click, the lights came up again. Half-blinded by the sudden illumination, Steel fumbled his way to the door and into the street. As he did so, Hove Town Hall clock chimed two. With a cigarette between his teeth, David made his way home.

He could not think it all out yet; he would wait until he was in his own comfortable chair, under the roses and palms leading from his study. A fine night of adventure, truly; and a paying one. He pressed the precious packet of notes to his side and his soul expanded.

He was home at last. But, surely, he had closed the door before he started? He remembered, distinctly, trying the latch. And here the latch was back and the door open! The quick snap of the electric light declared nobody in the dining room. Beyond the study was in darkness. Nobody there, but—stop!

A stain on the carpet; another by the conservatory door. Pots of flowers scattered about, and a huddled mass, like a litter of empty sacks, in one corner. Then the huddled mass resolved itself into the figure of a man, with a white face smeared with blood. Dead? Oh, yes, dead enough.

Steel flew to the telephone and rang furiously.

"Give me 52, Police Station!" he cried. "Are you there? Send somebody at once up here—15 Downend Terrace. There has been murder done here. For Heaven's sake, come quickly!"

Steel dropped the receiver and stared at the dreadful sight before him.

New Story of Grant

How the Great Commander Nullified a Harsh Order That He Had Given

Col. George Inman, a civil engineer, who was an engineer in the Union army with Grant in front of Petersburg in 1864-1865, as colonel of engineers, now engaged on some public work near Richmond, told this story of U. S. Grant to a group of Confederate veterans, ex-officers, there recently.

In the winter of 1864 a Capt. Hamilton of the Confederate army was captured within the Federal lines, and there were found on his person papers which clearly indicated that he had penetrated the lines for the purpose of gaining information for Gen. Lee. He was court-martialed and was at once condemned to be hanged at sunrise the next day. Col. Hamilton, who was in command of a cavalry regiment under Gen. Grant, was charged with the duty of furnishing the detail which was to execute the sentence of the court.

The night of the day on which the court pronounced the sentence on Capt. Hamilton Col. Inman went to Gen. Grant's tent to see him on a matter connected with the operations against the Confederates. He had been in the tent for some time when the orderly announced, "Col. Hamilton." A soldierly appearing officer entered and saluted. Before Gen. Grant had time to speak the colonel said in hard tones: "General, I cannot obey the order to execute that spy to-morrow morning."

Gen. Grant started as if shot.

"Why not?" he said in sharp tones.

The colonel was silent. He stood with bared head dropped on his bosom. Gen. Grant again asked him why he refused to obey his order, and this time there was a sharpness in his tone which was not there before. Col. Hamilton raised his head and looked the commander-in-chief full in the face.

"General, that man is my only son."

Gen. Grant looked his officer in the face for a moment. Then he turned his back. The colonel remained standing and silent, uncovered and his head bowed. Then Gen. Grant wheeled around and said in a harsh voice:

"Col. Hamilton, you will obey your orders."

The colonel saluted and left the tent.

Col. Inman remembered that the next morning the detail charged with the duty of hanging the spy went to the tent, and when the sentry entered it was found that there was nobody inside.

About ten years afterward, Col. Inman was in San Francisco on business connected with his profession. While there he chanced to meet a Mr. Hamilton, with whom he became well acquainted. Hamilton one day mentioned that he was in the Confederate army, and the relation of war experiences began. It came out that the Mr. Hamilton was the Capt. Hamilton whom Col. Hamilton had been ordered to hang. There were questions from Col. Inman, of course, and the story of the escape of the young soldier was brought out.

On the night before the day on which he was to be executed, he said, after midnight, he was lying on the blanket in his tent, half asleep, for the circumstances did not warrant heavy sleep. He was aroused by the entrance of some one into the tent. A candle was burning dimly and he saw before him a heavily built man with short stubby whiskers, wearing a blue uniform without any insignia of rank on his shoulders, a black slouch hat pulled down over his eyes. He recognized Gen. Grant.

The story does not go into details as to the conversation which ensued. The result was that the condemned spy, after there has been exacted a promise that he would never again assume the part which had so nearly cost him his life, was given the countersign which would enable him to pass the sentries. Then the man in the slouch hat went away.

And the man who was to have hanged him at sunrise did the same thing, and before the sun was set was within the Confederate lines.—New York Journal.

The Vanity of Negroes

Colored Woman Willing to Suffer Pain for the Sake of Possessing a Gold Tooth

"Negroes are fooling about gold teeth," said a citizen who lives in the old French Quarter, "and recently I have had this fact rather forcibly impressed on my mind. Some time ago I had a negro woman working for me, and one day she was telling me about a negro who had a gold tooth, and remarked that she had tried to get him to give it to her. It sounded so ridiculous that I laughed. 'Why, boss,' she said, 'that nigger's teeth is better'n mine. He jes had do gold slipped on the outside, fur he done took it off and showed it to me.' And it was a fact, too. It was just a thin and shiny covering for the outer part of one of his front teeth, and he used it because he believed it added to the sweetness of his smile.

"We have a new servant at our house, a negro woman, and she is afflicted with the same mad idea that there is nothing to equal a gold tooth when it comes to winning favors among the members of her race. A few days ago she brought a handbill home which she had picked up somewhere in the street. It had been scattered broadcast by a local dentist, who advertised the fact that he was giving to every patient who called at his office one gold tooth. This caught Lucindy's eye.

"I happened to be passing the kitchen window and I saw Lucindy before a mirror, with her mouth wide open, and she was making a close inspection of every tooth in her head. My wife had said something about the pretty, even teeth the negro had, but I thought probably she had the toothache. 'Toothache, Lucindy?' I asked. 'No, boss,' she replied, 'never has had toothache. Jes tryin' to see which one o' dese teeth I'm gwinter have pulled, so I can git one of dese gold teeth,' and she showed me the circular which she had picked up in the street. I told her she ought not to do it, and she seemed to be very much put out about it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Crow Indians Wealthy

Tribe in Montana Owns Three Million Acres of Land and an Irrigation System

"The Crow Indians," said J. E. Edwards, who is government agent for that tribe, in talking with a Washington Times reporter at the Ebbitt, "have a magnificent reservation of over 3,000,000 acres of land in Montana. I think it is about the best reservation in the United States. They want to sell 1,150,000 acres, and there is a prospect of such legislation being enacted by the present congress.

"There are about 2,000 of the Crows. They came nearer maintaining the purity of their Indian blood than any other tribe. At the same time their numbers are decreasing. Consumption has done its fell work among them, and its ravages continue. It seems strange that they should be such easy victims to this disease, considering the robust original stock and their active outdoor life. But it is true that there is no community, no race, in the world where the mortality is so great from tuberculosis as among these full-blood Crows. It is largely due, many think, to their imprudence in personal exposure and neglect of simple rules of health.

"They have about $700,000 invested in irrigation facilities, and are about the most industrious Indians in the country, raising large crops of wheat and hay. The older ones retain many of the primitive ways of the aborigines, but the rising generation is copying the civilization of the whites."

A Gladstone Escapade.

It is very hard for any of us to realize that the world's great men were once boys, and often mischievous and fun-loving boys at that. Children are always delighted to hear of some frolic indulged in by some great man when he was a boy, and so they will surely appreciate the following:

Next door to Mr. Gladstone's home when he was a little boy lived a lady who gave large evening receptions, and during the evening there would be many coachmen and footmen waiting outside. Gladstone and his brother would go on the top floor of their house, armed with squirt guns, with which they squirted the coachmen and footmen waiting in the street below. Henry Chaplin said the way in which the venerable statesman chuckled at the recollection of these youthful escapades was most amusing. He said that Mr. Gladstone became quite convulsed when he proceeded to tell him how delightful he and his brother were to hear the servants expressing their wonder as to where the rain came from.

A PASTOR'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading women there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."—Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female disease.

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Everywhere the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. E. L. Brown 329 Elliott street, Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"I suffered for several years with headache brought on by nervous prostration. I was also afflicted with insomnia. I would get up in the morning more weary than when I retired and I used to dread the approach of night. Peruna came into my home as a welcome guest, and within three short months I was like another woman. I have now enjoyed perfect health for over a year, and those who have suffered as I did will know how happy I am."—Mrs. E. L. Brown.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, De Graff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy." T. M. Mahon.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

WIFE BULL-HEADED

MOTHER-IN-LAW WAS PRETTY MUCH THE WHOLE THING.

WOES OF A CHICAGO TEAMSTER

TELLS ABOUT TROUBLES FROM BEHIND BARS OF PRISON.

HIS FAILURE TO PAY ALIMONY

EARNED TWELVE DOLLARS AND ORDERED TO PAY FIVE DOLLARS ALIMONY.

Chicago, April 18.—"It's a case of too much mother-in-law," said Henry W. Lohse, as he took a corncob pipe from his lips and squinted through the double screen bars at the county jail. "Then, you see, my wife is so bull-headed that I can't do anything with her. She won't leave her mother, and that's the cause of it all."

Mr. Lohse is residing in the jail for the present on an order from Judge Holden, because he refused to pay his wife alimony of $5 a week, as granted in proceedings for separate maintenance.

"I might as well stay in jail," he continued, sadly, "as to pay such a sum. How can I pay it? I get only $12 a week, teaming, and out of that I have to pay $5 a week for board. Then I have to have a little tobacco, you see, and clothes and such. I can't pay $5 a week. Sometimes I don't have steady work. If it was $2 or $3 a week, that would be different."

Lohse lived with his wife and four-year-old daughter at 5117 Wentworth avenue. The mother-in-law lived downstairs and took care of a small store.

"I Told My Wife,

says I," Lohse went on, "be sensible now and leave the old folks, and we will live together again and get along all right. But she was too bull-headed. Why, when I was living with her I used to make $50 a month and I gave her $18 of it. I never knew what she did with it, but it went.

"Many a time I went home at night, after being out all day in the rain and slush, and my wife was gone somewhere. The fire was out and there wasn't any supper or any dry clothes for me to put on. Then she kicked because I went and hung around the saloons. No, we didn't live happy together."

Lohse was asked whether he intended to get out on a writ of habeas corpus, whereupon he brightened up instantly and asked:

"Where do I get one of those?"

"I've sent for my mother," he said, "and maybe she can do something for me. Anyhow, I guess the teamsters' union will help me."

BURGLARS ARE KIND.

Give Water to Their Victim, Who Is Troubled With Heart Disease.

Peoria, Ill., April 18.—Professional burglars accomplished three daring robberies early yesterday morning at the residences of Flavel Shurtleff, George H. Littlewood and Dr. George T. Gray, and upwards of $2,000 in money and jewelry was taken by them.

The two latter burglaries were committed after the police had been notified and were in the vicinity of the first. While going through the house of Shurtleff and Littlewood the burglars were discovered, but kept their victims at bay with revolvers.

Mr. Littlewood is troubled with heart disease, and one of the robbers brought him a drink of water, while the other watched him. As the burglars were leaving the Gray residence Dr. Gray fired several shots at them.

Mrs. Shurtleff also fired several shots in the air to hurry their departure. The police have no clue.

VOLCANO IN KANSAS.

Miniature Eruption Brings Into Existence a Spring That Runs Hot and Cold.

Hiawatha, Kan., April 18.—A miniature volcano has been found on the Winkler farm, north of Robinson in this county. There was an explosion on the Winkler farm.

When the cause was investigated it was found that a piece of ground forty feet square and two feet deep had been thrown up. Several hogs feeding nearby were buried in the earth and had to be dug out. A spring of water was running from the excavation where no spring had ever before appeared.

At times the water from the spring is warm. Prof. Haworth of the University of Kansas investigated the volcano, but has as yet made no report.

RUSSIANS IN RIOTS.

Authorities Are Disturbed by Discontent of the Multitude.

London, April 18.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says that the assassination of M. Sipiaguine is considered to have been the result of a well-organized conspiracy, and that anxiety prevails to know whether other victims are marked for removal.

While the severity of the government has put an end to the student disorders, continues the correspondent, those among the workmen seem to be increasing, especially in the provinces.

Serious riots are reported from the Southern manufacturing districts, but details are difficult to gather. The police have seized manifestos calling for a general strike to begin May day.

Many Were Killed.

London, April 18.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Cettinje, Montenegro, reports serious fighting at Djakovar, Austria-Hungary, in which many persons were killed or wounded.

Firemen's Relief Society.

Crookston, Minn., April 18. — A firemen's relief association will be organized in Crookston under the state law. Chief Morris of the fire department has taken the preliminary steps—Shevlin & Carpenter have presented to the department $25 in recognition of its services at the recent fire at the mill here.

Clarence A. Black, a Detroit millionaire, has been setting a good example to other rich men by serving for several days as juror in a justice court. Mr. Black made no effort to evade the task, saying it is the duty of all good citizens to take a turn in the jury box.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

Mrs. Eckis Stevenson of Salt Lake City Tells How Operations For Ovarian Troubles May Be Avoided.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with inflammation of the ovaries and womb for over six years, enduring aches and pains which none can dream of but those who have had the same experience. Hundreds of dollars went to the doctor and the druggist. I was simply a walking medicine chest and a physical wreck. My sister residing in Ohio wrote me that she had been cured of womb trouble by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and advised me to try it. I then discontinued all other medicines and gave your Vegetable Compound a thorough trial. Within four weeks nearly all pain had left me; I rarely had headaches, and my nerves were in a much better condition, and I was cured in three months, and this avoided a terrible surgical operation."—MRS. ECKIS STEVENSON, 250 So. State St., Salt Lake City, Utah.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

10 TO 9.

Main Avenue Won the Ball Game Sunday.

By a score of 10 to 9 the ball club on Main avenue (the principal business street of Thief River Falls,) defeated an aggregation from La Bree avenue Sunday afternoon, and as a result lots on the back street can be purchased very cheap. While the score was rather close there was no time when the Main avenue club was not in the lead. William Warner acted as umpire and his decisions were always fair, although unprejudiced witnesses were of the opinion that he favored the La Bree avenue club in order to make the game somewhere near ever. The following were the players:

La Bree	position	Main
Hanson	c.	Coenen
Lush	p.	Murphy
Douglas	s. s.	H. Dobner
Paronto	1st.	O. Dobner
Nason	2nd.	Bagley
Curren	3rd.	Mabey
Beckus	l. f.	Scribner
Beardsmore	c. f.	Pederson
Zeh	r. f.	Jarneron

The following challenge has been received and accepted by the Main avenue club:

Mr. M. K. Wall, Manager Main Avenue Base Ball Team, Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:—Owing to the recent newspaper agitation between an aggregation of would be ball players of Main and LaBree Alleys, who each claimed the championship of Thief River Falls and who failed in each instance to merit the title of ball players, but should be called pugilists, the Thief River Falls Lumber Co. believes it can put out a team of All Star bona-fide base ball players who can wipe the ground of Moose Dung Park with either aggregation.

There seems to be no doubt but that your team is the undisputed victor in Sunday's game, (with apologies to the National Game for the offense), and lest there be any misapprehension in the minds of the people that there are no other ball players in Thief River Falls, we hereby challenge you to a game, to be played on Sunday May 4th, 1902, A. D. We solemnly believe we can beat anything of our size, weight and looks in Thief River Falls. Umpire to be agreed upon by both captains, and a bond required of the score keeper.

Yours truly,
T. R. F. LUMBER CO. BALL TEAM,
Per W. A. Wright, Jr.,
Manager.

Daly Out of It.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 28.—Senator Daly is in the city and says he has fully decided not to enter the field for the democratic congressional nomination this year. Mayor Campbell of Crookston is now regarded as the probable nominee. Senator Daly intimates that he may become a candidate for re-election to the state senate but is not prepared to make any definite statement on this point.

SHAW'S PURE MALT.—Its value in sickness has been tried and proved. In the home it is not safe to be without it. Absolutely pure. Sold by John Morgan Thief River Falls Minn.

BROKE DOWN.

Engine on Passenger Train Damaged.

While the engine on the passenger train was on the turn-table Tuesday, one of the wheels of the latter broke tipping the engine over and damaging it considerable. A wrecking crew came up from Crookston and took the engine back, while the engine of the freight train, which was here at the time, was used by the passenger crew to make the regular run.

Settled Today.

A letter received in this city from Senator Clapp by S. F. Staples states that the Red Lake bill will be taken up by the committee in the house today, and there is every indication that there will be a favorable report.

Insurance Adjusted.

There have been a large number of insurance adjustors in the city during the past week fixing up the claims of the recent fire.

John Kivel was given $500, the full amount of the policy on his building.

Bradley & Beardsmore received $100 the amount of their policy on the bowling alley.

Ole Ramstad received $400 for the loss of his livery barn and $200 for contents, the full amount of his policy.

Chris Jacobson received $80 for damage to his stock in being removed.

The insurance companies and Kenison, Conery & Robinson could not agree as to the loss on their stock of clothing. The amount lost in the fire and goods stolen were paid for in full. The damage to the goods was adjusted by J. D. Ward, of this city, chosen by Kenison Conery & Robinson and W. W. Thomas, of Minneapolis, chosen by the insurance companies. Messrs Ward and Thomas appointed a third appraiser in the person of J. C. Griffeth, of Grand Forks, and the three adjusted the claim. They have set given $1200.

O. J. Rollis' loss is now being adjusted.

J. R. Pouliot, of Red Lake Falls was in the city last week.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Knut Nelson Tuesday.

S. A. Swanson, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city last week.

D. N. Winton was up to the Red Lake agency the first of the week.

C. L. Dobner transacted business in Crookston the first of the week.

Miss Listoe, of Crookston was in the city Monday visiting Mrs. J. Borry.

The local telephone exchange now gives day and night service to patrons.

H. E. Ives, of St. Hilaire, transacted business in Thief River Falls Tuesday

Ernest E. Himle returned to this city from a trip to Minneapolis last Friday.

Chris Amundson came down from his claim in the Red Lake county Tuesday.

Martin Mossefin, of the Himle store, spent Sunday in Crookston visiting old friends.

Mrs. O. J. Knox left Monday for St. Paul where she will visit friends for a few weeks.

M. E. Bjork was up from St. Hilaire Tuesday and made the News office a pleasant call.

Dr. Burton, of Stillwater, arrived in the city the first of the week and has decided to locate here.

Judge of Probate Knight, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week on official business.

Frank E. Hunt, the well known Red Lake Falls hardware merchant, was in the city yesterday.

The Ethel started up the river Sunday, it being the first trip to be made to the lake this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Flanders arrived in the city yesterday and will make this place their future home.

H. O. Hanson is erecting a building 14x24 feet on the corner of LaBree avenue and First street.

The three horses lost by D. P. O'Neill were found by a farmer in Numedal and returned to the owner.

The Woodmen of Roseau have formed an association to erect a hall, and have selected a site for the same.

Albert Piche, the rotund butcher, has opened up a shop on the East Side in the Ulstad building near the bridge.

The electric lights on La Bree avenue went out on Sunday evening, although they burned brightly on Main avenue and other portions of the city. It was not intentional, the men at the power house claim.

Capt. R. B. Vining came down from his claim in the Red lake county Tuesday to visit with his family a few days.

Mrs. M. V. Evenson left the first of the week for her home in Wisconsin, where she will visit relatives for a few weeks.

Hon. C. G. Rapp, of St. Hilaire, was in the city Monday shaking hands with his many friends here and attending to business.

All orders numbered less than 795 issued by school district No. 107, will be paid by E. E. Zeh, treasurer of school district No. 18.

Miss Sarah Vaughan came down from Germantown last week and on Monday, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. C. L. Dobner, left for Pine City.

Wiley Tindolph put a crew of men at work on Hans Nelson building on La Bree avenue the first of the week. The building will be made two stories high.

The new chemical engine recently purchased by the city council, arrived here last week. The fire men are now waiting for an opportunity to test it.

Bert Walker came down from his claim near Germantown the first of the week, and reports that the roads are in rather bad condition.

Sheriff Sampson, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city the first of the week. Mr. Sampson has not been enjoying good health this spring.

N. W. Tarrant has had a crew of men at work this week building a store front in the building north of his confectionery store. It will be occupied by H. Lawson as a real estate office.

Bert Howard arrived in the city the first of the week from the country northeast of here with three cub bears. He killed the mother about a month ago. S. F. Staples purchased one of the cubs.

L. O. Peavey last week sold his livery outfit to A. Scribner, and this gentleman has formed a partnership with Joe Ryson and two of the livery stables in this city have therefore been consolidated. They will occupy the brick front barn on Second street.

A valley editor got at the truth of the matter by calling attention to the dollar per bushel price of potatoes in Chicago and then cautioning the farmers not to bank on it too much. There have been years when the tubers were worth a dollar a bushel in the spring and fifteen cents in the fall.

The petition for a vote on the proposition to move the county seat of Norman county from Ada to Twin Valley was filed last Saturday. It bore the signatures of 1,875 of the residents of the county which is 140 more than the required 55 per cent of the voters of the county. A warm fight is expected.

Services at the Methodist church Sunday: S. S. at 9:45; come and bring your little children with you. Sermon at 10:45. Holy communion will be administered at the close of sermon. In the evening the pastor's theme will be "I Have Gone and Played the Fool." This sermon will be interesting to everybody.

Now that the corner of Main avenue and Third street, which has long been used by the farmers in this section as a market place, is being built upon, why would it not be a good time for the city to purchase about a block, or perhaps less, of land to be used as a market place by the farmers? Thief River Falls is one of the best towns in this section for farmers to market their produce in and the farmers should have a good sized piece of ground.

St. Bernard's Church Fair.

Next Monday at 4 p. m. the St. Bernard's church fair will open in the Nelson building, south of the Ogahmah hotel. It will continue until Wednesday night. The ladies will serve a New England supper on the first evening, an old fashioned German supper on Tuesday evening and a cosmopolitan supper on Wednesday evening. An excellant meal is promised for 25c. Numerous donations of plain sewing and fancy work will be exhibited for sale in several booths. Beautiful paintings, fine silk quilts, a rocking chair, a rug, a set of silverware, and many other things will be raffled off the first evening. Great interest will center on a bicycle contest between Philip Zeh and Lawrence Golla, and on a doll contest between Elfa Werstlein and Sophie Piche. A fish pond, conducted by Angeline Blair and Agnes Kelly, will afford great amusement for the children.

WIND'S WILD FURY

LEAVES DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN ITS WAKE AT JOPLIN, MO.

THREE KILLED AND SIX WILL DIE

OVER $300,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY IS COMPLETELY DEMOLISHED.

IT COMES WITHOUT WARNING

HIGH WINDS AND HEAVY RAINS VISIT OTHER SECTIONS.

Joplin, Mo., April 27.—Joplin was visited yesterday by a destructive storm, during which at least three persons were killed outright, six fatally injured, a score or more seriously hurt, and $300,000 worth of property destroyed.

The fury of the storm broke loose at 4:35 in the afternoon. There was no premonition of its terrible violence. There was an utter absence of the usual funnel-shaped cloud and the clouds looked no more threatening than those which produce the ordinary spring thunder showers. The wind was a straight gale, but it was of whipping down scores of houses in the south part of the city and reducing to kindling wood $100,000 worth of the finest mining plants in this district. The worst havoc in Joplin city was in a territory four blocks wide commencing at the west limits of the city at Seventeenth street and ending at Seventh street on the west. Within this narrow belt the destruction done is visible on every hand. Passing east from the main portion of the city the storm spent its fury on the suburban districts known as Moonshine Hill and Villa Heights.

Terrible Velocity,

Three People Were Killed

at Moonshine Hill. News of the destruction there did not reach the city until late last night. The Hill is now a tangled mass of debris and not a single house is left standing. It is populated mainly by miners, who live in little shacks. Of the little home of Bidwell Hunter not a timber is left standing and the three inmates of the house are dying, all having had their skulls fractured. It is feared that the mining camps farther west, which seemed to have been in the path of the storm, have suffered great damage, but no reports have been received from there.

Many Fine Buildings Wrecked.

Many of the finest buildings in the city were wrecked. The tall spire of the Baptist church, one of the most imposing edifices here, toppled over and crashed through the roof, destroying the handsome interior of the building. The Stevens hotel was unroofed and its occupants were driven elsewhere for refuge from the deluge of water which flooded them. The Frisco roundhouse was destroyed and no less than twenty mills are badly damaged. The telegraph, telephone and street car service is paralyzed. The electric light and gas plants are crippled, leaving the city in total darkness.

Iowa Gets a Taste of It.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 27.—Special dispatches show the presence of high wind, accompanied by heavy rain all over the northwestern quarter of the state. Jefferson, Fonda, Storm Lake and other points report wind with a velocity of sixty-five miles an hour. A cloudburst occurred at Mingo, water running eighteen inches deep in the street. Telegraph wires were prostrated along the Rock Island between Council Bluffs and Atlantic and along the Chicago Great Western in the vicinity of Mingo and Valeria.

Fatality at Omaha.

Omaha, April 27—An unusually heavy wind storm which struck this city last evening killed one person and injured a number of others, unroofed a number of buildings and damaged a great number of skylights. There was a heavy downpour of rain. Street cars were stopped for an hour; wires and signs were blown down in all directions.

Rain and Wind in Illinois.

Chicago, April 27.—Heavy rains, accompanied by a gale of sixty miles an hour, swept across Chicago and Northern Illinois last night. The downfall in Chicago registered nearly two inches. The wind tore many signs from their fastenings and blew pedestrians into the street. In a number of places windows and store fronts were blown in.

Change in Chicago Man's Circumstances the Cause.

Chicago, April 27. — Mary Adelaide Snowden, a pretty five-year-old child, with golden curls, formerly bore the name of Mary Adelaide Loomis. This morning she resumed the name by which she was christened, before Judge Carter in the county court, when she was adopted by her own father, Arthur E. Loomis. When the girl's mother died three years ago her father was in poor circumstances. He had been ill and out of work and the future looked black to him. When his fortunes seemed at the lowest ebb, Mrs. Lizzie M. Snowden, his dead wife's sister, asked him to allow her to adopt the child. He consented. Sam B. Snowden, her husband, is prosperous, with a comfortable home of his own in Herndon avenue in Lake View. Loomis went to Texas after he had given away his little daughter. His fortune changed. After a year or two of work in his new home, he made several fortunate investments. In his altered circumstances he longed for the companionship and love of his daughter. He came back to Chicago, explained the changed conditions to his sister-in-law and asked her to give him back his child. She agreed.

Cummings Critically Ill.

Baltimore, April 27.—It was learned from a reliable source late last night that Congressman Amos J. Cummings of New York is critically ill from pneumonia at the Church home in this city. It is understood that his recovery is extremely doubtful.

Big Factory Burned.

Findlay, Ohio, April 27.—The Globe Window glass factory burned to the ground yesterday. Loss, $100,000. About 300 men are thrown out of employment.

SOME RAPID FIRE MATRIMONY.

Couple Meet on Sunday, Marry on Monday, Part on Tuesday and Now Want a Divorce.

Milwaukee, April 27. — Met Sunday, married Monday, Parted Tuesday and applied for a divorce Wednesday is the record made by James R. Minor, a Kenosha county farmer who lives in Ranney. Minor heard through a matrimonial bureau of a Chicago girl who was of a loving nature and wanted a husband. He wrote in reply and when, under her right name of Carrie Hansen, she replied, he went to Chicago last Sunday, saw her and she promised to marry him. The girl is eighteen years old and lived with her parents. On Monday morning she arrived in Kenosha. He met her, bought her wedding finery, and they drove to Waukega and were married. Then they drove to Ranney. His friends gave them a noisy reception. On Tuesday she said she did not like the farming people, country life of marriage. Minor drove her to the station and his bride gave him back the wedding ring, told him he was free and went back to Chicago. Wednesday Minor drove to Kenosha again and started a suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion and incompatibility.

GET ALL THAT'S COMING TO THEM.

Northwesterners Succeed in Securing Appropriations.

Washington, April 27.—In the omnibus public building bill to be introduced in the house to-day by Representative Mercer of Nebraska is contained a large appropriation for the construction of federal buildings in the Northwest. The total amount carried by the bill is $15,800,000. Of this $1,213,000 is divided among the States of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota. The latter sum is allotted among the states as follows:

Minnesota — Minneapolis, $250,000; Stillwater, $50,000; Fergus Falls (increase), $15,000, making a total of $115,000; Albert Lea, site, $3,000; total, $318,000.

Wisconsin — Superior, $176,000; Green Bay, $14,000; Wausau, $50,000; Fond du Lac, $60,000; Baraboo, $35,000; Eau Claire (increase), $30,000, making a total of $140,000; total, $474,000.

South Dakota — Deadwood, $200,000; Aberdeen (increase), $75,000, making a total of $175,000; Pierre, $50,000; total, $250,000.

North Dakota — Grand Forks, $125,000.

IT WOULD END LITIGATION.

N. P. May Buy the Washburn, Bayfield & Iron River.

Washburn, April 27. — It is learned from the most reliable sources here today that the Northern Pacific directory has made an offer for the property of the Washburn, Bayfield & Iron River railroad and there is every reason to believe that Receiver A. C. Frost will accept the offer. The road has been idle for several weeks. There has been an endless amount of litigation over the road's affairs and the case has been before nearly all the state and federal judges, one phase of the litigation being the sentencing of the district attorney and sheriff to the Dane county jail for sixty days and the fining of a half dozen more prominent citizens for contempt of the federal court's orders. The present deal will likely go through in which event it will be an advantageous thing for this city and will likely terminate the litigation which has been pending.

Charged With Burglary.

Spirit Lake, Iowa, April 27.—William Parker, William Inman and James Hurd, all from Okoboji, Iowa, were arrested by Sheriff Jones, charged with burglary. They had broken into about eighteen of the summer cottages on Dixon's Beach, West Okoboji, and had taken bedding and silverware, and in some cases wearing apparel.

Still Unsettled.

Brainerd, Minn., April 27.—There was no change yesterday in the Northern Pacific strike at Brainerd. The committee appointed by the strikers is still working for a settlement which shall carry their point against the employment of "handy" men. Vice President Wilson of the International Machinists' union, is still here.

Judge Is Heavily Fined.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 27.—Judge Carland, in the United States court, yesterday imposed a fine of $600 on Edward M. Starcher, county judge of Gregory county, who pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with transmitting forged final proof papers covering a quarter section of government land.

Burned Out During Storm.

Aberdeen, S. D., April 27. — During the snow and rain storm of Tuesday a farmer named Root, living two miles from Claremont, was burned out of house and home, and the family took refuge in a barn until the storm was over, when they sought shelter at a neighbor's house for the night.

Dead in His Cell.

Eau Claire, Wis., April 27.—Thomas Costello, aged thirty, locked up at the county jail at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, was found dead in his bunk when the turnkey took in breakfast for the prisoners about 6 o'clock. Congestion of the brain was the cause. He had no relatives here.

Son of Noble Sire Is Dead.

Morgan, Minn., April 27. — Unktominxsha, otherwise White Spider, half-brother of Great Chief Little Crow, is dead at the old Redwood county agency. He was seventy-five years old and a son of the chief of the Rapoja band, Wakingatanka (Big Thunder.).

State Warrants Sold.

Pierre, S. D., April 27. — Treasurer Schamber awarded the $150,000 issue of state revenue warrants in equal amounts to the First National Bank of Deadwood and the First National Bank of Lead, each of which offered to take the warrants at 4 per cent.

Probably Frozen to Death.

Baldwin, Wis., April 27.—Two tramps found the dead body of a man in an old unused barn between here and Woodville. They notified the authorities at Woodville. The man has been dead two months, probably freezing to death.

Cribbed Corn Burned.

Rolfe, Iowa, April 27.—A corn crib of J. A. Whitaker, containing over one thousand bushels of corn, was completely destroyed by fire last evening. A large barn adjoining was also destroyed.

SMITH ADMITS IT

ATTORNEY SAYS THE GENERAL ORDERED THE KILLINGS AS CHARGED.

COURT-MARTIAL ON AT MANILA

DEFENSE MAKES ADMISSIONS TO SIMPLIFY THE PROCEEDINGS.

ATTORNEY GENERAL IN A RAGE

CAUSES A SENSATION AND ASTOUNDS THE JUDGE AND LAWYERS.

Manila, April 27.—The trial by court-martial of Gen. Jacob H. Smith, on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, began yesterday. Gen. Loyd Wheaton presided. Col. Charles A. Woodruff, counsel for the defense, said he desired to simplify the proceedings.

He was willing to admit Gen. Smith gave instructions to Maj. Waller to kill and burn and make Samar a wilderness, that he wanted everybody killed capable of bearing arms, and that he did specify all over ten-year-old, as the Samar boys of that age were equally as dangerous as their elders. Capt. David Porter, marine corps, and Lieut. John H. A. Day, marine corps, were the only witnesses examined. Their testimony developed nothing new.

Waller Will Testify.

Maj. Littleton W. T. Waller, Marine corps, will be the only other witness for the prosecution. He was unable to be present yesterday on account of illness, but it is expected will be in attendance to-day.

At the trial yesterday of the editor of Freedom, who is charged with sedition in publishing an article from an American periodical, to which the editor of Freedom agreed and added remarks of his own censuring the United States commission's rule, the attorney general, L. R. Wilfley, created a sensation and astounded the judge, lawyers and spectators. He lost his temper with Judge Odlin and said:

"The civil government wants to know where it stands under the law passed. It wants to know whether it will be enforced, or whether such will be allowed. The court knows the wishes of the government and it is to be presumed that it knows its own affairs."

Judge Odlin replied: "The court will determine the case according to law. The court wants you to understand that it believes individuals have rights as well as governments."

The defense then asked for a delay of a week, owing to counsel having been disqualified on account of not passing the Filipino standard of law. The hearing of the demurrers in the case was postponed until May 3.

BOERS DESTROY MANY FARMS.

Parliamentary Paper Published by the English.

London, April 27. — A parliamentary paper was issued by the government today, dealing with operations in South Africa. It states that since June of last year the Boers destroyed farms in twenty-one districts of the Cape Colony and Natal.

The official London Gazette publishes a dispatch from Lord Kitchener, mailed from Pretoria in March, reviewing the operations since Feb. 13. It adds little to what has already been published.

The full details of Lord Methuen's reverse and capture had not been received at the time the dispatch was written. It describes the sweeping movements in the Wilge river and Klip river districts, culminating in Gen. Dewet's partial successful break through on Feb. 23, when Col. Garratt's new Zealand corps had fifty-eight casualties.

The dispatch says that their conduct reflected the highest credit and nothing could be finer than their behavior. Lord Kitchener mentions ninety officers and 153 non-commissioned officers and men for conspicuous gallantry. Many of the latter are dead.

BUTTER FALLS SEVEN CENTS.

Trust Unloads Some of Its Immense Store of Product.

New York, April 27. — Butter fell 7 cents in price yesterday, the beef trust being caught in its own trap and forced to give the lie to its claim of a shortage by rushing its heavy stores from hiding. It was the utter collapse of the butter corner engineered by the packers' "big six." The trust unloaded its huge stores of butter, which it could not sell as its fabulous prices, and drove the market down from 33 to 26 cents, at which it closed. The crash in butter was regarded by the retailers as the most hopeful event since the advance in beef prices began. Much lower prices are predicted for next week. The price of beef was a little stiffer, but there was no general advance.

Asks Heavy Damages.

Denver, April 27. — Stratton's Independence Mining Company of Cripple Creek yesterday filed suit in the district court against the Strong Mining company, charging the latter with extracting gold and other valuable ores from the Maggee lode mining claim, which adjoins the Strong property, and asking damages to the amount of $1,750,000.

Gardner Gets Decision.

San Francisco, April 27. — George Gardner was given the decision last night over Joe Walcott at the end of a twenty-round bout before the Yosemite Athletic club.

Both Are Acquitted.

Manila, April 27. — Maj. Waller and Lieut. Day, of the marine corps, who were tried by court martial here on the charge of executing natives of the Island of Samar without trial, have been acquitted.

Morgan, of Course.

Edinburgh, April 27. — The Evening News says that negotiations in which J. P. Morgan & Co. are interested are on foot to combine the Scottish coal companies, with a capital of £3,000,000.

CONDEMNED IN MISSOURI AND CONFISCATED IN NEW YORK.

Judge Clarke of St. Louis has convicted and fined heavily a number of grocers for selling baking powders containing alum.

The week before the Health Department of New York seized a quantity of stuff being sold for baking powder which they found was made from alum mixed with ground rock, and dumped it into the river.

The Health Authorities are thus taking effective means to prevent the introduction into our markets of injurious substitutes in place of wholesome baking powders.

As alum costs only two cents a pound, there is a great temptation for those manufacturers who make substitutes and imitation goods, to use it. Alum baking powders can be detected by the health authorities by chemical analysis, but the ordinary housekeeper, whose assistance in protecting the health of the people is important, cannot make a chemical examination. She may easily know the alum powders, however, from the fact that they are sold at from ten to twenty cents for a pound can, or that some prize—like a spoon or glass, or piece of crockery, or wooden ware—is given with the powder as an inducement.

As the people continue to realize the importance of this subject and consumers insist on having baking powder of established name and character, and as the health authorities continue their vigorous crusades, the alum danger will, it is hoped, finally be driven from our homes.

MOROS GIVING UP.

White Flags Take the Place of the Red Battle Flags.

Manila, April 26.—Lieut. Col. Frank D. Baldwin, who is operating against the Moros on the Island of Mindanao, telegraphs that the capture of Sultan Pualo's fort has had a most salutary effect. The dattos are submitting. White flags are taking place of red battle flags. The sultan of Annudtbak urges that time be given him in which to give up the assassins of the American soldiers, and says that the advance of the Americans will mean "bristling cannon and impassable barriers, with God judging the right." Col. Baldwin has received orders to suspend operations against the dattos.

Gen. George W. Davis, in command at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, believes that a majority of the dattos are friendly and that they have not had time to co-operate. He thinks their alarm has ceased and that practically a bloodless victory has been achieved.

The court-martial which tried Maj. Waller and Lieut. Day of the marine corps on charges of executing natives of the Island of Samar without trial, reconvened yesterday on orders received from Washington to revise certain portions of the records.

The court-martial appointed to try Gen. Jacob H. Smith on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline will assemble to-day.

INDIANA REPUBLICANS.

State Convention Places Ticket in Nomination.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 26.—The Indiana Republican convention yesterday named the following ticket: Secretary of state, Daniel E. Storms; auditor, David E. Sherrick; treasurer, N. U. Hill; attorney general, Charles W. Miller; state geologist, Willis S. Blatchley; state statistician, Benjamin F. Johnson; judge supreme court, John H. Gillette; judges of the appellate court, W. D. Robinson, William J. Henley, James B. Black, Daniel W. Comstock, Ulric Z. Wiley, Frank S. Roby; clerk of the supreme court, Robert A. Brown; superintendent of public instruction, F. A. Cotton. The secretary of state, state geologist, state statistician, judge of the supreme court and judges of the appellate court were nominated by acclamation. For every other position on the ticket there was a warm fight.

MGR. CORRIGAN SERIOUSLY ILL.

Archbishop of New York Suffering From Pneumonia.

New York, April 26. — Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan is seriously ill at the archiepiscopal palace in Madison avenue. At a late hour last night Dr. Francis Delafield, one of the attending physicians, said that the archbishop's temperature was 102, that his malady was pneumonia of an extreme type, and that his condition was serious but not dangerous. Dr. Edward L. Keyes, the archbishop's regular physician, was called by the archbishop's secretary yesterday afternoon. He found him suffering with a congestion of the right lung and with symptoms of pneumonia. He at once called in Dr. Delafield, and up to a late hour their attendance on the archbishop was almost constant. The archbishop is sixty-three years old.

WILHELMINA IS WORSE.

Recurrence of High Temperature Occasions Anxiety Regarding the Queen.

The Hague, April 26.—The bulletin issued yesterday morning from Castle Loo says that Queen Wilhelmina had another quiet night; that the patient's temperature is satisfactory and she is taking sufficient nourishment, but a bulletin issued at 3 o'clock in the afternoon said: "A recurrence of high temperature this afternoon makes it manifest that every care is requisite." This bulletin occasioned some anxiety.

DIE OF THE PLAGUE.

More Than a Thousand Victims in Philippines.

Manila, April 26.—The cholera record up to date is as follows: In Manila there have been 487 cases and 385 deaths, while the province reports 1,217 cases and 847 deaths.

Chicago Dealers Take Hope.

Chicago, April 26.—There was no advance yesterday in beef prices and dealers hope to see a disposition on the part of the packers not to send the prices higher. Pork advanced 1 1-4c, but ham and bacon advanced a cent each.

RAISES BRITISH BID.

Offer $15,000 for Fitzsimmons-Jeffries Fight.

London, April 25.—Mr. Hughes has telegraphed to Sporting Life increasing his offer for a fight at the National Sporting club between Jeffries and Fitzsimmons. He now offers £3,000, providing the fight occurs on the Monday of Derby week.

CONGRESS.

Two Speeches Occupy the Attention of the Senate.

Washington, April 26.—Two speeches occupied the entire attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. McCumber of North Dakota discussed the bill to prevent the misbranding and misrepresentation of food products which enter into interstate commerce. Mr. Carmack of Tennessee, one of the minority members of the Philippines committee, spoke in opposition to the Philippine government bill now pending. His address attracted to the chamber not only many senators, but a considerable number of his former colleagues in the house. He sharply criticised the president not only for the policy he is pursuing in the Philippines, but for utterances which, the senator declared, tended to fan the flame of insurrection.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed 145 private pension bills, including bills to pension the widow of the late Gen. William Ludlow at $50 a month and the widow of the late "Parson" Brownlow of Tennessee at $30 per month. The remainder of the day was devoted to general debate on the agricultural appropriation bill.

REDUCE DUTY ON SUGAR.

Request From the Philippines Transmitted to the Senate.

Washington, April 27.—The secretary of war yesterday transmitted to the senate a cablegram from the president of the assembly of the presidentes of Occidental Negros, P. I., asking a reduction of 75 per cent on the duty on sugar imported into the United States from the Philippines. The cablegram represents that "the agricultural situation is very critical owing to grasshoppers, epicootic, epidemics, torrential rains, scarcity of labor, expensive transportation, the low price of sugar and the high price of other articles of prime necessity." He adds that unless there is a reduction of at least 75 per cent the province will be completely ruined.

WRECK ON A VIDUCT.

Locomotive Axel Breaks and Train Is Wrecked.

London, April 27.—A serious wreck occurred on the Great Eastern railway at the Hackney Downs junction station at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. What is known as "the last three-penny train" from Walthamstow was crossing a bridge when an axle on the locomotive broke and the train was brought to a sudden standstill. Several of the carriages were wrecked and some of them tilted dangerously over the viaduct. Two persons were killed outright, and sixteen seriously and 100 slightly injured. A boy had both legs cut off and one man lost a foot. The injured were removed later to the German hospital.

TESTS OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

New Government System Is a Success.

Norfolk, Va., April 27.—Tests of the new government system of wireless telegraphy were made yesterday at Roanoke Island, Pamlico sound, before a number of naval experts. The tests were in charge of Prof. Reginald Fessenden of Allegheny, Pa., who is now attached to the weather bureau service and who is the inventor of the system. From what could be learned late last night they were entirely successful. The experiments were conducted over a distance of sixty miles.

CORRIGAN DOING WELL.

Archbishop's Condition Favorable as Could Be Expected.

New York, April 27.—The following bulletin was issued at 10:15 o'clock last night by Dr. Keyes: "The archbishop has had an excellent day; no unusual or irregular symptoms of any sort. He has fully held his own and his condition is satisfactory." There was a consultation at 9:30 between Dr. Keyes and Dr. Janeway and Dr. Delafield. They found the patient's condition as favorable as could be expected.

Paine Is Not Guilty.

Washington, April 27.—The navy department yesterday received the findings of the court-martial headed by Rear Admiral Cooper which tried Jas. A. Paine, a blacksmith aboard the U. S. S. Cincinnati, for killing Angus Williams, a water tender on the same vessel, while the Cincinnati was lying off Charleston a few weeks ago. The court found Paine not guilty of the charge of manslaughter and he was acquitted.

Big Strike Threatened.

Detroit, Mich., April 27. — The Free Press says: It was announced here yesterday that the lumber handlers at the Lake Superior ports will go out on a strike next week. They demand 60 cents an hour, which the lumber carriers have refused to grant. A meeting of the board of managers of the lumber carriers' association will be held in Chicago early in the week.

Settles Down to Hard Fight.

Paterson, N. J., April 27.—The strike of the silk dyers' helpers which began on Wednesday and immediately developed violence, has now apparently settled down to a waiting fight between the men and their employers. Four of the minor silk dyeing firms yesterday acceded to the demands of the men, but the big firms are still a unit in refusing to sign.

Assist Home Sugar Industry.

Vienna, April 27.—During the debate on the budget in the lower house of parliament yesterday the minister of finance announced the government's intention to assist the home sugar industry over the transition period involved by the inauguration of the decisions reached by the international sugar conference at Brussels.

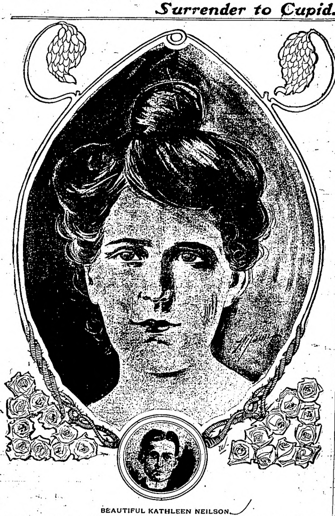
Telephones Out of Commission.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, April 27.—Fire in the Iowa Telephone company's office destroyed part of the cables, disabling every telephone in the city. Contact with a trolley wire was the cause. The loss cannot be estimated.

Peterson Nominated.

Washington, April 27.—The president yesterday sent to the senate the nomination of John Peterson as collector of customs for the district of Minnesota at St. Paul. This is Mr. Peterson's second term.

Wealth and Beauty Surrender to Cupid.



BEAUTIFUL KATHLEEN NEILSON.

Society is discussing the reported engagement of Reginald Claypool Vanderbilt, youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, to Miss Kathleen Neilson, second daughter of Mrs. Frederic Neilson.

Their engagement is said to be an open secret, and the delay in making the announcement is due to the fact that the young millionaire, although of age and in possession of the fortune of $12,000,000 left him by his father, is still a student at Yale. He will be graduated this spring, and it is expected that the formal engagement will soon follow.

Miss Neilson is one of the most beautiful girls in society. She is 20 years old and made her debut a year ago. Long before that, however, the devotion of young "Reggie" Vanderbilt to her was the subject of gossip in Newport and New York. Of late Mr. Vanderbilt has made frequent trips from Yale to take Miss Neilson out driving and escort her to social functions.

Miss Neilson is tall and graceful, with a fine figure, a beautifully modeled, expressive face, a wealth of light brown hair, and a dazzling complexion. She possesses many accomplishments and withal is a jolly, gentle girl.

She is a niece of Freddie Gebhart, and her sister is Mrs. Arthur Kemp. Miss Neilson was the acknowledged belle of the season in which she made her debut.

Besides beauty Miss Neilson possesses taste. She knows how to dress exquisitely and her gowns have attracted attention at the horse show and other society events.

The more dollars you get together the louder they talk. Same with women.

Lost by a Toy Balloon.

Diamonds and other jewels have been lost in all sorts of queer ways, but in none more unusual than the accident mentioned in the Boston Transcript, by which a diamond brooch was snatched from the owner's dress and left somewhere on the great plains.

A young woman was traveling by rail through Kansas. At Kinsley, where the train made a considerable stop, a fair was in progress. Here the young woman bought of a peddler a toy balloon for a little girl who had won her fancy.

The child was delighted with the plaything, and as they rode along she chatted with her new friend and pulled the balloon up and down. At length she playfully fastened the string to the lady's diamond brooch.

The train was rounding a curve at the moment and a strong gust of air came through the car. The balloon was carried out through the open window. The sudden jerk on the string loosened the brooch, and away it sailed.

The jewel was so valuable that the young woman offered a reward of five hundred dollars for its recovery. Spurred by this incentive, cowboys scoured the plains for days in all directions, but without success.—Youth's Companion.

Belligerent Traits of Greeks.

Visitors to Greece are always amazed at the criminal statistics, particularly at the number of murders. Ordinary crimes—dishonesty and the vices that prevail in other countries—are not general, but murders occur almost daily. Homicides in the province in which Athens is located average annually almost one to 1,000 of the population. The causes lie mostly in politics. The government has forbidden the carrying of concealed weapons, but the law is not enforced. A pouch or sheath for a knife and a revolver is a part of the national costume, and they are worn openly. When two Greeks quarrel the first act is to draw their knives, and unless they are separated instantly there is either a homicide or a case for the hospital, and the hospitals of Athens, which are extensive and up-to-date, are abundantly supplied with patients, especially during periods of political excitement. If a man is killed in a controversy it usually begins a feud which does not end until several graves are filled.

A Simple Lesson.

Maria Edgeworth, in her time second only to Jane Austen among literary women, had a warm sympathy for all kinds of life, which accounts for the ardor with which she writes of human beings. A trifling incident, related in one of her letters, impressed her deeply.

"We went, the other day to see a collection of natural curiosities at a Mr. Broderip's. My father observed that he had but very few butterflies.

"'No, sir,' he said; 'a circumstance that happened to me some time ago determined me to never collect any more butterflies. I caught a most beautiful butterfly, thought I had killed it, and ran a pin through its body to fasten it to a cork. A fortnight afterward I happened to look in the box where I had left it, and I saw it writhing in agony. Since that time I have never destroyed another.'"—Youth's Companion.

Bread Made of Pea Flour.

Something new in the way of a food product is pea flour, with which the War Department has recently been making experiments. It will be placed on the market before long at a moderate price, and seems likely to come into use to a considerable extent. This flour is intended to be mixed with wheat flour for making bread, and the claim is that it improves the flavor of the bread, which remains soft and moist for a much longer time than when wheat flour alone is employed.

The pea flour is prepared for market by cooking the peas with steam, then roasting them, and finally powdering them by roller process, the final product being light sulphur yellow in color and nearly as fine as ordinary wheat flour.

It is extremely nutritious and is said to contain nearly two and a half times as much of the substance that goes to make muscle and blood as does wheat flour. Nearly 59 per cent of the pea flour is starch and over 28 per cent is flesh forming stuff, with practically no water.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

The Late Dr. Newman Hall.

The late Dr. Newman Hall was very fond of mountain climbing and spent many of his holidays in Switzerland. He always made a point of exerting himself in the hotels for the promotion of friendly intercourse and in this way he made the acquaintance of a very large number of persons of all ranks and creeds. Towards the end of his life he was almost as indefatigable as in his prime in preaching all over the country. One little foible he had on these occasions was of recommending his hearers to purchase his books; the profits of which, however, he devoted to special work.

Experiments with Petroleum.

Experiments with petroleum for fuel are being made in the Norwegian navy. Of the refined oil imported annually into Norway $903,000 worth comes from America and $99,000 from Russia.

GREATNESS THRUST UPON HIM

How Poor French Poet Was Made Great State Functionary.

A poor Parisian poet named Dubois, during the reign of Napoleon I, addressed an ode to Princess Pauline, Napoleon's favorite sister. A relative to the poet being waiting maid to the princess, presented the ode, with the result that Pauline asked for a post for M. Dubois, a man of superior gifts. Minister Fouche, delighted to please the princess, called at the poet's humble attic. The poet put his head out of the window of his garret and espying a carriage escorted by gendarmes, concluded that the boldness of his remarks with regard to a universal peace had been badly received by the emperor, and that they had come to arrest him. Prompted by his fear, Dubois considered it most prudent to hide under his bed. The poet was got out and was sent to Elba as commissary general of police. It was some time ere Fouche and Pauline met, and the princess had difficulty in remembering the request that she had made for Dubois. "Does not your highness recollect a letter sent to me about three months ago, most pressingly recommending a M. Dubois, a man of letters, in whom your highness took the greatest interest?" "One moment," said the princess, and then a smile overspread her beautiful features. "My protege, M. le Duc, was a poor poet, a relative of one of my maids, who sent me an ode. What have you done with him? Have you given him a stool in one of your departments?" The minister, nettled at having been duped in that way, took particular care to suppress the fact of his having made a grand functionary of Dubois. Unfortunately, Fouche's friends at court got wind of the thing and there was an end of the secret. Napoleon himself was vastly amused at it and bantered his minister. Dubois was recalled, but already 300,000 francs had been paid to him.

HE MADE A TOO GENEROUS OFFER.

Dr. Emerson Was Too Hasty to Do Kindly Deed.

Dr. Edward W. Emerson, the son of Ralph Waldo Emerson, was recently the victim of his own generosity, says the New York Tribune. In Concord, where Dr. Emerson lives, one of the best known characters is a simple-minded old fellow, whose actions furnish the villages with an inexhaustible fund of amusement. Among the oddities of the old codger, who is locally known as "Charlie," is a fondness for reading. No one has ever discovered how much of his reading is for pleasure, but "Charlie" is never seen without at least one book under his arm.

The other day "Charlie" came to Dr. Emerson, and said sorrowfully: "Doctor, they won't let me take books out of the library any more."

Dr. Emerson has a fine private library, and, moved by the sadness in "Charlie's" tone, said kindly: "Never mind, 'Charlie.' You may take any book of mine you wish."

Satisfied with this assurance, "Charlie" departed, and did not return for several days. Then he came back, and said doubtfully: "You said I might take any book of yours I wanted, didn't you?"

The doctor assented, wondering what was coming.

"That means any book you own, doesn't it?" queried "Charlie."

Again the doctor assented.

"Well, then," said "Charlie," triumphantly, "let me take your mileage book."

EASY VICTIMS OF CARD SHARKS.

High-Rolling Players Cheated Out of Immense Amounts.

In the old days of gambling the men who played highest were very frequently the most easily duped. Wrothesly, duke of Bedford, was infamously robbed by a gang of sharpers of whom Beau Nash was the head. The duke had been plundered out of over $350,000 at hazard, when, suspecting the dice to be loaded, he rose in a passion, put them in his pocket and refused to play or pay further until he had examined them. He retired to another room and fell asleep, affording the conspirators the chance to pick his pockets and substitute legitimate dice for the loaded. The duke on awakening and finding the dice correct played again and lost a further $150,000. Beau Nash, not getting a sufficient share of the plunder, informed the duke. A similar misadventure befell a duke of Norfolk early in the last century. He went through the same ceremony of carrying off the dice and falling asleep with them in his possession. In this instance, however, the thieves got a notorious desperado to go into the room with a brace of pistols and new dice, with instructions to shoot the duke if the latter were awake and to change the dice if he were asleep.

Value of Encouragement.

Perhaps there is nothing else so productive of cheerful, helpful service as the expression of approval of praise of work well done, and yet there is nothing so grudgingly, so meagrely given by employers. Many of them seem to think that commendation is demoralizing, and that the voicing of appreciation will lead to listlessness and the withdrawal of energy and interest. This evinces but a poor knowledge of human nature, which is always hungering for approbation; but how mistaken such views are is shown by the loyal and unstinted service given to those large-minded men who treat their employes as members of a family committed to their care.

Mrs. Mamie Herbert, 56 Elmwood Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., Treasurer Empire State Fortnightly, Buffalo, N. Y., After Eight Years' Suffering Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Inflammation and ulceration of the uterus laid me low and robbed life of its joys for me. For eight years I was in frequent pain and misery, and then Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me, the greatest boon I have known, for it brought new life and health to me. I used several bottles of Compound and your Sanative Wash. My improvement was slow, but from the first bottle I felt that I was better, and so I kept up courage and continued the treatment. None of my friends ever dreamed that I would be well again, but I have now enjoyed life to its fullest extent for three years."—MRS. MAMIE HERBERT.

She Would Not be Without It Now.

Neither would thousands of others. We refer to Vogeler's Curative Compound; it does so much good and seems to reach every form of stomach trouble, that people have found that it is the one true specific. And what are stomach troubles? The easiest answer is that three-quarters of all the diseases and ailments which affect us proceed from one form or another of stomach trouble.

Indigestion is one of the worst and most prevalent forms, but Vogeler's Curative Compound cures indigestion. Here is one instance:

Mr. W. Bowell, of 34, Priory Street, Winchester, Col., writes: "I wish to state that my wife has been taking Vogeler's Curative Compound for a long time, and it is the only thing that has done her any real good for indigestion, in fact nothing would induce her to be without a bottle now."

When we stop to seriously consider the fact, that this great remedy is made from the formula of one of the most eminent living London physicians, it is no wonder that people who have happily experienced the benefit to be derived from its use, will not now be without it at any cost.

A Bright Child's Question.

"Children are living interrogation points," said C. S. Wheat, president of the Male Teachers' association, during a talk on educational ideals, the other day. "My six-year-old daughter," he continued, in explanation of the remark "came to me yesterday, holding a bright, new penny in her hand. Her face reflected a serious mental struggle as she asked:

"'Papa, why do they put a lot of leaves and a corset on pennies?'"—New York Times.

Made to Work Now.

In one of the down-town barber shops to which city employes and politicians go, all the chairs were occupied the other day, when a little man bustled in and looked around.

"In just a moment, sir, said one of the barbers."

"No," said the man, "can't wait. I'll be back some other time."

"Queer," said the barber, as the man went out of the door. "He used to come in here and wait by the hour. He is employed over in one of the county offices, and before the first of the year he had all the time he wanted to sit around and talk."

"Now he's always in a hurry. I guess that they are making him work now."—New York Sun.

An Honest Man's Opinion.

Vermont, Mo., April 28th.—If what Mr. J. S. Tillery of this place says is true—and none who know him doubt his honesty—the new remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, is a wonderful medicine, indeed. Mr. Tillery says:

"I had Kidney and Liver Trouble for years. I had used many medicines, but could get nothing to cure me.

"I heard of a new remedy, called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and began a treatment, with the result that I was very soon on the mend.

"I kept on using the pills, and am now entirely better. I honestly do believe that they are the greatest remedy the world has ever seen.

"I am always willing to help a good thing and I cannot say too much for one that helped me so much.

"If I didn't know that Dodd's Kidney Pills would do all that is claimed for them, I wouldn't say a word of praise for them."

$5,000 FOR COUNTING DOTS.

Prizes Given to Advertise the Farmers' Tribune.

Any child can count dots, but not many people can count a large number of them without mistakes. This is the basis of the Farmers' Tribune Dot Contest which is announced in this issue.

The counting is absolutely free. The paper is one of the oldest and best in the Northwest, published twice a week, and it costs only one dollar a year; so that, considering the price, it is very low. There are hundreds of people who are enjoying the fun of counting the dots, and those who count the number correctly are the ones who get the 2,999 prizes, into which $5,073 is to be divided.

J. STERLING MORTON DEAD.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Succumbs After Long Illness.

Chicago, April 29.—Hon. J. Sterling Morton, former secretary of agriculture, died at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Lake Forest at the home of his son, Max Morton. For several weeks Mr. Morton had been gradually failing. The nature of his sickness had not been determined, and a week ago he was brought from his home at Nebraska City, Neb., to Lake Forrest for medical attendance. The change brought no improvement, and he failed gradually until death came. Death was due to cerebral thrombus. Mr. Morton began ailing several months ago, and in hopes that a change of climate would restore his health he went to the City of Mexico, accompanied by his son, Paul Morton, vice president of the Santa Fe railway. Mr. Morton continued to grow worse in the Southern country, however, and six weeks ago he returned to his old home in Nebraska. He then came to Chicago, where it was believed he would have better medical attention. After he arrived here he improved somewhat and it was believed for a time that he would entirely recover from his ailment. Last week he suffered a stroke of apoplexy from which he never recovered. He suffered a second stroke yesterday which proved fatal. His three sons, Paul Morton, Jay Morton and Mark Morton, were at the bedside when the end came.

REVEALS COMBINE'S SECRETS.

Former Employes With Grievances Tell All About Beef Trust.

Chicago, April 29. — Testimony of packers' former employes is counted on by the federal prosecutors to clinch their case against the alleged beef trust. Since the announcement of the intention to begin an injunction suit in Chicago, the office of the district attorney here has been flooded with voluntary information from old employes, the majority of them with grievances. Special Counsel W. A. Day spent yesterday with the district attorney, arranging and tabulating the evidence in hand. At the close the opinion was expressed that the government had a strong case. Voluntary witnesses have told of agreements to keep up prices, and of the efforts of packing firms to compel the observance of the agreements. Other persons who may have knowledge of the methods employed by the combine to hide violations of the statutes, will be asked to visit the attorney's office this week and tell what they know.

SCHLEY IN THE SOUTH.

Admiral Will Be Entertained in Several Cities.

Memphis, Tenn., April 29.—Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. S. Schley arrived in Memphis over the Southern railway at 3:10 o'clock last evening and were at once driven to their rooms at the Gayoso hotel. A reception committee met the visitors at Grand Junction and escorted them to Memphis. It was generally understood that it was the wish of Admiral and Mrs. Schley that there should be no demonstration in their honor upon their arrival, but several hundred people were at the union station to bid them welcome. Admiral Schley will be the guest of the city until Wednesday night, when he will visit several cities in Mississippi.

HE KILLED DR. CRONIN.

Boston Woman Says She Can Convict the Murderer.

Elgin, Ill., April 29.—Chief of Police Freeman of this city is in receipt of a letter from Miss Laura C. Lynn of Boston, in which she claims to be able to lay her hands on the murderer of Dr. Cronin. She asserts that the slayer of Dr. Cronin is now living in Boston, in good circumstances. She informs Freeman that not only has she seen letters giving the full details of the terrible crime, in the handwriting of the murderer, but that she has information which will convict him of the murder of a girl, committed while on a pleasure trip on Lake Michigan.

WHITE BOY TURNS BLACK.

Rare Case in Pennsylvania Proves Fatal.

Tamaqua, Pa., April 29—Frank Lentz, aged sixteen years, of Paterson, near here, was found dead in bed last evening. For the past year the boy has been suffering with a disease which the physicians diagnosed as acute chloasma. When he was taken ill his skin was covered with black blotches, which gradually ran together until he became as dark as a negro. The disease was marked by extreme lassitude, and as time wore on the boy wasted away until he was little more than skin and bones. For the past two weeks he partook of little or no nourishment. The case is said to be a very rare one.

DELIBERATE STRANGULATION.

Alleged Wife Murderer Commits Suicide in Jail Cell.

Cleveland, April 29.—Martin Lynch, who was arrested a few days ago, charged with the murder of his wife at the home of the couple, committed suicide in his cell at the county jail, by hanging himself from the door knob. The knob was not more than three feet from the floor. Lynch had carefully tied a sheet to the knob and the other end about his neck. In order to accomplish his purpose it was necessary for him to sit down on the floor of his cell and slowly strangle to death.

Monastery Burned to the Ground.

Edenburg, Pa., April 29.—Yesterday afternoon the monastery of the Benedictine Brothers at Carrolltown burned to the ground with all its contents, incurring a very heavy loss. When first noticed a small flame was coming from the roof of the main building, and, owing to the high wind, practically nothing could be done to check its progress. The building was partially insured.

Two Killed by Dynamite.

Seattle, Wash., April 29.—Will Price and Bernard Sutter were killed by an explosion of dynamite at Issaquah. There was not enough of Sutter's remains left to hold an inquest. Cause of explosion unknown.

Swept by Fire.

New York, April 29.—South Beach, a bathing resort on Staten Island shore, was fire swept last night, every structure on the beach for a distance of 2,500 feet being destroyed, involving a loss estimated at $150,000.

TAKEN BY GRANT

INSURGENT LEADER AND HIS ENTIRE COMMAND SURRENDER.

MANY OTHERS ALSO GIVE UP

GUEVARRA WHO SUCCEEDED LUKBAN IN COMMAND IN SAMAR.

IT ENDS THE INSURRECTION

ISLAND OF NEGROS IS QUIETED BY SURRENDER OF A LARGE FORCE.

Manila, April 29.—Gen. Frederick D. Grant's expedition in the gunboats Basco and Florida, several steam launches and native lighters, has ascended the Candara river, in the Island of Samar, and has brough the insurgent leader Guevarra and his entire command down to the coast. Guevarra's command consists of Rafael Sebastian, Abaki and 38 other officers, 189 men and 161 rifles.

Three hundred insurgents with 131 rifles are expected to arrive at Catbalogan, Samar, to-day to surrender formally to the American authorities.

Three thousand bolomen, 28 of them armed with rifles, surrendered yesterday at Sulat, all in Samar.

Guevarra succeeded Gen. Lukban to the command of the insurgent forces in Samar, when the latter was captured last February. He announced his intention to surrender last March.

Ends the Insurrection.

This practically ends the insurrection in the archipelago, a result which is due to Gen. Chaffee's energy, consistent justice and severe and unrelenting prosecution of those who opposed American sovereignty. The only fact in the military situation that causes any apprehension now is the unfortunate Moro affair in the Island of Mindanao, but it is believed this can be settled without further bloodshed. Efforts in this direction will be made by Gen. Chaffee.

Capt. L. W. V. Kennon, of the Sixth infantry, reports from the Island of Negros the surrender of the ladrone leader Rufo, with 158 officers and men of his command, together with twelve guns, 140 bolos, seven spears and a few revolvers and daggers. Capt. Kennon says this surrender means the opening up of the whole of the southern coast of the Island of Negros. After Papa Isio, Rufo was the most important ladrone chief on the island. He promises to force Papa Isio and his few remaining followers to surrender. Papa Isio was appointed a colonel in the insurgent army by Gen. Malvar a year ago.

CHOLERA AMONG SOLDIERS.

Situation in the Philippines Shows No Improvement.

Manila, April 29.—The cholera situation in the islands does not show any improvement. Cholera cases are reported among the American soldiers in the Camarines provinces of Southern Luzon and elsewhere, but so far few Americans have been attacked, and the disease is mainly confined to natives and Chinamen. In Manila there have been 555 cases and 449 deaths from cholera, while the provinces report 1,599 cases and 1,169 deaths.

TRAIN BREAKS IN TWO.

Two Sections Afterward Collide and One Man Is Killed.

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 29.—A disastrous freight wreck occurred here last evening on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern road. One man was killed and the loss is estimated at $50,000. An extra freight, north-bound, broke in two on a grade two miles south of the city and the two sections collided near the Grand Rapids & Indiana crossing. Twenty cars left the track and piled up on either side of it. The contents of an oil car took fire and exploded and four cars on the adjoining Grand Rapids & Indiana track and the blacksmith shop of Luell & Skinner's carriage factory was destroyed.

DOUBLE MURDER.

Tragedy Follows Closing of a Singing Convention.

Nacogdoches, Tex., April 29. — A double killing occurred at Palestine church, thirty-three miles west of this city. At the close of a singing convention, after a heated argument, Elsie Clifton pulled his pistol and shot Jim Clevenger in the chin, the bullet passing through his head, killing him instantly. Then some one shot Clifton through the heart. He died without speaking. Joseph Clevenger, a brother of Jim Clevenger, told the sheriff he would surrender to-day.

Accidently Killed.

Topeka, Kan., April 29.—W. H. Carr, aged thirty-seven, one of the best known telegraph operators in the west, was accidentally shot yesterday and killed while visiting his parents at Eudora, Kan. Carr was alighting from a buggy when he tripped, discharging his shotgun. He received the contents of both barrels over the heart.

Nab Uncle Sam's Tars.

Rome, April 29.—Police of Venice arrested on the Place San Marco five officers of the United States cruiser Chicago, the flagship of the European squadron, for quarreling and attacking would-be peacemakers. Among those arrested were a major of the marine corps and two lieutenants.

Child Cut in Twain.

St. Paul, April 29.—Jennie, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tressler, was run down by a street car and killed. Her body was cut in twain. The remains were taken to the morgue, where Coroner Miller will hold an inquest to-day.

Rome, April 29. — It is believed in Vatican circles that Archbishop Corrigan is to be created a cardinal at the May consistory, together with Archbishop Begin of Quebec.

BRAINERD STRIKE ENDED.

Result of a Conference Between Officials and the Machinists.

Brainerd, Minn., April 29.—The machinists' strike is at an end. General Manager Cooper and Superintendent of Locomotive Power Lovell of St. Paul arrived in the city yesterday morning and at once left for an inspection trip over the Minnesota & International road. They returned to Brainerd in the afternoon and held a conference with Vice President I. L. Wilson of the International Association of Machinists and President Eckenrod of the local union here. The outcome was that the machinists will return to work to-day, and Ed Leach, who caused the trouble, will be set back to the drill press. Hereafter no "handy" man will be promoted to a turret machine.

INDECENT LETTER TO WIFE.

Husband Who Has Left His Spouse Pays Dear for His Act.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 29.—Patrick Tiffany of Mitchell, when arraigned before Judge Carland of the United States court on an indictment charging him with having sent an objectionable letter through the mails to his wife, from whom he is separated, entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $100, and in default of the payment of the fine will be confined in the Davison jail at Mitchell. Michael Roach of Chamberlain pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with selling liquor to Indians, and was fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in the Brule county jail at Chamberlain.

STEALS HORSE TO ESCAPE.

Charge Made Against Recaptured South Dakota Desperado.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 29.—McCoy Jeannette, the young desperado who recently escaped from jail here and was recaptured at Beresford, has had an additional charge made against him as the result of his escapade. In escaping it is alleged he stole a valuable horse from a Sioux Falls citizen. A complaint has now been made charging him with horse stealing, and in default of $500 bonds he has been taken back to jail. His trial will take place during a term of the state circuit court which convenes in this city next week.

STRIKERS ARE STEADFAST.

Papermill Operators at Stevens Point Persistent.

Steven's Point, Wis., April 29. — The paper mill strike situation in the Wisconsin valley remains unchanged. The union men formerly employed in the two big local mills have been out for nearly two months and show no signs of weakening. The mills, however, are being run to nearly their full capacity by non-union men, most of them inexperienced. The mills at Nekoosa, Grand Rapids and Wausau are all attempting to run shorthanded, but are doing so at a disadvantage and financial loss.

FIRE AT WEST SUPERIOR.

Planing Mill Destroyed With Loss of Twelve Thousand Dollars.

West Superior, Wis., April 29.—Yesterday morning fire completely destroyed the planing mill of the American Lumber company and its entire contents. The loss will amount to about $12,000, covered by insurance. The company intends to at once rebuild. Owing to the high wind the firemen had difficulty in preventing the destruction of the lumber of the West Superior Lumber company on the adjoining dock.

GIRL SUES FATHER FOR WAGES.

Asks $2 a Week From Time She Was Eighteen Until Her Marriage.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 29.—A peculiar case was tried in district court here, Mrs. Augusta Mahlert suing her father, August Hurworth, for wages from the time she was eighteen until she was married. She asks for $2 a week, and also asserted she had loaned him $45, which she would like to have returned, making a total of $347. The jury returned a verdict for $123.

OPERATOR LOSES HIS LIFE.

Station at Oshkosh Partially Destroyed by Fire.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 29.—The South side station of the Wisconsin Central Railroad company was partially destroyed by fire and the company's operator, William Van Velson, lost his life in the conflagration. He had been sleeping on a lounge and was not rescued until some time after the fire started. He died as a result of the burns he suffered.

FAMILY OF CATS WITHOUT TAILS.

Five Are Born in This Condition at Yankton.

Yankton, S. D., April 29.—A curious freak of nature is in evidence here. A cat in the family of Louis Schaller has given birth to five tailless kittens. Otherwise the kittens are fully developed and are like the rest of their kind. A year ago the same cat had one kitten out of her family deformed the same way.

MEETS WITH PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

RIOTS IN RUSSIA

EIGHTEEN THOUSAND PEASANTS PARTICIPATING IN THE DISORDERS.

EIGHTY ESTATES ARE SACKED

EVERYTHING IS DESTROYED THAT THEY CANNOT CARRY AWAY.

WHOLE REGION IS TERRORIZED

LAND OWNERS AND STEWARDS ARE FLEEING TO PLACES OF SAFETY.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—The peasants in the Poltava and Kharkoff provinces, where 18,000 are reported to be participating in riots, have already sacked eighty estates, where they destroyed everything they could not carry off. The whole region is terrorized and land owners and stewards are fleeing for safety. The fear is increasing that Kharkoff and other towns will be attacked. Some of the authorities are showing weakness and pusillanimity, while others are cruelly vigorous and are causing wholesale floggings of persons arrested. The agitation at Moscow is so serious that the czar has of spending the Russian Easter there. The ministers, including M. De Witte, the minister of finance, continue to receive letters threatening them with death.

Relinquished His Intention

The judicial inquiry into the assassination April 15 of M. Sipiaguine, the minister of the interior, has led to the arrest of many persons suspected of connection with an anti-government conspiracy. These include a Jewess, who is the fiancee of Balschaneff, the assassin of the minister, and her father, who supplied Balschaneff with money. Upon learning of the arrest of his fiancee Balschaneff attempted to commit suicide but was prevented from so doing by his guards.

TRAGEDY AT A CHURCH.

Angered at Being Asked to Remove His Hat a Man Commits Murder.

Hazleton, Pa., April 29. — Michael Cherko, aged thirty-eight years, was murdered about a hundred feet from the Greek Catholic church at Freeland yesterday morning during the progress of the Greek Easter services. George Smith is under arrest charged with having committed the crime. It is alleged that Smith, upon entering the church, failed to remove his hat, and when requested to do so by Cherko, one of the trustees, drew a black jack and assaulted Cherko. The latter ran out the door followed by Smith. Cherko had not gone far when Smith, drawing a revolver, shot him through the back, death being instantaneous. Friends of the dead man overpowered Smith and took him to the station house. The services came to an abrupt termination amid great excitement.

IRISH ARE COMING.

England Alarmed at Emigration of Erin's Young Folk.

London, April 29.—Emigration from the west of Ireland to America is assuming what is called "alarming proportions." During the last fortnight hundreds of emigrants have passed through Limerick on their way to Cork. Two special trains from Port Arlington carried nearly 1,800 emigrants, mostly young persons of both sexes, while other lots of 200 or more had gone on board the steamer.

ELECTIONS IN FRANCE.

Government Gets Turned Down in Paris.

Paris, April 29.—Paris has not elected a single Ministerialist to the chamber of deputies. Eight Nationalists, six anti-ministerialist Socialists, four anti-ministerialist Republicans and three Conservatives were returned. It was the worst defeat the government has ever sustained in Paris. The ministerialists lost four seats and another new constituency was won by the Nationalists.

HE MUST WAIT AWHILE.

Would-be Soldier Is Sentenced to Three Years' Imprisonment.

Winnipeg, April 29. — James Kelly, who made application at Lethbridge to accompany the Canadian contingent to South Africa to fight the Boers, was arrested and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for stealing $55 from a companion. Kelly formerly served with the United States army in the Philippines.

NORTH DAKOTA LEADS IN FLAX.

Crop of 1899 Was Valued at More Than $7,000,000.

Washington, April 29. — The census report on flaxseed for 1899 shows that the total number of acres devoted to this crop was 2,110,616. The produce amounted to 19,979,492 bushels, valued at $19,624,901. The principal state reporting flaxseed was North Dakota, having 773,930 acres, with a total of 7,760,610 bushels, valued at $7,735,840.

Log Crop Is Ripe.

Black River Falls, Wis., April 29—The late heavy rains caused a good driving stage in Black river and there was the best run of logs yesterday of the season. Very few of the new logs have yet reached here. A large driving crew is working the upper waters to get last winter's cut started.

Spotted Fever Scourge.

Missoula, Mont., April 29. — The spotted fever scourge in the Bitter Root valley has broken out with greater virulence than any time known in the history of the peculiar disease. Eight persons have died from malaria within a week and several others are dangerously ill.

Coronet for Willy Wally.

London, April 29.—Latest report has it that William Waldorf Astor will be created Baron Cliveden of Taplow next month.

SWEPT BY FLAMES

FOREST FIRES CAUSE GREAT DAMAGE IN CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA.

SEVERAL DEATHS ARE REPORTED

TWO MEN, PINIONED UNDER A LOCOMOTIVE, ARE BURNED TO DEATH.

A FIERCE FIGHT AGAINST FIRE

CITIZENS TURN OUT TO SAVE THEIR TOWN FROM DESTRUCTION.

Williamsport, Pa., April 26.—During the past forty-eight hours the furious sweep of forest fires in the central section of the state has caused devastation to a vast amount of property and in two cases the loss of life is attributed to the fire fiend. From Sinnemahoning comes meager details of the fate that befell two men and the thrilling escape of four others. Mountain fires destroyed a large number of sleepers and caused the rails to spread on Barclay's lumber railroad. An engine and a dozen cars loaded with logs were derailed. The locomotive overturned, pinning two of the six men riding on it under the tender. The other four men saved themselves with great difficulty but were unable to prevent their comrades, pinned under the tender, from burning to death.

Many Houses Destroyed.

As a result of the fire which destroyed ten houses, a church, a schoolhouse and nine stables in the village of Clintondale, Clinton county, last night, six-year-old Agnes Felding lost her life. The child became frightened when the flames attacked the home of her parents, and in attempting to reach a place of safety she fell into a creek and was drowned. Her body was recovered yesterday afternoon a mile from her home. A critical condition of things exist in the northwestern portion of Lycoming county in the Pine creek valley. Near Haneyville 400,000 feet of sawed lumber belonging to George Walker was destroyed. Four houses were also burned. Rogers' sawmill on Lick run was wiped out of existence. A large amount of sawed lumber was saved with difficulty.

Fierce Fight With Flames.

Over fifty men worked hard all day and a portion of the night fighting a fierce fire in Mosquito valley above the Williamsport Water company's reservoir. The flames covered an immense area, fully a hundred acres being burned over. The fighters finally succeeded in mastering the fire. The mountains bordering Pine Creek are reported ablaze from Ramseyville to Ansonia. At Ramseyville 2,500 feet of logs belonging to Valentine Luppert of South Williamsport, were destroyed. At Ridgeway a fire alarm was sounded and the citizens turned out to fight the flames and saved the town from destruction. Passengers arriving here from points along the Philadelphia & Erie railroad state that the forests are ablaze from Renova to Johnstown.

INDIANA REPUBLICANS.

State Convention Places Ticket in Nomination.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 26.—The Indiana Republican convention yesterday named the following ticket: Secretary of state, Daniel E. Storms; auditor, David E. Sherrick; treasurer, N. U. Hill; attorney general, Charles W. Miller; state geologist, Willis S. Blatchley; state statistician, Benjamin F. Johnson; judge supreme court, John H. Gillette; judges of the appelate court, W. D. Robinson, William J. Henley, James B. Black, Daniel W. Comstock, Ulric Z. Wiley, Frank S. Roby; clerk of the supreme court, Robert A. Brown; superintendent of public instruction, F. A. Cotton. The secretary of state, state geologist, state statistician, judge of the supreme court and judges of the appellate court were nominated by acclamation. For every other position on the ticket there was a warm fight.

COBURN ACQUITTED.

Duluth Cadet Not Guilty of Charges Preferred Against Him.

Washington, April 26.—Congressman Page Morris has been advised that Fred Coburn of Duluth, a cadet at Annapolis naval university, has been acquitted of charges preferred against him some time ago of making a disturbance. Coburn was accused of making false statements and denying that he was the instigator of a row among the cadets. He was ordered for trial and cleared of the charges.

DIAZ TO VISIT EUROPE.

President of Mexico Will Apply to Congress for Leave of Absence.

Berlin, April 26.—According to a dispatch received in Hamburg from a Mexican banker, President Diaz of Mexico intends to ask the Mexican congress for leave of absence to make a trip to Europe next May. President Diaz purposes to install Senor Limantour, the minister of finance and commerce, as executive during his absence.

PLAGUE IN CANTON.

Disease in Malignant Form Breaks Out in the Chinese City.

Washington, April 26.—United States Consul McWade at Canton cabled the state department yesterday that the bubonic plague has broken out in Canton in malignant form.

Disastrous Fire.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, April 26.—Fremont fifteen miles southeast, was visited by a disastrous fire yesterday morning, that destroyed three-fourths of the business portion of the town. The total loss will reach $35,000.

Safe Dynamited by Robbers.

Harvard, Neb., April 26.—The safe of the Elkhorn depot here was dynamited at 1 o'clock this morning and its contents taken by unknown robbers. The amount lost cannot be learned. No clue.

CONGRESS.

Two Speeches Occupy the Attention of the Senate.

Washington, April 26.—Two speeches occupied the entire attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. McCumber of North Dakota discussed the bill to prevent the misbranding and misrepresentation of food products which enter into interstate commerce. Mr. Carmack of Tennessee, one of the minority members of the Philippines committee, spoke in opposition to the Philippine government bill now pending. His address attracted to the chamber not only many senators, but a considerable number of his former colleagues in the house. He sharply criticised the president not only for the policy he is pursuing in the Philippines, but for utterances which, the senator declared, tended to fan the flame of insurrection.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed 145 private pension bills, including bills to pension the widow of the late Gen. William Ludlow at $50 a month and the widow of the late "Parson" Brownlow of Tennessee at $30 per month. The remainder of the day was devoted to general debate on the agricultural appropriation bill.

REDUCE DUTY ON SUGAR.

Request From the Philippines Transmitted to the Senate.

Washington, April 27.—The secretary of war yesterday transmitted to the senate a cablegram from the president of the assembly of the presidentes of Occidental Negros, P. I., asking a reduction of 75 per cent on the duty on sugar imported into the United States from the Philippines. The cablegram represents that "the agricultural situation is very critical owing to grasshoppers, epizootic, epidemics, torrential rains, scarcity of labor, expensive transportation, the low price of sugar and the high price of other articles of prime necessity." He adds that unless there is a reduction of at least 75 per cent the province will be completely ruined.

WRECK ON A VIDUCT.

Locomotive Axel Breaks and Train Is Wrecked.

London, April 27.—A serious wreck occurred on the Great Eastern railway at the Hackney Downs junction station at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. What is known as "the last three-penny train" from Walthamstow was crossing a bridge when an axle on the locomotive broke and the train was brought to a sudden standstill. Several of the carriages were wrecked and some of them tilted dangerously over the viaduct. Two persons were killed outright and sixteen seriously and 100 slightly injured. A boy had both legs cut off and one man lost a foot. The injured were removed later to the German hospital.

TESTS OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

New Government System Is a Success.

Norfolk, Va., April 27.—Tests of the new government system of wireless telegraphy were made yesterday at Roanoke Island, Pamlico sound, before a number of naval experts. The tests were in charge of Prof. Reginald Fessenden of Allegheny, Pa., who is now attached to the weather bureau service and who is the inventor of the system. From what could be learned late last night they were entirely successful. The experiments were conducted over a distance of sixty miles.

CORRIGAN DOING WELL.

Archbishop's Condition Favorable as Could Be Expected.

New York, April 27.—The following bulletin was issued at 10:15 o'clock last night by Dr. Keyes: "The archbishop has had an excellent day; no unusual or irregular symptoms of any sort. He has fully held his own and his condition is satisfactory." There was a consultation at 9:30 between Dr. Keyes and Dr. Janeway and Dr. Delafield. They found the patient's condition as favorable as could be expected.

Paine Is Not Guilty.

Washington, April 27.—The navy department yesterday received the findings of the court-martial headed by Rear Admiral Cooper which tried Jas. A. Paine, a blacksmith aboard the U. S. S. Cincinnati, for killing Angus Williams, a water tender on the same vessel, while the Cincinnati was lying off Charleston a few weeks ago. The court found Paine not guilty of the charge of manslaughter and he was acquitted.

Big Strike Threatened.

Detroit, Mich., April 27.— The Free Press says: It was announced here yesterday that the lumber handlers at the Lake Superior ports will go out on a strike next week. They demand 60 cents an hour, which the lumber carriers have refused to grant. A meeting of the board of managers of the lumber carriers' association will be held in Chicago early in the week.

Settles Down to Hard Fight.

Paterson, N. J., April 27.—The strike of the silk dyers' helpers which began on Wednesday and immediately developed violence, has now apparently settled down to a waiting fight between the men and their employers. Four of the minor silk dyeing firms yesterday acceded to the demands of the men, but the big firms are still a unit in refusing to sign.

Assist Home Sugar Industry.

Vienna, April 27.—During the debate on the budget in the lower house of parliament yesterday the minister of finance announced the government's intention to assist the home sugar industry over the transition period involved by the inauguration of the decisions reached by the international sugar conference at Brussels.

Telephones Out of Commission.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, April 27.—Fire in the Iowa Telephone company's office destroyed part of the cables, disabling every telephone in the city. Contact with a trolley wire was the cause. The loss cannot be estimated.

Peterson Nominated.

Washington, April 27.—The president yesterday sent to the senate the nomination of John Peterson as collector of customs for the district of Minnesota at St. Paul. This is Mr. Peterson's second term.

PUSH BEEF TRUST

ATTORNEY GENERAL KNOX ORDERS IMMEDIATE ACTION BROUGHT.

IS IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE

KNOX SATISFIED THE COMBINE VIOLATES THE INTERSTATE LAW.

INJUNCTION WILL BE BROUGHT TO RESTRAIN IT FROM FURTHER PROCEEDINGS UNDER AGREEMENT.

Washington, April 26.—Attorney General Knox has reached the conclusion that the so-called beef trust is a combination in restraint of trade within the meaning of the interstate act, and he has accordingly directed the United States district attorney at Chicago to prepare a bill in equity for an injunction against it.

This statement was given out by Attorney General Knox late yesterday afternoon after a final consultation with President Roosevelt on the subject:

"On April 4 this department directed W. A. Day, Esq., of Washington, in his capacity as special assistant to the attorney general, to examine into as far as practicable the public charges to the effect that a combination of large meat dealers of the United States had been effected contrary to the provisions of the laws of the United States. This preliminary examination resulted in instructions to Mr. Day and Mr. Bethea, United States attorney at Chicago, on April 7, to prosecute simultaneously in Chicago and the East a more into the allegations and proofs alleged to exist in support thereof. From their reports I am satisfied that sufficient evidence is in hand upon which bills in equity for an injunction can be framed to restrain the combination mentioned from further proceeding under their agreements, which clearly appear to be in restrain of interstate trade.

"I have, therefore, in compliance with the law which provides' it shall be the duty of the several district attorneys of the United States in their respective districts under the direction of the attorney general to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain violations of this act,' directed the district attorney at Chicago to prepare a bill for an injunction against the corporations and persons who are parties to the combination mentioned, to be filed in the United States circuit court for the Northern district of Illinois."

SENATORS IN TROUBLE.

Speedy Automobile and a Fighting Conductor.

Washington, April 26. — Two United States senators yesterday had troubles which they may give an opportunity of telling policemen, Senator W. A. Clark of Montana and Senator Hernando De Soto Money of Mississippi are the solons whose peace of mind have been disturbed. When Senator Clark arrived at the senate annex yesterday in his automobile he was interviewed by two bicycle policemen, who had been following him. They asserted that he had been exceeding the speed limit of twelve miles an hour. The senator declered he had not been going more than ten miles an hour. The officers requested that the chauffeur appear at the police court in the morning, and the senator announced that he would do so. He also added that he did not intend to violate any regulations, but he did not intend to be subjected to unnecessary annoyance, and would fight the case to the end. Senator Money yesterday morning missed his train for Baltimore and rather than pay his street car fare had a fight with a street car conductor and a fireman, in which he used a knife, and later demanded that both men be discharged.

FLEE THE FIELD.

Venezuelans Indulge in the South American Habit of Desertion.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 26.—On Tuesday morning the Venezuelan government troops, numbering 2,200 men, under Gen. Ramon Castillo, attacked the revolutionists between San Antonio and Guanaguana. Gen. Castillo personally led the advance government guard, composed of Audinos, veteran troops. One hour after the opening of the action Gen. Castillo was wounded. Immediately after this all the recently recruited Venezuelan soldiers disbanded and deserted in all directions, eventually reaching San Antonio. The government officers vainly tried to rally their troops. The whereabouts of Gen. Escalante, who was second in command of the government army, was unknown. Gen. Castillo died later from his wound. The situation in Venezuela is again critical.

URGING IRRIGATION.

Additional Reasons in Favor of the Pending Bill Are Presented.

Washington, April 26. — William H. Chadwick, chairman of the transportation committee of the board of trade of Chicago, has written a letter to Representative Newlands of Nevada, the author of the pending irrigation bill, presenting new reasons why this measure should be passed. Mr. Chadwick holds that the states lying east and northeast of the arid lands suffer enormous loss as a result of the burning heat coming from the arid quarters.

Chicago Dealers Take Hope.

Chicago, April 26.—There was no advance yesterday in beef prices and dealers hope to see a disposition on the part of the packers not to send the prices higher. Pork advenced 1 1-4c, but ham and bacon advanced a cent each.

Pope In Good Health.

Rome, April 26. — The pope received 20,000 pilgrims at St. Peter's yesterday morning. His illness seemed to be in perfect health and thanked the pilgrims for their loyalty to the papacy. He was accorded a warm ovation.

DREW GUN BY MUZZLE.

Trigger Caught and Henry Rusch Was Shot, Probably Fatally.

Winona, Minn., April 25. — Henry Rusch of Le Claire was probably fatally injured yesterday afternoon by receiving a charge of shot from a gun in his side, the shot entering the body below the armpit and penetrating his lungs. In company with two companions he was making a pleasure trip on a launch up river. Five miles above here the launch became disabled, and in starting to repair it he took hold of a gun by the muzzle to remove it from the boat. The trigger caught and he received the full charge. He is being cared for in a Winona hospital.

BRUTALLY ASSAULTED.

Aged Man the Victim of an Unfeeling Assailant.

Winona, Minn., April 25. — A brutal assault with alleged intent to murder and rob was committed by Ed Murphy on William Pfannschmidt at St. Charles last evening. Murphy has been arrested. His victim's condition is precarious. He is about eighty years of age. Murphy, it is alleged, struck the old man on the head, from behind, with a blunt instrument, relieved him of a gold watch and $3 in currency, and fled. Two hours later Mr. Pfannschmidt, literally covered with blood, was only able to scrawl on a piece of paper the name of his assailant.

NOONAN CONFESSES.

Sheriff Says He Admits Crime of Long Ago.

Helena, Mont. April 25. — Sheriff O'Connell, who accompanied Sheriff Bjexrud and Patrick Noonan, charged with the murder of John Skinner twenty-eight years ago in Minnesota, says Noonan confessed to the killing of Skinner to Sheriff Bjexrud on the train Tuesday night between Helena and Logan. He admitted that he was in Fillmore county at the time of the killing. He said he acted in self-defense and afterward fled to California.

SEED BLOWN AWAY.

High Wind Necessitates Replanting Small Grain.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 25.—Yesterday's high wind in this section is reported to have blown some small grain out of the ground. The delayed spring rains left the ground dry and dusty and the fifty-mile wind carried the covering over the grain away to the next section. The damage is not considered great. Reports from the southern portion of South Dakota do not tell of drouth damage, but a general wish for rain is expressed.

BEEF 100 PER CENT HIGHER.

Wisconsin Board of Control Is Appalled at Prices.

Madison, Wis., April 25.—An increase of from 33 to over 100 per cent in prices of different kinds of meats was shown when bids were opened by the state board of control for supplying the state charitable and penal institutions. For prime native steers, the principal item, the lowest price was $0.23, an increase of 33 per cent. The contract has not been awarded.

DIES DIGGING A GRAVE.

Sexton at Helena Suddenly Stricken by Apoplexy.

Helena, Mont., April 25.—The Catholic cemetery here was the scene yesterday of a dramatic incident. As Gravedigger John Abel was performing the duties of his position at a grave that had just received the body of Thomas Crystal, who was shot by J. S. Keerl, he was stricken with apoplexy and died. He was sixty-six years old and a native of Germany.

PROPERTY MADE WORTHLESS.

Injunction Against Interurban Railway Destroys Value.

Kenosha, Wis., April 25. — The supreme court of Wisconsin granted a permanent injunction against the Kenosha Street Railway company, making property valued at $100,000 valueless, and making impossible the completion of the interurban route between Chicago and Milwaukee. All the members of the company are Chicago men.

FARMER'S HEAVY LOSS.

Lightning Destroys Barns and Kills Live Stock.

Litchfield, Minn., April 25.—During the storm yesterday two barns of Halver Johnson, northwest of here, were struck by lightning and burned to the ground. He lost thirty sheep, seven horses and fifty head of stock. Mr. Olson's barn, south of here, was struck, burning up, with a loss of nine horses and twelve cows.

BURGLARS AT BEMIDJI.

They Overlook $700 in a Safe, but Take Other Things.

Bemidji, Minn., April 25.—F. D. Coleman & Co.'s store was broken into and burglarized last night. Twelve dollars was taken from the till. Revolvers and other articles are missing. The safe contained $700, but was not opened.

BABCOCK PAST DANGER.

Wisconsin Congressman Continues to Improve.

Washington, April 25.—The condition of Representative Babcock of Wisconsin continues to improve. Although still very weak from his two months of illness, it is believed that the danger point has been passed.

Killed in a Wreck.

Spokane, Wash., April 25.—A passenger train from Coulee City to Spokane on the Central Washington, was wrecked yesterday near Cheney. Neil Bowie of Reardon, Wash., was killed and John Kellogg of Reardon and an infant named Phelps so badly injured that they may die.

Wisconsin Trolley Line.

Sparta, Wis., April 25. — Sparta has granted a franchise to capitalists who propose to construct an electric railway to Melrose, twenty miles northwest, touching the towns of Cataract and Burr Oak.

Will Build Elevator.

Clear Lake, Minn., April 25. — John Mallaney of Chicago has secured a site for a grain elevator with a capacity for 20,000 bushels, to be finished July 1, on the property just south of the flour mills.

QUEEN IS WORSE

ADMISSION THAT SHE IS NOT SLEEPING WELL TAKEN AS BAD SIGN.

RESTIVE UNDER LIQUID DIET

DISPATCHES FROM ROYAL FAMILY AND DOCTORS' BULLETINS DISAGREE.

HOLLANDERS ARE MUCH WORRIED

QUEEN MOTHER HAS DIFFICULTY IN PACIFYING THE ROYAL PATIENT.

Amsterdam, April 27.—In official circles no amelioration of Queen Wilhelmina's condition is admitted and her doctor's admission that she is not sleeping well is taken as a bad sign. It is alleged that the dispatches from the royal family concerning the queen's condition differs substantially from the medical bulletins on the subject. It is reported that the queen is restive under the liquid diet treatment and has insisted that her nurses give her solid food. In this respect, however, her doctors are inexorable. The queen's mother has great difficulty in pacifying the patient.

It is ascertained that the doctors have advised the queen mother for the sake of her own health to relax her vigilance and take a daily walk or drive. These outings, therefore, are no indication that her majesty is progressing favorably.

REBELS SCATTERED.

Imperial Troops in China Use Maxims and Twelve-Pounders.

Hongkong, April 27. — Advices received here from Wu Chou, under date of April 22, announce that bloody battle was then proceeding between a force of imperial troops, on their way to Nanking, and a large force of rebels. The imperial army attacked the rebels' encampment in the Wu Chang hills, brought up two Maxims and two twelve-pounders and finally scattered the rebels and captured their leader, Hung Yung Seng, who was wounded. Subsequently the rebels captured two villages on the outskirts of Nanking and established their headquarters in those villages.

WHY EGGS ARE DEAR.

Energetic Efforts of the Big Packing Houses to Corner the Market.

Chicago, April 27.—The struggle for the control of the eggs of the country has become the fiercest in the whole range of farm products. Every corner of the Western states is being searched for eggs by agents for Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and a few smaller dealers who have capital enough to enable them to compete with these leaders of the provision world. As a result of this competition prices paid to farmers are rapidly advancing and every indication points to unprecedented high prices for cold storage eggs next winter.

IN SIGHT OF PEACE.

Yet Men and War Materials Go to South Africa.

London, April 27.—Speaking in London last night, Mr. Brodrick, the secretary of war, said: "We are, perhaps, in sight of peace, but in the interval we are sending out men and material to carry on the war for another year or two, if necessary, that being the only spirit wherein the government can interpret the will of the nation and approach the arrangements for the conclusion of peace."

SHIPPING COMBINE.

Cunarders Will Join, Forcing Smaller Lines to Follow.

London, April 27. — The Times this morning announces that the shipping combine corporation is now in process of organization, the issue of stock having been underwritten here and in America, and that the promoters are ready to extend the capital to £40,000,000. The paper says also that the Cunard line will enter the combine, forcing the smaller lines to follow.

NORTH COAST LIMITED.

Northern Pacific to Reintroduce Service May 4.

The Northern Pacific will reintroduce its North Coast Limited service May 4. The limited trains will start from St. Paul westbound and from Portland eastbound the same day. A new feature of the service will be a special sleeping car running both ways between Butte and St. Paul to relieve the regular sleepers of the travel between these points.

Victory for Rebels.

New York, April 27.—The New York representatives of the Liberal party of Colombia were advised by cable yesterday that their forces had captured Rio Hacha, a seaport town 200 miles from Carthagena. The cablegram said that the engagement lasted many hours. No account of losses was given.

Farmer Burns Defeats Dwyer.

New Haven, Conn., April 27.—"Farmer" Burns of Iowa last night won the wrestling match with M. J. Dwyer of this city for a purse of $4,000. Burns threw Dwyer in twenty-eight minutes in the first fall. Dwyer secured the second in forty minutes and Burns took the third fall in thirteen minutes.

Town Totally Destroyed.

Findlay, Ohio, April 27.—Custar, an oil town of 500 inhabitants twenty miles north of here, was totally destroyed by fire last night. The loss, which will exceed $60,000, includes nine stores and scores of dwellings.

Many Business Houses Burned.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 27. — Fire at Westfield at midnight destroyed half a dozen business places, including the telephone exchange. It is impossible to get an estimate of the loss at this hour.

HALF A MILLION LOSS.

Fire at Glens Falls, N. Y., Causes Great Damage.

Glens Falls, N. Y., April 29.—A disastrous fire visited Glens Falls yesterday, causing a property loss estimated at over half a million dollars. The fire started in the clothing store of Webb Bros., on Glen street, and from thence spread to the large plant of the Joseph Fowler Shirt and Collar company, occupying the upper story of nearly the entire block. Then, fanned by high wind, the flames communicated to the neighboring buildings. The destruction of the Fowler shirt plant throws nearly 800 operatives out of employment and 200 more will be out temporarily. It is thought the insurance will nearly cover the losses.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER IV.

In Extremis.

For some time—a minute, an hour—Steel stood over the dreadful thing huddled upon the floor of his conservatory. Just then he was incapable of consecutive ideas.

His mind began to move at length. The more he thought of it the more absolutely certain he was that he fastened the door before leaving the house. True, the latch-key was only an ordinary one, and a key might easily have been made to fit it. As a matter of fact, David had two, one in reserve in case of accidents. The other was usually kept in a jewel drawer of the dressing table. Perhaps—

David went quietly up stairs. It was just possible that the murderer was in the house. But the closest search revealed nothing. He pulled out the jewel drawer in the dressing table. The spare latch key was gone. Here was something to go upon.

Then there was a rumbling of an electric bell somewhere that set David's heart beating like a drum. The hall light streamed upon a policeman in uniform, and an inspector in a dark overcoat and a hard felt hat. On the pavement was a long, shallow tray, which David recognized, mechanically, as an ambulance.

"Something very serious, sir?" Inspector Marley asked, quietly. "I've brought the doctor with me."

David nodded. Both the inspector and the doctor were acquaintances of his. He closed the door and led the way into the study. Just inside the conservatory, and not far from the huddled figure, lay David's cigar case. Doubtless, without knowing it, the owner had whisked it off the table when he had sprung the telephone.

"Um!" Marley muttered. "Is this a clue, or yours, sir?"

He lifted the case, with its diamonds gleaming like stars on a dark night. David had forgotten all about it for the time, had forgotten where it came from or that it contained £250 in bank notes.

"Not mine," he said. "I mean to say, of course, it is mine. A recent present. The shock of this discovery has deprived me of my senses pretty well."

Marley laid the cigar case on the table. It seemed strange to him, who could follow a tragedy calmly, that a man should forget his own property. Meanwhile, Cross was bending over the body. David could see a face, smooth, like that of a woman. A quick little exclamation came from the doctor.

"A drop of brandy here, and quick as possible," he commanded.

"You don't mean to say," Steel began; "you don't —"

—Cross waved his arm impatiently. The brandy was procured as soon as possible. Steel, watching intently, fancied that he detected a slight flicker of the muscles of the white, stark face.

"Bring the ambulance here," Cross said, curtly. "If we can get this poor chap to the hospital there is just a chance for him. Fortunately, we have not many yards to go."

As far as elucidation went, Marley naturally looked to Steel.

"I should like to have your explanation, sir," he said, gravely.

"Positively, I have no explanation to offer," David replied. "About midnight I let myself out to go for a stroll, carefully closing the door behind me. Naturally, the door was on the latch. When I came back, an hour or so later, to my horror and surprise, I found those marks of a struggle yonder, and that poor fellow lying on the floor of the conservatory."

"Um. Was the door fast on your return?"

"No; it was pulled to, but it was open, all the same."

"You didn't happen to lose your latch key during your midnight stroll, sir?"

"No; it was only when I put my key in the door that I discovered it to be open. I have a spare latch key that I keep for emergencies, but when I went to look for it just now, the key was not to be found. When I came back the house was perfectly quiet."

"What family have you, sir, and what kind of servants?"

"There is only myself and my mother, with three maids. You may dismiss any suspicion of the servants from your mind at once. My mother trained them all in the old vicarage where I was born, and not one of the trio has been with us less than twelve years."

"That simplifies matters somewhat," said Marley, thoughtfully. "Apparently your latch key was stolen by somebody who has made a careful study of your habits. Do you generally go for late walks after your household has gone to bed, sir?"

David replied, somewhat grudgingly, that he had never done such a thing before. He would like to have concealed the fact, but it was bound to come out, sooner or later. He had strolled along the front and round Brunswick Square. Marley shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, it's a bit of a puzzle to me," he admitted. "You go out for a midnight walk—a thing you have never done before—and when you come back you find somebody has got into your house by means of a stolen latch-key and murdered somebody else in your conservatory. According to that, two people must have entered the house."

"That's logic," David admitted. "There can be no murder without the slain and the slayer. My impression is that somebody who knows the ways of the house watched me depart. Then he lured his victim in here, under pretence that it was his own house—he had the purloined latch key—and murdered him. Audacious, but a far safer way than doing it out of doors."

But Marley's imagination refused to go so far. The theory was plausible enough, he pointed out, respectfully, if the assassin had been assured that the midnight rambles were a matter of custom. The point was a shrewd one, and Steel had to admit it. He almost wished now that he had suggested that he often took these midnight rambles. He regretted the fiction still more when Marley asked him if he had some appointment elsewhere to-night.

"No," David said, promptly, "I hadn't."

He prevaricated without hesitation. His adventure in Brunswick Square could not possibly have anything to do with the tragedy, and nothing would be gained by betraying that trust.

"I'll run around to the hospital and come and see you again in the morning, sir," Marley said. "Whatever was the motive of the crime, it wasn't robbery, or the criminal wouldn't have left that cigar case of yours behind. Sir James Lythem had one stolen like that at the last races, and he valued it at £80."

"I'll come so far as the hospital with you," said Steel.

At the bottom of the flight of steps they encountered Dr. Cross and the policeman. The former handed over to Marley a pocket book and some papers, together with a watch and chain.

"Everything that we could find upon him," he explained.

"Is the poor fellow dead yet?" David asked.

"No," Cross replied. "He was stabbed twice in the back, in the region of the liver. I could not say for sure, but there is just a chance that he may recover. But one thing is pretty certain—it will be a good, long time before he is in a position to say anything for himself. Good-night, Mr. Steel."

David went indoors thoughtfully, with a general feeling that something like a hand had grasped his brain and was squeezing it like a sponge. He was free from his carking anxiety now, but it seemed to him that he was paying a heavy price for his liberty. Mechanically he counted out the bank notes, and almost as mechanically he cut his initials on the gun metal inside the cigar case. He was one of the kind of men who like to have their initials everywhere.

He snapped the lights out and went to bed at last. But not to sleep. The welcome dawn came at last, and David took his bath gratefully. He would have to tell his mother what had happened, suppressing all reference to the Brunswick Square episode. It was not a pleasant story, but Mrs. Steel assimilated it at length over her early tea and toast.

"It might have been you, my dear," she said, placidly. "And, indeed, it is a dreadful business. But why not telephone to the hospital and ask how the poor fellow is?"

The patient was better, but was still in an unconscious condition.

CHAPTER V.

"Received With Thanks."

Steel swallowed a hasty breakfast and hurried townwards. He had £1,000 packed away in his cigar case, and the sooner he was free from Beckstein the better he would be pleased. He came at length to the offices of Messrs. Mossa & Mack, whose brass plate bore the legend that the gentry in question were solicitors, and that they also had a business in London. As David strode into the offices of the senior partner, that individual looked up with a shade of anxiety in his deep, Oriental eyes.

"If you have come to offer terms," he said, nasally, "I am sorry—"

"To hear that I have come to pay you in full," David said, grimly; '974 16s. 4d. every penny you can rightfully claim, up to yesterday, which, I understand is Here it is. Count it."

He opened the cigar case and took the notes therefrom. Mr. Mossa counted them, very carefully, indeed. The shade of disappointment was still upon his aquiline features. He had hoped to put in an execution to-day and sell David up. In that way quite £200 might have been added to his legitimate earnings.

"It appears to be all correct," Mossa said, dismally.

"So I imagined, sir. You will be so good as to indorse the receipt on the back of the writ. Of course, you are delighted to find that I am not putting you painful extremities. Any other firm of solicitors would have given me time to pay this. But I am like the man who journeyed from Jericho to Jerusalem—"

"And fell among thieves? You dare to call me a thief? You dare—"

"I didn't," David said, drily. "That fine, discriminating mind of yours saved me the trouble. I have met some tolerably slimy scoundrels in my time, but never any of them more despicable than yourself. Faugh! The mere sight of you sickens me. Let me get out of the place so that I can breathe!"

David strode out of the office with the remains of his small fortune rammed into his pocket. In the wild, unreasoning rage that came over him, he had forgotten his cigar case. And it was some little time before Mr. Mossa was calm enough to see the diamonds winking at him.

"Our friend is in funds," he muttered. "Well, he shall have a dance for his cigar case. I'll send it up to the police station and say that some gentleman or other left it here by accident. And if that Steel comes back, we can say that there is no cigar case here. And if Steel does not see the police advertisement he will lose his pretty toy, and serve him right. Yes; that is the way to serve him out!"

Mossa proceeded to put his scheme into execution while David was strolling along the sea front. He was too excited for work, though he felt easier in his mind than he had for months. He turned, mechanically on to the Palace Pier, at the head of which an Eastbourne steamer was blaring and panting. The trip appealed to David in his present frame of mind. Like most of his class, he was given to acting on the spur of the moment. . . . It was getting dark as David let himself into Downend Terrace with his latch-key.

How good it was to be back again! The eye of the artist rested fondly on the beautiful things around. And, but for the sport of chance, the whim of fate, those had all passed from him by this time. It was good to look across the dining table over Venetian glass, to see the pools of light cast by the shaded electric, to note the feathery fall of flowers and to see that placid, gentle face in its frame of white hair opposite him. Mrs. Steel's simple, unaffected pride in her son was not the least gratifying part of David's success.

"You have not suffered from the shock, mother?" he asked.

"Well, no," Mrs Steel confessed, placidly. "You see, I never had what people call nerves, my dear. And, after all, I saw nothing. Still, I am very sorry for that poor young man, and I have sent to inquire after him several times."

"He is no worse, or, I should have heard of it."

"No: and no better. And Inspector Marley has been here to see you twice to-day."

David pitied himself as much as a man could pity himself considering his surroundings. It was rather annoying that this should have happened at a time when he was so busy. And Marley would have all sorts of questions to ask at all sorts of inconvenient seasons.

Steel passed into his study presently and lighted a cigarette. Despite his determination to put the events of yesterday from his mind, he found himself constantly returning to them. What a splendid dramatic story that would make! And what a fascinating mystery could be woven round that gun metal cigar case!

By the way, where was the cigar case? On the whole, it would be just as well to lock the cigar case away till he could discover some reasonable excuse for its possession. His mother would be pretty sure to ask where it came from, and David could not prevaricate, so far as she was concerned. But the cigar case was not to be found, and David was forced to the conclusion that he had left it in Mossa's office.

A little annoyed with himself, he took up the evening Argus. There was half a column devoted to the strange case at Downend Terrace, and just over it a little advertisement to the effect that a gun metal cigar case had been found, and was in the hands of the police awaiting an owner.

David slipped from the house and caught a 'bus in St. George's Road.

At the police station he learned that Inspector Marley was still on the premises. Marley came forward gravely. He had a few questions to ask, but nothing to tell.

"And now perhaps you can give me some information?" David said. "You are advertising in to-night's Argus a gun metal cigar case set with diamonds."

"Ah!" Marley said, eagerly, "can you tell us anything about it?"

"Nothing beyond the fact that I hope to satisfy you that the case is mine."

Marley stared, open-mouthed at David for a moment, and then relapsed into his sapless official manner. He might have been a detective cross-examining a suspected criminal.

"Why this mystery?" David asked. "I have lost a gun metal cigar case set with diamonds, and I see a similar article is noted as found by the police. I lost it this morning, and I shrewdly suspect that I left it behind me at the office of Mr. Mossa."

"The case was sent here by Mr. Mossa himself," Marley admitted.

"Then, of course, it is mine. I had to give Mr. Mossa my opinion of him this morning, and, by way of spiting me, he sent that case here, hoping, perhaps, that I should not recover it. You know the case, Marley—it was lying on the floor of my conservatory that night."

"I did notice a gun metal case there," Marley replied.

"As a matter of fact, you called my attention to it, and asked if it was mine."

"And you said at first that it wasn't, sir."

"Well, you must make allowances for my then frame of mind," David laughed. "I rather gather, from your manner, that somebody else has been after the case: if that is so, you are right to be reticent. Still, it is in your hands, to settle the matter on the spot. All you have to do is to open the case, and if you fail to find my initials, "D. S.," scratched in the left-hand top corner, then I have lost my property, and the other fellow has found his."

In the same reticent fashion, Marley proceeded to unlock a safe in the corner, and from thence he produced what appeared to be the identical cause of all this talk. He pulled the electric table lamp over to him and proceeded to examine the inside carefully.

"You are quite right," he said, at length. "Your initials are here."

"Not strange, seeing that I scratched them there last night," said David, drily. "When? Oh, it was after you left my house last night."

"And it has been some time in your possession, sir?"

"Oh, confound it, no. It was—well, it was a present from a friend for a little service rendered. So far as I understand, it was purchased at Lockhart's, in North street. No. I'll be hanged if I answer any more of your questions, Marley. I'll be your Aunt Sally as far as you are officially concerned. But, as to yonder case, your queries are distinctly impertinent."

Marley shook his head gravely, as one might over a promising but headstrong boy.

"Do I understand that you decline to account for the case?" he asked.

"Certainly I do. It is connected with some friend of mine, to whom I rendered a service a little time back. The whole thing is and must remain an absolute secret."

"You are placing yourself in a very delicate position, Mr. Steel."

David started at the gravity of the tone. That something was radically wrong came upon him like a shock. And he could see pretty clearly that, without betraying confidence, he could not logically account for the presence of the cigar case. In any case, it was too much to expect that the stolid police officer would listen to so extravagant a tale for a moment.

"What on earth do you mean, man?" he cried.

"Well, it's this way," Marley proceeded to explain; "When I pointed out the case to you, lying on the floor of the conservatory last night, you said it wasn't yours. You looked at it with the eyes of a stranger, and then you said you were mistaken. From information given me last night I have been making inquiries about the cigar case. You took it to Mr. Mossa's, and from it you produced notes to the value of nearly £1,000 to pay off a debt. Within eight-and-forty hours you had no more prospect of paying that debt than I have at this moment. Of course, you will be able to account for those notes. You can, of course?"

Marley looked, eagerly, at his visitor. A cold chill was playing up and down Steel's spine. Not, to save his life, could he account for those notes.

"We will discuss that when the proper time comes," he said, with fine indifference.

"As you please, sir. From information also received, I took the case to Wallen's, in West street, and asked Mr. Wallen if he had seen the case before. Pressed to identify it, he handed me a glass and asked me to find the figures (say) '1771.x.3.' in tiny characters on the edge. I did so, by the aid of the glass, and Mr. Whalen further proceeded to show me an entry in his purchasing ledger, which proved that the cigar case in gun metal and diamonds bearing that legend had been added to the stock quite recently—a few weeks ago, in fact."

"Well, what of that?" David asked, impatiently. "For all I know, the case might have come from Walen's. I said it came from a friend, who must needs be nameless, for services equally nameless. I am not going to deny that Walen was right."

(To Be Continued.)

Four-Cent Tax on Novels.

The proposed municipal tax of 4 cents a volume on fiction is likely to be adopted if the newspapers have canvassed the members of the council correctly.

John Labusquire, the only American-born Paris alderman in history, is the author of the measure. He says:

"My purpose is not anti-educational. Nobody has worked harder than myself in behalf of public libraries. But the truth is, few novels really are educational.

"Novel-reading is merely one way of intoxicating one's self—like opium, whisky or wine. If we tax beer, why not fiction? We tax many essentials of life, why not this demoralizing consumption of romance?

"My bill exempts histories, scientific books and all the classics."—Paris Cable to New York World.

The Wrong Connection.

The telephone girl and the bill clerk, to whom she had promised her heart and hand, were sitting in front of the fire place, talking about the happy days to come when they should be one.

From one little detail to another, the talk finally drifted to the subject of lighting the fires in the morning. On this point the young man was decided. He stated it as his emphatic opinion that it was a wife's duty to get up and start the fires, and let her poor, hard-worked husband rest.

After this decision there was a silence for about three-quarters of a second. Then the telephone girl thrust out the finger encircled by her engagement ring and murmured, sweetly but firmly:

"Ring off, please. You have got connection with the wrong number."—New York Times.

Perfection.

The sense of importance which little Clara felt on being promoted to the public school, after two years of lessons at her grandmother's knee, was much enhanced when the time came for her written examination. She studied faithfully the twenty pages in her spelling book covered in the review, and when her paper was returned had the delight of seeing that it was graded 100.

The little girl at once wrote to her father the news of her success.

"Dear papa," the little note ran. "I did not miss a single word in my examniation. I am now purfuce in spelling."—Harper's Magazine.

The Minister's Wonderment.

The Rev. Dr. Bitting, pastor of the Mount Morris Baptist church, is a Southerner, and is noted among the many who have had the pleasure of hearing him speak for his original as well as his humorous remarks. The other Sunday evening, as he was announcing the offertory, and while soliciting a generous collection, he said:

"When I look over an audience, such as this, I say to myself: Where are the poor? But, more often, when I gaze at the contribution boxes, I wonder, Where are the rich?"—New York Times.

Nervousness Gave His Words a Twist.

Everything was in readiness. The groom, best man and the minister were gathered in the vestry. The organist began to play and the minister started for the door.

"Wait a moment, doctor!" called the nervous groom. "Is it the right or left hand that the ring goes on?"

"The left," hurriedly replied the minister.

"And, doctor, is—is it kisstermary to cuss the bride?"—Philadelphia Times.

Possibilities of the Latest Craze.

Housemaid (entering hurriedly)—Oh, if you please, mum, you know when you allowed cook to go out, just now for an hour? Well, she's come back so very—er—(hesitatingly)—poorly?

Mistress—So very poorly? Good gracious, Jane, what is the matter?

Housemaid—Well, you know, mum, you told her to do them bantam's eggs for master's tea, and she's trying to boil the ping-pong balls!—Punch.

What's in a Name?

"How full of misnomers our language is," said Mrs. Brown. "I met a man yesterday who was a regular bear, and yet they said he was a 'civil' engineer."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Lamb, "and there is the 'teller' in the bank. I asked him how much my husband had there and he wouldn't tell me at all."—Philadelphia Press.

At Both Ends.

Jasper—The British government is having a tough time of it just now.

Jumpuppe—I should say so. Their failures are scored by Kipling and their successes praised by Austin.—Life.

DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED

Pe-ru-na Creating a National Sensation in the Cure of Chronic Ailments of the Kidneys.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me any until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

Mr. John Vance, of Hartford City, Ind., says: "My kidney trouble is much better. I have improved so much that everybody wants to know what medicine I am using. I recommend Peruna to everybody and some have commenced to use it. The folks all say that if Dr. Hartman's medicine cures me it must be great."—John Vance.

Mr. J. Brake, of Petrolea, Ontario, Canada, writes: "Four years ago I had a severe attack of Bright's disease, which brought me so low the doctor said nothing more could be done for me. I began to take Peruna and Manalin, and in three months I was a well man and have continued so ever since."—J. Brake.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood.

Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys simply because it cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

The History of a Famous Park

Gift of Two Old Maids to City of Providence

The city of Providence, R. I., is indebted to two women for its beautiful Roger Williams Park, the only park in the country, or in the world, for that matter, which has descended straight from its original white owner, never leaving his family until at last it passed into the possession of the city which he founded.

Roger Williams owned a good deal of land in the vicinity of Providence, at one time and another, but this particular piece was given him by Miantonomi, chief of the Narragansetts, and it was the old Williams' homestead, where the founder lived and died. It passed to his descendants in the direct line for five generations, until at last it fell to two sisters, Rhoda and Betsy Williams. These women were of the old primitive New England stock, with a streak of heroism in their mental fiber. The farm was mortgaged when their father died. Imbued with a passionate devotion to the old place, they could not endure the thought of its passing out of the family.

One of them taught school; the other sewed. Eventually, through these avenues of scanty profit, they paid off the mortgage. Then they determined that the old place should never be cut up, but should be preserved unchanged for all time. The sisters decided that they would give the place, under certain conditions, to the city of Providence.

And so it became the Roger Williams Park, one of the prettiest parks in the country, and one of the chief points of interest in Providence. The old Williams' homestead, where Roger Williams died, and where Betsy died two or three years after her gift was accepted, is retained in all its primitive quaintness. Just outside the door is the well which Roger Williams dug. The old burying ground, full of dead and gone Williamses, is also kept in neat array.

The Japanese Regalia

History and Legends Connected with the Island Empire's Unique Crown Insignia.

Goji Ukita, chancellor of the Japanese legation, has been lecturing in London on the imperial regalia of Japan. These emblems consist of the mirror, symbolic of knowledge; the sword for courage, and the divine jewels for mercy. They are merely of copper, steel and stone, and it could not be claimed that they were beautiful. As to the legendary story of their origin the Sun Goddess was once enraged and withdrew herself into a cave, thereby leaving the earth in darkness. But the other deities resolved to work upon her curiosity, and by making a great noise outside, assisted by a pair of vigorous roosters, the Sun Goddess duly came to see the reason of the disturbance, and was told that rejoicings were in progress that a more beautiful goddess than herself had been found, and they then held the mirror for her to see herself. The Sun Goddess' brother met two old people mourning that an eight-headed serpent had annually devoured one of their eight lovely daughters, and was now coming for the last one. But Susenoo, as was named, placed eight great tubs of wine in the monster's way, and when he was sleeping killed him and removed the sword from his tail. The jewels are strangely shaped pieces of agate, based perhaps in form on an animal's tusk. The symbols became separated at one period, but copies of the earlier ones have been made from time to time. To-day the sword is kept in an apartment near the imperial bed chamber and called the Room of the Sword. The jewels have also a room to themselves, and the mirror is in charge of a priestess. The regalia have the highest significance in the eyes of the people, and it is held that no emperor can possibly rule without the three virtues which they represent. He must, moreover, hold the actual tokens, and in the imperial code it is enjoined that on the death of the sovereign his heir must take possession of them.

PARNELL IN RETIREMENT

How the Great Irish Leader Spent His Time During the Political Crisis.

Henniker Heaton in "The Leisure Hour," tells the following characteristic story of Charles Stewart Parnell, showing the latter's power of detachment: "He came into the house of parliament one afternoon when the fiercest excitement prevailed regarding the publication by the Times of the forged Pigott letters. He in a short speech denied the authorship of the letters and then walked into the lobby and engaged me in conversation. Everybody thought he was telling me of the awful political event then stirring men's minds. This is what he said to me: 'I have just read in the afternoon paper that a mountain of gold has been discovered in western Australia, and that some tons of the specimens have been sent home to you.'

"I replied that it was true, and that I had in my locker in the house some of the crushed specimens. We proceeded to get them, and I gave him about a wineglassful of the 'crushing.' He took it away with him, and to the bewilderment of his party no one saw him for a week, and very few indeed knew his address.

"On that day week," Mr. Heaton proceeds, "almost at the same hour he again appeared in the lobby. Walking up to me he said, smilingly, 'I have analyzed the specimens, and they go thirty-two ounces of gold to the ton.' I said he was wrong. He then took from his pocket a scrap of paper and read: 'Twenty-seven ounces of gold and five ounces of silver.' I replied that this was indeed remarkable, for it exactly coincided with the analysis of Johnston, Matthey & Co., the famous metallurgists. Parnell then showed me the small pin's point of gold he had obtained. I expressed surprise at his work. He said: 'The fact is, I take an interest in the matter. I have a small workshop to test the minerals in the mountains of Wicklow, some portion of which I own.' The astonishing thing is that while his hundreds of thousands of adherents were fulminating against the Times he was quietly working away testing minerals in his laboratory."

It is easier for God to work a wonder than for us to comprehend it.

Notes from Women.

A Philadelphia druggist has made the following collection of amusing missives that have been sent to him from time to time:

"I have a cute pain in my baby's stummick. Please give bearer something to cure it."

"My little girl has eat up a lot of buttons. Please send a nemetic by the enclosed boy."

"Dear doctor a dog bit my child on the leg please send some cork plaster and cutter eyes."

"Pleas send by bearer one postal card. Also kindly give bearer, my son, some licorice root."

"Deer doctor what is good for tirefoy fever send some quick I got it."

"Let my Johny have a glas of sody water. I wud come myself but I am washing. P. S. the five cents is for the sody watter."

"If you can fill the enclosed prescription for 25 cents do so. If not return by bearer."

A Most Unique Will.

Mr. John Murdoch, who for some time was a plumber in Dundee, and who died in December at the Edinburgh hydropathic establishment, Craiglockhart, by his last will and testament has bequeathed over £60,000 ($291,900) for a somewhat novel public scheme destined to benefit indigent bachelors and widowers. The beneficiaries may be of any religious denomination or belief, but one of the necessary qualifications is that they have practical sympathy either as amateurs or professionals in the pursuit of science in any of its branches and that their lives have been characterized by sobriety, morality and industry. No widower or bachelor under 55 years of age is to be eligible.

Open Door Policy Defined.

Once upon a time a statesman greatly interested in our foreign relations, and who kept his wife well informed on the international problems in the far East, was awakened by his better half in the early hours of the morning, and informed that she knew there were burglars down stairs.

With outstretched arms the statesman started for the hall, without a light to guide him, and brought his nose in violent contact with the edge of a door that was ajar. He fell to the floor with a howl of pain.

"What is the matter?" asked his wife.

"I have nearly knocked my brains out on the edge of the door," he answered. "I thought that you approved of the open door," she said.

"Not half open," he replied.

Long Island Peculiarities.

The class in geography in one of the Brooklyn schools was being examined the other day when the teacher asked:

"What are some of the natural peculiarities of Long Island?"

The pupils indulged in some heavy thinking, but none responded. Suddenly a fat boy with a red face, who had been shifting uneasily about in his seat, received an inspiration.

"I know," he exclaimed, raising his hand.

"Well, what are they?" encouraged the teacher.

"Why," said the fat boy, with a triumphant look around, "on the south side you see the sea, and on the north side you hear the Sound."

He was moved up to head of the class on general principles.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

FREE—$5,078.00 IN 2,999 PRIZES

FOR ALL WHO CAN COUNT THE DOTS.

THE PRIZES AND CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

This contest and the awarding of the prizes will be conducted under the following conditions and subject to the following directions: The prizes will be awarded in the order named below, to those registering the correct or nearest correct number of dots in the puzzle on this page:

First Prize . . $1,000.00 | Second Prize . . . $500.00 | Third Prize . . . $250.00 | Fourth Prize . . . $100.00

The Fifth to the 2,999th Prizes Will Aggregate Balance of the $5,078.00.

If two or more counts are tied for one or more prizes, an equal division of the contested prizes will be made. All counts must be sent in by mail, but no counts will be registered bearing postmark of any office within the corporate limits of Minneapolis or St. Paul.

DECISION OF CORRECT COUNT.

A positive guarantee is given that no person, directly or indirectly connected with The Tribune, not even the Dot Editor, knows the number of dots, nor will they know until after the official count is made. When the contest is closed the dots will be counted by J. R. Colburn, of New York City, the originator of the Dot puzzles; and he will furnish The Tribune an affidavit of the correct count. This affidavit, when certified by the judges of the contest, shall be conclusive on all parties as to the correct count. Mr. Colburn will not make the count of the dots until after the contest, and no one can possibly know the official count until then.

THE JUDGES.

The three judges named below will decide under the conditions of the contest who are the winners of the prizes offered, and they will render their decision in writing. This decision so made shall be final and binding upon all parties to the contest; and the prize money shall be paid out on the order of these judges to the winners as so determined by them. These judges will certify the official count to be made by Mr. Colburn. The Tribune has already deposited $5,078 in the First National Bank of Minneapolis, where it will remain until disposed of to the winners according to the conditions of the contest. A forfeit of $1,000.00 will be paid to any one who will disprove this statement. The judges will be:

Rear Admiral J. F. R. Foss, formerly President Nicollet National Bank, and Vice President First National Bank, Minneapolis.

Hon. Robert Pratt, ex-Mayor of Minneapolis.

Albert Dollenmayer, of the Dollenmayer Advertising Agency, Minneapolis.

THE DOTS.

The counting is perfectly free.

The more counts you register the surer you are of winning one of the big free cash prizes, of the $5,078.00 in gold.

Somebody is going to win the first prize, $1,000. Accuracy in registering your count is all you require to win $1,000, or the $500, or the $250, or the $100, or any of the other 2,995 free cash prizes.

If you can count, win the first prize, $1,000. Think of the mortgage you can raise with it, or the farm land it will buy for you. The other dot contests helped a number of farmers to pay off their mortgages. After all your labor, did you, or did your farm, clear $1,000 the past year? It will take only a little time and less toil to win this $1,000.

Start the children counting. A 15-year-old girl won the $100 in a former Tribune Dot Contest. Such contests sharpen the eye-sight and quicken the wits. No other employment will pay so generously as successfully counting the dots.

THE BEST WAY TO WIN.

Say ten friends, including yourself, club together, each sending in a count. One of you will possibly win the $1,000. The prize can then be divided among the members of your club—winning $100 for each of you. Each of you will have had ten chances of winning any one of the 2,999 prizes—or 29,990 opportunities of getting a portion of the $5,078.00. Your club may consist of any number. Or, do not form any club at all. Simply go after the prizes yourself, for yourself. You get all the advantages of a club of ten when you pay $5.00 for five years' subscription and ten registered counts, giving you, yourself, 29,990 chances of winning some of the $5,078.00.

The count is absolutely free. Every dollar is applied on your subscription. Each time you pay for a year's subscription you may register a count.

The Farmer's Twice-a-Week Tribune

Is the busy man's newspaper; all the latest news boiled down for ready reading, published Tuesdays and Fridays each week, 104 issues a year—less than a cent a copy. Each issue has a short story by one of the best writers and a part of a serial story, fashions and current illustrations, and, above all, the best Market Reports published.

IMPORTANT DIRECTIONS.

Read With Care Before Sending in Your Counts—These Conditions Must Be Complied With.

1. Write your count, name and address very plainly. If you are an old subscriber, write your name on your coupon just as it is on the red tab on your paper.
2. Say just what your count is without any "ifs" or "ands"—make it plain.
3. Be sure to state whether or not you are now taking The Farmers' Tribune.
4. Do not waste your time and ours by asking questions and writing letters. They only hinder us and delay recording your count.
5. Counts and money must come together by mail. Telegrams are useless.
6. Remit by postoffice order, express order, check or bank draft. We will not be responsible for cash sent by unregistered mail. Do not remit in stamps unless absolutely necessary. No count will be registered unless you send the remittance with it.
7. Do not send more counts than your remittance entitles you to. If you pay $1 for one year's subscription, you can register one count. If you pay $3.00 at one time for three years' subscription, you can register four counts; if you pay $4.00 at one time for four years' subscription, you can register six counts; or better still, pay $5.00 at one time for five years' subscription and get ten registered counts.
8. Two or more contestants may have their remittances applied on the same subscription, but be sure to give the name and address of the person who is to get the paper.
9. Should you forget to send your remittance with your count, send the count again when you do send your remittance.
10. For extra counts, the total remittance must be sent at one time, together with the counts, in the same envelope. For instance, if you want ten registered counts, you must send $5.00 and the ten counts at one time.
11. No one connected in any way with The Tribune can be a contestant.
12. No one residing in Minneapolis will be permitted to enter this contest. The Farmers' Tribune will not be sent to any Minneapolis address, and for the purpose of this contest, no count mailed in Minneapolis or St. Paul will be recorded.
13. All subscriptions paid prior to this contest, or sent in separate envelope, or paid through any local agent, will not be entitled to a registered count.
14. Counts cannot be changed or money refunded after they have been mailed to The Tribune office. If you have made a mistake, send another remittance with your new count.
15. Not more than one of the first four prizes will be awarded to the same person or to members of one family.
16. Your paper and receipt will be sent you just as soon as possible. It may take a week or ten days, so do not get anxious about it. Every remittance is acknowledged in the order of its receipt.

MINNEAPOLIS. WOODWARD & CO., GRAIN COMMISSION. DULUTH.
ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY EXECUTED IN ALL MARKETS.

THE NEWS,

By JOHN W. EASTMAN.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

The Crookston Times last week contained an excellent write-up of the four prospective candidates for the Republican nomination for congressman—Grindeland, Steenerson, Comstock and Valentine. The Republican party has some good material.

The Fisher Bulletin nominates "Nat" Campbell, of Crookston, for congressman on the Democratic ticket in a long article which ends by saying that: "This paper being Republican and Nat Campbell being Democratic, we cannot and will not support him."

The NEWS has received a copy of the report of the board of drainage commissioners with the compliments of its president, Hon. Ezra G. Valentine. It gives a full report of the good work done by this commission, which has labored so hard for the development of the Red River Valley.

The Populists of Polk county will hold a meeting at Crookston in June and decide whether or not the party in that county will disband and join the Socialists. There are no Populists in the state outside of the Red River Valley and it is belived that the Socialists in this section are as strong as the Populists.

FIRE LIMITS.

An Ordinance to Regulate the Erection of Buildings Within Certain Limits, and to Provide for the Safety of Property.

Territory, Section 1. Buildings of fire proof material only to be erected, 2. Discretionary power with council, 3. Buildings hereafter creted, 4. Stovepipes through floor or partition, 5. Arrangement of stoves, 6. Construction of chimneys, etc., 7. Disposition of ashes, 8. Owners of buildings to make necessary repairs, 9. City engineer may make repairs at expense of owner, 10. Neglect to make repairs a misdemeanor, 11. City engineer to report to the city council, 12. Aldermen may act for city engineer, 13.

The city council of the city of Thief River Falls do ordain as follows:

Section 1. The following territory shall constitute the fire limits of said city, that is to say: East half of block twenty-eight (28), the whole of block twenty-nine (29) west half of block thirty (30), all of block thirty-five (35), all of block thirty-six (36), east half of block thirty-seven (37), east half of block fifty-six (56), all of block fifty-seven (57), all of block fifty-eight (58), all of block sixty-two (62), and the east half of block sixty-three (63), all of the original townsite of Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Section 2. It shall not be lawful for any person to erect, or to attempt to erect, within the above fire limits, any wooden building or any building of which the outside walls are not composed exclusively of brick, stone, iron, or other fire proof materials, with the roof and gutters of fire proof materials. Neither shall it be lawful for any person to erect, within said fire limits, any addition to any building now built or hereafter to be built, within said limits, unless the outside walls of said addition shall be composed exclusively of brick, stone, iron, or other fire proof material, with the roof and gutters of fire proof materials. Provided, however, the city council upon application may authorize the erection within said fire limits, of buildings or additions, of other materials than herein specified within the territory of said fire limits, described in section one of this ordinance.

Section 3. All buildings or additions of which the outside walls, roof and gutters shall be composed in whole or in part of any materials other than such as are fire proof, which may hereafter be erected or the erection of which may be attempted, within said fire limits contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, are hereby declared to be public and common nuisances. And if any building not constructed of brick, stone, iron or other fire proof material, shall be placed within the aforesaid prescribed limits, contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, the owner or builder thereof shall forfeit a sum of twenty-five dollars, together with costs, for each and every week such building shall so remain within the said limits above described.

Section 4. In all buildings hereafter erected within said fire limits all stovespipes shall enter the chimneys at the side in the same story in which the stove or other appurtenance is situated with which said pipe is connected.

Section 5. No stove-pipe shall pass through any floor, or any wood, or lath or plaster partition unless the same, at the point where it passes such partition, be secured in such manner as the city engineer shall deem secure, neither shall any stove pipe pass through the ceiling, roof side or window of any such building. All chimneys within said fire limits shall be built of brick or stone, shall be at least four inches thick, plastered on the inside, and in all attics to be plastered on the outside when accessible, and shall rise above the roof at least two feet with no wood work framed or let into said chimneys, and shall in all respects be so constructed as in the opinion of said city engineer to be perfectly secure.

Section 6. No stove or other fire appurtenance which in the opinion of the city engineer shall be deemed insecure, shall be used for the purpose of keeping fire. All stoves shall have under them a protection of zinc, brick, stone or sand sufficient in the opinion of said city engineer to render the same secure, and all stoves shall be at least four inches from the floor and and at least ten inches from any lath and plaster work, and at least twelve inches from any wood work, unless said floors, plaster partitions or wood work shall be secured to the satisfaction of the said city engineer. And all appurtenances for keeping fire shall be arranged as in the opinion of the said city engineer to render the same secure.

Section 7. In all buildings hereafter erected, outside of said fire limits, the chimneys shall be built of brick or stone, at least four inches thick, well plastered inside and in all attics to be plastered on the outside when accessible, the rising above the roof at least two feet with no wood work let into the said chimney, and all stove pipes passing through any partitions, floors ceilings, or roof, entering any chimney shall be so put up as to render the same in the opinion of the city engineer secure; and all chimneys, fire places, hearths, stoves, stovepipes, ovens boilers, or other fire appurtenances used in or about any building shall be constructed in such manner as to be in the opinion of the city engineer secure.

Section 8. No person shall cause to be deposited any ashes, coals or cinders, within twenty feet of any building of any description, or any fence, or any combustible material within this city. Ashes in all cases to be removed from stoves and fire places in metal vessels. Neither shall any person deposit any hay or straw within said fire limits.

Section 9. It is hereby made the duty of the city engineer, whenever any building or any addition, other than such as are composed as above provided of fire-proof materials, shall hereafter be erected, or the erection of which shall be attempted within said fire limits, or when any attempt shall be made to repair any wooden building within said fire limits, when the same shall be damaged to the extent of two-thirds of the value thereof, forthwith to notify the person or his or her agent, who shall erect or attempt to erect any building or addition composed of any materials other than such as are fire proof as above provided or who shall attempt to repair any such wooden building that may be damaged as aforesaid, forthwith to cease all further work on such building or addition or upon such repairs, and forthwith remove such building or addition and all the materials of which the same shall be composed beyond the fire limits. And it shall be the duty of the city engineer at least every three months to visit, throughly examine and inspect all building within said fire limits, in which fires are kept, and whenever either within said fire limits or elsewhere in said city in his opinion any chimney, fire-place, hearth, stove, stovepipes ovens, boilers or other fire appurtenances shall be insecure he shall direct the owner of the building, if said owner be a resident of said city; if not then the occupant of said building to place the same forthwith in such condition as said city engineer shall deem secure.

Section 10. If any person after being notified by said city engineer shall erect or attempt to erect any building or addition composed of any material other than such as is fire proof as above provided or who shall attempt to repair any such wooden building or addition that may be damaged as aforesaid or who shall neglect or refuse to repair or make safe any chimney, fire-place, hearth, stove, stovepipes oven, boilers or other fire appurtenances as directed by said city engineer, it shall be the duty of said city engineer to cause the same to be removed or place the same in a safe condition, and the expense of such removal or repairs may be recovered by said city of the owner or the occupant of the building in which such defective fire appurtenance may be by action against such occupant or owner.

Section 11. The notices herein prescribed may be either oral or written; if the former, they shall be personally given by said city engineer to the person affected thereby; if the latter, they may be served by leaving a copy of the same certified by said city engineer, at the dwelling or place of bussiness of the person affected thereby.

Section 12. Any person who shall for the space of five days after being notified by said city engineer to make any repairs as above required, refuses or neglects to make the same in manner directed shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall for each and every offence be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars together, with costs or by imprisonment for not less than ten days nor more than thirty days. And any person who shall be guilty of a voilation of any of the provisions of the ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars together with costs, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

Section 13. Said city engineer shall make to the city council a report of his proceedings under this ordinance, and the condition of the fire appurtenances in said city. He shall be paid for the services rendered by him in the performance of his duties prescribed herein such sums as said city council shall allow.

Section 14. In case said city engineer shall be at any time absent when any duty is required to be performed under the provisions of this ordinance the same may be performed by any of the aldermen of said city, and when applied to it shall be the duty of such alderman to perform any of the duties hereby imposed upon said city engineer.

Section 15. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval and publication.

Passed April 26, 1902.

CHAS A. ROBBECKE,
Vice-President of the City Council.

Approved this 1st day of May, 1902.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1902. NUMBER 18

16 AND 36.

The State Is Not Entitled to Them.

A decision which is of great importance to the county around here was decided by the supreme court of the United States the first of the week. The court has decided that the state of Minnesota is not entitled to sections 16 and 36 on the ceded Red Lake Indian reservation lands. Most of these section are already settled upon by people who either thought that the state would lose its case, or if the state obtained title they would purchase. These settlers will now undoubtedly be allowed to file upon the land in a short time and what is not settled upon will be subject to homestead entry.

The decision will also effect the bill for the opening of the "eleven towns" west of this city. This bill provides for section 16 and 36 going to the state of Minnesota, but how they will be subject to homestead entry.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

TO RAISE VALUES.

Farm Property Not Assessed High Enough.

M. V. Evenson has commenced the work of assessing the property in the city of Thief River Falls. All property will be assessed at about 50 per cent of its true value, and an equal assessment will be given to all.

At the meeting of the assessors held at Red Lake Falls it was resolved to assess farm lands in the county at from $1.50 to $2.75 per acre. This is considered a great deal too low, when compared with the values put upon city property and an effect will be made to have the state board of equalization raise the farm values in Red Lake county, thereby placing them on an equal with city and village property in the county.

Upon the complaint of H. W. Lee, A. Wright has been arrested for renting a house across the railroad track for a house of ill fame. The trial will not take place until about two weeks from now.

The mill has been closed down during the past few days owing to the fact that all the logs in the pond have been sawed up. A new supply will arrive here in a day or so.

The ladies of St. Bernard's church have been holding a very successful fair this week in the Nelson building, and large amount has been netted by the society.

C. A. Nason and O. W. Siminson went up the Red Lake river Saturday about 25 miles on the steamer Ethel and returned on Sunday in a row boat.

The case of Stern vs. Commeford was tried at a regular term of the municipal court Tuesday by a jury, which could not agree. The case was left to Judge Tarrant who gave the plaintiff a verdict of $40 and costs.

EYES.—Dr. J. A. Walman, the eye specialist and optician, of Minneapolis, will visit Thief River Falls May 13. Office at Hotel Ogahmah. If you have eye trouble or need glasses perfectly fitted see Dr. Walman.

Blackleg has developed among some of the cattle in Sanders township and some deaths are reported. This is one of the worst diseases that is known among cattle and the people owning stock will do well to take every precaution to guard against it. Now that this country is becoming filled up with stock and so many farmers are going into diversified farming our people should take every precaution to prevent any of these stock diseases from getting a foothold in the district. There are still officers such matters, and they should be consulted as soon as there is a suspision that a disease is prevalent. In such cases it is well to remember the old saying about prevention and cure

AFTER PRIZES.

Firemen to Make an Effort at the Tournament.

The members of the Thief River Falls Fire Department have commenced to practice, and hope to win some of the prizes offered by the Northern Minnesota Firemen's tournament, which will be held at Cass Lake this year the latter part of June. The local fire department has some good material and if the required amount of practice is done are sure to win some of the prizes.

Tomorrow Night.

The members of the city schools will give a farce comedy in Odd Fellows hall tomorrow night entitled Budge vs. Budge. There are sixteen in the cast, and an interesting entertainment is promised.

John Says Not Until Fall.

John Sitting Bull, who went up to the Red Lake Indian reservation about a month ago to look up the probabilities of the proposed opening, was in town yesterday. He says there is no likelihood of the opening taking place before fall.—Crookston Journal.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that bids will be received for the erection of a high school building by the school board of Ind. School District No. 18, Red Lake county Minn. Plans and specifications prepared by Chas. A. Aldrich, of Minneapolis, can be had by applying to E. E. Zeh. Bids to be sealed and to be opened at 2 p. m. May 22, 1902. Successful bidder must be prepared to furnish bonds. The school board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

A FARM near Grand Forks was sold the other day at a price of $62 per acre. This we believe is the highest price yet paid for farm land in the Red River Valley, and is an indication that land values are going up. A few years ago such a price would have been considered ridiculous. In the no distant future no lands in the valley will sell for less.—Warren Sheaf.

Wall Paper.

Myraven & Jarneson have removed their stock of wall paper to Locken Bros. harness shop. Prices very reasonably. 6 cent upwards for double rolls. Call and see them.

Clean Up! Clean Up. Garbage Notice.

All manure piles, garbage, and other accumulations, of filth must be removed by May 15th.

Owners of property must understand that they are responsible in this matter, and see that their tenants attend to it; if they do not it will be done by the city, and the expense charged up against the property.

Signed—
Henry Grundy,
Heath Officer.

MAIN AVENUE WON

Were Victorious Again Sunday Afternoon.

By a score of 8 to 4 the Main avenue base ball club defeated the Thief River Falls Lumber company club at a game of base ball played Sunday afternoon. Very good ball was played by both teams, and it demonstrates the fact that a first class nine could be formed in this city.

Evins & Paulson have been appointed local agents for the Hamm Brewing company in place of R. B. Vining. Nels Severson is now the agent for the Crookston Brewery.

Candidates for county offices, this year, should cut out the following and paste it in their hat: The primary election this year will be held Tuesday, Sept. 16. At least twenty days before the date of such primary, or on or before Aug. 27, each candidate must file with the county auditor the proper affidavit, at the same time depositing $10. The auditor then makes up the ballots with the names of the candidates thereon, and copies thereof must be published in the official paper of the county twice before holding the primary election. If the office is for district filing must be made with the secretary of state, the fee being $20.—Crookston Journal.

It is told that an eastern investor in land recently asked a farmer what he had in the way of farming to make a living in South Dakota. The farmer said to him: "I take to the creamery the milk of fifteen cows. From this I get about $500. I turn off each year about twelve head of cows and steers that average me about $25 to $30 a head, worth, say $325. I fatten each year fifteen hogs which at present prices give me a little over $200. I generally have about 60 acres of wheat that average me about twelve bushels to an acre, which gives me about $1000. In addition to this I have some poultry and eggs to sell, which pays part of our grocery bill. I am doing well and do not know where I could do better. I own three quarters of land. It is not for sale.—Sisseton Courant.

The News Of the Week

Washington Notes.

Northwestern congressmen got liberal appropriations for federal buildings.

Strong opposition to the admission of territories to statehood has been developed.

The house has passed the omnibus public buildings bill, which appropriates $17,405,450.

Prof. Wiley, of the state agricultural department, says people should eat more cereals.

Determined opposition in the house may defeat the Nelson department of commerce bill.

President Roosevelt has signed the Chinese exclusion bill. The pen used was given to Representative Kahn of California, who has taken a deep interest in the bill.

Minister Wu Tingfang has declined an invitation to deliver an address at a school commencement at Milledgeville, Ga., on account of recent criticisms of himself in the senate.

The senate has confirmed the nomination of William H. Moody of Massachusetts to be secretary of the navy, and of John Peterson to be collector of customs for the district of Minnesota.

It is now believed that no further consideration will be given by the president to the subject of retiring Lieut. Gen. Miles, as long as the commander of the army continues his present attitude of reserve.

Director Merriam is making preparations to reduce his force one-half by July 1. There are now 1,500 clerks in the pension service. About 750 will be dropped from the rolls, and dismissals from now on will be continuous. Gov. Merriam has earned the sobriquet of "headsman."

Rear Admiral Arent Schuyler Crowninshield, the new commander-in-chief of the European squadron, has hoisted his flag on the battleship Illinois at the navy yard. The Illinois has sailed for Europe. She has been fitted up with palatial quarters for the officers who will represent the United States at the coronation ceremonies of King Edward.

People Talked About.

Congressman Eddy has returned from Europe and says he is in doubt about again becoming a candidate.

Gen. Sir William Olpherts, V. C., who gained the sobriquet of "Hellfire Jack" at Lucknow, is dead. He was born in 1822.

Louis Hudepohl, proprietor of the Buckeye brewery and one of the most prominent and wealthy citizens of Cincinnati, is dead.

Morris Hickey, a pioneer railroad builder, one of the originators of the Hannibal railroad in Missouri, died at St. Joseph of consumption, aged seventy-seven.

Hon. Washington Gardner, who now represents the third district of Michigan in congress, was unanimously renominated by the third district Republican congressional convention.

Clara, the eldest daughter of H. E. Huntington, and heiress to $9,000,000, was married to Henry Brooke Perkins of New York, at Trinity church, San Francisco. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Brent of the Philippines.

To the long list of important naval retirements this spring another was added when Capt. Charles Henry Rockwell was retired by operation of the age limit. Capt. Rockwell was born in and appointed from Massachusetts, and has served nearly forty years. He retires with the rank and title of rear admiral, junior class.

Crimes and Criminals.

A Chicago deaf mute is accused of killing two men.

Ekamarn Kamamara, a young Jap, who is trying to accumulate knowledge as a student by traveling as a hobo, was arrested at Chicago from a blind baggage, fined $5 and sent to the Bridewell by Judge Callahan.

Mathew Baumgarten, secretary of the Great Eastern Mining company of Wallace, Idaho, was arrested at Ishpeming, Mich., with his assistant, Dr. Bartler. They sold business men there stock at 20 cents. Chdistofer Grosbusch went to Idaho to see the property, where he learned that the stock was worth 4 cents only.

The kidnapping of little Margaret Taylor, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Taylor, has agitated Cincinnati for months, and involves prominent families in Cincinnati, Columbus and elsewhere. Prosecutor Hoffheimer has allayed public feeling by announcing that Gov. Nash has a clew to the whereabouts of the child.

Judge Harney, at Butte, fined John F. Forbis and L. O. Evans, attorneys for the Boston and Montana Mining company, $500 each, and committed them to jail for twenty-one hours for contempt of court. The action was the result of efforts of the attorneys to protect the interests of their clients in the notorious Minnie Healey mining case.

Foreign Gossip.

Americans go to Germany to make a large purchase of potash works.

Emigration from the west of Ireland is assuming alarming proportions.

Consul General W. McK. Osborne is dead of Bright's disease in London.

Gen. Botha finds that a strong sentiment for peace exists in the Boer ranks.

Many young Brazilians are coming to the United States to complete their education.

The folkthing, at Copenhagen, voted to leave the question of the sale of the Danish West India islands to the United States to the people of the islands.

The French government will send a notable delegation on a French battleship to attend the unveiling of the Rochambeau monument in Washington, May 24.

It is believed in Vatican circles at Rome that Archbishop Corrigan is to be created a cardinal at the May consistory, together with Archbishop Baguin of Quebec.

The Hamburg correspondent of the London Morning Post says he understands that the German government will arrange for the laying of a new cable from Germany to America.

Another lunatic has been placed on a German throne—Henry XXIV. of Reuss-Greiz, who is as crazy as a March hare. However, his subjects insisted that he be declared ruler by the grace of God, while one of his cousins acts as regent. The other crazy German monarchs are King Otto of Bavaria and the Prince of Lippe. A fourth, the king of Wurtemberg, died some years ago.

Unfortunate Happenings.

A disastrous fire occurred at Glens Falls, N. Y., doing $500,000 damage.

Portions of Pennsylvania were visited by the worst wind storms ever known there.

By the explosion of the gas works at Nyborg, Funin Island, Denmark, six persons were killed.

Fatal and destructive wind storms visited various towns in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

Three French fishing vessels foundered in a storm in the North sea, and many sailors were drowned.

Four persons were killed and twenty-three injured in a Santa Fe railway accident five miles west of Medill, Mo.

An explosion on the submarine boat Fulton seriously injured six, among whom were a son of Gen. MacArthur and an Austrian naval officer.

Mrs. Kate Dimmell, divorced wife of John Dimmell, of Winside, Neb., killed her child and then hung herself to a bedpost. Her mind had been unbalanced for some time.

The plant of the Hagers Steel company, at Madison, Ill., employing 400 men, was destroyed by fire, which resulted from an explosion. The damage is estimated at $250,000.

Will Price and Bernard Sutter were killed by an explosion of dynamite at Issaquah, Wash. There was not enough of Sutter's remains left to hold an inquest over.

An explosion of gas in the apartments of J. W. Anderson, in the Chaffee apartment building, Chicago, resulted in the injury of five persons and the partial destruction of the building.

The house of Jean Baptiste Monchem, a French butcher residing in St. Northbert settlement, near Winnipeg, was destroyed by fire, and the family of five young children, four girls and a boy, burned to death.

The schooner Barlow, from Marine City, foundered in Lake Erie seven miles from Put-in-Bay, and Capt. Robert Parry of Marine City, his wife and stepson, Alexander Morris, aged sixteen years, were drowned.

The yacht, Gracie B., with a pleasure party of Winnipeggers, sixteen in number, capsized at Lower Fort Garry. All on board managed to reach the shore except one, Sam G. Harstone, of the Clarendon hotel, who was drowned.

South Beach, a bathing resort on the Staten Island shore, just outside the Narrows at New York, was fire swept, every structure along the beach for a distance of 2,500 feet being destroyed, involving a loss estimated at $150,000.

A tornado passed through Pleasanton, Kan., demolishing many houses and barns. The house of William Fouts, a farmer, was destroyed, and Fouts was fatally injured. Three others in the Fouts family were badly hurt. Much loss of live stock resulted.

According to the Nome Nugget of Feb. 11, which has arrived at Portland, Ore., from the North, millions in gold dust are deposited in the vast tundra plains which skirt the Bering coast. A New York syndicate made the discovery.

The American board has taken the initial step for beginning missionary work in the Philippine islands by the appointment of Robert F. Black, of Union Theological seminary, New York, who will graduate during the present months as its first missionary to Mindanao.

Five hundred employes of the Libby, McNeill & Libby Packing plant at Chicago, have been discharged. The packers report that this is due to decreased business, caused by the increased price of meats and the fact that the public believes that a meat dealers' combine exists.

HUSBAND SHOOTS HIM.

Attentions Paid to a Bride of Six Months by One Not Her Husband Will Cause Death.

Winona, Minn, May 4.—Arthur Pabst of Lewiston, a village a few miles west of this city, is dying from the effects of a bullet wound from a revolver in the hands of Henry Nussloch, Jr. Nussloch is now in jail. Nussloch was married about six months ago to Miss Emma Muehler, and they settled down in a little home in Lewiston. Pabst had been one of her admirers before her marriage. Mr. Nussloch has been the chief clerk in the general store and bank of J. W. Rice. Shortly after 8 o'clock last night one of his friends told him that Pabst had been seen to enter his home. He at once picked up a large revolver and went down to his home. He found the doors locked, battered down the rear door and found his wife and Pabst alone in the parlor. As soon as he entered Pabst tried to get out. Nussloch called to him to stop, and when he refused, shot him. The bullet lodged in the spinal column. Pabst was able to crawl to a woodshed, where he was found shortly after. Nussloch at once gave himself up. The effect of the bullet was to cause complete paralysis, and Pabst has been slowly sinking. The physicians state that he cannot live.

CAUGHT IN MINNESOTA.

Michigan Elopers Are Returned to Their Home.

St. Joseph, Mich., May 4. — Sheriff Bensley of Allegan county yesterday returned to Michigan with Mrs. Lizzie Coffee and Frank Kiper. He captured them at Fairmont, Minn. They eloped from Burnip's Corners two weeks ago. Mrs. Coffee has gained national notoriety, it is said, as the matrimonial candidate, having advertised throughout the United States and in England, Germany and Philippine islands that she was worth $60,000 and that she was a young widow and handsome. Notice was drawn to Mrs. Coffee a few weeks ago through the postmaster at Burnip's Corners, who asked the postal authorities for help, stating that Mrs. Coffee's mail was so large that it would necessitate an allowance for an additional clerk to handle her mail. Mrs. Coffee drove daily to the office and collected her letters in a bushel basket. The postoffice inspectors failed to recommend the appointment of an additional clerk, and as a result the postmaster resigned, saying it was impossible for him to distribute the mail. During two years Mrs. Coffee, it is said, through her matrimonial schemes, has received at least 30,000 letters which inclosed stamps or currency.

MR. EDDY IS OUT.

He Announces That He Will Not Be a Candidate for Renomination.

Washington, May 4.—Representative Eddy returned to Washington last night, and in answer to a question whether he had anything to say about his future political actions, said: "I do not know that I have anything to say that will be of interest to the people of Minnesota except that I will not be a candidate for renomination. Last fall I mate an exceedingly close canvass of the new Seventh district and came to the conclusion that while my chances for a renomination were, perhaps, as good as those of any other candidate, I could secure such nomination only after a hard struggle."

INJUNCTION AT FUNERAL.

Body Is Delayed While Law Grinds Out Decision.

Winona, Minn., May 4. — Owing to a dispute over the title to some land in Pleasant Valley, supposed to be a cemetery, the funeral of John Gatzlaff was stopped by injunction proceedings yesterday. The funeral procession had reached the cemetery and the interment was about to be made when the papers were served by the sheriff, and the body had to be placed in a vault in Woodlawn cemetery over night. To-day the cemetery officers showed a deed to the property and the interment was allowed by the court.

CARNEGIE DECLINES.

Will Not Put Up Money for Milwaukee Music Hall.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4.—A letter was received from Andrew Carnegie, in which he states it will be impossible for him to become interested in the proposed music hall in this city. He said he would only give money to help libraries in smaller cities. Several prominent Scotchmen, among them Banker John Johnson, wrote to Mr. Carnegie and asked him to contribute toward the building, to cost $600,000.

IOWA SWEPT BY TORNADO.

Three Will Die From Injuries Received in Wrecked Homes.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 4.—Six persons injured and $50,000 in damage to property was the result of the work of the tornadoes that struck the State of Iowa Thursday night. The storms were 150 miles apart, one striking at Bayard, a town of 600, in Guthrie county, and the other striking at Weldon, Lohrville and Van Wert, wealthy farming communities.

SCHOOL TEACHER SHOT.

He Refused to Get Off Mr. Finnegan's Farm.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 4.—A school teacher named Sauser, in Rollette county, fifteen miles north of Rugby, was shot by a farmer named Finnegan and is not expected to recover. Sauser was crossing Finnegan's farm and refused to get off when ordered to do so.

Coroner Has a Bad Fall.

Herman, Minn., May 4.—Coroner A. D. Larson yesterday received a fall from which he has been unconscious since 2 o'clock. He fell from a rafter in the lumber sheds, striking on his head. There are slight hopes of his recovery.

Mine Laborer Killed.

Minot, N. D., May 4.—Jacob Barnhart, a laborer in the Great Northern coal mine, was struck on the head by a falling coal bucket in the main shaft and killed. His effects do not show the whereabouts of a single friend or relative.

Killed by a Train.

Waunakee, Wis., May 4.—James Mahoney, residence unknown, was struck by the midnight train last night and killed. He was in the Cook county hospital last winter.

SHIP NO CATTLE

NOT A SINGLE HEAD WILL BE BOUGHT BY THE BIG PACKERS.

TO GET BACK AT THE PUBLIC

COMMISSION MEN SEND OUT WORD THAT NO CRUDE MEAT IS WANTED.

MAKES STOCK SELLERS BLUE

RETALIATION FOR EXPOSURE OF THE METHODS OF THE BEEF TRUST.

Chicago, May 4.—Commission men in cities all over the West wired their customers yesterday not to ship a single head of live stock to Chicago, Kansas City or Omaha. This order means that at the beginning of next week little or no stock will be offered here or at any of the other great packing centers.

There are, of course, thousands of cattle now in transit, and there necessarily will be offered, but when these are taken the supply will cease. Western commission men say they have taken this action because of the decline in the price of stock.

The condition at the Chicago stock yards is making the stock sellers blue. The receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep have declined rapidly and prices have kept the receipts company. It is charged by some of those who claim to be conversant with conditions that the packers have caused the slum for the purpose of retaliation for the exposure of their methods and the possible stopping of their practice of fixing the price of meat. The coolers are full of dressed meat, but the demand is so small that the price fixed cannot be maintained.

HARD BLOW TO PACKERS.

Commission Men Combine and Refuse to Buy Cattle for Shipment.

Denver, Colo., May 4.—Not a single head of cattle was sold in the Denver market yesterday, and the commission men, almost without exception, wired to their customers in all parts of the west not to ship a single head of cattle, hogs or sheep to the markets in this city, Kansas City, Omaha or Chicago. Commission men in other cities are understood to have taken similar action. Many thousands of head are on the way to market, and three or four days will pass before the effect of the order is felt, but at the beginning of next week it is thought little or no stock will be offered at the packing centers.

DENY EXISTENCE OF TRUST.

Big Packers Are Ignorant of Any Combination on Meat.

Omaha, May 4. — The managers of Cudahy's, Armour's, Swift's and the Omaha Packing company's plants were interviewed here regarding the story published in Chicago that the headquarters of the beef trust were to be removed to this city. They all denied knowledge of the existence of any such thing as a packers' trust. In addition, they pointed out that even if there was such a thing a removal of its headquarters would be extremely unlikely, as several of the largest packers are not operating plants here.

ROOSEVELT AT S. A. R. BANQUET.

Annual Congress of the Society Comes to an End.

Washington, May 4.—A banquet last night at the New Willard hotel, attended by nearly 400 persons, brought the annual congress of the Sons of the American Revolution to a close. The occasion was made notable by the presence of President Roosevelt, himself a compatriot, who delivered a brief speech. The president came to the banquet hall at 10 o'clock, accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou. Among those present were Senators Hanna and Lodge, Representatives Grosvenor and Dick, Admiral Watson, Senator Platt of Connecticut and Commissioner of Pensions Evans.

THOUSAND LIVES LOST.

Earthquake in Guatemala Snuffs Out Many Lives.

San Francisco, May 4.—A cablegram from Guatemala to a local shipping concern says that over 1,000 lives were lost in the earthquake in that republic April 18. More than 3,600 were rendered homeless.

Russian Soldiers Mutinous.

London, May 4.—A dispatch received by Reuter's Telegram company from St. Petersburg dated April 30, says: The most serious feature of the present situation is the growing disinclination of the troops to act against the people. Punishment has already been dealt out to 800 men of the Sumy regiment for refusing recently to fire on the rioters at Moscow.

Mother and Child Die.

Spring Valley, Wis., May 3. — Mrs. Perle Hill and her one-year-old child lost their lives near here yesterday by the explosion of boiling kerosene and lard. Mr. Hill lost his hand and four other children were seriously burned. The explosion caused a fire which destroyed the house and contents.

Naval Officers Pardoned.

Venice, May 4.—The officers of the U. S. S. Chicago have been pardoned. They immediately joined their ship, which later sailed from Venice.

Independent Packers.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 4.—The Halya Market company has been formed here, with substantial backing, leased a packing plant and will oppose the beef trust. An attempt to lease a house controlled by the big packers failed.

Corrigan Greatly Improved.

New York, May 4.—Dr. Keyes, when he left the archepiscopal residence at 10 o'clock last night, said the archbishop's condition had improved and the patient would be allowed to sit up in four or five days.

HOW CHEAP BAKING POWDER IS MADE.

The Health Department of New York has seized a quantity of so-called cheap baking powder, which it found in that city. Attention was attracted to it by the low price at which it was being sold in the department stores. Samples were taken, and the chemist of the Health Department reported the stuff to be an "alum powder," which analysis showed to be composed chiefly of alum and pulverized rock.

The powder was declared to be dangerous to health, and several thousand pounds were carried to the offal dock and destroyed. It is unsafe to experiment with these so-called "cheap" articles of food. They are sure to be made from alum, rock, or other injurious matter. In baking powders, the high-class, cream of tartar brands are the most economical, because they go farther in use and are healthful beyond question.

Names Were All Irish.

Counselor Abram H. Hummel, occasionally heard of in connection with divorce cases, tells the following:

"I was retained by an Australian banker's daughter to secure her a divorce. After having obtained the decree, I delivered it to her, and was surprised when she burst into a roar of laughter after reading it.

"'What is funny?' I asked.

"'Why, look here,' replied the divorcee. 'Look at the names: "Donovan," justice; "O'Byrne," referee; "Keenan," county clerk. Why, she mirthfully added, 'when I return home to my parents they'll say: "ou went to my parents, they'll say: "You went to Ireland for your divorce—not to America."'"—New York Times.

Uniform of the Yacht Club.

At the dinner given to Prince Henry by Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Mr. Vanderbilt wore a dress suit which had gold buttons on the coat and waistcoat. Much comment was caused thereby, and it was said the young millionaire was attempting to set a new style for men's evening wear. The simple fact was that Mr. Vanderbilt's gold-buttoned dress suit was the regulation full-dress uniform of the New York Yacht club, to whose house he accompanied Prince Henry later in the evening.—New York Times.

What a Restaurant Means.

When Senator Warren of Wyoming met Senator Clark recently, in the capitol lobby, he suggested adjourning to the senate restaurant for refreshment. Accepting the invitation, Senator Clark observed, thoughtfully:

"The derivation of the word 'restaurant' is very plain. It is derived from two Latin words, res, meaning a thing, and Taurus, meaning a bull. It means, of course, a bully thing."

They both drank cold tea in sorrowful silence.—New York Times.

A Soldier's Narrow Escape.

Watts Flats, N. Y., May 5th.—George Manhart of this place, a hale and hearty old soldier of 80 years of age, tells a thrilling story of a narrow escape from death.

"Four years ago," he says, "the doctors who attended me during a serious illness, called my wife aside and told her I could not live two weeks, as I had Bright's Disease, which meant certain death.

"As a last resort we thought we would try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and accordingly, sent to Mr. Clark's drug store and got a box.

"This remedy worked wonders in my case. I noticed the improvement at once and discharged the doctor.

"I kept on improving until every symptom of illness had gone and I was strong and well.

"I feel like a boy, and to-day I am chopping wood as well at eighty as at twenty. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it."

Beautiful Native Trees.

An authority is surprised that more people do not invest in larches. Less branched and less drooping than the European larch, the American is a reminder of the cedar of Lebanon. Although Michigan and Wisconsin are full of them, the seeds are exceedingly scarce.

Our canoe birch (Betula papyracea) is said to be as beautiful as the fungous-infested European and the poplar birch. This white-barked beauty may be raised from seeds kept moist through the winter, and sown in the spring under lath shelters or something to keep them shaded and cool.—Philadelphia Record.

Popular With the Teapot, Too.

"Mamma, what 's the coffee pot singing?" asked little four-year-old Mabel, as she sat in her high-chair, patiently watching her mamma preparing breakfast one morning.

"Oh, it is just singing," answered mamma.

"I know, mamma," said Mabel. "It's singing 'A Hot Time.'"—Little Chronicle.

Pleasant Country Neighbors.

Mrs. Waldo (of Boston)—I have a letter from your Uncle James, Penelope, who wants you to spend the summer on his farm.

Penelope (dubiously)—Is there any society in the neighborhood?

Mrs. Waldo—I have heard him speak of the Holsteins and Guernseys. I presume they are pleasant people.—Boston Christian Register.

Domestic Trials.

Mr. Nuggett—Oh, what's the matter with you? You're forever finding fault!

Mrs. Nuggett (sweetly)—Well, that equalizes things; you're forever losing one.

Mr. Nugget—Losing one?

Mrs. Nugget—Yes, your temper. Surely, that's a fault.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Stubbs' Way.

Stubbs—Scripps tells me he gave you an elegant edition of Shakespeare on a birthday present.

Scripps—Yes, he did. Then he borrowed it and kept it six months.—Detroit Free Press.

Quits.

"He proposed to her as a joke."

"Yes."

"Well, she accepted him. He does not regard himself as a humorist any more."

ACTS LIKE A FOE

ITALIAN AUTHORITIES DISPLAY A SPIRIT OF UNFRIENDLINESS.

RUPTURE IS NOT UNLIKELY

NAVAL OFFICERS THROWN INTO PRISON FOR SLIGHT OFFENSE.

WILL MAKE VIGOROUS PROTEST

INCIDENT IS WITHOUT A PARALLEL IN THE HISTORY OF THE NAVY.

Washington, May 2. — The arrest of American naval officers in Venice may become an international incident. It is without a parallel in the records of the navy, and the man who has just become secretary of the navy, Mr. Moody, is enough like the president to insist on justice to his men.

Capt. Dayton, in command of the Chicago, reported by cable that the charge against Capt. Wynne and the other officers arrested in Venice was that of resisting arrest, and that their resistance was due to pressing of the crowd and misunderstanding. Capt. Dayton says nothing about the men being intoxicated or disorderly. The president assumes from his cable that the

Captain Has No Complaint

against the men who are under arrest, and if the incident is due to a misunderstanding he will expect the Italian government to see that these American officers are set at liberty. The men all have good reputations for sobriety and gentlemanly conduct. The Venetian authorities don't claim that the men were drunk and ordinarily disorderly. The charge is that they upset a table and refused to pay the damages done. This is said to be a clever scheme for blackmail in Venice. Ambassador Meyer in Rome has been instructed by the state department to request the release of these officers, and if this request is not complied with it will be regarded as on the part of the Italian government. It is already suspected that the imprisonment of these men, instead of lodging complaint with the commander of the ship, is due to a hostile feeling toward Americans growing out of the lynching of Italians in New Orleans and the efforts to restrict immigration from that country to the United States. The action of the Italian authorities is not easily explained as that of a friendly power. Even had the men been drunk and disorderly and committed graver offenses than charged, the ordinary course for a friendly power would have been to report them to their commander, with the request that they be punished.

An Unfriendly Act

Will Make Vigorous Protest.

This course was not followed, and it is reported from Rome that the king may not interfere until the first of June, when he will pardon the men. The president is not disposed to regard that as a friendly act, and he will insist on having the men returned to their ship to be dealt with by their officers in conformity with the rules of the navy and the customs that have always prevailed where there occurred misunderstandings between officers of a foreign navy and police officials. Ambassador Meyer will make a vigorous protest against the attitude of the Italian government toward these naval and marine officers, and that protest may be made so very vigorous here as to convince the Italian ambassador that the friendly relations between the two governments are in danger of being broken.

PEACE OUTLOOK FAVORABLE.

If Delegates Place Situation Fairly Before the Burghers.

Pretoria, May 2.—In pursuance of an understanding reached by the Boer delegates at the conference recently held here the delegates are busy visiting the burghers in the field. Gen. Botha, the Transvaal commander-in-chief; Acting President Schalkburger of the Transvaal; Gen. Delarey, Gen. Lucas Meyer, commander-in-chief of the Orange Free State forces; Secretary of State Reitz of the Transvaal; Mr. Steyn, ex-president of the Orange Free State, and Gen. Dewet have each taken a separate district for the purpose of conferring with the commandos as rapidly as possible. After these conferences a general meeting has been arranged for at Veeneringing, Transvaal, May 25, when a final decision is expected. It is believed among Boers who have surrendered and other well-informed persons that the peace outlook is favorable if the delegates place the situation fairly before the burghers.

REVEALED BY CODE BOOK.

Secret Telegraphic Proofs of the Operations of the Beef Trust.

New York, May 2.—The Herald reproduces portions of the secret telegraphic code book of the Cudahy Packing company, a copy of which it has obtained. Extracts given show new proofs of the operation of agreements among the beef trust houses to maintain prices in harmony with each other, and to regulate the supply and demand by common consent. The code book completes a chain of evidence, the Herald declares, which shows that P. L. Hughes, Eastern manager of this trust house, has acted in agreement with other managers of the beef trust in New York.

STABBING AFFRAY.

In Discussion Over Boer War One Man Is Probably Fatally Injured.

West Superior, Wis., May 2.—Discussion over the Boer war between Collins Ross, a Canadian, and an unknown man, resulted in the stabbing of Ross in the stomach, and he may die from his injuries. Both men were drinking when the discussion started, and it became so heated that Ross invited his companion to fight. The man drew a knife, stabbed Ross and ran. He has not been apprehended.

BLESSED TO GIVE.

By CLYDE A. MANN.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Christmas eve, and the swirling snow was a halo about the Bugle building, aglow from its basement pressroom to the big composing room at the top. One window of the upper row was dark, and within a querulous sounder clattered an unanswered call. It was a little, dingy room; the door was open a crack into the big composing room, where clanking, singing linotypes and rumbling turtles drowned, the howl of the storm, and in the twilight mice were scampering warily for crumbs of Bill Clark's last midnight lunch.

Bill Clark, red-haired, jovial giant, seemed oddly out-of-place taking news reports, deftly fingering the keys of his typewriter, as he had done in the Bugle office seven nights in every week for almost a dozen years. Rarely in the gray years of night work had the first tap of the sounder been unanswered, but the foreman's clock crawled twenty-five minutes past the hour, while Clark's den was still dark. An impatient sender in the Associated Press office, with a tangle of market figures, growled.

Under the long train shed where throngs hurried with Christmas bundles Bill Clark waited for the limited from the West. His wife and children were to come home again. The snow was a solid wall of white at the far end of the train shed where the headlights glared at the storm. Clark strained his eyes, and in the swirling flakes saw the waving handkerchiefs of three sturdy lads rolling away from him three long months before. Clark was privately regarded as an "affectionate cuss" around the Bugle office. The Christmas merriment around him stirred the trait and the time worried him. The bulletin, "Limited, late," was posted.

"How late?"

"Don't know, Bill," was the depot-master's reply to his question. "Number Two's in a little smash. Not a word more."

"Bat" Pierce, a tall, worldly-wise, freckled reporter who "made the trains" for the Bugle, heard the question and answer, instantly divined the trouble and, slapping his notebook shut, was at Bill Clark's side in a moment. A jiffy later Bat was at the superintendent's desk and Sherburne looked up with a glum scowl. "Hullo, Bat, what you botherin' 'round about now?"

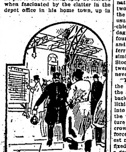
"Bad?" queried Bat.

"Two sleepers ditched and burned. Don't get yellow now. If you want to go down, Jim Acton's goin' with some doctors. Now clear out and—be decent."

Bat and Bill Clark paused outside. "Now, don't you worry about your folks, Bill. I have a hunch they are all right. I'm goin' down—tell Clarkson." A grip of their hands and a look straight into each other's eyes and Bat was gone.

"Sleeping cars ditched and burned, sleeping cars ditched and burned," rung in Bill Clark's ears as he trudged through the snowy, Christmasy streets, where sleigh bells jingled like those on the three boys' sleds waiting at home. The words still stopped his ears as he clicked off his tardy answer and tried to unravel the Phillips code that came with a rush.

In a house in a suburb the lamps were all lighted, the stoves glowed, a supper was set and all was scrupulously neat with a man's neatness. Three little night dresses hung on the chairs. Years of wandering had made home doubly dear to Clark. There were stray facts known of an adventurous young manhood that had carried him to the Texas ranges, to Arizona to carry chain, to Dakota, where all his cattle had frozen in a dire blizzard. He had turned his back on a college education, and when he married he put to use the telegraphy he learned when fascinated by the clatter in the depot office in his home town, up in Maine. Year after year a trip to the wife's sister had been deferred of necessity, and at last the mother and the boys had gone, but were to be "at home at Christmas sure."



"Number Two's in a little smash," replied the depot-master.

For the tenth time the lunch basket was tried for a diversion for the impatience of three boys in a day coach of the Limited, rushing through the blinding storm.

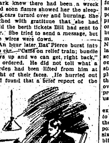
"Won't dadda like our present, though!" exclaimed the eldest, eyeing a box.

They had had their choice of a sleeping car or a present for Dadda. They neared the Jim valley and Mrs. Clark drifted off into recollections of the day they had brought Bill home, when he had refused the masked men's order to ditch No. 3.

Crash!

The train rocked and reeled, the boys screamed in fright and passengers rushed down the aisle. Mrs Clark knew there had been a wreck and soon flames showed her the sleeping cars turned over and burning. She sighed with gratitude that she had sold the berth tickets Bill had sent to her. She tried to send a message, but the wires were down.

An hour later Bat Pierce burst into the car—"Came on relief train; bundle boys up and we can get right back," he ordered. He did not tell what a burden had been lifted from him at sight of their faces. He hurried out and found that a brief report of the wreck had gone out and had included among the killed the Clarks, from the sleeping car record. A shudder went over him when he thought of Bill.



Bill Clark sat staring before him.

When the copy boy went up for the last sheet of "press copy" he noticed that Bill was very pale, but he had been queer all evening. A wreck story started, and Jimmy saw among the list of dead some local names. It was late as he slashed off the list and rushed down to the city editor's room. The city editor glanced at the names and his feet came down in a hurry. He started for the door.

But Bat's freckled, excited face confronted him. Bat shoved a great wad of copy into his hand. "Get that set and it'll be a scoop," were Bat's words. It is a complete story of the wreck written on the train. What came over the press wire?" was Bat's next question.

The city editor showed him the list. "Did Bill take that? Mrs. Clark, come along in a hurry."

In the little den the telegraph sounder was silent. "Thirty"—the end—had come, and Bill Clark sat staring before him out at the storm. His face was drawn and his head was drooped on his breast. But three pairs of arms were thrown suddenly about his neck—and they revived him.

HAVE FOUND RELIC OF STONE AGE

Flint Dagger Deeply Imbedded in Skull of a Horse.

In Sweden has been found a very curious relic of the stone age. It is the skull of a horse, and it was discovered by J. A. Sjogren, an archaeologist, in the mud of the Ulltorpsa, near Ingelstad.

Gunnar Andersson, describing the relic, which is now in the museum at Ystad, says:

"At first it was thought to be the skull of a deer, but Professors Leche and Lundgren, after a careful examination, proved that it was that of a two-year-old horse. Compared with the skull of a modern horse it is unusually large, but what makes it chiefly notable is the fact that a flint dagger was stuck in it when it was found. The dagger was broken off, and its original length, as may be inferred from several specimens of a similar weapon in the museum at Stockholm, could not have exceeded twenty centimeters. Hence it could never have formed part of a lance.

"That the dagger was broken off at the moment when it was driven into the skull is as certain as that it dates back to the stone, or so-called neolithic age. The man who thrust it into the skull knew his business, for the weapon is fixed exactly in the suture between the bones and the crown, and it was driven with such force that it did not leave the slightest mark on the outside. Indeed it is fixed so firmly that it would require a good deal of strength to draw it out. All the scientists who have examined it say that it would be hardly possible even for an unusually strong man to drive a weapon of this kind with his hand into a horse's skull."

Novelty in Wedding Customs.

A novelty in wedding customs consists in accompanying each note of thanks for a wedding present with some small token in return. In this way the original giver profits somewhat by the affair. A recent bride in every such note of acknowledgment inclosed a silver bodkin; another, a small silver umbrella tag engraved with the recipient's name. Such a procedure takes a little trouble and expense; perhaps, but it is a gracious courtesy and must relieve the bride from that sense of overwhelming obligation that in many cases she must otherwise feel.

GRIM WIT OF THE CANNY SCOT

He Explains Why Good Crops Grew on Field of Bannockburn.

Most of the historic spots in Great Britain and on the Continent are carefully prepared for the tourist. Tablets tell the facts in the case, and the ruins are all tagged. There is small chance for dreaming or giving the imagination play where guides show one just when to thrill.

It is for its entire absence of trappings and stage setting that the field of Bannockburn is worth more than all the labelled marvels to be seen on a foreign tour. Bannockburn is fortunate in having no facilities of transportation. It is not too easy of approach. A tramcar from Stirling takes one the first two miles, to St. Ninians, but after that there remains a half-mile walk to the battlefield. No elaborate description in large type tells that the scene has finally been reached. The only means of identification is a flagstaff to mark the spot where Bruce planted his standard. But for the rest there are just rolling hills, covered over with barley and oats. It is all as productive and unpretentious as some useful tract without memories.

A traveller, not so long ago, who had expected to find barrenness, remarked to a laborer harvesting on the flank of the hill that falls away to the English position, that the murderous work of six centuries ago had not cursed or blighted the region.

"On the contrary," returned the Scot, as he looked over the fertile fields, which had once been the graveyard for an army. "The Englishers, they make good crops."

ADMITS HE DIDN'T GET THE VOTE

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania Relates a Good Campaign Incident.

Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania is never accused of lack of gallantry, but the other day, while talking in the Senate antechamber of his early efforts in the political arena, he confessed that his wonted graciousness to the gentle sex had once been found wanting.

"I had to get the support of a rural Assemblyman who was under the sway of a certain county boss whom we will know as Uncle Jacob, though that is not his Christian name.

"I drove out to the Assemblyman's farm, and his wife ushered me into the darkened, musty parlor and presented her babies. Remembering Uncle Jacob's successful tactics—and that I had to deal with his opposition—I began bravely by kissing the babies.

"The mother—a dowdy, not over handsome woman—beamed with what I thought was satisfaction, but a moment later I interpreted it as expectancy, when one of the young hopefuls spoke up and said:

"'Why don't you kiss mamma? Uncle Jacob always does.'"

"Did you accept the suggestion?" asked Senator Kean.

"Well, I didn't get the vote I was after," said Senator Penrose, dodging the question.—New York Tribune.

Baby's Horse Is a Rooster.

Dogs and cats have been employed to draw baby carriages, but using a rooster for such a purpose is a new idea. O. J. Plomesen of Luverne, Ia., has a flock of cochin china fowls, among them a rooster that is a giant in the feathered kingdom. On account of his size and breed he is a pet in the family and has become very tame.

Mr. Plomesen conceived the plan of training him to draw the baby carriage in which his daughter takes her exercise in the air. He made a light harness, fastened it to the bird, and after a few weeks taught him to pull the vehicle along the dooryard path without difficulty.

The little one, of course, cannot drive, but her sister sometimes gets into the carriage and guides the feathered "horse" about the yard.—Des Moines Leader.

Spiders as Wire Tappers.

In Japan it is next to impossible to work a telegraph line satisfactorily when the spider has once, so to speak, drawn it into her net.

For the Japanese spider is not contented with trees and vines as points of support, but attaches her web to the telegraph wires, insulators and rather short poles, and the ground. When the net becomes wet with dew or rain, of course, it is all up with the insulation of the line.

The frequent stoppages and "grounds" puzzled the telegraph men a good deal before they were traced to the innocent-looking little spiders. Now the lines are regularly patrolled by men armed with long bamboo brooms, but the spiders renew their webs as fast as the sweepers destroy them.

Royalty and Smallpox.

The reign of smallpox in London reminds that this scourge played sad havoc among European royalties throughout the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Two of Charles I.'s children were carried off by the pest and three of James II.'s offspring, including Mary, Queen of England and spouse of William III.

Louis XVI.'s son (the dauphin), his grandson (also dauphin) and his wife and great-grandson, Louis XV., all died of smallpox. Likewise Joseph I., Emperor of Germany, in 1711; Peter II., Emperor of Russia, in 1730; Henry, Prince of Prussia, in 1767, and Maximilian Joseph, Elector of Bavaria, in 1777. Two of the British sovereigns had very narrow escapes from death from the disease, namely, William III. and Queen Anne.

Indifference is the devil's favorite drug.

FARM MISCELLANY

Rabies in Domestic Animals

In some parts of the country rabies seems to be on the increase. Dr. Salmon calls particular attention to this, and as an example cites its increase in the District of Columbia. He says: There has been a marked increase in the number of rabid dogs discovered in the District of Columbia during the past year (year ending June 30, 1900). In previous years the number brought to the attention of the authorities was as follows: 1893, 11; 1895, 2; 1896, 5; 1897, 3; 1898, 7; 1899, Jan. 1 to June 30, 4. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, the number of cases was 45. In addition, 4 cows, 1 cat, and 1 horse were tested and found to have died of rabies. Four men and 16 children were bitten. The continued prevalence of this terrible and fatal disease is a serious condition and one that demands earnest consideration. Rabies is a disease that originates only from contagion. In the vast majority of cases it is caused by the bite of a rabid dog. If, when an outbreak occurs dogs are kept securely isolated or are properly muzzled for a sufficient time to cover the period of incubation, the disease is easily stamped out. It seems inexcusable, therefore, to allow the contagions to be propagated indefinitely, causing untold suffering to the affected animals and menacing the lives of persons, particularly children, who go upon the streets.

Sow and Pigs.

A speaker at a Nebraska institute said: The critical time with the brood sow is the first two weeks after she farrows. Many pigs are lost by overfeeding the mother with corn and giving chilling drinks, which produce indigestion and fever. Don't be in too much of a hurry to get the porkers to market, and in your desire to see them start for that point kill half the crop and stunt the balance by overfeeding the dam. Above all things, keep your sow bedded with clean, dry straw and give them all the sunlight possible—damp nests are fatal to young litters. Exercise is absolutely necessary for young pigs, especially if the sow suckles well; in this way preventing thumps, which carries off the finest of the litter. We never saw a case of thumps where the sow and pigs had exercise enough. The better the sow, the greater the danger of loss from thumps, and the more need of exercise. Taken in time, we consider there is less danger from thumps than colds and scours; this trouble can easily be brought on by just one overfeeding of the sow or young pigs; guard against this by not overfeeding the sow for the first ten days after farrowing.

Fruit Notes.

There are but few reports of injury to early deciduous fruits in California by frosts during the season thus far, and no reports of serious damage. Nearly all varieties were somewhat late in blossoming, which is greatly in favor of good crops, and unless heavy frosts should occur within the next few weeks these fruits may be considered safe for an unusually heavy yield. Citrus fruits are in good condition.

Fruit prospects in West Virginia, with the exception of peaches, which are reported to be killed in some counties, are excellent.

Correspondents in a few of the southern counties of Missouri report that peaches have not been greatly injured and there will probably be a few in other sections. The early varieties are now in bloom in the extreme southern counties. Apples promise a good crop, but it is believed that in most sections small fruits will be light, owing to the drouth last season.

Citrus trees in Florida have passed through the winter in good condition. A good bloom is in evidence, and the outlook is promising. Pineapples are very satisfactory.

Mating Young Gilts.

The time for the mating of young gilts depends upon their individuality. If they are inclined to become leggy they should be mated so as to farrow their first litter by the time they are one year old. On the other hand, if they are undersized they should not farrow until they are at least fourteen months of age. In order to secure a successful farrow the brood sow should receive considerable attention from now on, and whether she will be successful or not depends upon the feed, care and attention given her. If she has received a liberal feed of shorts and bran, with a feed of roots occasionally, and has had access to salt and ashes at all times, and received plenty of exercise, there is no reason why she should not produce a strong, vigorous litter of pigs.—O. R. Aney.

Stopping Egg Eating.

The writer recently visited a poultry establishment where the owner had had much trouble with egg eaters. He said he had tried various plans for breaking up the habit, but without success. He had used egg shells filled with pepper and nauseous compounds, but the birds ate them and looked around for more. He finally resorted to trimming their bills with a sharp knife, rendering them so stump-billed that they could not penetrate the shell of an egg. We doubt, however, if this is the best method to use. It certainly requires considerable labor to do this work in a large flock. The medicated egg has worked well in some instances. Why does it not work in all?

Worms in Turkeys.

From Farmers' Review: In answer to the first query of Mr. Phelps, the powders administered to turkeys for intestinal worms are not a preventive. Some worm remedies, like arecanut, may kill the tapeworms and thus cause their removal, but they are not a preventive.

Second. To my knowledge very little true experimentation has been done with worm remedies upon turkeys or fowls of any description, and little is known about it.

Third. The life history of tapeworms in turkeys is not known and the special secondary host in which the young tapeworms may spend the larval portion of their existence is still in doubt.

Such is the nature of parasitic invasions of fowls and turkeys and such the intricacies of the investigation, that it will be long before any adequate investigation is made. You may assure your correspondent that parasites, however, may be diminished in number by the care that he takes of his turkeys. In the first place, the hens should be set, if possible, upon grounds that have not been frequented to a great extent by them, if at all. The coops of the turkeys that are used for the first few days should be moved rather frequently. The little ones had best be fed outside the pen that holds the mother or preferably they should be fed in a separate pen into which the hen could not get. As soon as they begin to be able to run around to any great extent I believe that they should be either taken to another field or at least not allowed to frequent the places where the larger turkeys are most apt to be. Fields that were in cultivation during the last year would probably be more free from contamination than others. I do not know that your correspondent has such a practice but I regard the feeding of turkeys near the house as a means of concentrating the infection and enabling the young turkeys to get more of it.

I have written above that the parasites—the tapeworms—necessarily have some secondary host in which they spend their larval existences. It is quite probable that these larvae come from the old tapeworms in the turkeys. It is quite evident therefore that if we try to prevent the old turkeys having so many parasites and handling them so that the chances of their communicating them are less, they will be handled in the best manner. That is to say, if the chances of the secondary host becoming infected are reduced, the chances of the young turkeys becoming infected will be reduced. Medication of the old turkeys before setting with any successful remedy would help toward this end.—Cooper Curtice, Biologist Rhode Island Experiment Station.

Poultry Points Picked Up.

The arrangements in the main poultry house are of the best, and show an appreciation of the fact that the successful running of a poultry establishment requires that all the labor saving devices possible be adopted. The windows are double glazed to keep out the cold in winter and swing from the top. The roosts are all adjustable, and are mounted on metal standards in cups of oil. No lice can by any possibility pass from the hens to the floor or from the floor to the hens. Between the two points are impassable pools of oil. This will be appreciated by our poultry readers that have had to fight lice year in and year out. The roosts in use consist of two-by-fours, sides up. Mr. Johnston says he would prefer roosts only three inches wide if he could get them, as that width is more suited to the feet of the hens. The nests are under the roosts in closed boxes, and under the nest boxes are boxes about eight inches high. This is the basis of a scheme to prevent the hens from getting into their drinking water. The vessel is at a good height for the purpose of allowing the hens to drink out of it, but the distance from its top to the bottom of the next box above is only about four inches and this makes it impossible for biddy to use it for bathing her feet.

The floors of the poultry house are well adapted to keep out moisture and rodents. There is a board floor some distance above the ground, and on this floor is a layer of eight inches of sand. This sand is cleaned two or three times a year by running it through a wire screen of fine mesh. The sand does not appear to get filthy. On top of this is a thin layer of chaff, into which the grain is thrown. This is done in the morning, the soft feed being fed the last thing at night. Mr. Johnston used to feed the soft feed in the morning, but found the birds stood around too much for some hours after breakfast. He wanted them to work more so he reversed his order of feeding.

Mr. Johnston has come to the conclusion that windows in the roofs are not advisable. Believing them to be the proper thing he used them in the roof of his brooder house. The result was that during much of the winter time the houses were dark on account of the windows being covered with ice or snow. In the warm days of fall and spring the objection is also that the sun pours in and raises the temperature to too high a point, the thermometer in building sometimes registering as high as 120 degrees. He will discard these windows for side windows.

ADVICE GIVEN BY SCOTCH PARSON

Minister Set Twenty Drinks a Day as the Limit of Moderation.

A Scotch parson once preached a long sermon against dram drinking, a vice very prevalent in his parish, and from which report said he was not himself wholly exempt.

"Whatever ye do, brethren," said he, "do it in moderation, and, aboon all, be moderate in dram-drinking. When you get up, indeed, ye may tak a dram, and anither just before breakfast, and perhaps anither after; but dinna be always dram-drinking.

"If ye are out in the morn, ye may just brace yersel up with anither dram, and perhaps tak anither before luncheon, and some, I fear, tak ane after, which is no sae very blamable, but dinna be always dram-dramming away.

"Naebody can scruple for one just afore dinner, and when the desert is brought in, an' after it's ta'en away; and, perhaps ane, or it may be twa, in the course of the afternoon, just to keep ye fra' drowsing and snoozling; but dinna be always dram-dram-ming.

"Afore tea, and after tea, and between tea and supper, and before and after supper, is no more than right and good; but let me caution ye, brethren, not to be always dram-dramming.

"Just when ye start for bed, and when ye're ready to pop into't, and perhaps when you wake in the night, to take a dram or twa is no more than a Christian man may lawfully do; but, brethren, let me caution you not to drink more than I've mentioned, or may be ye may pass the bounds of moderation!"—Mirror.

NO COURTESY IN STREET CARS

New York Paper Tells of a Somewhat Pathetic Happening.

His face was very white and tired and the deep lines in it showed plainly that he was either in the clutch of a new illness or was only just recovering from an old one. He had found a seat in a corner of one of the cars on the Sixth avenue elevated. A woman with a baby and a child five or six years old entered. No one offered them a seat; the sick man looked at the woman and the babies, and it was evident he was engaged in a great wrestling match with his sense of courtesy. Presently his sense of courtesy won. The woman scarcely acknowledged his act. She took the baby in her lap and the child leaned against her knees. The man hung limp from an opposite strap. At Fiftieth street a passenger left the seat next to the woman and two babies. The sick man started for it anxiously, but before he had reached it the woman had lifted the child that had been leaning against her knee into the seat. The sick man groped feebly for his strap. Then the seat next to the older child became vacant. Again the man started for it, but he was weaker in the knees now, and before he had really obtained his balance the baby was occupying the seat. An overgrown office boy, hanging from a neighboring strap swung himself out of line, and in a considerably loud voice, shouted to the sick man, "That's what you get!"—New York Post.

FOUND ADVICE WAS EXPENSIVE

The Unpleasant Experience of a Parsimonious Legislator.

There is much amusement in Dresden Parliamentary circles over a little joke which was played on one of the oldest members. The gentleman in question, although somewhat miserly, is very popular. Recently he injured his finger, and, not caring to consult his own doctor, sought the advice of a brother member, an M. D., who told him what to do.

On the following day, however, the old gentleman received a bill of 10 shillings from the doctor for medical attendance. In his perplexity he confided in another colleague—a lawyer this time—who pointed out his liability and advised him to pay the bill.

The aged member's astonishment can best be imagined when he received later the lawyer's claim for 10 shillings for "advice given." He indignantly complained to a third member of this unbrotherly treatment, but this third gentleman, entering into the joke, brought the matter before the committee which decides personal differences of the members.

Here the case turned against the accuser, and he was impeached for "refusing to acknowledge justified claims," and gravely sentenced to—buy a case of champagne. The expensive finger is now quite well.

Paris Prohibits Placards.

In Paris it was usual at every general election to see all the public buildings disfigured by the enormous quantity of election addresses and other placards posted upon them. At the time of the Boulanger incidents billposters would follow in rapid succession and stick bill upon bill until there was not more than one inch of paper. The extremely ugly effect of such placards and the damage done by scraping down the posters after the electoral battle induced the chamber to make a law prohibiting the posting up of placards on what was termed artistic monuments.—Paris Messenger.

Many Parties in France.

There is no lack of parties in France. In the pending elections which will take place soon, there are candidates representing no less than twenty-two parties in Paris alone, the leading ones being the Nationalist, Conservative, Plebiscitary, Royalist, Bonapartist, Republic, Liberal Collectivist, Progressive, Radical, Radical Socialist and five different stripes of Socialists. Then there are specialized parties, such as Anti-Semites and Anarchists of varied hues.

WAR WITH MOROS

FANATICAL SAVAGES ARE OVERTHROWN IN HARD FIGHT.

DAVIS' CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL

MORRO FORT IS ATTACKED AND CAPTURED BY THE AMERICANS.

MOST GALLANT PERFORMANCE

EIGHT AMERICANS KILLED AND FORTY-THREE ARE WOUNDED.

Manila, May 6.—Gen. Davis, in command of the American forces in the Island of Mindanao, cabled Saturday that his ultimatum had not been answered, that his messenger had not returned, and that the American outposts were fired upon. The troops advanced and shelled Moro fort, but did not capture it until the infantry reached the ditch. This fort was strong and well defended by 330 men. Fort Panda-Padto was then surrounded and heavily shelled. Heavy firing continued as the dispatch was sent.

Gen. Davis cabled yesterday that the 84 Moros who survived the attack and capture of the Moro fort by the American soldiers in Mindanao Saturday have surrendered, and that the sultan of Bayan, Rajah Muda, Sultan Panda-Padto and a number of the leading dattos were killed in the engagement.

Unparalleled Gallantry.

The assault on the principal fort, reports Gen. Davis, was one of the most gallant performances of American arms in the Philippines, and the regiment of Lieut. Col. Frank D. Baldwin, the Fourth infantry, deserves the greatest credit for its conduct. The men of the Fourth infantry had a hand to hand struggle with the Moros in the four lines of ditches and at the walls of the fort. When the position was captured these ditches were found to be lined with Moro dead. Gen. Davis characterizes the rifle fire of the Americans as excellent, and says he has never witnessed a performance excelling the capture of the Moro fort in gallantry and grit. Gen. Davis says also, it is his painful duty to announce that the

Overthrow of Moro Power

was not accomplished without severe loss to the Americans. One officer and seven enlisted men were killed, while four officers and thirty-nine enlisted men were wounded. After the eighty-four Moros who survived the assault had marched out of the fort, eight others who were concealed there, made an unsuccessful break for liberty. Some of the Moro wounded tried to stab the American soldiers who were succoring them. It is impossible to give the total of Moro dead, as a number of them are lying in the tall grass. The fort was defended by over 500 men. Its capture saves a siege, and it would have been impossible to carry the position without scaling ladders. Gen. Davis further reports his intention of retaining his prisoners until the few adjacent Moro

Forts Are Occupied.

Then, with the consent of Gen. Chaffee, he will retain ten of his principal captives as hostages and release the others. The American forces who attacked the fort numbered 470 men and four mountain guns. It rained hard during the night preceding the attack, and the men were without blankets. The battery fired 120 rounds at a range of fourteen hundred yards.

Gen. Davis adds that he is sending the dead to Malabong for burial. He intends to invite the sultan Irace to an interview. His fort is of the same strength as Bayan, the one captured Saturday. Gen. Davis is urging the people to return to the cultivation of rice.

President Sends Congratulations.

Washington, May 6.—The president last night sent the following congratulatory dispatch to Gen. Chaffee:

"Accept for the army under your command, and express to Gen. Davis and Col. Baldwin especially my congratulations and thanks for the splendid courage and fidelity which have again carried our flag to victory. Your fellow countrymen at home will ever honor the memory of the fallen and the faithful brave survivors who themselves have been faithful unto death for their country's sake."

SANTO DOMINGO FALLS.

Surrenders to the Rebels and President Jiminez Makes His Escape.

Jacmel, Haiti, May 6.—It is reported here that Santo Domingo, the capital of the Dominican republic, surrendered Saturday to the insurgent forces. President Jiminez is said to have taken refuge in the French consulate. Telegraphic communication is still interrupted and news is obtained with difficulty.

-o-

Port au Prince, Haiti, May 6.—Gen. Gelito, commanding the rebel forces at Santiago, was defeated May 2 by government troops. The position of the president appears to be gaining in strength.

FINDS PLOT AGAINST SULTAN.

Turkish Government Discovers Conspiracy, and One of the Officers of Court is Banished.

Constantinople, May 6.—Rumors are in circulation that a plot against the Sultan has been discovered. The second eunuch has been banished.

AMBUSH ENDS FEUD FIGHT.

Two Kentuckians Who Recently Attempted a Shooting Are Slain by Enemies.

Ola, Ky., May 6.—In a feud fight in Beaver Creek, near the border of Knott and Letcher counties, William Osborne and Hiram Little were killed, Samuel Cook badly injured and George Reedy slightly injured. It is claimed that Osborne and Little recently attempted to shoot Cook and Reedy, and that the latter laid in wait for their enemies to pass along the highway.

BIG STRIKE IS LIKELY.

Conciliation Committee Fails to Bring About a Settlement.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Senator Hanna, in an interview yesterday characterized the situation in the anthracite coal region as extremely delicate, and for that reason said it would be unwise for him to express an opinion as to the probable result of the meeting of the executive committee of the United Mine-workers for the three anthracite districts called for next Wednesday at Scranton, Pa., by National President John Mitchell. Senator Hanna said he was officially notified by Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation, of the statement issued by President Mitchell in New York. He immediately wired Mr. Easley, instructing him to refrain from calling another meeting of the conciliation committee, as that procedure would be useless in view of the latest developments. Senator Hanna said he had been awaiting a report from the subcommittee of the conciliation committee, but that Mr. Mitchell's statement had anticipated it. The work of the conciliation committee was ended, said the senator, when it brought together the operators and the representatives of the miners' union, and he added that nothing more could be done unless there were some new developments.

TURNED INTO A RIOT.

Meeting to Say Farewell to Johann Most, Who Goes to Jail.

New York, May 6. — Five thousand persons gathered in a Broome street hall last night to say farewell to Johann Most, the anarchist. Herr Most is booked to go to jail to-day under sentence for having printed in his paper an article on murder. Last night's meeting was turned into a riotous demonstration against the police. Three city detectives had been attracted to the hall by loud cries and cheering. They went in at a time when William McQueen, editor of a paper, was addressing the crowd, assailing the government. He declared himself an anarchist. By the time the officers had reached the platform Most was addressing the crowd in German. The detectives placed the two speakers under arrest. This was the signal for a riotous outbreak. The detectives had to fight their way to the street with their prisoners, and the crowd then grew so threatening that the reserves were called out. After some difficulty Most, McQueen and one other man were taken to a police station and locked up.

PRIZE FIGHT IS FATAL.

Frank Smith of Allentown, Pa., is Knocked Out for Eternity by Hans Hartranft.

Allentown, Pa., May 6. — Frank Smith died at the Allentown hospital from injuries received in a boxing bout with Hans Hartranft in the Keystone Athletic club. The boys were scheduled to fight eight rounds. In the seventh Hartranft landed a hard blow on Smith's chin, felling him heavily to the floor. Smith became unconscious and remained in that condition until death resulted. The physicians say Smith died from a fractured skull or clot of blood on the brain. Hartranft is under arrest. All persons connected with the fight will be arrested.

PRINCESS WOULD DIE.

Daughter of Carlos, the Pretender, Attempts Suicide.

London, May 6.—A dispatch to the Central News from Rome says Princess Beatrice de Barrone, daughter of Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, attempted suicide by throwing herself into the Tiber, but was rescued. Private troubles are supposed to have prompted the act.

DIES WHILE DANCING.

County Treasurer of Neillsville Stricken on the Floor.

Neillsville, Wis., May 6.—Charles E. Burpee, county treasurer, dropped dead while attending a dancing party at the opera house. He was apparently in the best of health, had attended to the duties of his office during the day, and his death came without a moment's warning while he was dancing. Apoplexy was the cause of death. He was about fifty years of age.

KILL CHRISTIANS

WHOLESALE MASSACRES ARE NOW THREATENED BY CHINESE REBELS.

WILL MAKE A CLEAN SWEEP

REVOLT IS STARTED UNDER THE NAME OF THE WILLOW GROVE SOCIETY.

REBELS GATHER IN BIG FORCE

FRENCH CONSUL WILL INVESTIGATE MURDER OF FRENCH PRIEST.

Pekin, May 6.—Consul Kahn, representing the French legation, has left here by railway for Chenting-fu, whence he will proceed to the scene of the rising in Southern Chili to investigate the murder of a French priest which occurred at Weihsien recently. Five hundred additional cavalry have been dispatched from Paoting-fu to reinforce the troops already sent to quell the revolt.

A messenger who has arrived here from the revolted district says that the priest who was murdered left a fortified Christian village to conduct a service elsewhere, and was killed by his attendants.

The people of Kuangtsung and Kulu have started a revolt under the name of the Willow Grove society. The rebels are now gathered in force in five or six centers. Their leader is a military graduate of the second degree. They threaten to kill all Christians.

FLOCKING TO THE STATES.

Rush of Immigrants to This Country Breaks All Records.

New York, May 6.—The rush of immigrants to this port which has signalized the first four months of the year reached a climax the week ending last night, during which time 25,120 immigrants have been brought to this city from the various European ports. The total number of immigrants arriving here for the four months ending April 30 was 178,604, an excess of more than 30,000 over any previous year for the same period. By months the record this year is: January, 18,243 immigrants; February, 29,519; March, 57,175; April, 73,667. When it is mentioned that the total number landing here last year was 438,868, it will be seen that 1902 has started out at a record-breaker.

NO LOOPHOLE FOR PACKERS.

Attorney General Knox Reads the Bill Prepared by Day.

Washington, May 6.—Attorney General Knox yesterday received a copy of the bill drawn by United States Attorney Day at Chicago against the beef packers, and spent some time in conference with Mr. Day. The attorney general will give more careful study to the bill, and expects to have it ready to be filed in Chicago the latter part of the week. This examination of the bill by the attorney general is largely technical. The attorney general, from his first examination of the bill, is satisfied with it, but the president desires that there shall be no failure of justice through legal loopholes, and the examination will be made with great care to guard against mistakes of this character.

FAST TRAIN IN A COLLISION.

Express and Switch Engine Crash Together at Joliet—One Passenger the Only Person Injured.

Joliet, Ill., May 6. — Running forty miles an hour, the Pacific express of the Chicago & Alton railroad crashed into a switch engine while passing through the yards of the Illinois Steel company in Joliet. Robert H. Wilson's right arm was hurt. The train was crowded, and how the other passengers escaped is marvelous. The two engines came together with terrific force. The large passenger engine was turned completely over, but the engineer and fireman saved their lives by jumping. The freight crew jumped to safety. The train consisted of four coaches, and besides the engine, two cars were badly wrecked.

BATTLE WITH DETECTIVES.

Man They Were After Killed and One Detective Wounded.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 6.—In a fierce battle with detectives late yesterday Dr. E. W. Aldrich of Chicago was killed and City Detective Hawley seriously wounded. The fight occurred at the offices of Dr. Aldrich in the Hotel Savoy. Captain of Detectives Bradish, City Detective Hawley and a reporter went to Aldrich's offices to serve requisition papers which the governor had granted on the request of the governor of Illinois for the return of Aldrich to Chicago, where he was wanted to answer charges of bigamy and perjury.

BRITAIN READY TO FIGHT.

Said England Will Subsidize Ships if Shipping Combine Proves Harmful.

London, May 6. — It is reported in Liverpool shipping circles that the British government has intimated its willingness to subsidize British shipping in the event of the Atlantic shipping combine proving really harmful to the merchant marine of Great Britain.

Cloudburst at Alden.

Alden, Minn., May 6.—A cloudburst occurred here at 2:30 p. m., accompanied by hail weighing as heavy as nine ounces. Nearly every plate glass on the east side of the street was broken and several tin roofs demolished.

Big Elevator Destroyed.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 6. — The Wells elevator, situated on Buffalo river at the foot of Indiana street, was destroyed by fire at midnight. Loss on the building and its contents is estimated at $225,000.

EVERY CASE IS FATAL.

Mysterious Disease in Montana Causes a Panic.

Helena, Mont., May 6. — Dr. A. F. Longeway of Great Falls, secretary of the state board of health, and a party of scientists composed of Doctors Frank W. Traphagen, chemist and professor of natural sciences at the agricultural college, Bozeman; Emil Storz of Helena, an eminent bacteriologist, and Earl Strain of Great Falls, left here for the Bitter Root valley, this state, to inquire into the cause of the mysterious malady known as spotted fever, which is causing a panic in that region. Every case of the disease has been fatal, and up to the present time it has baffled all the physicians who have tried to investigate it. Several eminent New York scientists have been invited to assist in the investigation now commenced by the state.

A. W. STOCKTON DIES SUDDENLY.

Heart Disease Causes the Senator's Death.

Faribault, Minn., May 6.—Senator A. W. Stockton died suddenly of heart disease. He was passing Bryant's drug store when he became suddenly ill. He stepped inside and two physicians were summoned, but he expired inside of five minutes. Mrs. Stockton is visiting her children in Minneapolis. Deceased was a native of Indiana and was fifty-eight years old. He came to Faribault in 1872; for twelve years he served as deputy county auditor and then took the position of assistant cashier of the First National bank of this city. In 1886 he formed a partnership with John Hutchinson in the manufacture of flour and furniture, in which business they have since been engaged. He was elected state senator from Rice county in 1890, and has served continuously in that body to the present time.

ROUGH HOUSE IN PEST HOUSE.

Smallpox Patients at Deadwood, S. D., Indulge in Fights After Imbibing Quantity of Whisky.

Deadwood, S. D., May 6. — The patients in the county pest house, who are said to have secured a quantity of whisky, overturned beds, destroyed the furniture, indulged in fights, and, as a climax, set fire to the building, which was completely destroyed. Many of the patients were in the worst stage of smallpox and were rescued with difficulty. They were forced to remain out on the hillside for several hours until the sheriff had a force of deputies get them to a temporary shelter.

FILCHED FROM FARMERS.

Nine Months in the Pen for a South Dakota Thief.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 6. — In the state circuit court Jesse White, charged with the theft of property belonging to farmers living near Valley Springs, appeared before Judge Jones and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was sentenced to the Sioux Falls penitentiary for a term of nine months. After committing the crime White, who is an Iowa man, fled to that state. He was traced from Hills, Minn., to Sheldon, Iowa, and then to a point in Southern Iowa, where, after many months, he was captured and returned here.

HAD A RIGHT TO KILL.

Henry Nussloch, Jr., is Declared to Have Been Justified in Shooting an Intruder.

Winona, Minn., May 6.—Arthur Pabst, who was shot at Lewiston by Henry Nussloch, Jr., while in the latter's home locked in with Nussloch's wife, is dead. The coroner's inquest resulted in the verdict that the evidence showed Pabst to have been discovered in the home of Henry Nussloch, Jr., behind the folding doors, with Nussloch's wife, with criminal intention, and that Henry Nussloch, Jr., was, therefore, justified in firing the shot that caused death.

FERRY CAPSIZES.

Prominent Business Man of Neillsville is Drowned.

Neillsville, Wis., May 6.—E. B. Leuthe, a prominent commission merchant of the city, was drowned in Black river yesterday morning. A party of sixteen were crossing to the military rifle range in a trolley ferry which capsized owing to the high water. Mr. Leuthe was quite prominent in Wisconsin military affairs, being in command of the local military organization. He leaves a wife and son. The body has not yet been recovered.

Strike Is Settled.

Duluth, Minn., May 6. — The longshoremen's strike which was inaugurated one week ago was settled yesterday afternoon on a compromise basis after conferences between the representatives of the Lake Carriers' association and the longshoremen's union, lasting four days. The longshoremen will receive 32 1-2 cents an hour unless the rate for carrying lumber goes up to $3 per thousand or over, in which case they will receive 35 cents an hour.

Caught in Minneapolis.

Hudson, Wis., May 6. — Sheriff Bell went to Minneapolis and returned with Albert Starzbach, the prisoner who broke jail two or three weeks ago in company with a convict named John Clark. Albert has been convicted of assault and was about to be sentenced when he made his escape. He was captured in a saloon by a Minneapolis detective.

Married by a Woman.

Spearfish, S. D., May 6.—Rev. Nina D. Pettigrew performed the ceremony uniting Samuel Whiting and Mrs. Mary Fletcher in marriage. Mr. Whiting is the owner of a fine ranch in Spearfish valley, and is also heavily interested in mines. Mrs. Fletcher was at one time a prominent educator in Nebraska, and for the last four years has been engaged in school work in Chicago.

An Old Settler Dead.

Spring Valley, Minn., May 6. — W. Mordoff, aged eighty-three years, died last evening of dropsy. He came to this city in 1866. One son, C. J. Mordoff of Minneapolis, survives him. He will be buried Tuesday by the Masons.

To Enjoin County Board.

West Superior, Wis., May 6. — Ex-City Attorney McKay has commenced injunction proceedings to prevent the county board from making a tax settlement with the Land and River company.

QUEEN IS DYING

SMALL HOPE FOR WILHELMINA'S RECOVERY IS ENTERTAINED.

HER CONDITION IS CRITICAL

HER MAJESTY IS PREMATURELY CONFINED AND SUFFERS TERRIBLY.

DEATH WILL SHAKE EUROPE

STRUGGLE FOR POSSESSION OF HOLLAND MAY BE PRECIPITATED.

The Hague, May 6.—It was announced from Castle Loo at midnight last night that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Prof. Rosenstein, Dr. Roessingh and the other doctors were in attendance. The queen suffered intense agony.

At 11 o'clock Sunday evening the condition of her majesty was described as critical and small hope for her recovery was entertained.

Causes Shock to Europe.

London, May 6. — The tardy official admission of the real nature of the illness of the queen of Holland, which the Associated Press was able to announce April 17 from Amsterdam, may be regarded as an indication of the very grave crisis in her majesty's condition, and, coming so suddenly from the bulletins announcing her imminent recovery, it will cause a shock throughout Europe. Apart from the difficulties surrounding the question of the succession to the throne of Holland, the death of Queen Wilhelmina, if this would tend to convulse the continent politically. In Germany especially it is a matter of the deepest import. The German press claims that Prince Albrecht of Hohenzollern, the acting regent of Brunswick, is among the nearest in the Dutch succession, and in all the European capitals nervous apprehension exists that the absence of a direct heir to the Dutch throne might precipitate a struggle for the possession of Holland, which in Berlin is regarded as Germany's natural right.

Should Unhappily Occur,

SMITH TRIAL IS ENDED.

Col. Woodruff Makes Eloquent Defense of General's Campaign in Samar.

Manila, May 6.—The trial by court-martial of Gen. Jacob H. Smith ended Saturday. The findings of the court will be forwarded to Washington. The general impression here is that he will be acquitted. The closing address of Col. Charles A. Woodruff for the defense was a remarkable oratorical effort that drew tears from his hearers. Speaking in impassioned tones Col. Woodruff said in olden times victorious generals tied captives to their chariots. In this case the general finds himself tied. Sentiment was an excellent thing, but there was no place for it in war. "We claim," continued the colonel, "that the Samar campaign, just brought to a successful termination, while pushed actively, vigorously and energetically, was ever conducted within the limits of war."

IN HONOR OF CUMMINGS.

Memorial Exercises Held in House of Representatives.

Washington, May 6.—In pursuance of the resolution adopted by the house public memorial services were held over the remains of the late Congressman Amos J. Cummings of New York, in the hall of representatives yesterday afternoon. Only twice before in recent years has such an unusual honor been accorded to a deceased representative, those occasions being the state funerals of Representative John Kelly of Pennsylvania and Representative Nelson Dingley of Maine. The exercises were very impressive. Almost the entire membership of the house and senate was present and the galleries were entirely inadequate to hold the thousands who went to the capitol seeking admission.

MRS. DAVIS MAY WED.

Widow of the Late Senator, It Is Reported, Will Marry Don Abazuza of Spain.

Paris, May 5.—It is reported in the American colony that the widow of Senator Cushman K. Davis is engaged to Don Abazuza, former Spanish minister for the colonies which the United States wrested from Spain. They met in Paris when Senator Davis was a member of the peace commission. Mrs. Davis and Senor Abazuza have been seen together a great deal recently at the opera and the race courses and it was noticed that the singer was very attentive to her. The fact that he has been making flying trips from Madrid to Paris strengthens the belief that he and Mrs. Davis are betrothed.

POTTER PALMER DEAD.

Exact Cause of Death Not Yet Determined.

Chicago, May 6.—Potter Palmer, for nearly half a century one of Chicago's most prominent business men, died last night at his residence on Lake Shore drive. The exact cause of Mr. Palmer's death has not yet been determined. He had been suffering for several weeks from a nervous disorder, but as he was able to be about the house, his condition was not thought to be serious.

Many Fishermen Drowned.

Yokohama, May 6.—Two hundred and fifty fishermen are reported to have been drowned in a gale which has made havoc of the herring fishing fleet on the west coast of Japan. The cruiser Masushi was driven ashore.

Relief Train Wrecked.

Rochester, Pa., May 6. — The relief train used in carrying railroad men from the Conway yards to their homes here, was wrecked last night and one man killed and another fatally injured.

ROBBED BY JAILBREAKERS.

South Dakotan Identifies Captives, Whom He Accuses.

Lead, S. D., May 2.—The men who set upon and robbed J. R. Curnow while on his way home in Lead are still at large. Mr. Curnow's injuries are not of a serious nature. The robbery occurred on the Deadwood Central railroad track late at night. The three men approached from the rear and struck him on the head. He grappled with one of the men. Another struck him, knocking him to the ground and dazing him. He recovered sufficiently to scramble out of the way of a passenger train. He was relieved of $120 and a gold watch. Three men were arrested by the police, two of them being identified by Mr. Curnow. It is certain now that they were assisted in making their escape from the jail. Some one entered the jail while the officers were away and broke the locks on the cages with a sledge hammer, the prisoners then being enabled to crawl through a window in the rear.

TO ANSWER MURDER CHARGE.

Man Held for Trial on Robbery Charge Faces Worse.

Winona, Minn., May 2. — William Pfanschmidt, the old man who, it is alleged, was assaulted at St. Charles one week ago by Edward Murphy, died yesterday forenoon from the effects of his injuries. He had been struck several times over the head with a heavy iron bar. Coroner Tweedy, Sheriff Lins and County Attorney Simpson went out to St. Charles last evening to hold a pos-mortem examination and an inquest. Murphy is confined in the county jail here. The people of St. Charles are much worked up over the affair, but the talk of violence that prevailed is entirely without foundation. Murphy will now be tried for murder instead of robbery, as would have been the case had the old man lived.

GROCERS GET TOGETHER.

North Dakota Merchants Would Regulate Prices.

Fargo, N. D., May 2.—The grocers of Fargo and Moorhead met last evening and organized a Fargo and Moorhead Retail Grocers' association. Fred Mason, the secretary and organizer of the Minnesota Retail Grocers' association, was here to make the address. The officers of the organization are: President, E. A. Perry of Fargo; vice president, Leslie Welter, Moorhead; secretary, H. E. Lincoln, Fargo; treasurer, Fred Yerxa, Fargo. A committee was appointed to regulate prices. Later on the merchants in the smaller towns, adjacent to Fargo and Moorhead will be included.

EXPRESS PACKAGE IS STOLEN.

United States Secret Service Men Make an Arrest.

Burlington, Iowa, May 2.—W. B. Mahannan, formerly an express messenger, has been arrested here by government secret service men. His arrest is said to be in connection with the theft of a $20,000 package consigned from Chicago to this city. The arrest followed an attempt to get the government to redeem money that was partly burned.

VIRULENT SCARLET FEVER.

Hinckley Schools Are Closed by the Disease.

Hinckley, Minn., May 2.—Scarlet fever has broken out in a virulent type and the schools have been closed. A close quarantine will now be kept on all cases in the hope that the disease will be stamped out.

Not in Contempt.

Helena, Mont., May 2.—The supreme court yesterday afternoon discharged Attorneys Forbis and Evans, the Amalgamated Copper company lawyers, who were judged guilty of contempt, fined $500 and sentenced to serve one day in jail by Judge Harney at Butte on Saturday, and who applied to the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus. The higher court says no contempt was shown.

White Earth Indian Affairs.

Washington, May 2.—Simon Mitchelet, United States Indian agent at White Earth, is here on business connected with the Indian office. The bill providing for an adjutant of the White Earth allotments and removal of several Indians from Mille Lacs to White Earth, which is certain to pass, will require considerable extra work on the part of the White Earth agent.

Don't Like His Money.

Jamestown, N. D., May 2.—William Wilson, who said he lived at Courtenay, was a free buyer of goods in this city Tuesday and gave checks on the Courtenay bank to the amount of $600. These, it is alleged, are worthless. He was arrested in Carrington yesterday and brought back to this city to answer to the charge of obtaining goods under false pretences.

Strike Is Settled.

Barnesville, Minn., May 2. — A committee of the three machinists waited on Master Mechanic Cannon yesterday and satisfactory arrangements were made for the time being. The machinists all returned to work in the Great Northern shops this morning.

Victim of Paralysis.

Hudson, Wis., May 2.—Judge George Randall has received word that his son-in-law, Rollin Hemenway of Star Prairie, is stricken with paralysis and cannot long survive. Mr. Hemenway is a wealthy pioneer farmer of St. Croix county.

Babe on the Doorstep.

Excelsior, Minn., May 2. — A nice, bright baby boy was left on the doorstep of Rudolph Schneider of Chanhassen Monday night. The Schneiders took the baby in and will give it a good home.

Wound May Be Mortal.

Lynd, Minn., May 2.—A. L. Isenberger lost a leg last night by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of two boys. The doctor says he may recover, but owing to a weak constitution caused by long sickness there is some doubt.

Boy Trampled to Death.

Calumet, Mich., May 2.—Floyd Anderson, the eight-year-old son of S. Anderson, was yesterday trampled to death beneath the hoofs of horses.

TORNADO IN IOWA

TWO ELEVATORS AND SEVERAL BUILDINGS ARE DESTROYED.

TELEGRAPH WIRES ARE DOWN

DETAILS OF THE DISASTER ARE DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN.

SEVERAL PEOPLE ARE INJURED

HOUSES AND BARNS BLOWN DOWN AND OTHER PROPERTY RUINED.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 3.—A tornado struck Bayard, Iowa, at 7:30 last night. Two elevators, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul depot and a number of dwelling houses were destroyed. The agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway is missing and is supposed to have been killed or injured. Telegraphic communication with Bayard was paralyzed by the storm. Details of the disaster are difficult to obtain.

At Van Wert a funnel-shaped cloud dropped down on the town. The high wind blew down houses and barns and uprooted large trees. Several people were reported injured but none killed. At Welden a farmhouse was blown down and three children were injured. The tornado was seen from the town of Leroy, but that town was not in its path. All the towns mentioned are in Decatur county.

A special from Perry says that men sent from here to Bayard to repair telegraph lines report that no one was seriously injured. The extent of the damage to property cannot be learned.

PRICE OF HER LOVE.

Minnesota Farmer Must Pay the Husband $4,000.

Redwood Falls, Minn., May 3.—One of the largest verdicts ever returned in the district court for this county was that in the alienation of affection case of Fred Hauert vs. John G. Smith, in which the jury awarded a verdict of $4,000 in favor of the plaintiff. Hauert was married last August to a young German girl residing near this city. He moved onto Smith's farm in Vail township immediately after the marriage, and the evidence satisfied the jury that from the first Smith, a single man, commenced to alienate the affections of Mrs. Hauert, until the two, only three months after marriage, separated, the wife leaving her husband, returning to her parents, and commencing action for divorce.

NOVEL PLEASURE CRAFT.

Merry-Go-Round to Travel on the Mississippi.

Clinton, Iowa, May 3.—A stock company is being organized along the river here, for the purpose of constructing one of the strangest river boats ever seen in these waters. D. S. Lewis of Le Claire is at the head of the company. A double barge will be built, 40 feet wide and 100 feet long, including two decks. On the first deck will be a dancing hall, dining room, etc. In the center of the floor on the second deck will be a merry-go-round, while there will be refreshment booths in each corner. The cost of the craft will be $15,000. It will be towed by a small steamer.

STRIKE ON RAILROAD.

Surfacing Crew at Faribault Want More Money.

Faribault, Minn., May 3.—A surfacing crew of thirty laborers employed by the B., C. R. & N. company in finishing up their yards and tracks in this city and vicinity, struck yesterday afternoon for an increase in wages from $1.50 to $1.75. They claimed that they had been hired under the agreement to receive the advance the first of the month, and as it was not forthcoming, They dropped their shovels.

GUEST OF THE GOVERNOR.

Gov. Cummins of Iowa Visits the State Capital.

St. Paul, May 3.—Gov. Cummins of Iowa spent yesterday afternoon in St. Paul, the guest of Gov. Van Sant, who lunched with him at Minneapolis and accompanied him to this city. Gov. Cummins met the state officers at the capitol. "I simply came to Minnesota to make an address," said Gov. Cummins. "Iowa is unusually prosperous, and everybody is busy. The recent rains helped us much."

HENDERSON RENAMED.

Speaker of House of Representatives Has Eleventh Nomination.

Des Moines, May 3.—Congressman D. B. Henderson, speaker of the house of representatives, yesterday was renominated for the eleventh consecutive time at the Third district convention in Waterloo. The nomination was unanimous, Mr. Henderson's opponent having withdrawn. Resolutions highly commending the speaker, Gov. Cummins and President Roosevelt were adopted.

Severe Hail Storm.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 3.—A heavy hail storm swept over this section yesterday, accompanied by cold rain and terrible wind. No great damage will be done here, as seeding is practically finished, but the storm was more severe further west, where work is not so well advanced.

Divorced From Convict Husband.

Faribault, Minn., May 3.—Mrs. Mary A. Horton of this county, was granted a divorce from her husband, Frank N. Horton, who is serving a term in the Stillwater penitentiary on a charge preferred by his daughter.

Died While Coughing.

Montevideo, Minn., May 3. — Mrs. Henry Sieler was taken with a spell of coughing, and during the paroxysm ruptured a blood vessel and died in a short time. She had previously been in good health.

CONGRESS.

The House Passes the Anti-Conspiracy Bill.

Washington, May 3.—A lively debate was precipitated in the senate yesterday by Mr. Pritchard of North Carolina by some remarks he made on political methods in North Carolina in the course of a discussion of the Philippine bill. He suggested that some of the methods employed by the opponents of the bill in this country ought to be reformed, and told of what is called the "sand cure" in North Carolina, the victim having his face crushed into the sand to stifle his cries, while he was being beaten to intimidate him politically. Mr. Simmons of North Carolina declared that he never heard of such a practice, and the debate concerning North Carolina politics was fully launched.

The Rosebud Indian reservation bill and the sundry civil bill were again considered but not completed.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed the anti-conspiracy bill reported from the judiciary committee without a word of debate. It came up rather unexpectedly and Mr. Littlefield of Maine, who had filed a minority report on the bill and had intended to offer some amendments, came in just as it was put upon its passage, and the vote was taken before he knew what was going on.

NAVAL OFFICERS FREE.

The Men Deny the Imputation That They Had Taken Too Much Wine.

Venice, May 4.—The American naval officers yesterday were released and went on board the American warship Chicago. In an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, the released officers warmly repudiated the reports from Rome that they were under the influence of wine at the time of the trouble and said that, on the contrary, they were absolutely sober. Lieut. John S. Doddridge remarked:

"After the accidental upsetting of a table in a cafe by myself and a companion at 11 o'clock at night we were followed and attacked by a mob, and two municipal policemen appeared on the scene. I, with my open hand, motioned to the crowd to keep off. The police then seized us, but the mob continued so threatening that our brother officers and a marine who happened to be on the piazza ran to our rescue. We acted only in self-defense and against a large, hostile crowd. We did not strike the police. Doubtless misunderstanding of the two languages had something to do with the trouble. We have been allowed to remain together in prison, but the room in which we have been confined swarmed with insects."

KNOCKED OUT BY CHOYNSKI.

One of the Fiercest Bouts Ever Fought in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—Al Weinig of Buffalo was knocked out last night by Joe Choynski of Chicago, before the Empire Athletic club in the sixth round of one of the fiercest bouts ever fought in this city. Both men were forced to take a severe drubbing and Weinig's defeat came after a display of gameness rarely equalled in the prize ring. Twice in the sixth round he was knocked to his knees by Choynski's rights and lefts to the jaw, but each time he came up ready for more punishment. He was too dazed, however, to defend himself, and Choynski finally beat him down, landing him against the ropes unable to move. It was several minutes before he was able to rise and even then he was badly dazed, for when Choynski attempted to shake hands with him, Weinig squared off ready to continue in the fighting, unconscious that he had been counted out.

AMOS J. CUMMINGS DEAD.

New York Congressman Succumbs to Pneumonia.

Baltimore, May 4. — Congressman Amos J. Cummings of New York died at 10:15 last night at the Church Home and Infirmary in this city. The cause of death was pneumonia incident to an operation. The congressman's wife and cousin, Charles H. Cummings, were at his bedside when death came. Congressman Cummings came to Baltimore April 11 to undergo treatment for kidney trouble. Four days later an operation was performed by Dr. Hugh H. Young and Mr. Cummings seemed to be in a fair way to recovery. A week later, however, pleurisy developed, and on April 25 it was announced that Mr. Cummings was suffering from pneumonia in one lung. Last Tuesday it was announced that the malady had extended to both lungs, since which time Mr. Cummings has been hovering between life and death.

WORK OF THE STORM.

Great Damage Done in Pittsburg and Vicinity.

Pittsburg, May 4. — A terrific wind, rain and hail storm struck this city last evening, doing much damage. The rain came down in torrents and the hail which followed was of sufficient size to completely strip many trees of their foliage and ruin many flower beds. The wind blew down a house in Allegheny, burying an unknown man in the ruins. He was rescued after hard work and taken to the hospital in a badly battered condition. The steel hull tow boat Vesta, valued at $50,000 and owned by the Vest Coal company, was blown over and badly wrecked in the Monongahela river. Her crew was all saved. The storm traveled eastward and when it reached Irwin did considerable damage. One of the workmen on the Taylor farm was blown from the barn roof and probably fatally injured.

Bjornsen Seriously Ill.

Christiania, May 4. — Bjornstjerne Bjornsen, the Norwegian poet and novelist, is seriously ill.

Kid McCoy Defeats Russell.

Philadelphia, May 4.—Kid McCoy and Charley Russell of Chicago fought six rounds last night here in which McCoy had the better of the contest. Russell was in superb condition, while McCoy was a little fat.

Summarily Removed.

Washington, May 4.—H. A. Estrows, the disbursing clerk of the United States census office, has been summarily removed as the result of the discovery of a shortage in the accounts of his office.

SWEPT BY REBELS

REVOLUTION IN SANTO DOMINGO IS PROVING A SUCCESS.

ARE MARCHING ON THE CAPITAL

VICE PRESIDENT VASQUEZ HEADS THE REVOLT AGAINST JIMINEZ.

GOVERNMENT MAY SOON FALL

GREATER PART OF THE REPUBLIC NOW IN THE HANDS OF THE REBELS.

Santo Domingo, May 4.—The revolutionists, in strong force and headed by the vice president, Horacio Vasquez, are marching on this city, the capital. The government is taking serious steps to defend the city.

Telegraphic communication with the interior has been cut. No further news is obtainable.

The capital is quiet, while awaiting events.

Vice President Vasquez is the leader of the revolution against President Jiminez. Yesterday he arrived at Guerra, near Santo Domingo, the capital. The fall of the Jiminez government is expected to-morrow.

All the republic except the port of Puerto Plata, on the north coast, and the capital, Santo Domingo, on the south coast, is in the hands of the revolutionists.

Porto Plata, the principal port of Santo Domingo, is quiet. Large numbers of government troops have been concentrated there and they are supported by Dominican war vessels. The governor of Porto Plata, Gen. Deschamps, has decided to defend the place.

KING EDWARD HOLDS COURT.

Function Is Held in the Evening, an Innovation.

London, May 4.—King Edward's second court was held last night at Buckingham. London was deprived of the picturesque street spectacle attending this function, because the court was held in the evening, but inside the palace the scene was much more brilliant than formerly.

The change in the time of holding the court met the approval of those who attended the ceremony. Members of the royal family arrived at the garden entrance of the palace, where they were received by the "white slaves" and conducted by them to the white drawing-room. Here the members of the royal family were joined by the king and queen.

The procession to the ballroom formed at half past ten o'clock. Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, and Mrs. Choate; Henry White, secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. White, John R. Carter, second secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. Carter, and the other members of the United States embassy were present.

Mrs. Choate was presented to their majesties. In the diplomatic circle were Charlemagne Tower, the United States ambassador to Russia, and Mrs. Tower; Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York; Mrs. Clover, wife of Commander Richardson Clover, the United States naval attache at London; Mrs. Whitney and Miss Choate. In the general circle were Mrs. S. S. Chauncy of New York; Miss De Young, daughter of M. H. De Young, of San Francisco; Miss Bancroft of Boston, and Miss Tuckerman of Washington.

King Edward has devised new rules to apply to future courts, beginning May 10. Owing to the number of people who had to pass before their majesties the courts have been very long affairs. In future only those who are presented will pass before the king and queen, and when the new rules become effective only ladies actually presented to their majesties need wear trains. Ladies simply "attending" court may dispense with this elaborate addition to their costumes.

FORGE CZAR'S SIGNATURE.

Bogus Proclamations Cause Russian Riots.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—The instigators of the peasant riots in the Voronej and Kharkoff governments, who succeeded in bringing the former serfs and landowners into collision by circulating the report that the czar had ordered the lands of the nobles to be divided among the emancipated serfs, prove to be identical with the organizers of the student movement here. After the student agitation was stopped the secret press bureau turned its attention to South Russia and the "underground" presses turned out thousands of bogus proclamations with the czar's forged signature attached to them, directing the peasants to partition the nobles' lands and distribute their goods among themselves. The proclamations set forth that the peasants should disregard the officials, who would probably interfere, as the latter always tried to thwart the czar's will. Labor troubles have broken out at Novorossisk on the east coast of the Black sea.

CONSPIRE TO DEFRAUD.

Allegations Made Against London Banker and Two Others.

London, May 4.—Charles Bright, the American engineer charged with concealing £100,000 of his assets in connection with bankruptcy proceedings, was committed to trial at the next session of the Old Bailey court. J. F. Moreno, formerly attached to the United States legations at Paris and Madrid, and R. G. Fudge, the secretary of several companies, who are charged with being Bright's accessories to a conspiracy to defraud creditors, were jointly committed with him.

Bold Diamond Theft.

Detroit, Mich., May 4.—Early yesterday thieves threw a brick through the front window of Traub Bros. & Co.'s jewelry store and stole fifty-one diamond rings and fifteen watches. The jewelry was valued at $750.

Naval Cadets Get Diplomas.

Annapolis, May 4.—President Roosevelt yesterday presented diplomas to the graduating cadets. There were many prominent people present, among them being relatives and friends of the graduates.

SURVEY GOLD FIELDS.

Prairie du Chein Discoveries of Precious Metals Attract Encouraging Attention.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., May 3.—Dr. S. Weidman of the Wisconsin State Geological society is in this city under the direction of Dr. E. A. Birge, acting president of the state university, to make preliminary inspection and report on the discoveries of gold and silver. If his report is favorable it is expected that a survey will be made with a view of determining the extent of the ore-bearing range. Mrs. N. S. Dousman, upon whose land the discovery was made, returned from St. Paul, accompanied by a number of professional experts, among whom was Dr. L. H. Lenen, a mining expert of national reputation, and the atmosphere betokens strengthened confidence among those in touch with the best sources of information.

HEAVY FIRE LOSS.

Seven Buildings Destroyed at Casselton.

Casselton, N. D., May 3. — Fire destroyed seven buildings here, entailing a loss of $30,000. The structures burned were Hackney's livery barn; the Casselton steam laundry, owned by C. H. East; a small residence, owned by S. H. Knight; carriage shop, owned by W. H. Miller; buggy storehouse, owned by Will Gallup; boiler shop, D. A. Davidson; small building, Frank Lynch. The Masonic block and the new opera house block caught fire several times, but the flames were extinguished. Eight horses, several vehicles and several sets of harness were burned in the livery barn.

SIX PERSONS INJURED.

Switch Engine Collides With a Crowded Street Car.

Milwaukee, May 3.—Six persons were injured in a collision last night between a street car on the Vliet street line and a switch engine at the Clinton street crossing of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road. The gates at the crossing were open and the conductor of the street car supposed the crossing was clear. Just as the street car was near the middle of the tracks a switch engine with a train of passenger coaches going at a moderate speed crashed into the car, knocking it off the track and demolishing the side of it.

JONES AMONG INDIANS.

In Conference on Proposition to Lease Reservation.

Fort Yates, N. D., May 3. — Indian Commissioner Jones is here to attend a council of Indians on the proposition of leasing the Standing Rock reservation. This is Commissioner Jones' first visit and there are 3,000 Indians to meet him. Inspector Nesler has completed the testimony in the investigation of charges against Indian Agent Bingenheimer, and the enemies of Bingenheimer practically admit none of their charges against him have been sustained.

LOGS FLOAT UP RIVER.

Terrific Wind on Lake Pepin Carries Logs the Wrong Way.

Lake City, Minn., May 3. — A heavy east wind has been blowing the greater part of the day and has been carrying logs up the lake from the mouth of the Chippewa river, where they were floating down. This is a distance of about eleven miles, and is an uncommon occurrence. The steamers Cyclone and Twin City of the packet lines running from Wabasha to St. Paul have been tied up here on account of the wind and logs drifting up the lake.

RISQUE DIVORCE CASE.

South Dakotan Accused of Various Misdeeds.

Miller, S. D., May 3.—Ex-Judge John Pusey, at present state's attorney and chairman of the state Democratic committee, was yesterday made defendant in a divorce suit by his wife, who alleges in her complaint cruel and inhuman treatment and infidelity. Mrs. Pusey also filed a sworn complaint in Justice Miller's court charging adultery and started criminal proceedings. But this may be dropped and the divorce proceedings pushed instead.

PLOWS THROUGH MUD.

Train on the M. & I. Meets With Serious Difficulties.

Bemidji, Minn., May 3. — The newly built Minnesota & International, north of Bemidji, is in bad condition on account of heavy rains, and it is feared traffic beyond Ten Strike will temporarily cease to-day. The south-bound train was four hours late. The cow-catcher scooped up mud, which lay up like snow all along the track.

WOMEN IN THE TOILS.

They Are Charged With Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

New Richmond, Wis., May 3.—Chief of Police Lynch arrested in Deer Park Mrs. A. Freel and Maggie Murphy, claiming to be solicitors for the Baker orphans' home at Duluth. The charge is obtaining money under false pretensos. They were lodged in jail at Hudson to await examination.

Lawless Fishers Fined.

Faribault, Minn., May 3.—Frank and Charles Snow of Cordova, and Frank and Herbert Strecter of Morristown were arrested by Deputy Game Warden Lick of this city for fishing with a net in Cedar lake a few miles west of here. The Streeters paid a fine of $28 apiece, but the Cordova men couldn't scrape up that amount, and are now serving a sixty-day sentence in the county jail. The fish they caught were pickerel and bass.

Fire at Lisbon.

Lisbon, N. D., May 3.—Fred Murale's wooden butcher shop, in the heart of town, burned. Loss, $1,500.

Hamilton Pleads Not Guilty.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 3. — W. H. Hamilton, accused of conspiracy to cause a strike, pleaded not guilty and the case was adjourned to May 6. He gave bail of $400 and was released from jail. No other arrests have been made.

Fire Fiend at Aberdeen.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 3.—The opera house here was destroyed by fire yesterday. The origin of the fire, as well as the one which destroyed the grain palace a few days ago, is thought to be incendiary.

FIRE NOBLES OUT

RUSSIAN PEASANTS ATTEMPT TO DIVIDE UP THE ESTATES.

SPREAD A CURIOUS CANARD

THAT THE CZAR HAD ORDERED NOBLES TO DIVIDE WITH SERFS.

REVOLT AND PILLAGE RIFE

SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION IS MADE MANIFEST BY OFFICIALS.

St. Petersburg, May 3.—The seriousness of the situation in South Russia is apparent from the fact that Dragomiroff, governor general of Kieff; Pocarcoff, vice director of the department of police, and other officials have joined Von Plehwe, the minister of the interior, at Kharkoff.

The Voronej sugar refineries have especially suffered from the outbreak during which the duke of Oldenburg's estate was dismantled. It now develops that the agitators, who are chiefly responsible for the spread of the revolutionary movement among the hungry peasants, used a curious political canard to bring the former serfs and the land owners into collision. A rumor was industriously circulated that the

Czar Had Ordered

the lands of the nobles to be divided among the emancipated serfs. The peasants thereupon formed committees, under the commune officials, waited on the land owners and ordered them to vacate the land withheld from the peasants, chose the crown agents and proceeded to distribute the land and movables, leaving the nobles from fifteen to twenty acres each. The proceedings, which were orderly, were conducted with the utmost gravity until the authorities interfered. Thereafter there was riot, arson and devastation. In military circles it is believed that the army manouvers which have been in Orel and Koursk cannot occur, owing to the disturbed state of these governments. Duke Alexander of Oldenburg's celebrated chateau of Romone, in the government of Voronej, Southern Russia, has been burned by revolting peasants, who practically ruined the estate. The duke is the father-in-law of the czar's sister, Olga, who married his son, Duke Peter, last year.

Planned to Take Place

The labor population of the whole district between Moscow and Vladimir, Central Russia, is in revolt. There have been numerous encounters between the working men and the troops, and many persons have been killed or wounded. A Uhlan regiment, commanded by Col. Morosoff, refused to act against the workmen.

PALMA RECEIVED AT SANTIAGO.

American Army Shows Him Honors Due a President.

Santiago de Cuba, May 3.—President-elect Palma arrived here yesterday and was given an ovation. Brig. Gen. Samuel M. Whitside, the commander of the department of Santiago, sent his aide-de-camp, Lieut. Henry C. Whitehead of the Tenth cavalry, to Manzanillo to meet Senor Palma and ordered a squadron of cavalry and a battery of artillery, headed by a band of music, to form the official escort of the president-elect on his landing here. About 40,000 people were packed in the narrow streets of this city when Senor Palma arrived and the crowds were so dense at certain points that they obstructed the procession, which was increased by mounted delegations from all parts of the province until it was miles long. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

PLEBISCITE FIRST.

Majority in the Landsthing Will Postpone Ratification.

Copenhagen, May 3.—The secret session of the landsthing yesterday was not productive of definite action regarding the danish West India islands treaty, but a vote taken at the close of the sitting indicates a determination on the part of the majority to postpone ratification of the treaty till after a plebecite of the islands has been taken. This means the rejection of the proposal of the folkething and necessitates a conference. The discussion is engendering intense partisan feeling in all circles and the party whips are vigorously used to keep both sides firm. The opposition hopes to hold together long enough to force the rejection of the treaty, but the faith of the leading pro-salers in its ratification is still strong.

HIS LORDSHIP KNOWS.

English Peers Throw Divorce Bill Out of Their House.

London, May 3.—The divorce bill introduced by Earl Russell was thrown out in the house of lords yesterday. The bill provided for divorce on five grounds in addition to the causes already valid in England. Lord Russell stated that he had in the past personal reasons to consider the divorce laws. He said the bill would not increase immorality, but would make happier homes, establish a greater equality of the sexes and lessen scandals. The lord chancellor, Earl Halsbury, speaking with considerable warmth, characterized the bill as practically abolishing the institution of marriage, and said it was an outrage that it should have been introduced. He then moved its rejection, which was carried.

Confesses to Murder.

Hammond, Ind., May 3—Arthur Moyer, a nineteen-year-old Lowell, Ind., lad, has confessed that he killed his employer, Douglas Craft, a farmer, on April 18. Moyer formerly asserted that Craft shot at him and then suicided.

Indian Agent Suspended.

Washington, May 2.—The secretary of the interior has suspended M. L. Bridgman, the Indian agent at Fort Belknap, Mont., as a result of the special investigation of charges of irregularities.

CORRIGAN IS WORSE.

Physician Says the Archbishop Is in a Critical Condition.

New York, May 6. — There is much concern felt over the case of Archbishop Corrigan, as Dr. Keyes, the attending physician, announced last night after his visit to the bedside of the prelate, that his condition was still dangerous, and there is a possibility that it may become more critical. "Archbishop Corrigan is by no means out of danger," said Dr. Keyes, "and this weakness continues; there are no favorable indications; he shows absolutely no interest in worldly affairs and evinces no liveliness whatever. If he did evince a desire to know what was going on in the world it would indicate that he was regaining strength. But such is not the case. There was hope that he would even express a desire to get up, sick as he is, but he has not shown the slightest inclination to get up, sleeping constantly. His condition is grave indeed, and there is a possibility that he may get worse, and this will hold good for several days. He is very weak, so weak, in fact, that if he was taken from his bed he could not stand."

STORM SWEEPS IOWA.

Nearly Entire State Feels the Effect—Much Damage Done.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 6.—A furious storm of wind, rain and lightning, which at some places attained almost to the dimensions of a cyclone, raged over the greater portion of Iowa, causing hundreds of thousands of dollars damage.

At Eldora one residence and a school house were demolished, but there was no loss of life. At Sheldon and vicinity the loss will amount to many thousands of dollars. Stock suffered severely. Hailstones that measured over five inches in diameter fell. At Cedar Falls the wind blew at a great velocity. Telephones were burned out and telegraph wires are down. At Fairbanks, the first station east of Oelwein, telegraph poles and wires are down. As a result of the storm at midnight last night 100 head of cattle in the vicinity of Oelwein were killed by lightning.

SOUTH DAKOTA STORM.

Considerable Damage Was Done but No Lives Were Lost.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 6.—The heaviest storm of the season prevailed last night. The rainfall aggregated 2.5 inches in this locality. No serious damage was done in this section by hail or wind. At Lennox, buildings were moved by the heavy wind, but none destroyed. No lives were lost in this section. The Milwaukee railroad tracks between Hudson and Fairview were washed out. Beyond damage done by water injuring goods in basements here, and the destruction of a hundred feet of new cement sidewalks, the loss is slight.

ALLEGED LOG THIEVES.

Five Are Arrested and Arraigned in La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., May 5.—Five alleged log thieves, believed to be part of a large gang which has been systematically robbing loggers of thousands of feet of logs every summer, were arrested near Brownsville, Minn., by the sheriff and a deputy, who went down after them in a launch. They were found on a small brail of stolen logs containing 30,000 feet, which is alleged to have been stolen up river. They pleaded not guilty and their case was adjourned until Thursday.

HORSES FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

Five Hundred a Month From the Black Hills.

Spearfish, S. D., May 6.—Agents for the English government have informed horse contractors in this region that they are instructed to take 500 head of saddle horses a month for use in South Africa as long as the Boer war continues. J. P. Gammon of Spearfish is a member of the firm of G. L. Golding & Co., of Denver, which has recently been awarded another contract for horses. Mr. Gammon has been buying horses for the British throughout the Black Hills all winter.

FARMER FOUND DEAD.

Kasota Man Goes Out to Shoot Gophers and Dies.

St. Peter, Minn., May 6.—John Rappa, a prosperous and well known farmer residing east of Kasota, was found dead on his farm from a gunshot wound. When he left the house after dinner he took his shotgun along, saying he intended to shoot gophers. He was found a couple of hours afterward, lying with his gun by his side. The shooting is thought to have been accidental. A coroner's inquest will be held.

LAWYERS WANT THEIR FEES.

Four Aberdeen Barristers Bring Suit Against the County.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 6.—Four Aberdeen attorneys have sued the county for fees claimed to be due them on cases where they were appointed by the presiding judge to defend indigent persons. The county commissioners cut down the original bills, claiming they had jurisdiction, but the attorneys propose making a test case, and the matter will go to the supreme court for a decision.

FIFTY DIE IN EGYPTIAN FIRE.

Town on the Banks of the Nile Burns—Thousands of Residences Destroyed.

Cairo, Egypt, May 6.—Fifty persons have perished in a fire at Mit Gamil, a town on the right bank of the Damietta branch of the Nile. The flames were started by the intensely hot weather prevailing. Thousands of native residences and 200 stores were destroyed.

Congressman Otey Dead.

Washington, May 6. — Congressman Peter J. Otey of the Sixth Virginia district, died in Lynchburg, his home, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Word to this effect was received at the sergeant-at-arms' office of the house of representatives at an early hour last night. Mr. Otey had been named as a member of the committee to accompany the remains of the late Congressman Cummings to New York last night, but he notified the speaker that he was too ill to attend. Mr. Otey was a Democrat.

The Crimson Blind

CHAPTER V. (Continued.)

"I have not quite finished," Marley said, quietly. "Pressed as to when the case had been sold, Mr. Walen, without hesitation, said: 'Yesterday, for £72 15s.' The purchaser was a stranger, whom Mr. Walen is prepared to identify. Asked if a formal receipt had been given, Walen said that it had. And now I come to the gist of the whole matter. You saw Dr. Cross hand me a mass of papers, etc., taken from the person of the gentleman who was nearly killed in your house?"

David nodded. His breath was coming a little faster. His quick mind had run on ahead; he saw the gulf looming before him.

"Go on," said he, hoarsely, "go on. You mean to say that—"

"That among the papers found in the pocket of the unfortunate stranger was a receipted bill for the very cigar case that lies here on the table before you!"

CHAPTER VI.

A Policy of Silence.

Steel dropped into a chair and gazed at Inspector Marley with mild surprise. At the same time, he was not in the least alarmed. Not that he failed to recognize the gravity of the situation, only it appealed, in the first instance, to the professional side of his character.

"Walen is quite sure?" he asked. "No possible doubt about it?"

"Not in the least. You see, he recognized his private mark at once, and Brighton is not so prosperous a place that a man could sell a £70 cigar case and forget all about it—that is, a second case, I mean. It's most extraordinary."

"Rather! What a magnificent story, Marley!"

"Very," responded Marley, drily. "It would take all your well known ingenuity to get your hero out of this trouble."

Steel nodded, gravely. This personal twist brought him to the earth again. He could clearly see the trap into which he had placed himself. There before him lay the cigar case which he had positively identified as his own; inside his initials bore testimony to the fact. And yet the same case had been identified beyond question as one sold by a highly respectable local tradesman to the mysterious individual now lying in the Sussex county hospital.

"May I smoke a cigarette?" David asked.

"You may smoke a score, if they will be of any assistance to you, sir," Marley replied. "I don't want to ask you any questions, and I don't want you—well, to commit yourself. But, really, sir, you must admit—"

The inspector paused, significantly. David nodded again.

"Pray proceed," he said; "speak from the brief you have before you."

"Well, you see, it's this way," Marley said, not without hesitation. "You call us up to your house, saying that a murder has been committed there; we find a stranger, almost at his last gasp, in your conservatory, with every sign of a struggle having taken place. You tell us that the injured man is a stranger to you; you go on to say that he must have found his way into your house during a nocturnal ramble of yours. Well, that sounds like common sense, on the face of it. The criminal has studied your habits, and has taken advantage of them. Then I ask if you are in the habit of taking these midnight strolls, and, with some signs of hesitation, you say that you have never done such a thing before. Charles Dickens was very fond of that kind of thing, and I naturally imagined that you had the same fancy. But you had never done so before. And, the only time, a man is nearly murdered in your house."

"Perfectly correct," David murmured. "Gaboriau could not have put it better. You might have been a pupil of my remarkable acquaintance, Hatherly Bell."

"I am a pupil of Mr. Bell's," Marley said, quietly. "Seven years ago he induced me to leave the Huddersfield police to go into his office, where I stayed until Mr. Bell gave up the business, when I applied for and gained my present position. Curious you should mention Mr. Bell's name, seeing that he was here so recently as this afternoon."

"Staying in Brighton?" Steel asked, eagerly. "What is his address?"

"No. 219 Brunswick Square."

It took all the nerve that David possessed to crush the cry that rose to his lips. It was more than strange that the man he most desired to see at this juncture should be staying in the very house where the novelist had his great adventure. And in the mere fact might be the key to the problem of the cigar case.

"I'll certainly see Bell," he muttered. "Go on, Marley."

"Yes, sir. We now proceed to the cigar case that lies before you. It was also lying on the floor of the conservatory on the night in question. I suggested that here we might have found a clue, taking the precaution, at the same time to ask if the article in question was your property. You looked at the case as one does who examines an object for the first time, and proceeded to declare that it was not yours. I am quite prepared to admit that you instantly corrected yourself. But, I ask, is it a usual thing for a man to forget the ownership of a £70 cigar case?"

"A nice point, and I congratulate you upon it," David said.

"Then we will take the matter a little farther. A day or two ago you were in dire need of something like £1,000. Temporarily, at any rate, you were practically at the end of your resources. If the money were not forthcoming, in a few hours you were a ruined man. In vulgar parlance, you would have been sold up. Mossa & Mack had you in their grip, and they were determined to make all they could out of you. The morning following the outrage at your house you call upon Mr. Mossa and produce the cigar case lying on the table before you. From that case you produce notes sufficient to discharge your debt—Bank of England notes, the numbers of which, I need hardly say, are in my possession. The money is produced from the case yonder, which case we know was sold to the injured man by Mr. Walen."

Marley made a long and significant pause. Steel nodded.

"There seems to be no way out of it," he said.

"I can see one," Marley suggested. "Of course, it would simplify matters enormously if you merely told me, in confidence, whence came those notes. You see, as I have the numbers, I could verify your statement beyond question, and—"

Marley paused again and shrugged his shoulders. Despite his cold, official manner, he was obviously prompted by a desire to serve his companion. And yet, simple as the suggestion seemed, it was the very last thing with which Steel could comply.

The novelist turned the matter over rapidly in his mind. His quick perceptions flashed along the whole logical line instantaneously. He was like a man who suddenly sees a midnight landscape by the glare of a dazzling flash of light.

"I am sorry," he said, slowly, "very sorry to disappoint you. Were our situations reversed, I should take up your position exactly. But is so happens that I cannot, dare not, tell you where I got those notes from. So far as I am concerned they came honestly into my hands in payment for special services rendered. It was part of my contract that I should reveal the secret to nobody. If I told you the story, you would decline to believe it; you would say that it was a brilliant effort of a novelist's imagination to get out of a dangerous position."

"I don't know that I should," Marley replied. "I have long since ceased to wonder at anything that happens in or is connected with Brighton."

"All the same, I can't tell you, Marley," Steel said, as he rose. "My lips are absolutely sealed. The point is: what are you going to do?"

"For the present, nothing," Marley replied. "So long as the man in the hospital remains unconscious, I can do no more than pursue what Beaconsfield called 'a policy of masterly inactivity.' I have told you a good deal more than I had any right to do, but I did so in the hope that you could assist me. Perhaps in a day or two you will think better of it. Meanwhile—"

"Meanwhile I am in a tight place. Yes, I see that perfectly well. It is just possible that I may scheme some way out of the difficulty, and, if so, I shall be only too pleased to let you know. Good-night, Marley, and many thanks to you."

But with all his ingenuity and fertility of imagination David could see no way out of the trouble. He sat up far into the night scheming; there was no flavor in his tobacco; his pictures and flowers, his silver and china, jarred upon him. He wished, with all his heart, that he had let everything go. It need only have been a temporary matter, and there were other Cellini tankards and intaglios, and fine engravings in the world for the man with money in his purse.

He could see no way out of it at all. Was it not possible that the whole thing had been deliberately planned so as to land him and his brains into the hands of some clever gang of swindlers? Had he been tricked and fooled so that he might become the tool of others? It seemed hard to think so, when he recalled the sweet voice in the darkness and its passionate plea for help. And yet the very cigar case that he had been told was the one he admired at Lockhart's had proved beyond question to be one purchased from Walen's!

If he decided to violate his promise and tell the whole story, nobody would believe him. The thing was altogether too wild and improbable for that. And yet, he reflected, things almost as impossible happen in Brighton every day. And what proof had he to offer?

Well, there was one thing certain. At least three-quarters of those bank notes the portion he had collected at the house with the crimson blind—could not possibly be traced to the injured man. And, again, it was no fault of Steel's that Marley had obtained possession of the numbers of the notes. If the detective chose to ferret out facts for himself no blame could attach to Steel. If these people had only chosen to leave out of the question that confounded cigar case!

David's train of thought was broken as an idea came to him. It was not so long since he had a fac-simile cigar case in his hand at Lockhart's, in North street. Somebody connected with the mystery must have seen him admiring it and, reluctantly declining the purchase, because the voice from the telephone told him that the case was a present and that it had come from the famous North street establishment.

"By Jove!" David cried. "I'll go to Lockhart's to-morrow and see if the case is still there. If so, I may be able to trace it!"

Fairly early the next morning David was in North street. For the time being he had put his work aside altogether. He could not have written a dozen consecutive lines to save the situation. The mere effort to preserve a cheerful face before his mother was a torture. And at any time he might find himself forced to meet a criminal charge.

The gentlemanly assistant at Lockhart's remembered Steel and the cigar case perfectly well; but he was afraid that the article had been sold. No doubt it would be possible to obtain a fac-simile in the course of a few days.

"Only I required that particular one," Steel said. "Can you tell me when it was sold, and who purchased it?"

A junior partner did, and could give some kind of information. Several people had admired the case, and it had been on the point of sale several times. Finally it passed into the hands of an American gentleman staying at the Metropole.

"Can you tell me his name?" David asked, "or describe him?"

"Well, I can't, sir," the junior partner said, frankly. "I haven't the slightest recollection of the gentleman. He wrote from the Metropole, on the hotel paper, describing the case and its price, and enclosed the full amount in £10 notes, and asked to have the case sent by post to the hotel. When we ascertained that the notes were all right we naturally posted the case, as desired, and there, so far as we are concerned, was an end of the matter."

"You don't recollect his name?"

"Oh, yes. The name was John Smith. If there is anything wrong—"

David hastily gave the desired assurance. He wanted to arouse no suspicion. All the same, he left Lockhart's with a plethora of suspicions of his own. Doubtless the jewelers would be well and fairly satisfied so long as the case had been paid for; but from the standpoint of David's superior knowledge, the whole transaction fairly bristled with suspicion.

Not for one moment did Steel believe in the American at the Metropole. Somebody stayed there, doubtless, under the name of John Smith, and that said somebody had paid for the case in £10 notes, the tracing of which might prove a task of years. Nor was it the slightest use to inquire at the Metropole, where, practically, everybody is identified by a number and where scores come and go every day. John Smith would only have to ask for his letters and then drop quietly into a sea of oblivion.

Well, David had got his information, and a lot of use it was likely to prove to him. As he walked thoughtfully homewards he was debating in his mind whether or not he might venture to call at or write to 219 Brunswick Square, and lay his difficulties before the people there. At any rate, he reflected, with grim bitterness, they would know that he was not romancing. If nothing turned up in the meantime he would certainly visit Brunswick Square.

He sat in his own room puzzling the matter out until his head ached and the flowers before him reeled in a dazzling whirl of color. He looked around for inspiration, now desperately, as he frequently did when the warp of his delicate fancy tangled. The smallest thing sometimes fed the machine again—a patch of sunshine, the chip on a plate, the damaged edge of a frame. Then his eye fell on the telephone, and he jumped to his feet.

"What a fool I am!" he exclaimed. "If I had been plotting this business out as a story I should have thought of that long ago. . . . No, I don't want any number, at least in that way. Two nights ago I was called up by somebody from London who held the line for fully half an hour or so. I've—I've forgotten the address of my own correspondent, but if you can ascertain the number . . . yes, I shall be here if you will ring me up when you have got it. . . . Thanks."

Half an hour passed before the bell trilled again. David listened eagerly. At any rate, know he was going to know the number whence the mysterious message came—0017, Kensington, was the number. David muttered his thanks and flew to his big telephone directory. Yes, there it was—0017, 446, Prince's Gate, Gilead Gates."

The big volume dropped with a crash on the floor. David looked down at the crumpled volume with dim, misty amazement.

'Gilead Gates!" he murmured. "Quaker millionaire and philanthropist. One of the most highly-esteemed and popular man in England. And from this house came the message which had been the source of all the mischief. And yet there are critics who say the plots of my novels are too fantastic!"

CHAPTER VII.

218 Brunswick Square.

The emotion of surprise seemed to have left Steel altogether. After the last discovery he was prepared to believe anything. Had anybody told him that the whole bench of bishops was at the bottom of the mystery he would have responded that the suggestion was highly probable.

"Still, it's what the inimitable Dick Swiveler would call a staggerer," he muttered. "Gates, the millionaire, the one great capitalist who has the profound respect of the labor world. No, a man with a record like that couldn't have anything to do with it. Still, it must have been from his house that the mysterious message came. The post-office people, working the telephone trunk-line would know that—a fact which probably escaped the party who called me up. . . . I'll go to Brunswick Square and see that woman. Money or no money, I'll not lie under an imputation like this."

There was one thing to be done beforehand, and that was to see Dr. Cross. From the latter's manner, he evidently knew something of the charge hanging over Steel's head. Marley was evidently keeping that close to himself, and speaking to nobody.

"Oh, the man is better," said Cross, cheerfully. "He hasn't been identified yet, though the press has given us every assistance. I fancy the poor fellow is going to recover, though I am afraid it will be a long job."

"He hasn't recovered consciousness, then?"

"No; and neither will he for some time to come. There seems to be a certain pressure on the brain which we are unable to locate, and we dare not try the Roentgen rays yet. So, on the whole, you are likely to escape with a charge of aggravated assault."

David smiled grimly as he went his way. He walked the whole distance to Hove, along North street and the Western Road, finally turning down Brunswick Square, instead of up it, as he had done on the night of the great adventure. He wondered, vaguely, why he had been specially instructed to approach the house in that way.

Here he was at last, 219 Brunswick Square—220 above and, of course, 218 below the house. It looked pretty well the same in the daylight, the same door, the same knocker and the same crimson blind in the center of the big bay window. David knocked at the door with a vague feeling of uncertainty as to what he was going to do next. A very staid, old-fashioned footman answered his knock and inquired his business.

"Can—can I see your mistress?" David murmured.

The staid footman became, if possible, a little more reserved. If the gentleman would send in his card, he would see if Miss Ruth was disengaged.

David found himself vaguely wondering what Miss Ruth's surname might be. The old Biblical name was a great favorite of his.

"I'm afraid I haven't a card," he said. "Will you say that Mr. Steel would like to see—er—Miss Ruth for a few minutes? My business is exceedingly pressing."

The staid footman led the way into the dining room. Evidently this was no frivolous house, where giddy butterflies came and went; such gaudy insects would have been chilled by the solemn decorum of the place. David followed into the dining room in a dreamy kind of way, but with the feeling that comes to us all at times, the sensation of having done and seen the same thing before.

Nothing had been altered. The same plain, handsome, expensive furniture was here, the same mahogany and engravings, the same dull-red walls, with the same light stain over the fire place. A dull, prosperous, square-toed-looking place. The electric fittings looked a little different, but that might have been fancy. It was the identical room in which David had run his quarry to earth, and he began to feel his spirits rising. Doubtless he could scheme some way out of the difficulty and spare his phantom friends at the same time.

(To Be Continued.)

Played Piano Twenty-Seven Hours But Went Mad.

Gustav Garnier, a composer, won his wager that he could play the piano ceaselessly for more than twenty-four hours without repeating the same piece. He played twenty-seven hours and four minutes without notes, entirely from memory, playing 316 pieces, ranging from a concert hall waltz to a Beethoven symphony.

Twice he was fed by an assistant, but without interrupting the playing.

The performance ended when Garnier, who had been raving more and more for two hours, fell insensible.

The skin had worn from his finger-tips, and after he stopped his arms began to swell.

At the present time Garnier is still out of his mind, and the doctors say his condition is precarious.—Paris Correspondence of New York World.

Intoxication Among Women.

According to the report of the department of vital statistics, drunkenness among the women of London is increasing year by year. This, perhaps, is one of the reasons why the government is rigorously enforcing all clauses of the government license bill that give discretionary powers to justices to suppress drunkenness as far as possible.

A case in point, about which society is talking, occurred the other day, when a tall, well-dressed woman was arrested for being drunk and helpless in the Strand. At Bow Street she gave the name of Christiana Sykes, and her address as No. 2, Chesterfield street, Mayfair, which is the residence of Lady Tatton Skyes. She was discharged with a reprimand.—London Cable to New York Herald.

Introducing Major Schurtz.

De Wolf Hopper was standing in front of Weber & Fields, talking to a fellow professional recently, when a man disengaged himself from the passing show and approached the comedian. The latter's look spelt absolute forgetfulness of the newcomer's name. However, Hopper turned to his companion and said:

"White, let me introduce—um—m—why, do you know your name has slipped me for a moment?"

The man leaned toward him and whispered:

"Have you forgotten? I made your shirts."

"How careless of me!" exclaimed Hopper. "White, allow me to introduce my old friend, Major Schurtz."—New York Times.

The Way to Disinfect Books.

If you have an atomizer, half-fill it with a 40 per cent solution of formaldehyde. Stand the books upright on the end, wide open, with the leaves separated as much as possible, and spray thoroughly with formaldehyde. If the binding is very delicate and likely to be injured by the moisture, procure a tight tin box large enough to hold the book and a saucer filled with formaldehyde. Stand the book upright, as described, and close the box, leaving it for an hour at least. It is said that one cubic centimeter of formaldehyde to 300 cubic centimeters of space will thoroughly disinfect any book in fifteen minutes.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A New Version.

It was the young daughter of an East Side saloonkeeper, innocent of any theories of "Sunday opening," but perfectly familiar with the practice. She was in her class in the mission Sunday school, and, in the course of the catechism "quiz" the question came to her:

"Who made the world?"

"God did," was the prompt answer. "He made the world in six days, and was arrested on the seventh."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Clinging to Old Beliefs

Sailors of the Present Day Are as Superstitious as Were Their Ancestors.

It is a mistake, according to a well known young naval officer, to suppose that the sailors of our present navy are free from superstition. "I remember," he said, "only five years ago, when I was in the training ship Saratoga, that the old salts there were as full of old superstitious beliefs as any of their ancestors could have been.

"When at sea in a dead calm, the swaying of the masts in a motionless atmosphere sometimes causes a peculiar wailing sound like distant cries. This, the old seamen assured us, was the moaning of the souls of sailors lost at sea.

"Another one of their pet beliefs is that all sailors that die by drowning are at once transformed into Cape Horn pigeons, or, as they are also called, Mother Carey's chickens. Officers are supposed to find their reincarnations in seagulls and mews, while the big, solitary albatrosses, following the wake of passing vessels, are the souls of captains who have gone down with their ships. These are the reasons why sailors never kill these birds.

"I remember that these tales impressed me a great deal in those days when I was still a mere boy. On one occasion, I was sitting in the forecastle on my watch below, chatting with the boatswain's mate, a real old-timer, when our conversation was interrupted by a low wail of agony, louder than that usually produced by the wind. We listened in deep, awed silence.

"'Boy,' said the goatswain's mate, 'yo hear that—that's a seaman's call, wot's been drownded.'

"Again the wail disturbed the silence.

"'Yes,' said the old sailor, in an anxious whisper, 'that's some old salt wot's lost his life on board this vessel—likely he's come for something he's forgot.'

"After a while I ventured out on deck. The wails were coming from the roof of the forecastle. I climbed up, and there found the captain's little son tugging away at the cat's tail, which the poor animal was resenting with the full power of its lungs."

Time spent in bemoaning the failure of yesterday will not insure the success of to-morrow.

Wrote Begging Letters

New York Millionaire Received Thousands of These Missives Recently.

The private secretary of a New York millionaire recently sold as old paper a package of 7,000 letters, all of which had been sent to his employer a little more than three months and every one of which was a request for pecuniary assistance.

"For a time," said the secretary, "we got these letters at the rate of sixty or seventy a day. It came right after Mr. Blank had contributed $5,000 to a fund for the relief of widows and orphans of some West Virginia miners who were killed by a gas explosion. The gift was accompanied by a request that nothing be printed about it, but it got into the newspapers somehow and immediately the letters began to pour in.

"We had always had our share of begging letters, but now we were swamped. The tales of trouble, misfortune and suffering which were spread out for our reading would have harrowed one's soul, if he didn't know that they were largely manufactured.

"Most of the letters were from women, or purported to be, and all wanted money. The demand ranged from $5 to $500, and in every case an address was given and a request made that the money be sent at once.

"A vast variety of excuses were given for the demands, one of the most popular with women being that they wanted to have their sons complete their education, but couldn't unless they had a certain amount of money at once, and with men, that they had a chance to embark on a successful career, and only lacked the few hundred dollars necessary to get a start.

"Of course there were hundreds of stories of destitution, but like the others we tossed them aside without reply. For three months following this contribution to a fund for the relief of miners' families these letters continued to come.

"Then they stopped just as suddenly as they began, and we are now only getting the regular supply of five or six a week. There were in the lot that I sold to a junkman the other day in the neighborhood of 7,000 of these letters and $140 in stamps had been spent in sending them to us.

"And not one was productive of a contribution from Mr. Blank."—New York Sun.

How Kentucky Colonel Protected the Whisky

"Did you ever see a Kentucky colonel pack a trunk?" asked one of a hotel lobby group the other day.

The men addressed said "No," and one of them demanded, "And what is peculiar about it?"

"It is a most surprising operation," answered the one who spoke first. "I had the pleasure of witnessing it the other day. He was a colonel from Paducah, and I was invited to his room to have a drink. He poured out two tumblers of real old whisky from a demijohn which stood in the corner. I saw a finish ahead of me, drinking so large a dose without a sign of a 'chaser,' but it would have been an insult to the colonel from Paducah to intimate that water had any possible connection with a drink of whisky.

"'Wait just a minute till I pack my trunk,' he said, 'and I'll go down with you.'

"He picked up the demijohn, which was still half full of whisky, and placed it in the center of the trunk. Around it he wound a pair of trousers and then a frock coat. He kept up the wrapping process until most of his extra garments were tightly wound around it. Into the vacant places at the corners he stuffed the rest of the outfit.

"'There! I could carry that whisky to China and back without danger of spilling a drop,' he said as he stepped back and surveyed the packed trunk with pride.

"'Rather hard on the clothes, though,' said I, thinking of wrinkles.

"'Blast the clothes,' said the colonel. 'That whisky has got to be protected.'"—New York Tribune.

HORSES HAVE NOSE FOR FIRES

Captain of a Fire Company Tells a Story to Prove His Claim.

At a certain fire station a few persons were engaged in feeding Jim, the pet horse, with dainty morsels of cake and sugar. The captain looked on approvingly, and at length began to talk of horses.

"Did you ever know," he said, "that a horse brought up in the fire brigade can scent a conflagration miles away? Well, it's a fact. Jim, there, will take the engine to a fire without any guidance at all. He always knows exactly where it is.

"Do you know what happened the other day? We had been called out to a small fire, which we soon put out. Then we trotted leisurely home, but we hadn't got far on our way when Jim gave the 'tip' to his companion, and the horses suddenly pricking up their ears, broke into a gallop.

"It was no use trying to hold them—I knew they'd smelt a fire. They took the engine round a score or two of streets, and then they pulled up short behind a man whose coat-tails were burning. You see, he'd put a lighted pipe in his pocket."

Jim, who had been listening attentively to the narrative, swished his tail and tried to look through the stable wall.—Tit-Bits.

Natural Cave in Montana.

A remarkable natural cave has been discovered in Montana, about fifty miles east of Butte. A large river with a cataract of about 100 feet was explored for a distance of several miles without discovering its source or outlet. A few articles of stone and copper utensils and some human bones were also discovered in one of the large apartments explored. There were other evidences that at some time in a prehistoric period the cave was used as a habitation. The present entrance to the cave was made by some lime quarrymen at a point 1,600 feet above the bed of the Jefferson river while engaged in blasting rock. The formations of stalactite and other natural decorations throughout the cave are pronounced the most beautiful and varied ever seen.

Good Easter Story.

The advent of Easter has been invariably followed by a flood of Easter stories, and this year has proved no exception to the rule. One of the latest is told by Rev. Dr. Greer of St Bartholomew's church, New York.

It was at the services at the mission on Blackwell's island. The exercises had proceeded in regular style, and were near to an end.

The clergyman in charge rose and, with becoming dignity announced:

"We will now sing 'Begin, my soul, thy exalted lay'—a pause—"at the conclusion of which the Easter eggs will be passed."

In the general laugh that followed, the speaker was among the first to join.

PERUNA

WORTH A KING'S RANSOM.

MRS. COL. E. J. GRESHAM, Treasurer Daughters of the Confederacy, and President Herndon Village Improvement Society, writes the following letter from Herndon, Fairfax county, Virginia:

Herndon, Va.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I cannot speak too highly of the value of Peruna. I believe that I owe my life to its wonderful merits. I suffered with catarrh of the head and lungs in its worst form, until the doctors fairly gave me up, and I despaired of ever getting well again.

"I noticed your advertisement and the splendid testimonials given by people who had been cured by Peruna, and determined to try a bottle. I felt but little better, but used a second and a third bottle and kept on improving slowly.

"It took six bottles to cure me, but they were worth a king's ransom to me. I talk Peruna to all my friends and am a true believer in its worth." —Mrs. Col. E. J. Gresham.

Thousands of women owe their lives to Peruna. Tens of thousands owe their health to Peruna. Hundreds of thousands are praising Peruna in every state in the Union. We have on file a great multitude of letters, with written permission for use in public print, which can never be used for want of space.

OLD-TIME GAMBLERS.

STORY OF A REMARKABLE GAME OF SEVEN-UP.

How a Gulch in Montana Received Its Name—Peculiar Ending of a Card Duel—Player's Premonition Turned Out to Be Correct.

"The report of the consummation of a large mining deal in Seven-up Pete Gulch last week reminds me of what was probably the most remarkable game of seven-up ever played in the state of Montana," said an old-time miner.

"Peter Scharf was in the early days a well-known mining man. Prosperity did not agree with him, however. That is, money burned in his pockets. He appeared never to be satisfied with sheer money, no matter what the amount. He wanted action all the time. In other words, he was an inveterate gambler.

"He had some placer claims in the Blackfoot country north of Helena, and after his clean-up had come to town, exchanging his dust for cash, and started out to buck the tiger, after having taken the precaution to purchase a supply of provisions.

"He had quite a run of luck and at one time was several thousand dollars ahead. After an intermittent sitting of a week or ten days, however, he went flat broke, and hitching up his team to the wagonload of provisions, departed for his mountain home to wash out another fortune.

"Arriving at the main divide or crest of the Rockies, Pete met another miner en route to town, whose season had been less fortunate than his. He had, in fact, just about enough dust to pay for the next year's provisions.

"Exchanging a few casual remarks, during which this fact was brought out, Pete's mania for gambling led him to make the proposition that as they were both in about the same financial condition, they play a game of seven-up to see which one should possess all the provisions, dust and teams.

"I do not remember the other fellow's name, but at any rate he assented and the game began, the men playing on a log lying at the side of the road. At first the cards favored Pete, and he began to speculate on returning to town and recouping his losses at faro.

"The game stood 3 to 0 in Pete's favor, when, to his dismay, the other fellow scored high, low and the game. The next hand Pete made high, game to his opponent's low. The following deal favored Pete's opponent in a like manner and the game was now a tie, 6 to 6.

"It was his adversary's deal and Pete, after scanning his hand, announced that he would stand. His adversary said:

"'What have you for high?' giving up in despair as he had not a trump.

"'Nothing,' replied Pete.

"'It's your play then,' came the reply.

"Both wanted but one point to win and game was the only one out. Pete lost the game by one, turned his wagon, team and provisions over to the other fellow and started up the gulch, entering the road at that place on a prospecting tour. Thus the gulch achieved its name, Seven-up-Pete Gulch.

"Pete, upon being asked why he stood without a trump, said: 'I thought he'd turn a jack on me and go out.' And sure enough the seventh card was a jack. Pete did well on his tour and washed out a great many dollars in the gulch that bears his name."

NOVEL IDEA OF ART COLLECTOR

Gets Certificate of Authorship from Each Artist for His Paintings.

One of Philadelphia's collectors of modern paintings pursues an original and happy idea, which adds much to his gallery's value. He sends to the creator of each of his pictures—if the painter be living and if he be dead to some member of his family—a photograph of the work and across the face or the margin of the photograph the painter certifies in obedience to the collector's request that he executed the picture of which the photograph is a copy. Usually, too, he tells where and in what year he painted it; he gives its name and he appends a little criticism of it, favorable or unfavorable, as the case may be.

Thus the collector has a beautiful and large Thaulow, a study of running water, and under the photograph of this picture Thaulow himself says he regards it as one of his best works. He also has a superb Jacque, showing cows, chickens, horses, figures and instruments of agriculture. Jacque's son writes of this work an admirable appreciation.

Such men as Gerome, Bouguereau, Benjamin Constant, Cazin, Dagnan, Bouveret, Schreyer, Ridgway, Knight and many other, says the Philadelphia Record, certify and criticise in this way the works of theirs that the collection includes.

Europe's Richest Bachelor.

His royal highness the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar is just 25 years of age and is said to be the richest bachelor in Europe, not even excepting his majesty of Spain. He is a soldier of much promise, and his career has been watched with interest by the kaiser. Rumor has credited his royal highness with tender sentiments toward more than one princess, the latest selection being the Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, whose attractions are becoming greater every year. The Grand Duke is expected to shortly visit England, where he will no doubt be heartily welcomed as the kinsman of Field Marshal Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar.—Home Notes.

King's Shirt Brings $1,10.

Two hundred and ten guineas ($1,100) is a pretty good price to pay for an old shirt, even if the garment is made of silk. Still, when it is explained that considerable historical interest is attached, the price may not seem remarkable.

A shirt brought this price at Steven's auction rooms the other day. It was the one worn by Charles I. on his way to the scaffold.—London Cable to New York Herald.

SURGICAL OPERATIONS

How Mrs. Bruce, a Noted Opera Singer, Escaped an Operation. Proof That Many Operations for Ovarian Troubles are Unnecessary.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Travelling for years on the road, with irregular meals and sleep and damp beds, broke down my health so completely two years ago that the physician advised a complete rest, and when I had gained sufficient vitality, an operation for ovarian troubles. Not a very cheerful prospect, to be sure. I, however, was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash; I did so, fortunately for me. Before a month had passed I felt that my general health had improved; in three months more I was cured, and I have been in perfect health since. I did not lose an engagement or miss a meal.

"Your Vegetable Compound is certainly wonderful, and well worthy the praise your admiring friends who have been cured are ready to give you. I always speak highly of it, and you will admit I have good reason to do so."—MRS. G. BRUCE, Lansing, Mich.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ASK FOR A DAY.

In Which to Consider Minnesota Affairs.

Representatives Eddy and Morris have decided to ask for a day for the consideration of Minnesota affairs in congress. The two bills of most importance are the Morris bill and the Red Lake treaty bill, both of which have been favorably reported and are now on the calender. Minnesotans believe the session will last until the first of July at least and are hopeful the bills will be passed.

To Stock Up.

J. D. Abbott, manager of the Whitcomb ranch in the town of Rollis, was in the city the first of the week. He states that the Whitcombs will purchase a large number of sheep and cattle and place upon their ranch up there this fall. They already have considerable stock and will continue to increase their holdings.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

A Hot Contest.

Testimony in a hotley contested land case was taken before Commissioner Bakke several days last week. The land is located in the town of Excel, and Peter N. Peterson was the contestant and Oscar Hanson the contestee. There were a large number of witnesses examined.

Quite Successful.

Rev. Dade returned last week from St. Paul, where he had been to solicit funds for the purpose of building a Presbyterian church in this city. He succeeded in securing $402 with a promise of $300 more. The society now has nearly $2000 and it is the intention to commence building at an early date. The church will be located upon lots just south of F. H. Kratka's residence.

Recovered It.

A Wright was down to Crookston the first of the week for the purpose of recovering some machinery belonging to his brother which had been stowed in the old North Spring mill until that building was recently torn down, and was sold by M. K. Wall to a man by the name of Hanson, who was attempting to get it into Canada. Mr. Wright succeeded in stopping the property in Crookston, and will sue for damages. An engine belonging to Olaf B. Hansen, was also recovered by Mr. Wright.

A Blessing.

The Warren Sheaf is of the opinion that the excessive moisture this spring, instead of being a detriment, may be a blessing in disguise to the farmers in this part of the Red River Valley. It forces upon us a different system of farming than exclusive wheat raising, upon which we have depended entirely too much in the past. The farmer who practices diversified farming has no reason to be alarmed, as the abundant moisture will make a large crop of grass, and there is plenty of time for planting oats, barley, corn and other fodder crops.

Novel and Effective.

In nearly all cities property owned by non-residents and held for rental is the property that is neglected and has a dilapidated and untidy appearance. Rubbish will be found about the back yard and in the alley and there seems to be no one responsible for this state of affairs. Dr. Hall of Minneapolis hit upon a novel and affective remedy for such cases. He placards the premises with a health officers notice that the premises are in an unsanitary condition and unfit for occupancy. This of course, prevents the renting of the property and compels the landlord or his agent to clean up. The idea is a good one and should be carried into effect in many smaller places to the great advantage of the whole community.—Crookston Times.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin.

To Organize.

About twenty men met at the Odd Fellows hall Sunday evening and by their presence signified their willingness to join a court of the Catholic Order of Foresters, which will be organized here in the near future. A large number have since signified their intention of joining this order.

Soldiers Return.

Last Saturday was a holiday in Red Lake Falls, the occasion being the return of Victor E. Patnaude, Simon Paul and William Beautrow from three years service in the army of the Philippines. A large gathering met them at the train and they were escorted to the city hall by the band where speeches were made by Mayor Watson and others.

Increases Capacity

The following will be of local interest as it refers to an institution that came near locating here:

Fosston, Minn., May 12.—The woolen mill of this place has suspended operations for a few weeks while making extensive improvements in machinery and buildings. The institution has passed through the experimental stage and is doing a paying business. A large, commodious warehouse is being built on ground adjacent to the plant. Additional looms, carding machines and spinners are being put in and when the work is completed the capacity of the mill will be almost doubled.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that bids will be received for the erection of a high school building by the school board of Ind. School District No. 18, Red Lake county Minn. Plans and specifications prepared by Chas. A. Aldrich, of Minneapolis, can be had by applying to E. E. Zeh. Bids to be sealed, accompanied by a certified check for $200 payable to Independent School Dist. No. 18, and to be opened at 2 p. m. May 22, 1902. Successful bidder must be prepared to furnish bonds. The school board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

The Wells elevator, situated on Buffalo river, at Buffalo, was destroyed by fire at midnight. A large quantity of grain had been placed in the elevator during the past week, and the loss on the building and contents is estimated at $225,000.

Edward Shiego, son of a New York millionaire; Howard Bennett, son of Representative J. H. Bennett of Saugus, Mass., and Howard Marden, fellow students at the Lowell technical school, were fined $300 each for desecrating the South Nashua (N. H.) cemetery. They tipped over twenty-one grave stones and one old monument, besides carrying off several of the stones.

SENTENCED TO MARRY.

Dire Punishment Inflicted on a Girl Who Stole.

Chicago, May 11.—Vera Burns, twenty-one years old, yesterday was sentenced indeterminately to matrimony by Judge Smith. The woman's crime was larceny. She had been indicted for stealing dresses and jewelry. When her case was called in Judge Smith's court a few days ago she pleaded guilty and threw herself on the mercy of the court. Yesterday she was up for sentence. Ralph Van Etten, her lover, twenty-three years old, told the judge that if he would allow his sweetheart to go free he would marry her and try to look after her future moral welfare, as well as her physical comfort. The judge approved the scheme. Van Etten hurried away for a marriage license. When he returned Judge Smith married the couple in chambers.

"Matrimony is a severe penalty for simple larceny," said the judge.

"It is better than the Bridewell," answered the bride, with the air of one who had weighed the matter nicely.

The new Mrs. Van Etten made a fifteen minutes' honeymoon trip to the county jail, where she had been in lodging for three days, picked up her things and bade the turnkeys good-bye.

EMBALMED MEAT SOLD.

Grave Complaint Made Against Chicago Meat Dealers.

Chicago, May 11. — The gravest offense yet charged against the Chicago meat dealers was made public yesterday morning. From several reliable retail dealers it was learned that embalmed meats and poultry are being sold in Chicago. The artificially preserved beef and fowl are not eaten by the poorer classes, but by the wealthy patrons of restaurants and high-class hotels. The process is so perfect that no taint is left on the meat, and it looks as fresh as the new cuts. It was learned positively that an independent company has been trying to get retailers to make contracts to sell products treated by this embalming method. The retailers spoken to were suspicious and feared the loss of their trade if the facts became known. All refused to handle the stuff.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

Mrs. Perry of Waverly Has Passed the Century Point.

Waverly, Iowa, May 11.—Mrs. Locky Perry of this place, is celebrating her 100th birthday. Relatives and friends are at the home of her son, E. N. Perry, with whom she resides. Mrs. Perry was born in Georgia, Vt., in 1802, and was one of a family of twelve children, of whom she is the last survivor. She was married Nov. 22, 1823, and enjoyed a married life of fifty years, her husband having died in 1873 at the age of seventy-four years. Mrs. Perry came to Iowa in 1858. She has been the mother of nine children, two of whom survive, E. N. Perry of this place, aged seventy-two years, and Sophia Moulton of South Dakota, who is past sixty. Her grandfather was killed in the revolutionary war.

FUNERAL OF SAMPSON.

Pageant Rarely Equaled in the History of Washington.

Washington, May 11.—The funeral of Admiral Sampson yesterday was a pageant rarely equaled in the history of military obsequies, only too frequent in this city. The president and cabinet in person paid their last tribute to the memory of the dead commander, postponing for this purpose the hour of their regular Friday conference. The army was officially represented by Lieut. Gen. Miles and staff, Adjt. Gen. Corbin, Maj. Gen. Young and the heads of the various departments and bureaus. A special committee appointed by the senate and house also was in attendance. The entire body of naval cadets came over from Annapolis.

LOVE LAUGHS AT PAPAS.

Girl Bride Joins Her Husband, From Whom She Was Taken.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 11.—Another chapter has just been enacted in the Oakes-Erickson romance. Oakes eloped with Miss Erickson, a girl of fifteen, and they were married at Wahpeton. On their return Mr. Erickson promptly took the bride home and had the groom arrested for abduction. Erickson's family went West this week, and while waiting at the station the youthful bride said she would step into a store and buy some candy. She had no sooner reached the street than her husband, who is out on bail, drove up with a team and she entered the rig and drove away. The family went on without her.

TOO MUCH STENOGRAPHER.

Wife Becomes Nervous and Seeks a Divorce.

Miller, S. D., May 11.—Judge Gaffey, in the Pusey divorce case yesterday morning, granted the plaintiff $50 a month and attorney's fees and gave her the home in town and the care of four children, Mr. Pusey to have the other two. This is temporary. The regular divorce trial is set for next September. Mr. Pusey is prohibited from entering the home except to occasionally visit the children. The proof of adultery was not taken up this time. Pusey attempted to show his wife mentally and physically unsound, while she was ready to prove her nervous condition was caused by his taking his stenographer to live in his home.

Wanted in St. Paul.

Kansas City, May 11.—Al Beard, with many aliases, wanted in St. Paul on a charge of robbery and for whose capture the Minnesota officials offered a reward of $1,500, was arrested here yesterday. POMPEII'S AWFUL DOOM

FORTY THOUSAND LIVES LOST BY CATASTROPHE IN MARTINIQUE.

UNDER VOLCANO'S FIERY FLOOD

RAIN OF FIRE AND ASHES COMPLETELY WIPES OUT CITY OF ST. PIERRE.

GLIMPSES OF HELL ON EARTH

UNITED STATES CONSUL AND FAMILY REPORTED AMONG THE VICTIMS.

San Juan, P. R., May 11.—The cable officials here have received advices from Dominica that a schooner which has arrived there from the Island of Martinique reports that over 40,000 people are supposed to have perished during the volcanic disturbance in Martinique. The cable repair steamer Grappler, belonging to the West India & Panama Telegraph Company of London, was lost with all hands during the eruption of Mount Pelee at St. Pierre, Martinique. The Grappler was one of the first ships to disappear.

Forty Thousand Lives Lost.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 11.—It is now estimated that 40,000 persons perished as a result of the volcanic eruption in the Island of Martinique. The British schooner Ocean Traveler of St. John, N. B., arrived at the Island of Dominica, B. W. I., at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She was obliged to flee from the Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., during the afternoon of Wednesday, May 7, in consequence of a heavy fall of sand from a volcano which Was Erupting There.

She tried to reach the Island of St. Lucia, B. W. I., but adverse currents prevented her from so doing. The schooner arrived opposite St. Pierre, Martinique, Thursday morning. While about a mile off the volcano (Mount Pelee) exploded and fire from it swept the whole town of St. Pierre, destroying the town and the shipping there, including the cable repair ship Grappler, which was engaged in repairing the cable near the Guerin factory. The Ocean Traveler while on her way to Dominica encountered a quantity of wreckage.

Only Twenty Escaped.

Washington, May 11.—The following cablegram has just been received at the state department, dated Pointe-a-Pitre:

"At 7 o'clock a. m. on the 8th inst. a storm of steam, mud and fire enveloped the city and community. Not more than twenty persons escaped with their lives. Eighteen vessels were burned and sunk with all on board, including four American vessels and a steamer from Quebec named Roraima. The United States consul and family are reported among the victims. A war vessel has come to Guadeloupe for provisions and will leave at 5 to-morrow.

—"Ayme, Consul."

The state department has been receiving dispatches from commercial houses in New York asking that a warship be sent at once to Martinique to afford relief. The matter is under consideration.

St. Pierre Completely Wiped Out.

London, May 11.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Pointe-a-Pitre, Island of Guadaloupe, F. W. I., dated yesterday, says:

"The Montpelee (St. Pierre) crater ejected yesterday morning molten rocks and ashes during three minutes and completely destroyed St. Pierre and the districts within a radius of four miles. All the inhabitants were burned. About eight passengers from the Roraima, of the Quebec Steamship line, were saved by the French cruiser Suchet. The inhabitants of the southern district of the island who were dependent upon St. Pierre for provisions are menaced by famine."

Glimpses of Hell.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Jamaica says:

"The first intimation of a disaster (at Martinique) was the breaking of the cables on Tuesday. The French cable to Martinique from Puerto Plata, was broken Wednesday. Cable communication with all the northern islands is stopped. The survivors of the British steamer Roddan, describe the scene at St. Pierre as being 'glimpses of hell,' beggaring description. The Roddam's men were chiefly killed by molten lava. The Roraima was wrecked in a terrible upheaval of land and sea. The whole crew perished. Two ships were lost with all on board in an attempt to approach Martinique."

PRELATE LAID TO REST.

Archbishop Corrigan's Funeral Conducted With Impressive Solemnity.

New York, May 11.—The body of the Most Rev. Michael Augustine Corrigan, D. D., archbishop of New York, was interred yesterday in the crypt of St. Patrick's cathedral. The funeral was conducted with all the impressive solemnity and ceremony of his church and attended by a remarkable gathering of clergy. Cardinal Gibbons, eight archbishops, eighteen bishops and more than one thousand priests were in attendance. Pontifical high mass was celebrated by Cardinal Gibbons. Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia delivered the eulogy.

ENTERTAINING CASTRO.

Venezuelan President Dines at the United States Legation.

New York, May 11.—President Castro of Venezuela and his wife have been entertained at dinner, says a Caracas dispatch to the Herald, by United States Minister Herbert W. Bowen and Mrs. Bowen. It was the first time that President Castro had dined at any legation. The event is significant and the consequences it is believed may be very important.

CONGRESS.

Dolliver and Carmack Indulge in a Tilt Over the Philippine Bill.

Washington, May 9.—Discussion of the Philippine bill in the senate yesterday, while it scarcely abated in bitterness, took on an amusing phase. In a breezy speech Mr. Dolliver of Iowa made such a good natured, and yet such a sarcastic arraignment of Mr. Carmack of Tennessee that senators and occupants of the thronged galleries were convulsed with laughter.

Mr. Burton of Kansas concluded the speech which he began Wednesday. He referred, as instances of atrocious cruelty, to the battle of Wounded Knee, to the Mountain Meadow massacre and to the massacre of Union soldiers at Fort Pillow, and contended that the action of the American troops in the Philippines was, on most instances, entirely within the regulations of civilized warfare.

Mr. Carmack delivered a scathing denunciation of the conduct of military operations in the Philippines and denounced Gen. Smith, branding him as a "scoundrel" and "murderer," who had dishonored the American army and had done nothing but butcher a whole people.

In a sarcastic response Mr. Dolliver of Iowa scorchingly arraigned Mr. Carmack, incidentally reading an editorial from the Memphis Commercial-Appeal criticising the Tennessee senator's attitude on the Philippine question. Mr. Carmack's reply was of such a nature as to cause him to be called to order by a statement reflecting upon Mr. Dolliver, but the incident ended in good feeling.

In the House.

The bill to place three new stars in the American flag had the right of way again yesterday in the House. General debate, the feature of which was an extended speech by Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio in opposition to the measure, was closed at 3 o'clock and the bill was then read for amendment under the five-minute rule. The only amendment adopted was one providing that nothing in the act should be construed to legalize polygamy. During the day a resolution expressive of regret of the house over the death of Rear Admiral Sampson was adopted and a committee of seven members was appointed to attend his funeral.

GUNS SILENT IN MINDANAO.

Gen. Davis Reports Conditions Are Unchanged.

Washington, May 10.—The following advice relative to the situation in Mindanao has been received at the war office from Gen. Chaffee, under date of Manila, May 8:

"Following from Brig. Gen. George W. Davis, May 6:

"'Situation to-day every way satisfactory. No hostile shot has been fired since escape of prisoners from guard. Would be exceedingly easy for Moros to climb bluff and cut our telegraph traversing shore of lake four or five miles—not molested.

"'At 2 o'clock to-day Rinini Tampanga of Turburan and delegation presented themselves. Sultan Genassi says Datto Paygoag was killed Bayan fort, and his people dead or dispersed. Will investigate, but doubt whole report.

"'Number of prisoners escaped, probably not exceeding twenty-five. Ten have been recapture and are uninjured. For miles about the country is much the same in its natural aspect as Camp Meade, Pa. Enormous agricultural facilities. All wounded doing well. Lieut. Jossman seriously hurt; bullet penetrated lung, ranged downward and lodged in body. Chief Surgeon says one or two forwarded without hopes of recovery.

"'May 7—Leave in morning for Malabang, to meet Gen. Chaffee. Expected morning of tenth. No change in situation. Wounded doing well. Datto from lower Bayan fort presented himself, saying his people want peace, promising to bring cattle, other supplies.'

—"Chaffee."

WAR ON SKEETERS.

New York Health Officer Will Get After the Pests.

New York, May 10.—Dr. A. H. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, who made such a vigorous crusade last summer against the mosquito on Staten island, is preparing for another campaign during the coming summer months. He said yesterday that instead of using the oil tank and hose on the various ponds and pools of the island, as was done last season, he proposed carrying on experiments at the quarantine laboratory. "Various agents will be investigated," he added, "with the ideat of ascertaining what power they have in the destruction of the larvae, etc. This will call for the propagation of the mosquito in the laboratory and the careful study of the insect."

HIS SMALLPOX VOTES.

Indiana Doctor Is Accused of Taking Patients to the Polls to Vote.

Vincennes, Ind., May 10.—Dr. James H. McCoy, a prominent young physician, Republican politician and adjutant of the Third battalion, Indiana National Guard, was arrested yesterday on the charge of breaking the quarantine law by taking three negroes afflicted with smallpox to the polls at Tuesday's election. He pleaded not guilty and was placed under a $100 bond to appear for trial in the Knox circuit court May 25. Last summer Dr. McCoy lost his suit against the city for large remuneration for taking care of a smallpox epidemic in the negro colony.

ARBITRATION PROPOSED.

Strike Situation Hangs on Answers From Employers.

Scranton, Pa., May 10.—The situation in the threatened miners' strike hangs on answers that are expected to come to a proposal of arbitration emanating from yesterday morning's session of the miners' committee. This proposal was evidently agreed upon informally during the night, for it was only forty-five minutes from the time the meeting convened until adjournment was had.

Red Lake Treaty.

Washington, May 10. — The house committee on Indian affairs has ordered a favorable report on the Red Lake treaty bill. No amendments were suggested and the bill will go on the house calendar just as it passed the senate.

Mail Was Destroyed.

Washington, May 10.—The report to the postoffice departments shows that in the railroad wreck near Flagstaff, Ariz., on the Santa Fe road, the entire mail carried in the wrecked train was destroyed.

THREE NEW STARS

WILL BE ADDED TO THE GALAXY OF STATES BY THE HOUSE BILL.

ALL OPPOSITION COLLAPSES

HOUSE PASSES BILL ADMITTING OKLAHOMA, NEW MEXICO AND ARIZONA.

TELLER TAKES TIME OF SENATE

DELIVERS A SPEECH IN OPPOSITION TO THE PHILIPPINE BILL.

Washington, May 10.—The opposition in the house to the bill for the admission of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico collapsed at the last minute yesterday and the bill was passed without a division as it came from the committee except for a few verbal amendments. The real test came on the amendment offered by Mr. Overstreet of Indiana to join New Mexico and Arizona and admit them as the State of Montezuma. It was beaten, 28 to 106, and all opposition then ceased. The closing scenes of the debate were accompanied by a dramatic incident which narrowly escaped being a tragedy. Delegate Mark A. Smith of Arizona, who has been fighting for the admission of his territory for a dozen years, had just made a vigorous speech against the Overstreet amendment when he was seized with a rush of blood to the head. He was conveyed to the lobby where several physicians who are members of the house, by the prompt administration of powerful heart stimulants saved him from a stroke of apoplexy. He later rallied and was removed to his hotel.

The bill as passed provides enabling acts for Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico similar in form to former enabling acts, with the exception that the constitutional convention of New Mexico is empowered to designate the name by which the new state shall enter the Union, and in the case of Oklahoma the convention by irrevocable ordinance shall express the consent of that state that congress at any future time may attach all or any part of Indian Territory to it. The enabling acts differ from each other chiefly in reference to the public lands appropriated for educational and public purposes.

In the Senate.

An effort was made in the senate to fix a time for a vote on the pending Philippine bill, but it was unsuccessful. Yesterday's debate on the Philippine bill was mild. Mr. Teller of Colorado occupied considerable time in opposition to the measure. He contended principally that the Filipinos were capable of self-government and of establishing a government quite equal to some European governments.

Some debate occurred over the resolution to discharge the committee on privileges and elections from further consideration of the proposed constitutional amendment providing for the election of senators by the people. Finally the resolution was withdrawn, assurance being given that a report from the committee soon would be made.

WATER CURE FOR CO-EDS.

Football Tactics in Basketball Play Lay Girls Low.

Chicago, May 11.—University of Chicago co-eds practiced football tactics in their contest for basketball prestige on their new athletic field yesterday, and the result was that one girl was carried from the game and two others had to be revived with water before they could continue. The injured:

Bickell, Miss Charlotte, junior, felled in a scrimmage, trampled on and found helpless, revived with water, but taken to her dormitory room.

Goldstein, Miss Margaret, junior; laid low by rough play, revived by cold water treatment.

Moore, Miss Grace, felled in a fierce rush near goal; revived by cold water treatment.

WAR ON BEEF TRUST.

Court Proceedings in Missouri to Be Begun To-day.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 11.—Attorney General E. C. Crow announces that he will file his petition before the supreme court for proceedings against the beef trust, which he believes is operating in Missouri to control the prices of meats. He believes the testimony at the hearing before the supreme court Tuesday and Wednesday developed ample evidence to oust or fine the packing companies severely for violating the anti-trust law of this state. The attorney general says he believes he will be able to destroy the combine.

Struck by Lightning.

Langdon, Minn., May 11.—News has been received here from Hoster, Minn., that during the recent severe storm at that place lightning struck the fine new residence of William E. Kemp, nearly demolishing it. Mr. Kemp and daughter were stunned for some time by the shock. Mr. Kemp is a former resident of this place, a son of Mrs. James O. Kemp. His residence was built last season at a cost of $5,000.

Evans Is Confirmed.

Washington, May 11. — The senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of H. Clay Evans to be consul general at London.

ORIGIN OF THE RAILWAY MERGER

WHY SECURITIES COMPANY WAS ORGANIZED

Answer Filed in U. S. Circuit Court Gives Purpose for Which Company Was Formed and What It Was Expected to Accomplish—The Answer.

St. Paul—Answers have been filed in the United States circuit court by the defendants in the suit brought by the attorney general of the United States against the Northern Securities company, the Great Northern Railway company, the Northern Pacific Railway company and others. Each of the three defendant companies filed its separate answer. The answers are substantially the same in each case, except in so far as they are varied to meet the technical differences in the names and organizations of the various companies.

The answer of the Northern Securities is unique and of special interest because the attorneys for that company, Messrs. John W. Griggs and George B. Young, have included, in addition to the technical and legal reply to the plaintiff's petition, a concise statement of the defendant's case. They explain the origin of the so-called merger and the business policy and purposes which prompted the organization of a holding company. The explanation is the more interesting part of the answer and is herewith presented first and out of its regular order with the technical portions following:

Company's Explanation.

Answering the petition, this defendant upon information and belief, says that the facts as to the purchase of the shares of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company (hereinafter called the Burlington company) and the planning and formation of this defendant, and the motives, intentions and purposes of the persons and corporations concerned in these enterprises, or either of them, were not as erroneously stated in said petition, but were, and are, as follows:

When projecting the line of the Great Northern to the Pacific coast, that company and its directors contemplated the necessity of creating for the line not merely state and interstate, but an international commerce. Nearly all the country traversed or reached by this line was then but sparsely settled or not settled at all. It was principally agricultural, grazing or timber land, with mineral deposits in the mountain ranges believed to be large and valuable, but not developed or explored. Whatever commodities the region might furnish for carriage would be raw material, of great weight and bulk in proportion to its value, which would not bear transportation to market except at a low mileage rate such as could be made possible only by every practicable reduction in the cost of transportation. The available market for all such products was far from the places of production.

In Washington and Oregon are the largest and finest bodies of standing timber in the United States, the best market for which is in the prairie states of the Mississippi valley east of the Rocky mountains; but the lumber and shingles from the Pacific coast would not bear the cost of transportation to those states if the cars carrying them had to be hauled back empty, or nearly so, for a distance of from one thousand five hundred to two thousand miles. And the same is true of the other products. On the other hand, the unoccupied or sparsely settled country along the line, or reached by it, could not furnish a market for commodities enough to load the returning cars; the result being that unless the company could secure traffic for carriage beyond the Pacific coast no great traffic either way could exist or be created.

Asiatic Trade.

To meet these conditions the Great Northern company not only went to great additional expense in the construction of its line to obtain gradients lower than those of any other line to the Pacific coast, but also made great efforts to create and increase in the countries of Eastern Asia a demand for the products of this country; and soon after the completion of its railway in 1893 it induced a Japanese company to run a line of steamships, connecting with its railway, on the route between Seattle and the ports of Japan, China and Russian Siberia, and succeeded in creating and has since been actively engaged in building up a commerce in which the flour manufactured along its line, cotton (both raw and manufactured), iron and steel (especially steel rails and plates), machinery, and such other manufactures of this country as a market could be found or made for in Eastern Asia, have been carried to Oriental ports, and return cargoes of such Oriental products as are consumed in this country have been brought back. A large west-bound, as well as an increased east-bound, traffic has thus been secured by the company, enabling it to make such rates on lumber and other products of the country, served by it as permit them to be shipped to Eastern markets with a profit to the shippers.

One year before the Burlington purchase, this Oriental traffic had reached such proportions that the Great Northern company caused to be begun the construction of steamships to be run from Seattle to ports in Japan, China and the Philippines, which, from their great carrying capacity (being the largest in the world), will be able to carry at very low rates (if full cargoes can be secured), and thus enable the company to move the largest volume of west-bound traffic (and also of east-bound traffic) at the lowest rates.

In the interstate and international commerce which the Great Northern company has thus built up, it competes both in this country and on the ocean with the other transcontinental lines (including the Canadian Pacific) and at the Oriental ports it competes for commerce of the world. Its rates are and must be made in competition with the rates of ocean carriers and by way of the Suez canal.

The policy thus followed by the Great Northern company in building up an international, and thereby interstate, commerce has been followed by the Northern Pacific company since its reorganization in 1896.

Placed at a Disadvantage.

In creating and maintaining this competitive interstate and international commerce both the Great Northern company and the Northern Pacific company were hampered and placed at a disadvantage with the other transcontinental railways, as well as with European competitors, by the want of sufficient direct connection with the territory offering the best markets for the products of the country along their lines, and with the places of production and great centers of distribution from which their traffic must be supplied. For many months before the purchase of the Burlington shares, they had considered the best means of getting closer to such markets and sources of supply. The lines of the Burlington, better than those of any other company, fulfilled the requirements of both the Great Northern company and the Northern Pacific company in respect of markets for eastbound and freight for westbound traffic. The Burlington lines traverse the treeless states of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas and Colorado, which afford the best markets for the lumber of the Pacific coast. They reach Denver, Kansas City, Omaha and Aurora, where are located the principal smelters of silver-lead ores, such as are mined near the lines of the defendant railway companies.

They reach Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago, where are the great packing houses and the great markets for the cattle and sheep of the ranges of North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

They reach St. Louis and Kansas City, connecting them with lines traversing the cotton states, from which come raw and manufactured cotton required for shipment to China and Japan.

At Chicago and St. Louis they connect with the lines which reach the points of supply of manufactured iron, steel, machinery and other manufactured articles that find a market in Japan and China.

Reaches Coal Supply.

The Burlington line southward from Minneapolis and St. Paul along the Mississippi river reaches the great coal deposits of Southern Illinois, the largest west of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and its light gradients and consequent low cost of transportation make it possible to supply such coal to points on the lines of each defendant railway company east of the Missouri river, relieving the people and the railways of that territory from entire dependence upon the Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines, the supply from which is yearly becoming more costly and less certain.

The price paid for said Burlington stock was lower per mile of main track covered by the stock than that for which the stock of any other large and well established system, in the same general territory, could then have been bought.

The purchase of the Burlington stock by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies in equal parts served each company as well as if it were the sole owner of such stock, while such purchase might have been beyond the financial means of either company by itself.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies therefore each purchased an equal number of shares of the Burlington stock as the best means and for the sole purpose of reaching the best markets for the products of the territory along their lines, and of securing connections which would furnish the largest amount of traffic for their respective roads, increase the trade and interchange of commodities between the regions traversed by the Burlington line and their connections and the regions traversed or reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines, and by their connecting lines of shipping on the Pacific coast. These connections and such interchange of traffic were deemed to be, and are, indespensable to the maintenance of their business, local as well as interstate, and to the development of the country served by their respective lines, and of like advantage to the Burlington lines and the country served by them, and strengthen each company in the competition with the more southerly lines to the Pacific coast, with the Canadian Pacific railway and with European carriers, for the trade and commerce of the Orient.

In such purchase there was no purpose to lessen any competition of the Burlington lines with those of either of the purchasers, for they are not competitive, or to lessen any competition between the purchasers. Such purchase was not intended to have, and it cannot have, any such effect.

The purchase of the Burlington stock was not made in view of the formation of this defendant, but solely from the motives and with the purposes already stated.

Origin of Holding Company.

The project of forming a holding company of any kind was not the result, in any way, of the failure of the plan which was defeated by the decision of the supreme court in the Pearsall case. There was no connection whatever between the two.

The project of a holding company which finally developed into the formation of this defendant had its inception years before that date, among several gentlemen, not exceeding ten in number, who had been large shareholders in the Great Northern company and its predecessor, the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway company; some of them from the original company in 1879, and others from dates not long after that time. They have never held a majority of the stock of the Great Northern company, but have taken an active interest in its policy and administration; have aided it when necessary in financing its operations; have acted together in promoting its interests; have, with some exceptions, served from time to time as directors and officers (Mr. Hill having been president of the successive companies since 1882); and by reason of their active interest in the company and services to it, have influenced, to a large degree, its policy and management. As far back as 1893, most of these gentlemen being well advanced, and some far advanced, in years, they began to discuss together what would be the effect upon the policy, which under their influence the company had pursued with great benefit to its shareholders and the public, should their holdings by death or otherwise become scattered, and by what means their holdings could be kept together, so as to secure the continuance of such policy in the management of the company. It was considered that if a company should be formed to which they might transfer their individual holdings, their shares were likely to be held together, so long as the majority in the holding company should so wish, and this would tend to give stability to the policy of the Great Northern company, be of aid to it in financial operations, and maintain the value of their investments. These conclusions were the result of various consultations among the persons mentioned, or some of them, but no definite agreement was made for forming such a company or binding any one to transfer his shares to it if formed.

From time to time, beginning with the reorganization of the Northern Pacific company in 1896, Mr. Hill and said other Great Northern shareholders who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, had made large purchases of Great Northern shares, individually, each for himself without any concerted action, and solely as investments. About May 1, 1901, their aggregate holdings of the common stock of the Northern Pacific company amounted to nearly twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) of the eighty million dollars ($80,000,000) common stock of the company, which also had a preferred stock, amounting to seventy-five million dollars ($75,000,000), with the same voting power as the common stock. At this time the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. held about six million ($6,000,000) of the common stock. In the fall of 1900, Mr. Hill and said Great Northern shareholders discussed the question of putting their holdings of Northern Pacific stock into the proposed holding company, as well as the suggestion that all the other stockholders of the Great Northern company should be given the opportunity of selling and transferring their shares to the holding company, and that its capital stock should be made large enough to enable it to buy such holdings, though it was not known that the holders of any considerable amount of Great Northern stock, other than those above named, would desire to make such transfer.

No Alliance Intended.

At the time of the purchase of the Burlington shares, it was not contemplated by either purchasing company, or its shareholders, that any alliance between the purchasing companies, or among their shareholders was needed to preserve to each company its fair share of the advantages secured by the purchase. It was thought that the manifest interest of each company rendered any further guaranty or security needless. But pending or just after the conclusion of the negotiations for the Burlington stock, parties acting in the interest of the Union Pacific railway system, did purchase Northern Pacific shares, both common and preferred, to the amount of about seventy-eight million dollars ($78,000,000), being a clear majority of the entire stock of that company. The apparent intent of such purchase was to defeat and, if successful, it would have defeated, the carrying out of the purposes for which the Burlington shares had been bought by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, and the development of the interstate and international commerce of each of them, and would have subordinated the policy of each to an interest adverse to both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, and to the public served by their lines.

To protect the interests of the shareholders of the Northern Pacific company, J. P. Morgan & Co. made additional purchases of Northern Pacific common stock, which, with the holdings in said stock of Mr. Hill and other Great Northern shareholders, who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, constituted about forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000), being a majority of the common stock. In view of the injury apprehended to both companies, and to their shareholders, and the better to protect their interests in the future, the Great Northern shareholders holding Northern Pacific shares, deemed it advisable that the projected holding company should have power to purchase not only their own Great Northern and Northern Pacific shares, but also the shares of such other Great Northern and Northern Pacific shareholders as might wish to sell their stock to said holding company, and the shares of companies already formed, and others that might be formed for the purpose of aiding the traffic or operations of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies respectively. At this time it was not expected by any of the persons concerned that any Great Northern shares except the said forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000) would be acquired by the proposed holding company. The organization of such company was not dependent on any agreement that it should acquire a majority of the shares of either defendant railway company. It would have been organized if the Burlington purchase had not been made, and if its promoters had had no other shares to transfer to it than the thirty-four million dollars ($34,000,000) Great Northern stock and the twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) Northern Pacific stock, held by them on May 1, 1901. It was not known that all or how many of the shareholders of either of the railway companies would be likely to transfer their shares to this defendant when formed.

Northern Pacific Line.

After its organization this defendant bought and still holds about one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) of the stock of the Northern Pacific company; and it has also purchased and negotiated for the purchase of the stock of the Great Northern company, as hereinbefore stated. Neither the said persons who were concerned in the formation of this defendant, nor the said persons from whom it has acquired the stocks of said railway companies nor this defendant itself since its formation, nor its stockholders, directors or officers, have planned or intended that the stock of said railway companies acquired by this defendant, or any part thereof, should be held, used, or voted by it, or by its officers, agents or proxies, for the purposes of combining, consolidating or placing under one common management or control, the railways of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, or the business thereof, or for the purpose of monopolizing or restraining competition between the said railway companies; or for any other purpose than the election by each of said railway companies of a competent and distinct board of directors, able and intending to manage each of them independently of the other, and for the benefit of their shareholders and of the public. By the acts of the legislature of the State of Minnesota incorporating the Great Northern Railway company, and by the acts of the legislature of the State of Wisconsin incorporating the Northern Pacific Railway company, it is, in substance, provided that the business and affairs of each railway company shall be managed by a board of directors, to be elected by the stockholders, and that all the powers of each corporation relating to said matters shall be vested in such board.

Every share of stock issued by this defendant has been issued to the persons and corporations receiving the same in good faith, for full value paid to it, either in cash or its equivalent, and in accordance with the provisions of its articles of incorporation, and with the laws of the State of New Jersey. No agreement, promise, or understanding has been made between this defendant and any of its stockholders or between its stockholders themselves or any of them, or between said stockholders or any other persons or corporations, that the stock of this defendant should be held, used or voted other than by each stockholder, separately and individually, and in such way as he should see fit; and there has been no agreement, promise or understanding between said stockholders and any other person or corporation, that they or any of them should use, hold or vote their stock in this defendant in association or for any common purpose or object. The owners and holders of stock of this defendant are more than thirteen hundred (1,300) in number, and the ownership of the stock is being changed, from day to day, by sales and transfers, in the usual course of dealing. The said persons who formed or were otherwise concerned in the formation of this defendant have never, all together, held, owned or otherwise controlled an amount of stock of the said company equal to so much as one-third of the whole amount thereof now outstanding. This defendant has no contract or obligation to purchase or acquire any shares whatever in either railway company, in addition to those which it has purchased or negotiated to purchase, as above stated. Its authorized capital was fixed by persons who planned its organization to enable it to give to each stockholder in each of the defendant railway companies an opportunity to sell his stock to it, should he see fit to do so, and should this defendant desire to acquire it. The sum fixed was deemed ample by those who planned the formation of this defendant to furnish the means to pay for all such shares as would likely be acquired by it, and to leave remaining a large amount to be used for the purchase of stock in other corporations, not common carriers, which this defendant might consider beneficial to acquire. This defendant was not formed as a scheme or device to evade the act of congress known as the "anti-trust act," or any other law whatever, but solely for the purposes hereinbefore stated.

Not Restrain Competition.

This defendant was not formed, nor did any of those concerned in its formation, nor any of those who sold their shares of stock to it, have any purpose or intention to restrain trade or commerce, or to lessen competition between said railway companies, or to monopolize traffic in any manner whatever; nor can any such results follow from the formation or operation of this defendant. In point of fact, since the organization of this defendant, rates on the defendant railway companies' lines, including rates to and from points common to both, have voluntarily been so reduced as to decrease their earnings by upwards of a million dollars annually. For all interstate commerce on the lines of either the defendant railway companies, except traffic beginning and ending on their own lines, respectively, the rates are fixed by joint tariffs with connecting lines. In respect to all such traffic neither of the defendant companies has ever had, or can have, any independent, rate-making power or control of traffic or rates. All joint tariffs with other companies to or from points common to the lines of the defendant railway companies have always been, and necessarily must be, the same, whether the traffic is carried by one or the other of said companies. The total amount of all other interstate traffic, that is, traffic between common points on the two roads, which is not competitive both as to rates and equally of service with other carriers having equal rate-making power with them, is less than 2 per cent of the total interstate traffic of the two companies.

The sale and transfer of property whether in the form of shares of corporate stock or otherwise, has never been adjudged to be, and is not, in violation of the act of congress of July 2, 1890, known as the "anti-trust act."

This defendant is not a railroad company, and it has no power to operate or manage railways, or make or control rates of transportation, nor to monopolize or restrain traffic of any kind. So far from intending to violate any provision of said act of congress, the persons who were concerned in organizing this defendant, and those who have sold their shares to it, had every reason to believe and did believe, that such sales were not in any way in contravention of that act. In common with the general public, they were aware that during the eleven years since the passing of that act, in many instances, the stock of a competing railway company has been acquired by its competitor or the shareholders thereof; without objection from any branch of principal railways doing business throughout the country. This has been done without objection from any branch of the government of the United States, and has invariably proven beneficial to the railway companies concerned and to the public; and those making sales of stock to this defendant had no reason to believe that such sales were open to any legal objection or question whatever.

Not to Control Rates.

This defendant was not organized for the purpose of acquiring a majority of the stock of either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific company, but merely to purchase the stock of those who wished to sell, as above stated; and was not organized for the purpose of controlling railway rates in the slightest degree, and has not had and cannot have any such effect. The transactions referred to in the petition have consisted in the organization of a lawful corporation, and the purchase of property by it. All acts done in relation to the organization of this defendant and in the conduct of its business have been expressly authorized by law, and have had no effect whatever to restrain trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations. If these lawful transactions should hereafter have any effect to restrain trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations (which is hereby denied), that effect would be merely indirect, remote, incidental and collateral, and not intended and as nothing compared with the great expansion of the volume of interstate and international commerce which was intended, and which this defendant believes is destined to result from the enterprise of the two railway companies, that culminated in the purchase of the Burlington stock.

And this defendant says:

1. The "anti-trust" act was not intended to prevent or defeat an enterprise, in aid of a great competitive interstate and international commerce, merely because such enterprise may carry with it the possibility of incidental restraint upon some commerce, trifling both as respects territory and volume.

2. Nor was the act intended to limit the power of the several states to create corporations, define their purposes, fix the amount of their capital, and determine who may buy, own and sell their stock.

3. Otherwise construed, the act would be unconstitutional, because:

The power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the states does not give congress the power to regulate any of the matters above mentioned in respect to corporations created by the states; and because

Persons may not be derived of their property without due process of law, by taking from them the right to sell it, as their interest may suggest.

There is a defect of necessary parties defendant, because, as already set forth, the persons who made sales of stock of the said railway companies to this defendant were numerous, exceeding more than 1,300 in number, and few of them had any connection whatever in the planning or forming of this defendant, and in their absence from this litigation no decree can be made affecting their rights in the premises.

And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith it is by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of this defendant; all of which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed, with its reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

The defendant, in answer to the purely technical portion of the plaintiff's petition, admits the formal facts set up concerning the organization of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies and the territory which those companies cover. The defendant admits its formation under the laws of the State of New Jersey, but denies the allegations of the petition concerning the purposes for which it was organized.

The Northern Securities company is represented by John W. Griggs and George B. Young, the Northern Pacific company by George B. Young, and the Great Northern company by M. D. Grover.

MISSOLONGHI

By WINGROVE BATHON.

[Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Publishing Company.]

You have seen the engraving of the monument created by David D'Angers to the memory of Marcos Botzaris, and you know whether or not the great sculptor was successful in his determination that he who fell at Missolonghi should have a monument worthy of his heroism and patriotism.

The story of that monument, a sad and pretty tale, is little known—too little known. We forget too easily. There is no longer a Botzaris; there is no longer a Mavrocordato. Missolonghi itself is remembered but as the place where Byron died, and even then only when one says "Missolonghi—1824." And that is a long time ago.

The day David D'Angers found the inspiration he sought for his monument to Botzaris, he was walking among the tombs of Pere-la-Chaise. He saw a young girl lying on a gravestone, at full length, tracing with a colored chalk the name "Marcos Botzaris" on the headstone of the tomb. She had just finished the last one of the letters on the otherwise blank shaft of marble.

"My child," David called to her, as he approached, "why do you write that name upon that tomb? That tomb has nothing to do with Botzaris."

"I know it, Monsieur," she replied. "I simply came here for a walk, and I was thinking of Marcos Botzaris. Besides, the monument has nothing to do with him because it is not half good enough for him, beautiful as it is in its simplicity."

"Why do you think it is not good enough for him?" the sculptor asked.

"He was a Greek, Monsieur!" she said, simply.

She wept. David took note of her. She was about fourteen, just budding into womanhood, with the travail of the transition expressed in her every feature, every limb.

Here, he said to himself, was not only the subject for his composition, but the model for his art as well. His statue took shape in his mind. This girl, he thought to himself, would represent, copied in stone, to the most casual observer the struggle for freedom. She would bend for him over the tomb of Botzaris to drag the secret of that freedom from him and give to the world in effigied marble the story Botzaris fell too soon to finish. Dawning life, the reincarnation of liberty, would take up the work of the dead, in its ever continuing effort to fulfill its mission. It would be his masterpiece.

Questioning the girl, he learned—nothing. She had nothing to tell, she said. Her name? She would not give it. Her residence? She shook her head. She told him nothing beyond that she happened to be in Pere-la-Chaise for a walk.

David seated himself upon a nearby tomb and commenced to speak of his monument. He prefaced his remarks with the question:

"You are a Greek?"

"As Monsieur sees," she said, proudly raising her head.

At first she listened to him incredulously. When he spoke of her country's war for freedom, and his own ideal of independence, a fire kindled in her eyes, and she dried her tears, and listened, silently entranced, showing only by her heaving young breast and the flashing of her eyes, the emotion his words occasioned her.

At length he reached the point of his conversation. Would she pose for him?

"I, Monsieur! I" she exclaimed, in a paroxysm of eagerness and joy as she sprang to her feet.

"Yes," she said. He began to speak of paying her for the sittings she should give him, but she would not listen.

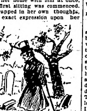
"I want no pay," she said. "It is for him!"

"Come,"—she continued. "Is the studio of Monsieur near? Let us start."

He was puzzled. He did not know what to make of her. But to David D'Angers the words "patriot" and "patriotism" meant something almost sacred. She had in her, he saw, something of the spirit of Missolonghi. It was better so. Better for his work, better for him, better for her.

"So be it," he said, at length. "Come."

He led her home with him at once, and the first sitting was commenced. Silent, wrapped in her own thoughts, with the exact expression upon her face that he desired, he had no need to tell her a word of what he wanted. By intuition she seemed to know, and by the intuition of his genius he worked.



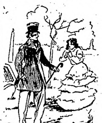
He was walking among the tombs of Pere-la-Chaise.

Day by day she returned at the appointed hour, but never a word did she vouchsafe as to herself or her antecedents, and David, engrossed with his composition, grew to think of her less and less, as his composition neared its completion and he grew to thinking of the statue more.

On the wall of his studio hung a very handsome bronze crucifix, on a velvet panel. He often found her watching it. It seemed to have a fascination for her, and one day, when the child was dressing, after two or three hours of hard work, when he had spoken to her again of payment for her sittings and she had again declined the money, she exclaimed, with a glance at the crucifix:

"If you insist upon paying me, M. David, you may give me that!"

The crucifix was worth considerably more than the price of her sittings at two francs fifty centimes an hour, the usual price, and D'Angers hesitated.



"I, Monsieur! I!" she exclaimed.

"What do you want with it?" he asked.

"I would place it in my room, M. David," she said, "and pray to Christ for Greece."

He took down the image and handed it to her, and she left that day, the last day of the sittings, staggering under its weight.

The statue was finished and sent to Greece, and the thought of his model passed from his mind. She was a little of a mystery to him, but Paris held many such mysteries, or what seemed to be mysteries, in those days, and models, to David D'Angers, were simply models.

That was the story of the Marcos Botzaris monument. David had been sufficiently young to be enthusiastic and, sufficiently presumptious to imagine he could do something which had never been done before. He had succeeded. With the aid of the spirit of Missolonghi, he had succeeded.

In after years, when he departed from France, exiled by Louis Napoleon, a wanderer on the face of the earth, the irresistible desire to behold once more his masterpiece finally drew him to Greece.

Long before the vessel anchored he caught a glimpse of the tumulus erected at the foot of the bastion in honor of Botzaris. It made a small, dark spot on the horizon, but above it was a speck, small and white, with another dark speck beside it. He knew the white speck was his statue of the young Greek girl, but it was not until he had landed that he knew what is now a matter of history—that his statue had been mutilated almost beyond repair.

As he reached the tomb, he wept like a child, for, lying across the marble figure was the unknown girl who had originated the masterpiece, and who, having journeyed to Missolonghi to behold the composition once more, and having found the right hand of the statue broken, the index finger of which pointed to the name, after trying to hide the cruel, vandal break with a bouquet of flowers, had died of a broken heart, and, with her still warm clay, for one brief hour was taking the place of the marble effigy she had inspired to the memory of Marcos Botzaris and his fall at Missolonghi.

WITNESSED BY "ME AND HEAVEN."

Humorous Incident at a Milwaukee Theatrical Performance.

Robert Edeson, the actor, tells this story of the stage: "I've seen and heard a good many funny things in the way of plays and play actors in my time, but the greatest thing I ever saw or heard was in Milwaukee. This was several months ago. It was in one of the museums there. The museum had a stock company in its theater, and its great specialty was border drama. Every week they gave a new drama of the wild and woolly west. This play that I saw was a blood-curdler of that character, and at the time I dropped in at the theater the stage was pitch dark, and two men were fighting a duel. I could hear the knives clash together, and hear the men stumble around the stage, but I could only faintly distinguish the forms of the actors. After a while there was a thump on the floor, and the villain (I knew it was the villain by his accent) hissed, 'Ah, ha! Rudolph Tegherington, I have you now, and no one nigh to see me do the deed!' Then the drummer hit the bass drum a belt and the calcium man turned on the light, and away up on a rocky pass a woman (the heroine) was seen standing. "Coward!" she shouted, 'me and heaven is here!'"

ISLAND NOW BURNING

NORTHERN PORTION OF MARTINIQUE NOTHING BUT A ROCKY WILDERNESS.

ST. PIERRE A HEAP OF RUINS

UNDER WHICH 30,000 VICTIMS OF CATASTROPHE ARE NOW BURIED.

FORT DE FRANCE IS THREATENED

DISASTER SURPASSES ALL THAT IMAGINATION CAN CONCEIVE.

London, May 13.—A dispatch to the Times from St. Thomas, D. W. I., says that St. Pierre was destroyed in the twinkling of an eye and that not forty of the inhabitants of the city escaped. Some of the outlying parishes of the Island of Martinique have been inundated. The whole northern portion of the island is burning; it has been denuded of vegetation and is a rocky wilderness. It is reported that Fort-de-France is threatened, concludes the correspondent, and there is frightful tension everywhere.

Worst Anticipations Realized.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 13.—A landing has at last been made at St. Pierre and the work of exploring the ruins of the annihilated city has begun. While it will be many days before the magnitude of the havoc wrought can be ascertained, enough is already revealed to indicate that the very worst anticipations are more than realized. It is estimated that there are 30,000 dead in the city. Those who have come back here from the city report that the streets and all the neighborhood around, what a few days ago was the largest and most prosperous city in Martinique, are now encumbered with heaps upon heaps of bodies in all directions. All the dead thus far seen their clothing apparently having been burned from their bodies like so much tinder, while they themselves were roasted to death. In the vast majority of instances fires seem to have been the sole cause of death. Great numbers of the bodies have been burst asunder by the terrific heat and lie disemboweled. In many instances the faces of the victims are quite calm, and though they were stricken down instantly where they stood without a moment's warning, or with hardly time to appreciate for an instant the deadly peril they were in. Others have stamped on their faces an expression of indescribable terror.

Were Stark Naked

Odor of Burned Flesh.

The entire city and the neighborhood all about it reeks with a horrible odor of burned flesh. In one instance an entire family of nine persons were found, all tightly locked in each other's arms and the bodies in a horrible state of decomposition. Almost the first thing done was to make preparations for the cremation of the dead. Fatigue parties of soldiers built enormous pyres of wood and branches of trees upon which they heaped the dead bodies by scores and burned them as rapidly as possible. To facilitate the combustion and to destroy the odor of burning flesh which came from them the impromptu crematories were heavily soaked with coal tar and petroleum.

Heap of Smoking Ruins.

Paris, May 12.—The minister of marine, M. De Lanessan, yesterday received a cable dispatch from the commander of the French cruiser Suchet, dated Fort-de-France, Martinique, saying that he conducted a search at St. Pierre yesterday. The captain reports that the town is now a mere heap of smoking ruins, under which the victims of the catastrophe are buried. The Suchet was able to convey some of the inhabitants of LePrecheur to Fort-de-France, but could not reach the northernmost part of the island on account of the dense rain of ashes. The captain further reported that the Mont Pelee volcano still had a threatening aspect. Subterranean rumblings were still heard, flashes of flame frequently belched from the volcano and stones were thrown out with immense force.

Corpses Frightfully Mutilated.

Paris, May 12.—The Temps, referring to the destruction of St. Pierre, says: "We believe, from the information received here from the island of Martinique (meaning doubtless the official dispatches) that the disaster surpasses all that imagination can conceive. The whole northeastern portion of the island is laid waste. Three large communities, exclusive of St. Pierre, have been destroyed."

A dispatch received here from Fort-de-France, says:

"All the hills surrounding Le Carbet and Le Preceur (near St. Pierre) are covered with refugees to the number of about 6,000, who are being taken away gradually. In the meanwhile provisions are being conveyed to them. Of the thirty persons who were originally rescued by the French cruiser Suchet, the majority were fearfully burned and nine died while on their way to the hospital. The corpses which were heaped in the ruins of St. Pierre are not only completely naked, but are frightfully mutilated."

Details of the Disaster.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 13.—Advices received here from the vicinity of St. Pierre (ten miles from here) contain further details of the terrible volcanic upheaval which resulted in the utter destruction of that town and the death of nearly all its inhabitants.

The crater of Mont Pelee, had been wearing its "smoke cap" since May 3, but there was nothing until last Monday to indicate that there was the slightest danger. On that day a stream of boiling lava burst through the top of the crater and plunged into the valley of the River Blanche, overwhelming the Guerin sugar works and killing twenty-three work people and the son of the proprietor.

A commission was appointed by the governor to investigate the outbreak and it returned a reassuring report on Wednesday evening. About 8 o'clock on Thursday morning rushed down on St. Pierre, and the coast from Le Carbet, which has a population of 6,000, to Le Precheur, which had a population of 4,000, burning up everything in its patch.

Throughout Thursday the heat in the vicinity of St. Pierre was so intense and the stream of flowing lava was so unremitting that it was impossible to approach the town during the early part of the day. As evening approached the French cruiser Suchet, after a heroic battle with the heat, suffocation and sulphur fumes, succeeded in making a dash toward the shore, nearing the land close enough to enable her to take off thirty survivors of the disaster, all of whom were horribly burned and mutilated. St. Pierre at that time was an absolute smoking waste,

Concealing 30,000 Corpses, whose rapid decomposition necessitated in some cases instantly completing their cremation, which was only partially accomplished by the lava.

The inhabitants of Fort-de-France were panic-stricken the morning of the disaster, when the sky suddenly blackened until it was as dark as midnight. The sea shrank back thirty yards, and hot rain began to fall, while gravel the size of walnuts poured down on the town. This lasted about fifteen minutes.

The 450 survivors who were brought here yesterday from the vicinity of St. Pierre by the French cable repair ship Pouyer Guertier, came from the town of Le Precheur, where, surrounded on all sides by flowing lava, they were nearly roasted to death and expected momentarily to be engulfed.

MANIAC'S BLOODY DEED.

Kills a Man With a Meat Cleaver and Then Dismembers the Body.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 13.—Lawrence Bresano, a fireman in the Atlantic Hotel, crept into the meat room yesterday morning and split the skull of Michael Tornish with a meat cleaver. He then took a large butcher knife and slashed the body, cutting off the nose and ears, gouging out the eyes and cutting strip after strip of flesh off the face of the victim. When the upper part of the body was unrecognizable Bresano jumped on it and danced from the head to the feet until the arrival of the police, who were attracted by the frenzied yells of the murderer. Bresano then turned his attention to his would-be captors and was not subdued until one policeman broke a club over his head and another knocked him senseless to the ground with the brass buckle of a belt. Bresano at police headquarters acknowledged the murder and said he felt better for having committed it. It is believed that trouble over a woman led him to kill his fellow workman. He will be given a preliminary trial to-day.

MINERS' STRIKE NOW ON.

Effect Is Seriously Felt in Other Lines of Work.

Scranton, May 13.—There will be no coal mined in the Scranton field of the anthracite region to-day. Even though the strike order was not certain of being religiously obeyed there will be no mining, as the companies agreed at a meeting of the general managers and superintendents Saturday that no attempt would be made to operate. Some of the companies, however, propose to keep a few, at least, of their washeries running to insure a supply of culm for locomotives, hoisting engines and the like. The companies will not admit that the agreement to refrain from an attempt at operating is eventually to resolve itself into a lock-out should events at Hazelton make such a thing possible. The strike has already made itself seriously felt in other lines of work. The railways have laid off four-fifths of their coal train crews, in all about 800 men, and the Erie shops at Dunmore, where mine cars and machinery are required, will shut down indefinitely, beginning to-day, throwing 300 men out of work.

AMERICA QUICK TO AID.

Cruiser on the Way—$100,000 for Relief Fund.

Washington, May 13.—Secretary of the Navy Moody has cabled the commander of the cruiser Cincinnati, now at San Domingo City, to proceed to Martinique and render such aid as possible. The senate passed a bill appropriating $100,000 for the relief of the people of the Island of Martinique. An effort was made to pass the bill in the house, but the objection of Mr. Underwood of Alabama prevented action until to-day. The United States government is willing to do anything within its power to aid the survivors of the terrible calamity of the Island of Martinique. The difficulty is to ascertain just what can be done and the extent of the needs. It was to obtain definite information that the cruiser Cincinnati was ordered to proceed to Martinique at once.

LIEUT. GOV. STONE DEAD.

Wisconsin Official Passes Away After a Lingering Illness.

Watertown, Wis., May 13.—Jesse Stone, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, died at 8:17 o'clock last night after a lingering illness from cancer of the stomach. Mr. Stone spent some time in the South in the hope of getting relief, but without avail. On his return North he underwent an operation in a Chicago hospital, where the real cause of his ailment was ascertained. After the operation he was removed to his home in Watertown and death had been expected for several days. Jesse Stone was a capitalist, banker and manufacturer and was born Aug. 23, 1836, in Lincoln, Lincolnshire, Eng., coming to this country at the age of five years. He was twice elected to the office of lieutenant governor of Wisconsin on the Republican ticket.

MRS. SOFFEL GETS TWO YEARS.

Woman Who Helped Biddle Gang Escape Sentenced to Penitentiary.

Pittsburg, May 13.—Mrs. Catherine Soffel, the wife of Warden Peter Soffel of the Allegheny county jail, who entered a plea of guilty to the charge of releasing Edward and John Biddle, the burglars and murderers of Grocer Kahney and Detective Fitzgerald, was Saturday sentenced by Judge Frazier to two years in the Western Penitentiary. Mrs. Soffel received the sentence calmly and with no show of emotion.

FIGHT IS OPENED

BEEF TRUST CHARGED WITH CONSPIRING TO MONOPOLIZE TRADE.

INJUNCTION ASKED AT CHICAGO

FEDERAL COURT CALLED UPON TO RESTRAIN TRUST OPERATIONS.

THEIR RELATIONS WITH RAILROADS

ALLEGED THAT TRUST RECEIVES ADVANTAGES NOT GIVEN COMPETITORS.

Chicago, May 13.—The first actual step in the prosecution of the packers charged with maintaining a beef trust in direct violation of the terms of the Sherman anti-trust law was taken Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock when United States Attorney S. H. Bethea filed the government's bill for an injunction in the United States circuit court.

Simultaneously with the filing of the petition charging the packers with conspiring to maintain prices and to do other illegal acts, notice was served on their counsel that a temporary order restraining them from the acts complained of would be asked from the United States circuit court on the afternoon of May 10.

The formal filing of the suit against the packers was taken as a public notice, as well as legal notice, that the entire legal machinery of the United States government as directed by President Theodore Roosevelt and Attorney General P. C. Knox and his assistants, will henceforth be directed against the packers charged with violating one of the most important of federal laws against trusts, monopolies, and combinations in restraint of trade.

"Big Six" Attacked.

The companies thus attacked are known to the beef trade as the "Big Six," and are acknowledged to be in control of the packing business of the United States and the world. They slaughter annually four million cattle, four million sheep and six million hogs.

Throughout the bill it is alleged that the defendants are maintaining and conspiring to maintain a monopoly of commerce and trade. Not only is the charge made that the defendant packers have conspired to create an illegal combination for the control of the trade in beef and other meat products, but a broad allegation is made that there exists a combination and conspiracy illegally to control the live stock markets of the United States.

Particular stress is laid on the relations of the defendant packers and the railroads of the country. It is charged that the packers, through "rebates and other devices," have received and are receiving unlawful rates and advantages to the exclusion of competitors, world-be competitors, and the general public."

SMALLPOX SCARE AT ST. JAMES.

Pupil in High School Is Found to Be Suffering From Disease.

St. James, Minn., May 13.—A case of smallpox was discovered in the high school a few days ago. The pupil was promptly quarantined and the school closed. Since then a number of cases have broken out in the city—all very mild. The board of health is acting very energetically in the matter and the disease no doubt will be stamped out in the near future.

BULLET WOUND MAY BE FATAL.

Man Found Who Had Been Shot in a Fight With Thieves.

La Crosse, Wis., May 13.—Douglas Park, whose further identity is unknown, was picked up by the police with a large bullet wound in the back, from which he may not recover. The wound is the result of a fight with thieves south of here. It is alleged that cattle rustlers whom Park was pursuing, fired the shot, but this cannot be verified.

WILL GET WEALTH.

South Dakota Relative of Milwaukee Millionaire.

Parker, S. D., May 13.—C. G. Pratt, an old resident, has received word that he is one of the chief heirs to the estate of the late Daniel Wells of Milwaukee. The whole estate is worth from thirty to fifty millions and Mr. Pratt, who is a nephew of Mr. Wells, will get enough to make him one of the wealthy men of South Dakota.

BRAKEMAN KILLED IN WRECK.

Freight Trains Collide on Northwestern Line Near Appleton.

Appleton, Wis., May 13.—One freight train backed into another at Hortonville, on the Ashland division of the Northwestern railroad, and as a result eight cars are piled together in a ditch and Brakeman Klein of Kaukauna was killed instantly.

HELD TO CRIMINAL COURT.

John Siebold Is Charged With Selling Another Man's Hay.

Jamestown, N. D., May 13.—After a preliminary hearing John Siebold, a farmer, was bound over to the district court, charged with obtaining money under false pretense. He is alleged to have sold hay belonging to others and kept the proceeds. He furnished bonds of $500 and was released.

Copper in Wisconsin.

Grantsburg, Wis., May 13.—Reports from Chase's brook, a point about forty miles northeast of Grantsburg, state that a rich find of copper has been discovered there. Miners from the West made the discovery, and will begin active mining operations in the near future.

Lorimer Up Again.

Chicago, May 13.—Former Congressman William Lorimer was nominated as the Republican candidate for congress from the Sixth district.

IOWA SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS.

State School for the Deaf Is Destroyed by Fire.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 11.—Fire that started at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon destroyed the main building and the chapel of the Iowa school for the deaf, causing a loss estimated at $350,000. The buildings were uninsured, the state carrying its own risks. Fire Chief Templeton of this city was twice overcome by the heat and his hands were badly burned. One woman narrowly escaped being crushed under falling walls, and the faces of three firemen were severely burned. There were 263 pupils and 63 teachers, officers and employes in the building at the time, all of whom escaped without difficulty. The superintendent said last night that the pupils would be sent to their homes to-day. This is the fourth state institution to burn within two years, the others being at Iowa City, Ames and Glenwood.

ROBBED BY WHITE CAPS.

Law and Order Society's Idea of Punishing Lawbreakers.

Madison, Wis., May 11.—A band of white caps organized under the name of the Law and Order Society held up and robbed Lewis McFarland last night in his residence in the village of McFarland last night in his residence in the village of McFarland. Seven young men of the village and vicinity have been arrested and confessed that they composed the band. They claim that McFarland ran a "blind pig," which brought the fair name of the village into disrepute. Late yesterday afternoon the men under arrest were arraigned in court on the charge of assault and malicious destruction of property. Five of them pleaded guilty and were fined $83.95 apiece. The two others, C. J. Brown and G. L. Johnson, pleaded not guilty, and they were held for examination.

EYES GONE.

Anaconda Smeltermen Horribly Lacerated by Explosion of Slag.

Anaconda, Mont., May 11.—An explosion of slag at the Washoe smelter injured nine men, some seriously. Larry Dower will lose both eyes. His left arm was almost torn off and his face lacerated beyond recognition. Patrick Faley will lose one eye. James Dunn had his head cut, shoulder dislocated and right hand burned. James Gleason, George Ward, Mike Connors and Thomas Malloy were painfully cut and bruised. Water fell into a five-ton ladle of slag and the molten metal flew all over the place.

TAKES FISH, SEINE AND ALL.

Warden at Shetek Fines a Bunch of Greedy Fishers.

Currie, Minn., May 11.—A party from Walnut Grove, Minn., were over fishing on Lake Shetek this week. They were just landing a good haul from a 200-foot seine when Deputy Game Warden H. M. Scarlet came on the scene and confiscated the seine, fish and all, and fined two of the guilty parties $75 each and costs. People living on the lake have been complaining of strangers coming and carrying away fish in wagon loads. This action of the game warden is expected to put a stop to it.

VILLAGE ALMOST WIPED OUT.

Fire Leaves Few Buildings at Sullivan, Wis.

Sullivan, Wis., May 11.—Fire yesterday nearly wiped out this village. Before the flames were put under control the loss amounted to about $50,000. The insurance will nearly cover the loss. Six business places of the eight the town contains are burned, and five families are homeless. Others are living under parts of their homes ruined during the fire, while others are sheltered in barns and stalls. The village has a population of nearly 175 and few buildings are left to mark the place.

ATTEMPTED TRAIN ROBBERY.

Robbers Caught in the Act and Three of Them Jailed.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 11.—It has just been learned that an attempt was made last night to rob the Rock Island fast passenger train when pulling out of the station here. Three men were arrested and jailed. They refuse to give their names. Three others escaped. Two men were prying open the express car door when they were discovered and captured by the trainmen, and later turned over to the officers here.

RIDERLESS HORSE.

Little Montana Girl Supposed to Have Drowned.

Helena, Mont., May 11.—Mary Hogan, nine years old, daughter of T. S. Hogan, postmaster at Debogia, Missoula county, was drowned in Sturgis river. Her father had sent her on horseback on an errand. The horse returned dripping wet riderless. There is no trace of the little girl and there is little doubt she was drowned in the adjacent river, which is very high.

TRACK AROUND FIRE.

Great Northern Coal Shed at Breckenridge Is Burned.

Breckenridge, Minn., May 11.—Yesterday the Great Northern coal shed and storehouse burned. Train No. 10 was delayed over two hours and a spur track was built around the fire. The loss is probably $15,000.

More Settlers for Range Country.

Pierre, S. D., May 11.—Another crowd took advantage of the excursion rates to come in Tuesday and Wednesday nights. They are making selections of land west of the Missouri river, and each one goes back an enthusiastic evangelist for this section of the country. All told, over 1,000 new settlers have gone upon the range country west of the Missouri river since Jan. 1.

Gov. Jones Nearing the End.

Watertown, Wis., May 11.—There is but the slightest hope that Lieut. Gov. Jesse Stone will survive a few hours. This was the information contained in a bulletin on his condition issued by his physicians during the night.

Gasoline Engine Explodes.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 11.—A gasoline engine in the Elkhorn hotel at Lusk, exploded yesterday, killing a young woman employed in the dining room and injuring several others. The hotel was badly damaged.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS.

A Large Attendance at the Meeting of the Superintendents at the State Capital.

The county superintendents of schools of the state held a meeting last week at the state capitol at Bismarck, to discuss generally educational matters in the state. The meeting was well attended, nearly all the counties in the state being represented, and much benefit is looked for as a result of the discussion of the educators. The afternoon session was called at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and was held in the senate chamber. State Supt. Devine, Deputy Supt. Woods and other officials of the department looked after the details of the meeting. All the superintendents believe the meeting will be a profitable one.

Among those who responded to the call for the meeting were:

Torger Sinnes, Minnewaukan, Benson county.

C. E. Blacorby, Cando, Towner county.

T. C. Olsgard, Lakota, Nelson county.

L. B. Fancher, Devils Lake, Ramsey county.

O. J. Hagen, Wahpeton, Richland county.

James Dunphy, Rolla, Rolette county.

Grace B. Putnam, New Rockford, Eddy county.

Zerlina S. Eakin, Carrington, Foster county.

Josephyne M. Paulson, Fessenden, Wells county.

Fannie A. Dunn, Bismarck, Burleigh county.

Mattie M. Davis, Fargo, Cass county.

M. W. Barnes, Valley City, Barnes county.

Anna M. Peterson, Rugby, Pierce county.

G. L. Bickford, Minot, Ward county.

J. F. Hetler, Hillsboro, Traill county.

W. T. Dennison, Medora, Billings county.

Della Spears, Dickinson, Stark county.

Joseph Blatchford, LaMoure, LaMoure county.

W. E. Hicks, Ellendale, Dickey county.

Mary C. Carey, Bottineau, Bottineau county.

L. Lyon, Jamestown, Stutsman county.

Clara Feiring, Cooperstown, Griggs county.

A. M. Simpson, Forman, Sargent county.

W. G. Crocker, Lisbon, Ransom county.

F. N. Molyneux, Towner, McHenry county.

W. J. Alexander, Pembina, Pembina county.

J. F. McLain, Grand Forks, Grand Forks county.

W. H. Seitz, Mandan, Morton county.

Ben Tronslin, Grafton, Walsh county.

Manie Portner, Steele, Kidder county.

R. A. McCalmont, Napoleon, Logan county.

Nels Nordene, Deapolis, Oliver county.

T. A. Asselquist, Sherbrooke, Steele county.

F. J. Waldron, Williston, Williams county.

President Carhart, of the state normal school at Mayville, and President McFarland, of the state normal school at Valley City, were also among those present, and discussed matters of common interest with the superintendents.

It will be noticed that North Dakota has a large share of woman superintendents, a third of the total number of superintendents present being women. The county superintendents' body of the state reflects the general interest that is taken in educational matters, as the superintendents are bright, energetic and fully alive to the duties and responsibilities of their positions.

President Jackson, of the city council greeted the assembled superintendents and extended the freedom and welcome of the city, in a neatly-expressed address.

The superintendents then took up the matter of directors' meetings, and a general discussion was had.

In opening the concluding session, State Supt. Devine stated that this was the first meeting of the association at which it had been possible to secure the attendance of the chief executive of the state, and then introduced Gov. White.

Gov. White said he had been warned by the state superintendent not to speak on educational matters, but thought it only a ruse of the latter to monopolize that subject himself, and added that, in fact, he had not expected to be called upon to say anything, as he had thought that his duties ended when he turned over the capitol to the association and made the weather. He urged upon those present the advantages to the schools and to the state of the planting of trees upon the public school grounds, citing the fact that the general government, through its forestry department, was ready and fully equipped, by suggestions and advice, as to the variety of trees for the different soils and climatic conditions, and thought that each county could have some public school grounds for the purpose of giving object lessons in the matter of tree planting and culture. He also urged the advantage to the state at large of making a state educational exhibit at the St. Louis World's fair.

At the conclusion of the governor's remarks a discussion of the question of the adoption of a universal course of study was taken up, and was participated in by the superintendents generally, the general tenor of expressions being toward favoring such a course, a few dissenting, and among them Supt. Hagen of Richland, who seemed to think that, owing to a diversity of conditions in different counties, it would be better to have each county map out its own course of study.

Supt. Devine announced that no standings would be accepted from applicants whose standing had been obtained during a longer period than two years; and that none would be accepted before the applicant had attained the age of eighteen years.

This brought forth an earnest discussion, which was participated in by State Supt. Devine, President Carhart, of the Mayville normal school and others, and resulted in a motion prevailing that normal and high school markings, in lieu of examinations, be not accepted.

President Carhart entered into a somewhat earnest and thorough discussion of the difference between knowledge of the subject taught, gained by the summer and high school graduates, and the mastery of those subjects gained by the normal student.

PALMA AT HAVANA

CUBAN PRESIDENT-ELECT RECEIVED WITH GREAT ENTHUSIASM.

ISLAND'S FLAG UP ON MORRO

MOMENT OF EXULTATION FOR CUBANS WHICH THEY TAKE ADVANTAGE OF.

WELCOMED BY GOV. GEN. WOOD

PALMA LOOKS FOR UNANIMOUS SUPPORT FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

Havana, May 13.—At twenty-three minutes of eight yesterday morning a large Cuban flag was hoisted over Moro castle here. This was the signal that the steamer Julia, with President-elect Estrada Palma and his party on board, had been sighted and cheers went up from the crowds who, on the shore opposite Moro castle, had patiently awaited the Julia's arrival since daybreak.

The crowd cheered for the new president and for the new flag, which was hoisted over the famous fortress for the first time. It was a moment of exultation for the Cubans, and the fact that the Stars and Stripes floated from its customary flagstaff beside the Cuban flag over the castle did not lessen their enthusiasm.

There was continuous saluting as the Julia sailed between the rows of decorated tugs and barges and there were cheers from the crowded wharves. The United States warships in the harbor were also decorated. The stars and stripes floated over the wreck of the Maine, and under this flag the Cuban commission in charge of the festivities had caused a black and white pennant to be placed.

Ovation for Palma.

The steam tug Dauntless, the old filibusterer, was given the right of the line in the marine procession. When he arrived at the wharf the president-elect was welcomed by Vice President Esteve in a brief speech.

From the wharf the president-elect was escorted to the palace by members of the rural guard. Gov. Gen. Wood, his staff and the secretaries received Senor Estrada Palma at the Palace. From here the president-elect proceeded to the municipal council building, where speeches were made by the mayor of Havana and Senor Zayas. The latter welcomed Senor Estrada Palma on behalf of the people of all classes and all political beliefs.

Replying, Senor Palma said that his reception was a gratifying experience, and, judging from what he had seen since his arrival in Cuba, the people were unanimous in support of the incoming government. This, he said, boded well for the republic.

At a dinner given last night by Gen. Wood, Senor Palma, Gen. Gomez, the archbishop of Havana, the secretaries and a number of prominent Cubans were present.

MR. BIXBY IS NOT OUT.

Minnesotan Urged by the President to Continue in His Official Position.

Washington, May 13.—It is learned here that pressure is being brought to bear on Tams Bixby of Minnesota to have him remain on the Dawes commission. President Roosevelt is anxious to have Mr. Bixby remain in charge of the affairs of the five civilized tribes and urged Mr. Bixby while here to reconsider his determination to resign. It appears that Mr. Bixby has never formally resigned, merely having informed the president that he intended to do so. It is expected at the White House, although no formal statement is made to this effect, that Mr. Bixby will soon communicate to the president his willingness to continue as a commissioner in Indian Territory.

ALASKA IS QUAKING.

Ground on the Aleutian Islands Is Covered With Fine Ashes From Some Volcano.

San Francisco, May 13.—The Alaska Commercial company has received from its agents at Unalaska, Aleutian islands, a letter dated April 1, giving information of volcanic disturbances in that portion. The letter says: "Unalaska has been shaken up by earthquakes lately and on several occasions the ground was covered with fine ashes from some volcano. Reports reach us from Unamik that with every westerly wind their village is covered with some kind of ashes, indicating that some western volcano is in action."

ROACH SUFFERS FROM TUMOR.

Trying to Keep Him Alive for Another Operation.

New York, May 13.—Former United States Senator William N. Roach of North Dakota is so ill that there is little hope of his recovery. He is suffering from a tumor. Mrs. Roach said it was hoped he could be kept alive for two days, in which event another operation will be performed in a final effort to save his life.

Two Aeronauts Who Were on Board Are Killed.

Paris, May 13.—The airship belonging to Senhor Auguste Severo, the Brazilian aeronaut, made an ascension yesterday morning. The airship exploded and the two aeronauts who were on board were killed.

Thirteen Killed in Landslide.

Rome, May 13.—Thirteen persons were killed in a landslide at Marola, Province of Emilia, yesterday.

NOVELIST KILLED

AUTHOR OF "JANICE MEREDITH" SHOT DOWN BY HIS BROTHER.

THEN TURNS GUN ON HIMSELF

MALCOM W. FORD, THE FAMOUS ATHLETE, COMMITS DOUBLE CRIME.

WANTED MONEY AND WAS REFUSED

ENMITY HAS EXISTED BETWEEN THE BROTHERS FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

New York, May 10.—Paul Leicester Ford, the novelist, was shot and killed yesterday by his brother, Malcolm Webster Ford, writer and athlete, who immediately set a bullet into his own breast, dying instantly. The shooting occurred at 10:20 a. m. in the home of Paul Leicester Ford.

At the time of the shooting there were in the house besides the two brothers, Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford, Miss Elizabeth R. Hall, the novelist's secretary, and the servants. The novelist was sitting at his desk in one corner of his library. It is supposed he was busily engaged at some literary task. Miss Hall was at her desk in another corner of the room, about thirty feet from Mr. Ford. Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford was in her own room at the front of the house on the third floor. Malcolm Ford called, as he had often done, and went to his brother at his desk.

Words Were Exchanged

in a tone so low that Miss Hall could not hear what was said. Suddenly there was a revolver shot and Miss Hall, jumping up, darted from the room. Then, according to the statements of the police, Miss Hall said to herself that she must act more bravely and re-enter the library.

Meanwhile Malcolm Ford had called her. As she turned toward him he placed his revolver to his heart, fired and fell, dying instantly. When Miss Hall turned to look at Paul, he was still standing at his desk, but rapidly losing strength. She helped him to a sofa and then ran next door for Dr. Emanuel Baruch. In less than five minutes Dr. Baruch arrived and the dying man, still conscious, was carried up to a room beside his wife's and placed on his bed. He spoke to his wife and asked the doctor for his opinion, showing that he expected death and was going to meet it.

Calmly and Bravely.

A few minutes later, about twenty minutes after he was shot, Mr. Ford died. Edward H. Kidder of Brooklyn, father of Mrs. Ford, was the first person to arrive, after the physician. He refused to make any statement in regard to the shooting except a brief memorandum which was given to the police. In this it was said the cause of the shooting could only be surmised. Information from other sources makes it appear that Malcolm Ford called to get money from his brother, and, meeting with a refusal, shot him. Dr. Baruch said that the murder was the result of temporary mental aberration on the part of Malcolm Ford, due to nervous exhaustion.

It is said that there was enmity between the two brothers, and consequent bitterness, and that it was of eleven years' standing; that never since the death of their father have they been on intimate or brotherly terms. This on the part of Malcolm is said to have been brought about by the fact that the father of the boys disinherited Malcolm and that this action on his father's part was because he did not wish Malcolm to devote himself to an athletic career.

Police Captain Brown said that Malcolm W. Ford had for some time been causing much uneasiness to the family through evidences of an unbalanced mind, and declares that in his opinion he attacked his brother during a period of temporary insanity, then taking his own life.

Paul Leicester Ford was thirty-seven years old, a novelist of much note, "Janice Meredith" being perhaps his most popular novel.

Malcolm W. Ford was a well known athlete, but had been in ill health for some time.

BERGH A CANDIDATE.

La Crosse Lawyer Would Be State's Attorney General.

La Crosse, Wis., May 10.—Despite the fact that it is yet early in the preliminary campaign for nominations to the state Republican ticket, candidates for the honors are actively at work. The candidacy of Attorney Martin Bergh for the attorney generalship is being urged with vigor, this vicinity not having been represented on the state ticket for a considerable time. Mr. Bergh is prominent in legal circles of the state and is a leader in the Norwegian workingmen's societies of Wisconsin.

FOUND IN A CLAM.

Pearl Weighing Forty-Five Grains Is Sold for $1,300.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., May 10.—The finest pearl ever taken from the Mississippi river was found yesterday by Dan Cardine, a clam fisher. It is perfectly round, of fine luster and weighs forty-five grains. It was purchased by H. O. Heide, an expert pearl buyer of this city, for $1,300.

Must Serve a Year for Forgery.

Dickinson, N. D., May 10.—H. V. Barnum was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary for forgery. He pleaded guilty to the charge. His parents live in Chicago. J. B. McDonald was also given a year for jailbreaking.

Rule Scores a Victory.

Mason City, Iowa, May 10.—Thomas A. Way has tendered his support in whatever capacity he might be used, to Duncan Rule for congress. This is regarded as a decided victory for Rule. The Blythe forces are annoyed.

CONGRESS.

Discussion of Philippine Bill Takes a Sensational Turn.

Washington, May 8.—Discussion of the Philippine bill in the Senate took a sensational turn again yesterday. Mr. McComas of Maryland, referring to the alleged cruelties of American soldiers in the Philippines—cruelties which he deeply deplored—told of some of the cruelties which had occurred on both sides during the Civil war. Neither side, he held, was to be held responsible for those regrettable occurrences, as neither side approved them. In this connection, he suggested that senators from South Carolina and Mississippi "where there is less popular liberty than in any other state," were shouting loudest for constitutional liberty in the Philippines.

These remarks drew a sensational reply from Mr. Tillman of South Carolina, who declared that it was no longer possible to sneer away the responsibility for the infamies committed by the Americans in the Philippines. He said that if it had been known in the South that the reins of government were to be given to the negroes the Civil war would have been prolonged indefinitely. He insisted that, in order to maintain their self-respect, the white people of the South had been obliged to subdue the negro by whatever means they could, using the shotgun as one of the means. He frankly described how the negroes had been defeated at the polls, admitting that the whites had gotten just such majorities as were necessary. "When we get ready to put a nigger's face in the sand," he shouted, "we put his body there, too."

Mr. Burton of Kansas vigorously arraigned Mr. Tillman for his utterances.

In the House.

The house began consideration of the bill to enable the people of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico to form constitutions and state governments and be admitted into the union on an equal footing with the original states.

The house adopted the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill.

REVOLUTION IN GUNNERY.

Remarkable Invention of a Norwegian Physicist.

Berlin, May 9.—Prof. K. Birkeland, the Norwegian physicist, has been in Berlin recently for the purpose of demonstrating the powers of his electro-magnetic cannon before a number of experts in electrical artillery. The results of the demonstrations have been so convincing that a firm of artillery manufacturers has offered to buy the invention for immediate exploitation, provided Prof. Birkeland will increase the length of the piece used in the trials so that it will throw a projectile weighing two tons a distance of twelve miles. Theoretically the device can throw a projectile weighing two tons a distance of ninety miles, or even further, by sufficiently prolonging the tube. The principal upon which the new gun acts has not been made public; but it is known that the projectile is expelled from an ordinary cast iron tube, thickly wrapped with copper wire. This tube can, of course, be made more cheaply than the cannon now in use. No explosive gases result from the discharge of the new gun. This invention has stirred up great interest among technical observers, some of whom are of the opinion that it signifies a greater revolution in fighting material than that brought about by the discovery of gunpowder.

MEAT PRICES FIXED.

Packers Buy Cattle on Successive Days and at Their Own Prices.

Jefferson City, May 9.—The existence in St. Louis of uniform and fixed meat prices and the secret rebate in addition to the c. o. d. list was shown by testimony taken at yesterday's session of the beef trust inquiry. Maurice Prendeville, a St. Louis union market meat dealer, was the first witness examined. In answer to questions by the attorney general, Prendeville testified that Armour, Swift, Nelson Morris and Cudahy had a fixed agreement regarding prices. "The packers buy cattle on successive days," said he, "so that each can buy at his own prices. There is very little independent buying in the East St. Louis stock yards. The big packers keep others out by telling the cattlemen that if they sell any cattle to independent buyers they must sell all to them.

VIEW CORRIGAN'S REMAINS.

Fifty Thousand Persons Pass Before Archbishop's Bier.

New York, May 9.—It is estimated that 20,000 persons viewed the remains of Archbishop Corrigan in the cathedral last night. More than 25,000 crowded the church between 11 in the morning and 5 in the evening. At 6 o'clock a guard of honor from the Catholic club entered the cathedral and commenced the night watch. They took positions in the center aisle, a few feet away from the catafalque. In addition to this guard of honor a squad of twenty soldiers from the Sixty-ninth regiment marched into the cathedral. A non-commissioned officer, an orderly and three privates took a position at the foot of the catafalque, and the remaining militiamen were stationed in the center aisles, aiding the police in forming the lines.

FIVE MEN KILLED.

Shot to Death While Resisting Capture.

Louisa, Ky., May 9.—Five men have been killed in Floyd county by Constable Reedy and a posse as the result of the murder of Sol Osborne and Bud Little two weeks ago. James Tompkins and Walter Jones are said to have been two of the men killed, but the names of the other three are not known. According to reports the men engaged in a desperate fight with the posse and were shot to death while resisting capture.

Many Had Narrow Escapes.

St. Edwards, Neb., May 9.—Fire early yesterday destroyed seven stores and one residence, among them being three of the largest buildings in the town. A number of persons living in the Egan block, which was partially burned, had narrow escapes.

Bishop Potter Ill.

New York, May 9.—Bishop Henry C. Potter of the Episcopal diocese of New York, was suddenly taken ill yesterday, but his illness is said not to be of an alarming nature.

PRISON IS FIRED

CONVICTS START A FIRE IN ORDER TO GAIN THEIR LIBERTY.

ILLINOIS REFORMATORY BURNED

SUPPOSEDLY FIRE-PROOF BUILDING IS RAZED TO THE GROUND.

PRISONERS IN WILD TERROR

HIDEOUS SCREAMINGS COULD BE HEARD FOR NEARLY A MILE.

Pontiac, Ill., May 10.—The most disastrous fire that ever visited the Illinois state reformatory totally destroyed what was supposed to be the strongest and most fireproof cellhouse of a like institution in the United States. The fire started about 7 o'clock, and at that time 600 prisoners were locked in this large building. A panic was only averted by the coolness of Capt. Holtzman and the rest of the officers.

The inmates were marched to the south cell house, where it was impossible to keep any order. After being locked in their new cells they made most hideous screamings, which could have been heard for nearly a mile. For a time it seemed as if the south cell house would also be burned, and Mayor Legg was called upon for Assistance to Keep Order.

Company F, which is stationed here, was called to quarters in readiness to guard the fourteen hundred prisoners, should it be necessary to turn them loose in the yard, but the Pontiac fire department was called and saved this wing.

While the fire was raging at its best Chief Marshal Hoover and several of the inmates were overcome with smoke and had to be carried out of the burning building. This cellhouse is 360 feet long and four stories high, and was completed during the McClaughrey administration at a cost of $175,000. As the state carries no insurance this is a total loss. The origin of the fire is unknown, but as Supt. Mallory, Assistant Supt. Phillips and many other prominent officers are attending the convention in Springfield, it is thought to have been started by one of the inmates who set his bedding on fire.

BIXBY NOT A CANDIDATE.

State Republican Convention Is Called for July 1.

St. Paul, May 10.—"If I had intended being a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor against Gov. Van Sant I would have announced it some time ago," said Tams Bixby yesterday. "I am not a candidate for the nomination and I will not be a candidate. I believe Gov. Van Sant will be renominated without opposition. I know of no one who will be a candidate against him." Tams Bixby broke to this extent the silence he has maintained since he resigned as a member of the Dawes Indian commission. He made the statement after the meeting of the Republican state central committee, which fixed the date for the Republican state convention for July 1, as desired by the friends of Gov. Van Sant.

FARGO IS POWWOW PLACE.

Republican State Central Committee Names Day.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 10.—At the meeting here yesterday the Republican state central committee selected Fargo, July 23, as the place and date for the next state convention. The resolution of August, 1900, basing the county representation on the lowest vote cast for any one among the principal Republican candidates, was rescinded, and it was decided to base the representation on the average of the highest and lowest votes cast for these candidates. Each county gets two delegates-at-large and one for each fifty votes. The convention will have 744 members, computed as above. The attendance at the meeting was large.

FIRE AND STRONG WIND.

Combination Gave Osakis a Scare—Loss of Several Thousands.

Osakis, Minn., May 10.—The office and lumber sheds of Canada & Yates burned yesterday morning. A strong northwest gale was blowing and the Great Northern station and much other property were saved only after a hard fight on the part of the fire company. The loss is estimated at from $6,000 to $8,000; insurance, $5,500. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Hamilton Discharged.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 10.—W. H. Hamilton of Watertown, N. Y., an organizer for the Brotherhood of Papermakers, charged with conspiracy, was discharged by Judge Gilbertson, the evidence against him not being sufficient.

Forger Goes to Prison.

La Crosse, Wis., May 10.—Harvey Walker, alias Frank Nessing, pleaded guilty to forgery and was given three years in state's prison. He passed a check with Meisler Bros.' name forged.

Physician Dies Suddenly.

Bemidji, Minn., May 10—C. Adamson, a pioneer physician of Bemidji, died of erysipelas, after a short illness. He was a prominent young man, and leaves a wife and one child.

Keep Up the Fight.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 10.—A petition addressed to Secretary Shaw was in circulation yesterday. It asks for investigation, with a view to reopening the matter of location of the federal building. Parties circulating petitions claim an agent will be sent by the treasury department to look into the matter.

License Favored at Toronto.

Toronto, S. D., May 10.—At the town election license carried by a majority of 22.

ST. VINCENT IS DELUGED

BRITISH ISLAND NEAR MARTINIQUE HALF DESTROYED BY VOLCANO.

HUNDREDS OF PERSONS KILLED

SEVERAL DISTRICTS SWEPT AND SEARED BY RIVERS OF MOLTON ROCK.

THE PEOPLE FLEEING IN TERROR

BELCHING VOLCANO FORMS A SPECTACLE OF AWFUL GRANDEUR.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., May 10.—After numerous earthquakes during the preceding fortnight, accompanied by subterranean noises in the direction of the Soufriere volcano, on the northwest part of the island, a loud explosion from the crater occurred Monday last, and the water in the crater lake ascended in a stupendous cloud of steam and exploded heavily.

The noises grew louder continually till Wednesday morning, when the old crater, three miles in circumference, and the new crater, formed by the last eruption, belched smoke and stones, forcing the residents of Wallibou and Richmond Valley, beneath the volcano, to flee to Chateau Belair for refuge.

The thunderous noises, which were continually increasing, were heard in neighboring islands two hundred miles away. At midday the craters ejected enormous columns of steamy vapor, rising majestically eight miles high and expanding into wonderful shapes, resembling enormous cauliflowers, gigantic wheels and beautiful flower forms, all streaked up and down and crosswise with vivid flashes of lightning, and impressing the mind with fear. The mountain labored to rid itself of a mass of molten lava which later flowed over, in six streams, down the side of the volcano, and the greater noises following united in one continuous roar all evening, through the night to Thursday morning, accompanied with black rain, falling dust and favilla scorial, attended with midnight darkness all Wednesday, creating feelings of fear and anxious suspense. On the morning of Friday there was a fresh eruption and ejections of fiery matter, more dust covering the island, in some places two feet deep. The crater is still active as this dispatch is sent, and great loss of life is believed to have occurred.

Awing the Beholder

The lava has destroyed several districts, with their livestock. People are fleeing to this town, streams are dried up, and in many places a food and water famine is threatened. Several districts have not yet been heard from, and the scene of the eruption is unapproachable. Every hour brings sadder news. The nurses and doctors are overworked. It is impossible to give full details at present.

Worse News Is Feared.

London, May 12.—The latest reports received here say that the loss of life at St. Vincent will exceed 500. The state of affairs at St. Vincent creates grave alarm, especially as dispatches from the Island of Dominica, forwarded Sunday, reported that the Soufriere volcano in St. Vincent was still in active eruption. Four small boats loaded with refugees from Grand Riviere, Martinique, have arrived at Dominica in a pitiable condition. They report that six other boats left that village at the same time. It is not known what became of them.

The very slight discrepancies in the various accounts of the volcanic outbreak in the West Indies which have reached London leave only a shadow of hope that the latter details will greatly minimize the extent of the catastrophe and the fear is beginning to seize the British papers that even worse news may come.

GIRL WEDS, THEN ENDS LIFE.

Commits Suicide When the Man She Married Same Day Threatens to Desert Her.

Quincy, Ill., May 13.—Miss Lillie Carr and Albert Travers were married here Saturday afternoon and in the evening the bride committed suicide at her home in Liberty, this county. Travers lives at Chillicothe, Ill., and was brought here from Peoria by the sheriff at the girl's request. Travers consented to the marriage, but declared he would desert the wife. The girl's family is prominent in the county.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.)

"You wanted to see me, sir? Will you be so good as to state your business?"

David turned with a start. He saw before him a slight, graceful figure and a lovely, refined face in a frame of the most beautiful hair he had ever seen. The gray eyes were demure, with just a suggestion of mirth in them; the lips were made for laughter. It was as if some dainty little actress were masquerading in Salvation garb, only the dress was all priceless lace that touched David's artistic perception. He could imagine the girl as deeply in earnest as going through fire and water for her convictions. Also, he could imagine her as Puck or Ariel—there was rippling laughter in every note of that voice of hers.

"I—I—eh, yes," Steel stammered. "You see, I—if I only knew whom I had the pleasure of addressing?"

"I am Miss Ruth Gates, at your service. Still, you asked for me by name."

David made no reply for a moment. He was tripping over surprises again. What a fool he had been not to look out the name of the occupant of 219 in the directory. It was pretty evident that Gilead Gates had a house in Brighton, as well as one in town. Not only had that telephone message emanated from the millionaire's residence, but it had brought Steel to the philanthropist's abode in Brighton. If Mr. Gates himself had strode into the room singing a comic song David would have expressed no emotion.

"Daughter of the famous Gilead Gates?" David asked, feebly.

"No; niece and housekeeper. This is not my uncle's own house. He has merely taken it for a time. But, Mr. Steel—"

"Mr. David Steel—is my name familiar to you?"

David asked the question somewhat eagerly. As yet he was only feeling his way and keenly on the lookout for anything in the way of a clue. He saw the face of the girl grow white as the tablecover, he saw the lurking laugter die in her eyes, and the purple-black terror dilating the pupils.

"I—I know you quite well by reputation," the girl gasped. Her little hands were pressed to her left side as if to check some deadly pain there. "Indeed, I may say I have read most of your stories. I—I hope that there is nothing wrong."

Her self-possession and courage were coming back to her now. But the spasm of fear that had shaken her to the soul was not lost upon Steel.

"I trust not," he said, gravely. "Did you know that I was here two nights ago?"

"Here?" the girl cried. "Impossible! In the house? The night before last? Why, we were all in bed long before midnight!"

"I am not aware that I said anything about midnight," responded David, boldly.

An angry flush came sweeping over the face of the girl, annoyance at her own folly, David thought. She added, quickly, that she and her uncle had only been down in Brighton for three days.

"Nevertheless, I was in this room two nights ago," David replied. "If you know all about it, pray give me certain information of vital importance to me; if not, I shall be compelled to keep my extraordinary story to myself, for, otherwise, you would never believe it. Do you or do you not know of my visit here?"

The girl bent her head till Steel could see nothing but the glorious amber of her hair. He could see, too, that the fine old lace round her throat was tossing like a cork in a stream.

"I can tell you nothing," she said. "Nothing, nothing, nothing!"

It was the voice of one who would have spoken had she dared. With anybody else Steel would have been furiously angry. In the present case he could only admire the deep, almost pathetic, loyalty to somebody who stood behind.

"Are you sure you were in this house?" the girl asked, at length.

"Certain!" David exclaimed. "The walls, the pictures, the furniture—all the same. I could swear to the place anywhere. Miss Gates, if I cannot prove that I was here at the time I name it is likely to go very hard with me."

"You mean that a certain inconvenience—"

"Inconvenience! Do you call a charge of murder, or manslaughter at best, inconvenient? Have you not seen the local papers? Don't you know that two nights ago, during my absence from home, a strange man was practically done to death in my conservatory? And during the time of the outrage, as sure as Heaven is above us, I was in this room!"

"I am sorry, but I am sure that you were not."

"Ah, you are going to disappoint me? And yet you know something. You might have been the guiltiest of creatures yourself when I disclosed my identity. No prisoner detected in some shameful crime ever looked more guilty than you."

The girl stood there, saying nothing. Had she rang the bell and ordered the footman to put him out of the house, Steel would have had no cause of complaint. But she did nothing of the kind. She stood there, torn by conflicting emotions.

"I can give you no information," she said, presently. "But I am as positive one way as you are another, that you have never been in this house before. I only surmise things, but I am [illegible] judged fairly I can give you no information. I am only a poor, unhappy girl, who is doing what she deems to be the best for all parties concerned. And I can tell you nothing, nothing. Oh, won't you believe that I would do anything to serve you if I were only sure?"

She held out one hand, with an imploring gesture, and the red lips were quivering, and her eyes were full of tears. David's warm heart went out to her; he forgot all his own troubles and dangers in his sympathy for the young creature in distress.

"Pray say no more about it!" he cried. He caught the outstretched hand in his and pressed it to his lips. "I don't wish to hurry you; in fact, haste is dangerous. And there 's ample time. Nor am I going to press you. Still, before long you may find some way to give me a clue without sacrificing a jot of your fine loyalty to—well, others. I would not distress you for the world, Miss Gates. Don't you think that this has been the most extraordinary interview?"

The tears trembled like diamonds on the girl's long lashes and a smile flashed over her face. The sudden transformation was wonderfully fascinating.

"What you might call an impossible interview," she laughed. "And all the more impossible because it was quite impossible that you should ever have been here before."

"When I was in this room, two nights ago," David protested, "I saw—"

"Did you see me, for instance? If not, you couldn't have been here!"

A small, mis-shapen figure, with the face of Byron—Apollo on the bust of Satyr—came in from behind the folding doors of the back dining room, carrying some letters in his hand. The stranger's pleasing eyes were fixed inquiringly upon Steel.

"Bell!" the latter cried; "Hatherly Bell! you have been listening?"

The little man with the god-like head admitted the fact, coolly. He had been writing letters in the back room, and escape had been impossible for him.

"Funny enough, I was going to look you up to-day," he said. "You did me a great service once, and I am longing to repay you. I came down here to give my friend, Gates the benefit of my advice and assistance over a large philanthropic scheme he has just evolved. And, writing letters yonder on that subject, I heard your extraordinary conversation. Can I help you, Steel?"

"My dear fellow!" David cried. "If you offered me every intellect in Europe I should not choose one of them so gladly as yours!"

"Then let us shake hands on the bargain. And now I am going to stagger you: I heard you state positively that two nights ago you were in this very room."

"I am prepared to testify the fact on oath, anywhere, my dear Bell."

"Very well; will you be good enough to state the hour?"

"Certainly. I was here from 1 o'clock—say between 1 and 2."

"And I was here, also. From 11 o'clock until 2 I was in this very room, working out some calculations at this very table by the aid of my reading lamp, no other light being in the room, even in the house, so far as I know. It is one of my fads—as fools call them—to work in a large, dark room with one brilliant light only. Therefore, you could not possibly have been in the house, to say nothing of this room, on the night in question."

David nodded feebly. There was no combatting Bell's statement.

"I presume that this is No. 219?" he asked.

"Certainly it is," Miss Gates replied. "We are all agreed about that."

"Because I read the number over the fanlight," Steel went on. "And I came here by arrangement. And there was everything as I see it now. Bell, you must either cure me of this delusion, or—you must prove, logically, to me that I have made a mistake. So far as I am concerned, I am like a child struggling with the alphabet."

"We'll start now," said Bell. "Come along."

Steel rose, none too willingly. He would fain have lingered with Ruth. She held out her hand; there was a warm, glad smile on her face.

"May you be successful," she whispered. "Come and see me again, because I shall be very, very anxious to know. And I am not without guilt—if you only knew!"

"And I may come again?" David said, eagerly.

A further smile and a warm pressure of the hand were the only reply. Presently Steel was standing outside in the road with Bell. Tthe latter was glancing at the house on either side of 219. The higher house was let; the one nearest the sea—218—was empty. A bill in the window gave the information that the property was in the hands of Messrs. Wallace & Brown, Station Quadrant, where keys could be obtained.

"We'll make a start straightaway," said Bell. "Come along."

"Where are you going to at that pace?" Steel asked.

"Going to interview Messrs. Wallace & Brown. At the present moment I am a gentleman who is in search of a place of residence, and I have a weakness for Brunswick Square in particular, especially for No. 218. Unless I am greatly mistaken, I am going to show you thing that will startle even the most callous novelist."

CHAPTER VIII.

Hatherly Bell.

The queer, mis-shapen figure, striding along by Steel's side would have attracted attention anywhere; indeed, Hatherly Bell had been an attractive personality from his school days. A strange mixture of vanity and brilliant mental qualities, Bell had almost as many enemies as friends. He was morbidly miserable over the score of his personal appearance, despite the extraordinary beauty of his face—to be pitied or even sympathized with, almost maddened him. Yet there were many women who would gladly have shared the lot of Hatherly Bell.

For there was strength in that perfectly-moulded face, as well as beauty. It was the face of a man possessed of marvellous intellectual powers, and none the less attractive, because, while the skin was as fair as a woman's, and the eyes as clear as a child's, the wavy hair was absolutely white. The face of a man who had suffered fiercely and long. A face hiding a great sorrow.

Time was when Bell had promised to stand in the front rank of operative physicians. In brain troubles and mental disorders he had distinguished himself. He had a marvellous faculty for psychological research; indeed, he had gone so far as to declare that insanity was merely a disease, and capable of cure, the same as any other ordinary malady. "If Bell goes on as he has started," a great German specialist once declared, "he will inevitably prove to be the greatest benefactor to mankind since the beginning of the world." Bell was to be the man of his time.

And then, suddenly, he had faded out, as a star drops from the zenith. There had been dark rumors of a terrible scandal, a prosecution burked by strong personal influence, mysterious paragraphs in the papers, and the disappearance of the name of Hatherly Bell from the ranks of great medical jurists. Nobody seemed to know anything about it, but Bell was ignored by all except a few old friends, and henceforth he devoted his attention to criminology and the evolution of crime. It was Bell's boast that he could take a dozen men at hap-hazard and give you their vices and virtues point-blank. He had a marvelous gift that way.

A few people stuck to him, Gilead Gates among the number. The millionaire philanthropist had need of someone to pick the sheep from the goats, and Bell made no mistakes. David Steel had been able to do the specialist some slight service a year or two before, and Bell had been pleased to magnify this into a great favor.

"You are a fast walker," David said, presently.

"That's because I'm thinking fast," Bell replied. "Steel, you are in great trouble?"

"It needs no brilliant effort on your part to see that," said David, bitterly. "Besides, you heard a great deal just now when you—you—"

"Listened," said Bell, coolly. "Of course I had no intention of playing the eavesdropper; and I had no idea who the Mr. Steel was who wanted to see Miss Gates. They come, day by day, my dear fellow, garbed in the garb of Pall Mall or Petticoat Lane, as the case may be, but they all come for money. Sometimes it is a shilling; sometimes £100. But I did not gather from your chat with Miss Gates what your trouble really was."

"Perhaps not; but Miss Gates know perfectly well."

Bell patted his companion approvingly.

"It is a pleasure to help a lucid-minded man like yourself," he said. "You go straight to the root of the sore, and cut all the superfluous matter away. I was deeply intersted in the coversation which I overheard just now. You are in great trouble, and that trouble is conected with 219 Brunswick Square—a house where you have never been before."

"My dear chap, I was in that dining room two nights ago. Nothing will convince me to the—"

"There you are wrong, because I am going to convince you to the contrary. You may smile and shake your head, but before an hour has passed I am going to convince you, beyond all question, that you were never inside No. 219."

"Brave words," David muttered. "Still, an hour is not a long time to wait."

"No. But you must enlighten me, if I am to assist you. I am profoundly interested. You come to the house of my friend on a desperate errand. Miss Gates is a perfect stranger to you, and yet the mere discovery of her identity fills her with the most painful agitation. Therefore, though you have never been in 219 before, you are pretty certain and I am pretty certain, that Ruth Gates knows a deal about the thing that is touching you. On the contrary, I know nothing on that head. Won't you let me into the secret?"

"I'll tell you part," Steel replied. "And I'll put it pithily. For mere argument we assume that I am selected to assist a damsel in distress who lives at No. 219 Brunswick Square. We will assume that the conversation leading up to the flattering selection took place over a telephone. As a matter of fact, it did take place over a telephone. The thing was involved with so much secrecy that I naturally hesitated. I was offered £1,000 for my services; also, I was reminded by my unseen messenger that I was in dire need of that money."

"And were you?"

"My dear fellow, I don't fancy that I should have hesitated at burglary to get it. And all I had to do was to meet a lady secretly, in the dead of night at No. 219, and tell her how to get out of a certain difficulty. It all resolved itself around the synopsis of a proposed new story of mine. But I had better go into details."

David proceeded to do so. Bell, with his arm crooked through that of his companion, followed the story with an intelligent and flattering interest.

"Very strange and very fascinating," he said, presently. "I'll think it out presently. Nobody could possibly think of anything but their toes in Western Road. Go on."

"Now I am coming to the point. I had the money. I had the lovely cigar case, and, subsequently, I had that battered and bleeding specimen of humanity dumped down, in the most amazing manner, in my conservatory. The cigar case lay on the conservatory floor, remember—swept off the table when I clutched for the telephone bell to call for the police. When Marley came he asked if the cigar case was mine. At first I said no, because, you see—"

"I see quite plainly. Pray go on."

"Well, I lose the cigar case; I leave it in the office of Messa, to whom I pay nearly £1,000. [illegible] the case to the police, who [illegible] not knowing that it is mine. [illegible]"

"Because it belonged to the injured man, eh?"

David pulled up and regarded his companion with amazement.

"How on earth—" he gasped. "Do you mean to say that you know—"

"Nothing at present, I assure you," Bell said, coolly. "Call it intuition, if you like. I prefer to call it the result of logical mental process. I'm right, of course?"

"Of course you are. I'd claimed that case for my own. I had cut my initials inside, as I showed Marley when I went to the police station. And then Marley tells me how I paid Messa nearly £1,-090; how the money must have come into my hands in the nick of time. That was pretty bad, when I couldn't, for the life of me, give a lucid reason for the possession of those notes; but there was worse to come. In the pocket of the injured man was a receipt for a diamond-studded, gun-metal cigar case, purchased the day of the outrage. And Walen, the jeweler, proved beyond a doubt that the case I claimed was purchased at his shop."

Bell nodded, eagerly.

"Which places you in an exceedingly awkward position," he said.

"A mild way of putting it," David replied. "If that fellow dies, the police have enough evidence to hang me. And what is my defense? The story of my visit to 219. And who would believe that cock-and-bull story? Fancy a drama like that played out in the house of such a pillar of respectability as Gilead Gates?"

"It isn't his house," said Bell. "He only takes it furnished."

"In anybody else your remark would be puerile," David said, irritably.

"It's a deeper remark than you are aware of at present," Bell replied. "I quite see your position. Nobody would believe you, of course. But why not go to the postoffice and ask the number of the telephone that called you up from London?"

The question seemed to amuse David slightly. Then his lips were drawn humorously.

(To Be Continued.)

Growth of Socialism.

Of special interest is the growth of Socialism as a political factor in Germany. It must be borne in mind that Germany is the birthplace of Socialism, and that it has attained a higher development there than anywhere else. First, as to its commercial development. In 1857 the Socialists cast 493,000 votes at the reichstag elections, as against the Center's 1,341,000 for instance, and against the National Liberal's 1,468,000. In 1878 and 1879, owing to Bismarck's repressive measures, the Socialist vote dropped to 312,000. But from that time until the last general election, that of 1898, the Socialist vote rose steadily and rapidly, and in 1898 it attained to 2,107,000, while the vote of all the other parties gradually went down, and to-day some of those parties poll barely one-fourth of their former vote. The Socialists to-day are, in point of numbers, by far the largest party; and at the next election they will reach the 2,500,000 mark, and possibly exceed it.—North American Review.

Former Perfumes.

Our forefathers were great people for scents, perfumes, fragrant herbs and spices, and the astounding amount of seasoning they put in the simplest dishes prepares one for almost any combination. When, to make a cherry tart, they found it necessary to make a syrup of cinnamon, ginger and "sawnders," and to add rosewater to the icing, one can imagine how they set to work to cook a cormorant. Perhaps if we remind our readers that many of the chambers were provided with "draughts," that occasionally required cleaning, and that rushes took the place of carpets, they will realize one of the reasons for perfumes. "Sweet waters" were occasionally sprinkled under the rushes in great houses, or for revels, or on the mattresses and bedding.—Good Words.

Limit to His Capacity.

Senator Mason of Illinois, when last in New York, was asked if he thought that Senator Morgan's reputation of being the longest-winded speaker in the United States was founded on facts. The Illinoisan replied:

"I am not certain that senatorial courtesy will permit me to answer that question; and, being a candidate for re-election, I will dodge it. But this I will say: I once asked Senator Morgan how long he could talk on a subject he didn't know anything about, and he replied: 'If I didn't know anything at all about it, I don't think I could talk more than three days about it!'"—New York Times.

In the Wrong Department.

In the millinery show room of one of the large department stores in Philadelphia a customer inquired of a saleswoman what they charged to clean feathers.

"Ten cents apiece," was the answer.

"Oh, I could never pay that price!" gasped the lady.

"How many have you? If you have a sufficient number, we might make a reduction in the price."

"Why, I couldn't count them, for I have two beds full."

Needless to say, she was in the wrong department.—Philadelphia Times.

Credit Where It Is Due.

"I understand," said Mr. Meekton, "that I was alluded to at a meeting of the Feminine Emancipation league, as one of the most docile and obedient of husbands?"

"Yes."

Roosevelt's Picture on an Apple.

Farmer Henry C. Gableman, who says he made a pile of money last year selling apples bearing a bust of McKinley, has bought the Schultz farm, on Wellen's hill, together with one of the finest fruit orchards in this vicinity.

He says he will have the head of President Roosevelt, crowned with a slouch hat, outlined on all his fruit the coming season.

Mr. Gabelman refuses to disclose his process for making pictures on apples.—Winsted (Conn Cor. New York World.

His Red Tie Scheme.

It was the morning after, when penitential bromo and Nile-green resolutions were paramount.

"By all that's proper, Harry, what are you putting on that red tie for?" demanded the other man.

The cravat was a deeper red than the poppies know, and against the white of clean linen it was almost insultingly effulgent.

"Part of my system," replied Harry. "See my eyes? Not pretty, are they? Prima facie evidence of indiscretions. And that nose! Well, don't you know, if I wear this tie, everybody will look at it so hard they'll never see my face. Tried it before. Whole car loads of people never saw anything but that tie. Rheumatism Cured at Last.

Lake Sarah, Minn., May 12th.—Thousands will read with pleasure that a cure for Rheumatism has at last been found.

A Mrs. Hildebrandt of this place, after trying very many medicines, has recently found a successful remedy for this painful disease.

This woman suffered so with the Rheumatism in her arms that sleep or rest became impossible.

She heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, but having little faith in anything, was very reluctant to spend any more money for medicine.

However, she decided to try one box and this helped her so much that she continued to use the Pills. Now she says:

"I am real well, and I don't know how to express my thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me."

"I Want Everybody to Know How Completely It Cures Indigestion."

This shows the unselfish disposition of Mr. Hodge, of Orchard Cottage, Ippleden, Newton, who, having been cured by Vogeler's Compound, wishes every other sufferer to know of the benefit he has received from this marvellous remedy. He tells his story as follows:—

"Gentlemen—I find Vogeler's Compound a remedy above all others; last year I was in a thorough bad state of health, and could hardly drag one leg after the other. I had tried dozens of remedies advertised to cure indigestion and all its attendant evils, but was rapidly going from bad to worse, when I had the good fortune to be recommended to take Vogeler's Compound. I did so, and am thankful to say it made a new man of me. I should like other people to know its virtues, and how completely it knocks under the worst forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

(Signed) George H. Hodge."

Vogeler's Compound is the greatest remedy of the century for all stomach disorders and liver and kidney troubles in both men and women. A free sample bottle will be sent on application to the proprietors, St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

Why Is It

That St. Jacobs Oil always affords instant relief from pains, after all other remedies have signally failed? Simply because it is peculiar to itself, wholly unlike another remedy. It possesses great penetrating power, reaching the very seat of the disease. It acts like magic. It conquers pain quickly and surely. It is an outward application, and is used by millions of people.

Faint praise will not obstruct a flow of words.

Gold in Nicaragua

Placer Mines Still Produce Fortunes in the South American Republic.

One man is reported to have panned from Nicaragua placer mines no less than $250,000 in four years, or an average of over $62,000 a year. This is a better salary than that obtained by the president of the United States. Quartz mines are being worked and these are reported to assay from $20 to $1,800 to the ton. Opal mines abound and yield the brilliant fire opal. Water is plentiful and is the chief means of transportation, and being right at hand is convenient for working both placer mines and stamp mills, says the Galveston News.

Nicaragua is known to the world as a banana and coconut producing country, together with rubber and other side products that have made fortunes for enterprising Americans with a little capital. Gold is a new feature comparatively, and if the country proves as rich as indications now point it will equal Alaska in production and be devoid of the hardships of cold. Climatic conditions will not interfere, for if a man takes ordinary care of himself his years will be as many and comfortable in Nicaragua as in any other place.

The Prinzo Pulca district is the principal gold field of Nicaragua. There is also development going on in the department of Zelaya; and placer mining can be conducted with profit on almost any stream in Nicaragua. Of the quartz camps Prinzo Pulca is the largest and most important at present. There is quite a colony at Prinzo Pulca, and several mines have been sunk into the quartz. Prinzo Pulca is 180 miles north of Bluefields and near the coast. The district covers a radius of about 100 miles from the camp of Prinzo Pulca, over which prospectors have gone and located claims. It is essential that machinery be obtained successfully to conduct quartz mining operations, but it is an easy matter to get it up there, as river navigation is easy the greater part of the distance. The ore runs from $50 to $200 on the average, although instances are known where it went as high as $500 to the ton. It is not a hard quartz and can be easily operated with stamp mills, although smelters would be necessary to obtain all that the ore contains.

The merchant of Nicaragua is no doubt the Chinaman. One of the wealthiest men in Nicaragua to-day is a Chinaman, Chow Wing Sing. He went there eleven years ago and managed to get $500 ahead, and with that capital he has expanded until only the other day he was able to put $180,000 in gold into mining machinery for use in his mine at Prinzo Pulca. Mr. Paul Renner has a mine there for which he was offered $200,000 not long ago and refused to sell.

Seek Expert Opinion

College Professors and Students Write to Statesmen for Information.

College professors and students give members of the senate much to think of in the way of moot questions. A day seldom passes by without bringing in the senatorial mail a batch of letters from educational institutions in which all sorts of questions are asked of the statesmen. Toward commencement time this mail increases, but it provides food for thought at all time. These questions are sent out in order to secure for students arguments to be used in contests before debating societies and in preparation for their class theses. Sometimes college professors seek in this way to get material for magazine articles or for lectures to be delivered before their classes.

The lists of questions that in this manner usually come into the possession of senators usually bear upon matters that are before congress or before the country. For a long time there has been a preponderance of queries relating to the foreign possessions of the United States and the tariff and reciprocity have held their own for many years. Here is a list of questions that have recently come to town: Do you believe in reciprocity? Why? On what articles? Will reciprocity destroy the protective system? To what countries should it be extended and what articles of commerce should it include? etc.

Senators are asked to tell why they are republicans, democrats or populists; how they would vote under conditions that can never possibly arise and what they think of unthinkable subjects. When the questions are reasonable and the senators are good natured and have spare time on their hands replies are sometimes given to these letters, says the Washington Star, but generally, unless they come from the senators' own state, they are looked after by the discerning secretary, who simply replies that the senator, because of a pressure of public business, is unable to reply to the queries.

CROWNS, NOT BONNETS

American Women of Wealth Who Ape the Manners of the Euopean Nobility.

Do you remember when good, old-fashioned society women sat by the hour and talked bonnets? When there were whispered comments to the effect that Mrs. A. looked like a fright in hers and that Mrs. B.'s (providing Mrs. B., of course, was the one addressed) was simply a dream? There is no more of it. You may possibly hear Mrs. C. say that Mrs. D.'s new crown isn't a bit becoming, but bonnets are a very minor consideration, indeed.

These crowns are really and truly ones, although some are more modestly referred to as coronets and others as tiaras. I can trace their use in America no farther back than the third Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who died in 1887, says a writer in Ainslee's, but her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Astor, was almost as early in the field with the royal insignia.

The value of these ornaments varies from $20,000 to $50,000 each. The present Mrs. John Jacob Astor has two, one solely of diamonds and valued at $50,000, the other of diamonds and emeralds, valued at $30,000; while Mrs. Ogden Mills possesses three, with a total value of $85,000, one composed of diamonds, another of diamonds and pearls and the third of diamonds and emeralds.

Others who have adopted a custom that was first a bit startling are Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. William Starr Miller, Mrs. Bradley Martin, Mrs. William D. Sloane, Mrs. Levi P. Morton, Mrs. Alfred S. Post, Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, Mrs. George Jay Gould, Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes, Mrs. Perry Tiffany, Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.

NATURE AND ORIGIN OF AMBERGRIS

Peculiar Ideas That Have Been Entertained of This Substance.

Ambergris is generally found floating on the surface of the sea, and very different ideas have been entertained as to its nature and origin. It appears, however, that so early as the middle of the sixteenth century it was known to have some connection with the whales, although the nature of this connection was not fully realized. One writer, for instance, in describing a sperm whale stranded on the Norfolk coast, expresses his surprise at not finding ambergris in its stomach. Although the idea that ambergris is swallowed by the sperm whale is erroneous, the writer in question was quite correct in regarding that substance as pertaining to this particular species of cetacean. The fact that it contains the horny beaks of squids and cuttles belonging to species that form the food of the gigantic sperm whale, or cachelot (by far the largest of the cetaceans furnished with teeth) is evidence that it is a product of that monster. And from time to time it is actually found in the alimentary canal of that whale. It appears, indeed, to be a biliary concretion, closely analogous in its nature to bezoar stones, and due to the existence of disease in the individuals in which it occurs. In place, therefore, of being found only in old and strong specimens, it is generally at least met with rather in those in poor condition, or which have died a natural death. When first taken from the sperm whale's interior, ambergris is a soft, greasy substance, exhaling an exceedingly disagreeable odor, and it is only after exposure to the air that it hardens and acquires its characteristic aroma, which is described as being sweet and earthy.—Knowledge.

An Enterprising Duchess

One queer phase of the recent trip of the Duchess of Sutherland to Russia, in company with the Duchess of Marlborough, didn't get into the papers. The Duchess, who is rich, and lovely, is one of the most energetic young women in the kingdom, and is especially interested in the peasants who make the Scotch tweeds. For the sake of promoting their industry, she packed several of her trunks with samples of the highland tweeds, and on arriving at St. Petersburg spread out her goods like a commercial traveler and issued invitations to the leading tailors of St. Petersburg and Moscow to come, see and buy. She believes that, as a result of her efforts, a new market will be opened for the product of the highland cotters.

Envy is the offspring of ignorance. There never was a good war or a bad peace.—Benjamin Franklin.

THE HUMOR OF LIFE.

JOKES AND JESTS WRITTEN WITH INTENT TO BE AMUSING.

Woes of Early Egyptian Poets—Tramp Resents Suggestion of Well-Meaning Old-Lady—Youngster Thought Circus Better Than Prayer Meeting.

Made in Heaven.

Little Ethel, a Columbus five-year-old, recently heard her mamma say that there wasn't a match in the house. That night when the mother heard Ethel's prayer the little girl concluded by saying: "And please, Dod, send us a box uv matches. Amen."

"Why do you ask God for matches, Ethel?" asked the parent in surprise.

"Coz," replied Ethel, "didn't Aunt Ruth say that matches wuz made in heaven?"—Ohio State Journal.

Slightly Nervous.

Everything was in readiness. The groom, best man and the minister were gathered in the vestry. The organist began to play and the minister started for the door.

"Wait one moment, doctor," called the nervous groom. "Is it the right or left hand the ring goes on?"

"The left," hurriedly replied the minister.

"And doctor, is—is it kisstomary to cuss the bride?"

But the minister had fled.

Points of View.

"Marie," he said, passionately, as he threw himself at the feet of the rich widow, "will you be my wife?"

"Yes, John," she murmured, putting her arms about his neck. "It means the sacrifice of my fortune, for my income from my late husband's estate ceases on my second marriage but my love for you is such—"

"Marie, I can not accept the sacrifice! It is too much! I will be a brother to you!"

A Horrible Suggestion.

"Did you see the prince?"

"Yes."

"What do you think of him?"

"Well," answered the man who has a hollow where the bump of veneration ought to be, "he has my approval. He knows what's business. He realizes that nobody would pay to see him and is willing to give the show free for the sake of the advertisement."—Washington Star.

Livelier.

The child of strict parents, whose greatest joy had hitherto been the weekly prayer meeting, was taken to the circus by his nurse. When he came home:

"O mamma," he exclaimed, "if you once went to the circus you'd never go to prayer-meeting again in all your life."—North American.

A Relief.

"You are taking a great deal of interest in society."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I used to make fun of receptions and that sort of thing. But I declare it's something of a relief to get into a gathering of people where nobody can make a political speech or a touch for a campaign fund."

Genuine Grief.

"Poor man! He was so cut up yesterday. He got a telephone message that his wife's pet dog had been run over and killed."

"Why should the death of a dog make him feel so badly?"

"That wasn't it. He felt badly when he got home and found it was all a mistake."

Things That Have Passed.

Upgardson—If you are tired of your team of Shetland ponies, why don't you trade them off for something?

Atom—The only trade I can make is with Thankerley. He offers to give me two or three dozen Belgian hares for them.

A Selfish Plea.

Cora—And why should I think twice before I refuse you?

Merritt—Because, my dear, a girl never thinks the same twice.

Within Call

The authoress, Mrs. Julius M. Thruston, is revising at the present time the final sheets of a novel, said to be a Baltimore romance, which is shortly to be in the hands of the publishers.

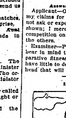
She was one day this week dictating to her amanuensis a passionate love scene, in which the hero in intense excitement calls to the woman of his heart: "Darling! Sweetheart!" The voice of the reader was unconsciously raised in appeal when the door quickly opened and the woolly head of a daughter of Africa was thrust within, while its possessor inquired in dulcet tones, "Did you call me?"

Answered in Paradox.

Applicant—Of course, in presenting my claims for this appointment, I do not ask or expect any preference to be shown; I merely desire to enter the competition on the same footing with the others.

Examiner—Precisely, but you must bear in mind that in estimating comparative fitness, a man's footing will have little to do with it; it will be his head that will establish his standing.

His Idea.



Tramp. Yes'm; I takes er bath 'bout oncet er month.

Kind Lady. You should bathe three or four times a week.

Tramp. Say! look! I ain't no mermaid.

Pressing.

The girl wrote feverishly, turning out four or five great historical novels per month.

As she was but 15, her entourage were concerned and remonstrated.

"Will you take time to bud into womanhood?" said they.

"Well, I should say nit!" replied she. "Why, this can be done any time, regardless of market conditions."—New York Sun.

A Sense of Indignation.

"It's a shame!" exclaimed Meandering Mike, as he tossed the piece of newspaper from him.

"What was you readin' about?" asked Plodding Pete.

"Dese donations by Andrew Carnegie. It's a shame to be spendin' so much money for libraries when dey ortor be buyin' cook books fur some o' dese jails we have to stop at."

One of His Ways.

"I can't think," said the girl with the Julia Marlowe dimple, "what made Algy act so strangely last night."

"Did he propose to you at any time during the evening?" asked the girl with the Maude Adams nose.

"Yes."

"Then he must have been drinking."

Balloonists Need Passports.

The Russian officials have announced that balloonists must have passports. This means that should you drop out of a balloon and fall into Russian territory the result my be serious to you, if you are found to be without a passport signed by a Russian consul.

The Secret

"How does it come you write such lovely dialect verse?" asked the enthusiastic editor.

"Why, you see," replied the budding author, "I use a stub pen, and lots of ink, write left-handed with my eyes blindfolded."

He Was Shrewd.

"Bunkins takes life very easily."

"But he is always telling hard-luck stories."

"Yes; that shows his shrewdness. If he put in all that time telling funny stories people would say he was loafing."

His Definition.

"What is your idea of a statesman?"

"A statesman!" said Farmer Corntossel, "is an officeholder who can quit thinkin' about quail on toast once in a while and remember the American eagle."

Couldn't Be Mistaken.

Miriam—What makes you so positive Miss Sereleaf is past 40?

Mellicent—An infallible sign—she is beginning to wear hats suitable for girls of 20.

Unnecessary.

He—Don't you think you could learn to love me?

She—What's the use? I have too many expensive tastes as it is.—Life.

His Idea of Time.

Teacher: Can you name the four seasons of the year?

Rastus: Cherry time, watermillion time, 'possum time and rabbit time.

Shy on Change.

"Could you change a ten-dollar bill for me, Henry?"

"Couldn't even change my mind this morning, my dear."

Mrs. Annie McKay, Chaplain Sons of Temperance, 326 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Cured of Severe Female Troubles by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Being a mother of five children I have had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was lacerated when one of my children was born and from that hour I date all my afflictions. I found that within a few months my health was impaired, I had female weakness and serious inflammation and frequent flooding. I became weak and dizzy but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure. A neighbor who had been helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound insisted that I take at least one bottle. I did so and felt so much better that I kept on the treatment. For seven months I used the Compound faithfully and gladly do I say it, health and strength are mine once more. I know how to value it now when it was so nearly lost, and I appreciate how great a debt I owe you. The few dollars I spent for the medicine cannot begin to pay what it was worth to me. Yours very truly, MRS. ANNA MCKAY, Chaplain Sons of Temperance."

THE NEWS,
By John W. Eastman.
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

The opposition to Gov. Van Sant has at last conceded that the governor will be nominated to succeed himself.

Red Lake County will be entitled to eight delegates to the Republican state convention to be held at St. Paul on July 1st.

Senator Nelson states that all of the candidates for the Republican nomination for congressman in this district are his friends and that he has no choice.

Auditor Halden, of St. Louis county, should change his residence if he desires to secure the Republican nomination for state auditor. The people do not desire a candidate from the iron range country.

The new primary election law will not prove as popular in the selection of county officials as its authors had perhaps intended. It requires a candidate to make two campaigns for the office which in many cases is not worth it.

The Red Lake Falls Courier last week started a campaign against County Commissioner John Hebert, who is a candidate for re-election. It is said that the people of Red Lake Falls are dissatisfied with the actions of "Uncle Johnnie," and will try hard to secure his defeat. To an outsider it looks like a case of ingratitude. Mr. Hebert surely has always stood by the Red Lake Falls people.

It has been customary for some years for state conventions to adopt resolutions condemning trusts and combinations in restraint of trade, and recommending that proper measures be taken to suppress them. These resolutions have been adopted in many cases without much attention being paid to them, and have been drafted by committees out of deference to a vague popular sentiment with no belief that they were intended to mean anything in particular, says the Grand Forks Herald. Just now conditions are different, and the action of the Illinois convention in adopting resolutions of this character must be accepted as indicating much more than the adoption of the same resolutions would have done two or three years ago. The enforcement of laws against combinations which operate in restraint of trade, and the enactment of other laws more practical and more easily enforced is a present issue in American politics. The country is now more deeply interested in this subject than it has ever been before, and the efforts of the national administration to secure tangible results from the laws which are already on the statute books are being watched with an intensity of interest which has seldom been approached. The action of the republican party of Illinois in approving of the efforts being made in this direction is very significant as to the side which the party in that state expects to take in the controversy. Not less significant is the action of the convention in specifically endorsing the president in his action on this particular question. If there is opposition to renomination of President Roosevelt that opposition will be because of his attitude on this very question. The republican leaders of Illinois by their action of Thursday stand committed to the renomination of Roosevelt. This is the logic of the situation and there can be no escape from it.

SUDDEN DEATH

Fred Fair Died at Winnipeg Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Fair received a telegram from Winnipeg Sunday telling her of the death of her husband at an early hour that morning. She had no previous knowledge of his sickness. Mr. Fair had been sick but a few days and death was caused by jaundice.

The deceased was one of the best known wrestlers in the Northwest, and in company with Al Hallat and John Rogers, of this city, was making a tour of Canada when taken sick. He leaves besides his wife and young daughter in this city, a father and mother, who reside at Rolla, N. D., where the remains have been taken for burial.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

11 TO 13.

LaBree Avenue Defeated the Mill Crew.

The game of ball Sunday between the Mill club and the La Bree avenue club resulted in a victory for the latter club. Had the La Bree avenue players had the same team they originally started in with this season, the mill boys would have undoubtedly defeated them, but they were greatly aided by H. Fant, who used to play with the Buffalo league. He not only caught every ball that came his way, but knocked the the ball far over the out fielders heads every time he went to bat.

LUMBERMEN.

In Washington to Safeguard Their Interets.

According to dispatches from Washington a number of lumbermen interested in logging on the Clearwater river arrived in Washington the first of the week for the purpose of conferring with Secretary Hitchcock regarding the Red Lake Indian bill. They do not want to allow settlers to bring suits against them for land they overflow with dams on the Clearwater river.

ABOUT 20.

To Be Graduated Into the High School.

Arrangements are being made for commencement day exercises to be held in a big tent to be located on corner near the bridge this year on the evening of May 30. A class of about twenty wil. be graduated into the high school. An interesting program is promised.

TODAY.

Contract for Building New School House.

The contract for the building of the new Thief River Falls high school will be let this afternoon by the board of Independent School District No. 18. It is thought that there will be quite a large number of bids, and the board has hopes that the work will done at a very reasonable figure.

No Cases Tried.

A regular term of the municipal court was held Tuesday, but there were no cases tried. The first case called was that of M. K. Wall vs. James Meehan, and was dismissed upon motion of the plaintiff's attorney. The other case was that of T. P. Hamre vs. O. J. Knox and this was dismissed for want of prosecution.

Young Men's Sunday.

E. W. Peck, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. will be in the city next Sunday, May 25, and hold a Young Man's Sunday. Union services will be held in the Methodist church.

One lot in center of St. Hilaire containing buildings will be sold for $1000 C. A. Chelin.

TESTIMONY.

In the Famous Moose Dung Case Taken.

Testimony in the Moose Dung land case was taken in this city last Friday before Camden West, as referee. About 25 witnesses were examined and the testimony will be transmitted to the state supreme court where the case is now pending. The point at issue was whether or not the Indians who seek to get control of the property had or had not severed their connections with the tribe Indians and the defense were well pleased with the outcome. Chas. Loring, of Crookston, represented the Indians while Attorney Lee, of this city and Attorney Olds, of St. Paul looked after the interests of the defendants.

ORGANIZE.

Presbyterian Society Elects Trustees.

A meeting of the members of the Presbyterian church society met in the city hall Tuesday evening and elected the following board of trustees: D. N. Winton, chairman; S. F. Staples, treasurer; James Wilson, secretary; F. J. Stebbins, Dr. Grundy, Fred Purdy and Daniel Shaw. It is the intention of the trustees elected to at once commence the erection of a church. The society has the lots on which the church is to be built all paid for and about $2,300 of available cash. Rev. Dade has been hired as pastor by the month.

SHOE SOCIAL.

The Royal Neighbors are in need of cash.
But we desire to do nothing rash,
So a Shoe Social we will hold,
And our plan for this we now unfold;
Just take the number of your shoe,
And simply multiply by two,
If the size of the shoe you wear is four
Eight cents will let you through the door.
We'll entertain you with song and jest
And ice cream and cake of the very best.
If for any cause you cannot come,
Please send some shoe from out your home.
If a maiden coy, both young and sweet,
She may bring "him," too, and both M—
A welcome Royal will greet you all,
So bring your shoes to Odd Fellow's hall.
The social will make fun for you,
The date, Wednesday, June 4, 1902.

Tomorrow Night.

The Epworth League will give a basket social Friday evening, May 23, in the Cleveland Hotel.

All ladies are requested to bring a basket containing a lunch and a night-cap which will be sold, the purchaser's partner will be the lady wearing a corresponding night-cap.

Call on the committee for instructions in making night-caps according to the latest style, F. W. D. K. H. D.

Ladies are requested not to put lunch in night-caps but in box.

Gentlemen may retain their night-caps purchased for future use.

MAY 30.

Decoration Day to Be Observed Here.

Decoration Day will be observed in Thief River Falls this year. At a meeting held last Friday night a committee consisting of Ira C. Richardson, W. A. Wright, W. B. Fuller, E. E. Zoh and James Wilson were appointed to have charge of affairs. These gentlemen are at work preparing a program, which will be published in the News next week.

W. A. Wright will have charge of the musical program. James A. Wilson of the program by the scholars of the public schools. Ira C. Richardson will have charge of securing speakers for the day. W. B. Fuller and C. F. Umbreit will be in charge of exercises for veterans. W. C. Smiley has been appointed marshall of day.

The program will be given in the big tent, after which the procession will march to the cemetery and decorate the graves.

Soil a Safe Investment;

In an interview in the Commercial West, James J. Hill says that the present farm land movement is permanent and will continue. He says that there is nothing of the boom about it, that it is normal natural and necessary. Mr. Hill says:

"The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 4,000 daily. We are growing at the rate of 1,500,00 a year. Inside of fifty years we will have 150,000,000 people. They must move onto the new lands and nowhere is there the opportunity in cheap, fertile lands and in all lines of human energy and enterprise, supplemented by transportation facilities to the best markets, that there is right here in the northwest.

"The cities cannot absorb the 50,000,000 increase in population in the next thirty years. The bulk of the population must be engaged in productive occupations. The bulk of this increase must go to the farms, and they pour into the northwest as naturally as water runs down hill.

"North Dakota and Manitoba have received the heaviest immigration because they have more wild, cheap land and because they have worked harder for it. They have worked while Minnesota has been sitting still waiting for somebody to do the work for her. Minnesota has received all and more than she could expect under the circumstances. The present movement is simply one of those population movements which have characterized the race from the earliest recorded time. Men adhere to the soil from which they draw subsistence and will go wherever soil and climate offer best inducements. The movement into the northwest is in accord with the general law. It is a normal and substantial fact.

THE NEWS,

By John W. Eastman.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

The opposition to Gov. Van Sant has at last conceded that the governor will be nominated to succeed himself.

Red Lake County will be entitled to eight delegates to the Republican state convention to be held at St. Paul on July 1st.

Senator Nelson states that all of the candidates for the Republican nomination for congressman in this district are his friends and that he has no choice.

Auditor Halden, of St. Louis county, should change his residence if he desires to secure the Republican nomination for state auditor. The people do not desire a candidate from the iron range country.

The new primary election law will not prove as popular in the selection of county officials as its authors had perhaps intended. It requires a candidate to make two campaigns for the office which in many cases is not worth it.

The Red Lake Falls Courier last week started a campaign against County Commissioner John Hobert, who is a candidate for re-election. It is said that the people of Red Lake Falls are dissatisfied with the actions of "Uncle Johnnie," and will try hard to secure his defeat. To an outsider it looks like a case of ingratitude. Mr. Hobert surely has always stood by the Red Lake Falls people.

It has been customary for some years for state conventions to adopt resolutions condemning trusts and combinations in restraint of trade, and recommending that proper measures be taken to suppress them. These resolutions have been adopted in many cases without much attention being paid to them, and have been drafted by committees out of deference to a vague popular sentiment with no belief that they were intended to mean anything in particular, says the Grand Forks Herald. Just now conditions are different, and the action of the Illinois convention in adopting resolutions of this character must be accepted as indicating much more than the adoption of the same resolutions would have done two or three years ago. The enforcement of laws against combinations which operate in restraint of trade, and the enactment of other laws more practical and more easily enforced is a present issue in American politics. The country is now more deeply interested in this subject than it has ever been before, and the efforts of the national administration to secure tangible results from the laws which are already on the statute books are being watched with an intensity of interest which has seldom been approached. The action of the republican party of Illinois in approving of the efforts being made in this direction is very significant as to the side which the party in that state expects to take in the controversy. Not less significant is the action of the convention in specifically endorsing the president in his action on this particular question. If there is opposition to renomination of President Roosevelt that opposition will be because of his attitude on this very question. The republican leaders of Illinois by their action of Thursday stand committed to the renomination of Roosevelt. This is the logic of the situation and there can be no escape from it.

HON. EZRA G. VALENTINE,
Of Breckenridge, President of the State Drainage Board and Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Congressman in the Ninth District.

SUDDEN DEATH

Fred Fair Died at Winnipeg Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Fair received a telegram from Winnipeg Sunday telling her of the death of her husband at an early hour that morning. She had no previous knowledge of his sickness. Mr. Fair had been sick but a few days and death was caused by jaundice.

The deceased was one of the best known wrestlers in the Northwest, and in company with Al Hallat and John Rogers, of this city, was making a tour of Canada when taken sick. He leaves besides his wife and young daughter in this city, a father and mother, who reside at Rolla, N. D., where the remains have been taken for burial.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

LaBree Avenue Defeated the Mill Crew.

The game of ball Sunday between the Mill club and the La Bree avenue club resulted in a victory for the latter club. Had the La Bree avenue players had the same team they originally started in with this season, the mill boys would have undoubtedly defeated them, but they were greatly aided by H. Fant, who used to play with the Buffalo league. He not only caught every ball that came his way, but knocked the the ball far over the out fielders heads every time he went to bat.

LUMBERMEN.

In Washington to Safeguard Their Interets.

According to dispatches from Washington a number of lumbermen interested in logging on the Clearwater river arrived in Washington the first of the week for the purpose of conferring with Secretary Hitchcock regarding the Red Lake Indian bill. They do not want to allow settlers to bring suits against them for land they overflow with dams on the Clearwater river.

TESTIMONY.

In the Famous Moose Dung Case Taken.

Testimony in the Moose Dung land case was taken in this city last Friday before Camden West, as referee. About 25 witnesses were examined and the testimony will be transmitted to the state supreme court where the case is now pending. The point at issue was whether or not the Indians who seek to get control of the property had or had not severed their connections with the tribe Indians and the defense were well pleased with the outcome. Chas. Loring, of Crookston, represented the Indians while Attorney Lee, of this city and Attorney Olds, of St. Paul looked after the interests of the defendants.

ORGANIZE.

Presbyterian Society Elects Trustees.

A meeting of the members of the Presbyterian church society met in the city hall Tuesday evening and elected the following board of trustees: D. N. Winton, chairman; S. F. Staples, treasurer; James Wilson, secretary; F. J. Stebbins, Dr. Grundy, Fred Purdy and Daniel Shaw. It is the intention of the trustees elected to at once commence the erection of a church. The society has the lots on which the church is to be built all paid for and about $2,300 of available cash. Rev. Dade has been hired as pastor by the month.

SHOE SOCIAL.

The Royal Neighbors are in need of cash.
But we desire to do nothing rash,
So a Shoe Social we will hold,
And our plan for this we now unfold;
Just take the number of your shoe,
And simply multiply by two;
If the size of the shoe you wear is four
Eight cents will let you through the door.
We'll entertain you with song and jest
And ice cream and cake of the very best.
If for any cause you cannot come,
Please send some shoe from out your home.
If a maiden coy, both young and sweet,
She may bring "him," too, and both his feet.
A welcome Royal will greet you all,
So bring your shoes to Odd Fellow's hall.
The social will make fun for you,
The date, Wednesday, June 4, 1902.

Tomorrow Night.

The Epworth League will give a basket social Friday evening, May 23, in the Cleveland Hotel.

All ladies are requested to bring a basket containing a lunch and a night-cap which will be sold, the purchaser's partner will be the lady wearing a corresponding night-cap.

Call on the committee for instructions in making night-caps according to the latest style, F. W. D. K. H. D.

Ladies are requested not to put lunch in night-caps but in box.

Gentlemen may retain their night-caps purchased for future use.

MAY 30.

Decoration Day to Be Observed Here.

Decoration Day will be observed in Thief River Falls this year. At a meeting held last Friday night a committee consisting of Ira C. Richardson, W. A. Wright, W. B. Fuller, E. E. Zoh and James Wilson were appointed to have charge of affairs. These gentlemen are at work preparing a program, which will be published in the NEWS next week.

W. A. Wright will have charge of the musical program. James A. Wilson of the program by the scholars of the public schools. Ira C. Richardson will have charge of securing speakers for the day. W. B. Fuller and C. F. Umbreit will be in charge of exercises for veterans. W. C. Smiley has been appointed marshall of day.

The program will be given in the big tent, after which the procession will march to the cemetery and decorate the graves.

Soil a Safe Investment;

In an interview in the Commercial West, James J. Hill says that the present farm land movement is permanent and will continue. He says that there is nothing of the boom about it, that it is normal natural and necessary. Mr. Hill says:

"The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 4,000 daily. We are growing at the rate of 1,500,00 a year. Inside of fifty years we will have 150,000,000 people. They must move onto the new lands and nowhere is there the opportunity in cheap, fertile lands and in all lines of human energy and enterprise, supplemented by transportation facilities to the best markets, that there is right here in the northwest.

"The cities cannot absorb the 50,000,000 increase in population in the next thirty years. The bulk of the population must be engaged in productive occupations. The bulk of this increase must go to the farms, and they pour into the northwest as naturally as water runs down hill.

"North Dakota and Manitoba have received the heaviest immigration because they have more wild, cheap land and because they have worked harder for it. They have worked while Minnesota has been sitting still waiting for somebody to do the work for her. Minnesota has received all and more than she could expect under the circumstances. The present movement is simply one of those population movements which have characterized the race from the earliest recorded time. Men adhere to the soil from which they draw subsistence and will go wherever soil and climate offer best inducements. The movement into the northwest is in accord with the general law. It is a normal and substantial fact.

HIMLE'S STORE

THE NEWS,
By John W. Eastman.
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

The opposition to Gov. Van Sant has at last conceded that the governor will be nominated to succeed himself.

Red Lake County will be entitled to eight delegates to the Republican state convention to be held at St. Paul on July 1st.

Senator Nelson states that all of the candidates for the Republican nomination for congressman in this district are his friends and that he has no choice.

Auditor Haldon, of St. Louis county, should change his residence if he desires to secure the Republican nomination for state auditor. The people do not desire a candidate from the iron range country.

The new primary election law will not prove as popular in the selection of county officials as its authors had perhaps intended. It requires a candidate to make two campaigns for the office which in many cases is not worth it.

The Red Lake Falls Courier last week started a campaign against County Commissioner John Hobert, who is a candidate for re-election. It is said that the people of Red Lake Falls are dissatisfied with the actions of "Uncle Johnnie," and will try hard to secure his defeat. To an outsider it looks like a case of ingratitude. Mr. Hobert surely has always stood by the Red Lake Falls people.

It has been customary for some years for state conventions to adopt resolutions condemning trusts and combinations in restraint of trade, and recommending that proper measures be taken to suppress them. These resolutions have been adopted in many cases without much attention being paid to them, and have been drafted by committees out of deference to a vague popular sentiment with no belief that they were intended to mean anything in particular, says the Grand Forks Herald. Just now conditions are different, and the action of the Illinois convention in adopting resolutions of this character must be accepted as indicating much more than the adoption of the same resolutions would have done two or three years ago. The enforcement of laws against combinations which operate in restraint of trade, and the enactment of other laws more practical and more easily enforced is a present issue in American politics. The country is now more deeply interested in this subject than it has ever been before, and the efforts of the national administration to secure tangible results from the laws which are already on the statute books are being watched with an intensity of interest which has seldom been approached. The action of the republican party of Illinois in approving of the efforts being made in this direction is very significant as to the side which the party in that state expects to take in the controversy. Not less significant is the action of the convention in specifically endorsing the president in his action on this particular question. If there is opposition to renomination of President Roosevelt that opposition will be because of his attitude on this very question. The republican leaders of Illinois by their action of Thursday stand committed to the renomination of Roosevelt. This is the logic of the situation and there can be no escape from it.

SUDDEN DEATH

Fred Fair Died at Winnipeg Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Fair received a telegram from Winnipeg Sunday telling her of the death of her husband at an early hour that morning. She had no previous knowledge of his sickness. Mr. Fair had been sick but a few days and death was caused by jaundice.

The deceased was one of the best known wrestlers in the Northwest, and in company with Al Hallat and John Rogers, of this city, was making a tour of Canada when taken sick. He leaves besides his wife and young daughter in this city, a father and mother, who reside at Rolla, N. D., where the remains have been taken for burial.

Chas W. Wilson wants to buy wild and improved farms lands in Red Lake and Marshall county. If you want to sell see him.

We have unlimited money to loan on improved farms. Will loan on final receiver's receipt. Interest reasonable. No delays. Northern Real Estate & Mortgage Co. Office next First State Bank.

LaBree Avenue Defeated the Mill Crew.

The game of ball Sunday between the Mill club and the La Bree avenue club resulted in a victory for the latter club. Had the La Bree avenue players had the same team they originally started in with this season, the mill boys would have undoubtedly defeated them, but they were greatly aided by H. Fant, who used to play with the Buffalo league. He not only caught every ball that came his way, but knocked the the ball far over the out fielders heads every time he went to bat.

LUMBERMEN.

In Washington to Safeguard Their Interets.

According to dispatches from Washington a number of lumbermen interested in logging on the Clearwater river arrived in Washington the first of the week for the purpose of conferring with Secretary Hitchcock regarding the Red Lake Indian bill. They do not want to allow settlers to bring suits against them for land they overflow with dams on the Clearwater river.

TESTIMONY.

In the Famous Moose Dung Case Taken.

Testimony in the Moose Dung land case was taken in this city last Friday before Camden West, as referee. About 25 witnesses were examined and the testimony will be transmitted to the state supreme court where the case is now pending. The point at issue was whether or not the Indians who seek to get control of the property had or had not severed their connections with the tribe Indians and the defense were well pleased with the outcome. Chas. Loring, of Crookston, represented the Indians while Attorney Lee, of this city and Attorney Olds, of St. Paul looked after the interests of the defendants.

Presbyterian Society Elects Trustees.

A meeting of the members of the Presbyterian church society met in the city hall Tuesday evening and elected the following board of trustees: D. N. Winton, chairman; S. F. Staples, treasurer; James Wilson, secretary; F. J. Stebbins, Dr. Grundy, Fred Purdy and Daniel Shaw. It is the intention of the trustees elected to at once commence the erection of a church. The society has the lots on which the church is to be built all paid for and about $2,800 of available cash. Rev. Dade has been hired as pastor by the month.

SHOE SOCIAL.

The Royal Neighbors are in need of cash,
But we desire to do nothing rash,
So a Shoe Social we will hold,
And our plan for this we now unfold:
Just take the number of your shoe,
And simply multiply by two,
If the size of the shoe you wear is four
Eight cents will let you through the door.
We'll entertain you with song and jest
And ice cream and cake of the very best.
If for any cause you cannot come,
Please send some shoe from out your home.
If a maiden coy, both young and sweet,
She may bring "him," too, and both be treated.
A welcome Royal will greet you all.
So bring your shoes to Odd Fellow's hall.
The social will make fun for you,
The date, Wednesday, June 4, 1902.

Tomorrow Night.

The Epworth League will give a basket social Friday evening, May 23, in the Cleveland Hotel.

Soil a Safe Investment;

In an interview in the Commercial West, James J. Hill says that the present farm land movement is permanent and will continue. He says that there is nothing of the boom about it, that it is normal natural and necessary. Mr. Hill says:

"The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 4,000 daily. We are growing at the rate of 1,500,00 a year. Inside of fifty years we will have 150,000,000 people. They must move onto the new lands and nowhere is there the opportunity in cheap, fertile lands and in all lines of human energy and enterprise, supplemented by transportation facilities to the best markets, that there is right here in the northwest.

"The cities cannot absorb the 50,000,000 increase in population in the next thirty years. The bulk of the population must be engaged in productive occupations. The bulk of this increase must go to the farms, and they pour into the northwest as naturally as water runs down hill.

"North Dakota and Manitoba have received the heaviest immigration because they have more wild, cheap land and because they have worked harder for it. They have worked while Minnesota has been sitting still waiting for somebody to do the work for her. Minnesota has received all and more than she could expect under the circumstances. The present movement is simply one of those population movements which have characterized the race from the earliest recorded time. Men adhere to the soil from which they draw subsistence and will go wherever soil and climate offer best inducements. The movement into the northwest is in accord with the general law. It is a normal and substantial fact.

LARD TANKS GO UP

EXPLOSION CAUSES A DISASTROUS FIRE IN ARMOUR'S LARD REFINERY.

TWENTY-NINE PEOPLE ARE INJURED

LOSS TO THE COMPANY WILL REACH BETWEEN $750,000 AND $900,000.

THOUSAND PEOPLE TAKE A FALL

HOG RUNWAY COLLAPSES, THROWING SPECTATORS TO THE GROUND.

Chicago, May 18. — During the progress of a fire which last night destroyed the lard refinery of Armour & Co. in the Union stock yards, twenty-nine people were injured; five of them in a manner which probably will cause death in a short time. The loss to the company is estimated by its officers at between $750,000 and $900,000, with all the chances in favor of the latter figure. There was a number of accidents, but by far the largest number of those who were hurt met their injuries by the falling of the hog runway upon which they were standing to obtain a better view of the fire.

The lard refinery had just been completed and was considered by its owners the most complete establishment of its kind in the United States. It was filled with new and costly machinery, and during the day 2,000 people worked within its walls. The night shift numbered 700, and all of them were in the building when the fire broke out. It is thought all escaped in safety, although the time allowed some of them was exceedingly brief.

Caused by an Explosion.

The fire originated with an explosion of three lard tanks on the fifth floor of the building. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but the three tanks which were filled with boiling lard, went up with a roar almost in the same second. There was a score of workmen in the immediate vicinity of the tanks and a number of them were burned by the scalding lard, but none was seriously burned. It was not a minute after the explosion before the entire fifth floor was a mass of flames. All the workmen in the building made a frantic rush for safety, and while all reached the open air without trouble, some of those on the fifth floor lost their hats and coats, there not being an instant of time allowed in which to pick them up. Despite the utmost efforts of the fire department the flames spread through the entire building, and within an hour after the commencement of the fire, all the walls, with the exception of that on the south side, were lying on the ground. The fire was one of the most spectacular that has been seen in Chicago in recent years and the display attracted an who crowded all the narrow streets in the stock yards and swarmed by thousands upon the viaducts which pass through the yards at a height of twenty feet from the ground. That portion of the Forty-fourth street viaduct close to the burning building was densely packed, and suddenly about 200 feet of a hog runway extending from the viaduct north to the plant of Armour & Co., gave way, precipitating fully one thousand persons to the ground. The firemen instantly abandoned their work on the building and devoted their energies to saving the people. All were taken from the wreckage within a few minutes and placed in an improvised hospital in the plant of the German-American Provision company, which was itself badly damaged by fire during the early part of the week. It is said by the police that the number of those injured by the fall of the viaduct is greatly in excess of the number reported, as there were many who were but slightly hurt, and being able to go to their homes without assistance, no knowledge of them was obtained by the authorities.

Enormous Crowd of People

CANNIBALS EAT THEM.

Natives of German New Guinea Celebrate Building of House in Horrible Fashion.

Victoria, B. C., May 18.—News was received in Brisbane before the steamer Miowera, which arrived yesterday, left that port, of another missionary tragedy in New Guinea. Interisland steamers brought details of the massacre of Mrs. Wolff, wife of Rev. Henwig Wolff, her infant and some blacks of the mission by natives on Pipparatava, German New Guinea. The Missionary was absent and a tribe were about to erect a new house. As custom decrees that such events shall be celebrated by a cannibal feast, they attacked the mission. Miss Coe, a visiting teacher, escaped. The police pursued and killed thirty of the guilty tribe.

MEAT RIOTS STILL ON.

New York Hebrew Women Have Police Against Them.

New York, May 18. — Rioting about the Kosher meat markets in the East side of this city yesterday was continued, although the regular police forces of the district were reinforced by 500 men of the reserves. Many of the small butcher shops on the East side were not opened for business at all yesterday. The trouble is the outcome of a mass meeting of Hebrew women, held Wednesday night, at which it was decided to boycott the butchers as long as the present high prices continue.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES.

Heinze Is Accused of Blowing Up Slope in Minnie Healy Mine.

Helena, Mont., May 18.—The supreme court has ordered a hearing Tuesday of the sensational charges filed by the Amalgamated Copper company in its application for injunction restraining F. August Heinze from operating the Minnie Healy mine, title to which is in litigation between them. The Amalgamated alleges that Heinze is blowing up the slopes to conceal the quantity of ore being extracted by him.

CONGRESS.

Minority Declines to Fix Time for Vote on the Philippine Bill.

Washington, May 17.—An effort was made by Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts in the senate yesterday to induce the minority to fix a time when a vote might be taken on the Philippine government bill, but Mr. Dubois of Idaho, speaking for the Democratic side, did not desire to specify a date for the vote. Assurances were given that the minority was not seeking for delay, but wished simply that discussion should be exhausted before the vote was taken.

Mr. McLaurin of Mississippi concluded his speech begun Thursday in opposition to the present philippine policy of the government, which, he maintained, was responsible for all the ills that had come to the United States in those islands. Mr. Deboe of Kentuckey supported the pending measure in a carefully prepared speech, maintaining that the policy outlined by McKinley ought to be followed to the end.

In the House.

The house had another lively day of debate yesterday, Philippine atrocities and the Schley case coming in for considerable attention. The naval appropriation bill received little attention after the more exciting themes of debate came up.

WILL NOT RETURN TO QUEBEC.

Gaynor and Greene Are Remanded for Hearing at Montreal.

Montreal, Que., May 18.—Messrs. Gaynor and Greene are guests at the Windsor hotel, each guarded by a local detective, with a force of United States secret service agents unofficially in reserve. They will not go back to Quebec, much as they and their friends desire it, and, in spite of the writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge Andrews of Quebec, directing Chief Detective Carpenter to return his prisoners to that city.

When the Spray arrived in Montreal yesterday morning the party drove to the Windsor. At 7 o'clock they again left the hotel, just as the pursuing force from Quebec which had come up from Sorel on the Quebec boat, reached the hotel. Chief Carpenter took his prisoners to Judge Lafontaine's residence and an impromptu court was convened in the judge's library. Mr. Carpenter handed his prisoners over to the judge, and the latter, after remanding them for examination Monday, committed them to the care of two detectives with permission to reside at the Windsor. In the meantime High Constable Gale of Quebec, with the writ of habeas corpus, was searching diligently for Mr. Carpenter. At 10 o'clock he found him in his office and served the writ. Mr. Carpenter was placed in a dilema. He was in possession of a document calling upon him to produce the bodies of Gaynor and Greene before Judge Andrews in Quebec and he no longer had the prisoners in his possession, having been relieved by Judge Lafontaine. He consulted his counsel and was informed that if he attempted to return the prisoners to Quebec he would be liable to arrest for contempt of the local court, whose mandate he had received and acknowledged. So an answer setting forth the facts in the matter was prepared and sent down to Quebec, and with that it is expected that the Quebec people will have to remain satisfied.

CREED REVISION REPORT.

General Assembly of Presbyterians Gets Results of Committee's Work.

New York, May 18.—Friday's session of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church was made noteworthy by the presentation of the report of the committee on the revision of the confession of faith, the subject vigorously discussed for years and the most important before the assembly. Separate days will be set aside next week for its discussion. Of eleven overtures, the ones of foreordination are the most important. On this point they read:

"That concerning those who perish, the doctrine of God's eternal decree is held in harmony with the doctrine that God desires not the death of any sinner, but has provided in Christ a salvation sufficient for all, adapted to all; that men are responsible for their treatment of God's gracious offer; that his decree hinders no man from accepting that offer and that no man is condemned except on the ground of sin."

The overture dealing with the salvation of infants is one which probably will stir the greatest amount of debate and may not be approved. It says:

"With reference to chapter X., section 3, of the confession of faith, that is it not to be regarded as teaching that any who die in infancy are lost. We believe that all dying in infancy are included in the election of grace and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the spirit, who works when and where and how he pleases."

Daniel R. Noyes of St. Paul was appointed vice moderator.

GIFT FROM THE KAISER.

Would Present Statue of Frederick the Great to the United States.

Weisbaden, Hesse-Nassau, May 18.—The German emperor on May 14 telegraphed as follows to the president of the United States at Washington:

"I wish to commemorate the visit of Prince Henry by a gift to the people of America, which I request you to accept in their name. I intend to present a statue in bronze of Frederick the Great to the United States, to be erected in Washington on a place which you will kindly choose. May this gift be looked upon as a lasting sign of the intimate relations which have been successfully fostered and developed between our two great nations."

President Roosevelt replied, thanking Emperor William heartily in the name of the United States and saying he would lay the matter before congress immediately.

CARNEGIE AND THE PHILIPPINES.

Twenty Million Dollar Offer for the Islands if Independence Is Promised.

London, May 18.—When asked whether there was any truth in the published statement that he had offered to pay $20,000,000 for the Philippine Islands provided he was authorized to announce to the Filipinos that their independence would be acknowledged ultimately by the United States, Andrew Carnegie laconically replied: "Yes, and I meant it."

ALFONSO HONORED

KING RECEIVES DECORATIONS FROM FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS.

IMPOSING CEREMONY OCCURS

ORDERS CONFERRED IN THRONE ROOM BEFORE BRILLIANT ASSEMBLAGE.

STARS AND STRIPES SCARCE

VERY FEW AMERICAN FLAGS APPEAR AMONG THE DECORATIONS.

Madrid, May 18.—King Alfonso was invested with a number of foreign decorations yesterday. The ceremony, which was of an imposing nature, took place in the throne room of the palace. The king was surrounded by a brilliant assemblage of high officers of state. Among the orders bestowed upon him was that of the Garter, which he received from the duke of Connaught, as representative of King Edward; the cordon bleu of the Order of the Seraphim, from Prince Eugene of Sweden, representing King Oscar, and the Royal Order of Siam, from the crown prince of Siam, the special envoy of the king of Siam. Glorious weather prevailed. The sun's rays poured down on the decorated streets, giving the city the gayest aspect possible. The national colors everywhere predominate. There are a few British union jacks flying, but hardly any Stars and Stripes are visible. The general illumination, which took place last night for the first time, was effective and artistic.

Crowds Are Gathered.

A pilgrimage from San Isidro has brought the country folk to town and picturesque groups of peasants are parading the streets, the men in quaint costumes, embroidered waistcoats and knee breeches adorned with big silver buttons, with gray handkerchiefs around their heads and hempen sandals on their feet. Others wearing close-fitting jackets with silver buttons, carry tartan shawls on their shoulders and have staffs in their hands. The women are dressed in the brightest colors, yellow and red, with embroidered shawls on their heads or roses intertwined in their haid. The women of the better class wear the graceful, black mantilla and are soberly attired.

There was a brilliant banquet at the palace last night. Dr. Curry, the United States special envoy, and the other envoys were present. The surrounding streets were beflagged, draped, dazzlingly illuminated and crowded with sightseers. The British and American legations were artistically illuminated.

TWO ENGINES SMASHED.

Wreck at Pembine on Soo Injures Four—One May Die.

Rhinelander, Wis., May 18.—Passenger Train No. 84 on the Soo line collided with a through freight near Pembine, demolishing both engines and injuring four men. One, Engineer Meager, probably will not recover. The other injured are the conductor of the passenger train, the engineer of the freight and the news agent. The trains came together when both were going at full speed, and the compact was so great that both engines were badly wrecked. The passenger engine's boiler was torn from its trucks and fastenings.

STOLE HIS OWN CHILD.

But Helena Man Was Obliged to Return It to Its Mother.

Helena, Mont., May 18. — While his wife was down town arranging to bring suit for divorce, Charles Hageman, the well known Main street butcher, went to the house of his mother-in-law and spirited away his sixteen-months-old child. He was later apprehended and compelled, under order of District Judge Smith, to restore the child. Suit for divorce was filed later. The affair created a sensation.

CLAMDIGGER DROWNED.

His Body Found in the River Near Dubuque.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 18. — John Markle, a resident of Waupeton, Dubuque county, was drowned while engaged in digging for shells in the Mississippi river. He left home in the morning and did not return for dinner. His family became alarmed, and, dragging the river, found the body in the evening. Markle was forty years old, was married and leaves five children.

WOULD KILL CHILDREN.

Glenwood Man Declares Himself Insane.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 18.—Uriah Oldham of Glenwood was brought here and committed to the insane hospital. He came to the sheriff a short time ago and asked to be locked up, stating that he had an almost uncontrollable desire to kill his children. The case is a peculiar one, as he appears to fully realize that he is insane, but is unable to control himself.

Wife Restricted His Movements.

Ottumwa, Iowa, May 18. — Because his wife attempted to prevent him from attending a public sale Willis Kennedy placed the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth at Bloomfield and blew out his brains.

Through a Trestle.

Anaconda, Mont., May 18.—William H. Conley, an employe at the Anaconda smelters, fell through the trestle over an ore bin at the new works and was killed. His skull was crushed and he died of brain concussion.

Aged Man Hangs Himself.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 18.—William Voss, an aged man, was found dead in the woodshed of his house. A jury of inquest decided that death came by hanging by his own hands. Ill health was the cause.

ROOSEVELT MAY COME.

Northwest May Receive Visit From the President.

Washington, May 18. — There is a prospect that President Roosevelt may visit several cities of the Northwest the latter part of September or early in October. It is learned here that the president has accepted invitations to go to Detroit to attend the dedication of a monument in that city late in September, and to attend the state fair in Springfield, Ill., between Sept. 29 and Oct. 4. Pressure is being brought to bear on President Roosevelt to induce him to make a swing around the circle in the Middle and Northwest states, and the president has promised to do so if public business will permit.

WARNED MANY AWAY.

Then, by the Merest Accident, Met Sudden Death Himself.

New York, May 18.—John Golden, an engineer, has been killed in New Rochelle by an electric light wire over which for nearly an hour he stood guard and from which he warned hundreds of school children. After the children had safely passed Golden took up his work. In handling a long poker he dropped it on the ground. One end formed a contact with the wire. Golden, unaware of the danger, grasped the iron and fell dead.

KILLED BY A SNAKE.

Awful Death of a Six-Year-Old Girl While Attempting to Drive Away a Rattler.

La Crosse, Wis., May 17. — Grace Dickson, aged six years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dickson, farmers living across the river near Dresbach, was killed by a huge rattlesnake while trying to save her baby brother from a similar fate. She was attending the child in a buggy on the front porch. She left him an instant and upon returning found a large snake in the buggy with the baby. In trying to get it away with the broom the reptile slipped down the handle and onto the little girl, winding itself about her neck and sinking its fangs into her neck, near the jugular vein. She died shortly after in great pain. The baby was unharmed.

EX-MAYOR DRURY DEAD.

Cancer Carries Off a Prominent Citizen of Wabasha.

Wabasha, Minn., May 17. — S. C. Drury died at 4:30 a. m. of malignant cancer. He came to this county in 1857 and was prominent in politics. He was twice mayor, and was postmaster during Cleveland's last administration. For the past two years he has been superintendent of the poorhouse. The funeral will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. from the Catholic church.

Accident on Ben Hershey.

La Crosse, Wis., May 17.—Gov. Van Sant of Minnesota arrived yesterday and reported a serious accident to the steamer Ben Hershey a few miles below here. The steamer was going at a high rate of speed with a raft when the cross-bar snapped, crashing into the machinery and bursting the cylinder heads. It was the presence of mind of Engineer William Ackley which prevented the total destruction of the boat. He was burned by escaping steam. Gov. Van Sant was on his way East.

Lightning's Freak.

Le Sueur, Minn., May 17.—Lightning struck the large barn of W. C. Snow here. The electric fluid shattered to slivers a beam a foot square through six feet of hay packed closely about it, but set no fire anywhere. A team of horses worth $500 standing near the post were not injured otherwise than being rendered stone deaf.

Marshall, Minn., May 17.—The people of Marshall have decided to celebrate the Fourth of July and $1,200 has already been raised for that purpose. It has been eight years since Marshall held a celebration, and it is the intention that this year shall eclipse anything ever given by a city of this size.

Disastrous Iowa Fire.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 17.—The town of Farlin, seven miles north of Jefferson, in Green county, was visited by a conflagration last night that wiped out the entire business section, entailing a loss estimated at more than $40,000. Every store in the town, including the postoffice, was destroyed.

Boardman Is Turned Down.

Washington, May 17—The house committee on public lands decided adversely to the application of A. J. Boardman, formerly of Minneapolis, who is at the head of a company asking an extensive land grant to build a railroad in Alaska.

She Played With Matches.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 17. — Hilda Lemkau, eight years old, while playing with matches at her home here yesterday, set her clothing afire and was probably fatally burned. She is still alive, but suffering terrible tortures.

New Judge Advocate General.

Pierre, S. D., May 17.—T. J. Spangler of Mitchell has been commissioned judge advocate general of the state guard, a position held by Attorney General Pyle up to the time of his death.

Farmer's Wife Kills Herself.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 17. — Mrs. Joe Molter, the wife of a farmer, committed suicide at Titonka by cutting her throat with a butcher knife. She is thought to have been deranged.

Commissioner Wilder Dies Suddenly.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 17.—E. H. Wilder of Arvilla, a member of the board of county commissioners, died suddenly here.

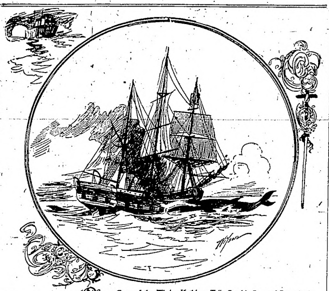
Heavy Losses by Drouth.

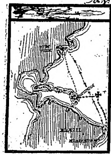
Billings, Mont., May 17. — Eastern Montana stockmen, particularly those of Yellowstone county, are threatened with severe losses by reason of the drouth. The range is drying up, and, without rain, must be abandoned soon.

Letter Carrier Indicted.

Duluth, Minn., May 17—Milo D. Jones, a letter carrier of Duluth, has been indicted by the grand jury on the charge of having rifled two letters given him to register by residents on his mail route. He will be tried here.

Whale Wrecks a Vessel by Stoving in Its Side





Crew of the Whaler Kathleen Tells Graphic Story of Remarkable Adventures When Ship Is Sunk by an Angry Monster.

A story of eleven days in an open boat, with the fierce sun of the tropics beating upon them, and only two swallows of water and half a ship's biscuit a day each, was the tale of adventure and suffering told by Mate Manuel de Viaria and his eight companions, who arrived at New York on the steamship Madiana, which brought them from Dominica, in the West Indies.

De Viaria and his men were part of the crew of the New Bedford whaling bark Kathleen, which was stove by an angry sperm whale 950 miles from land in West Indian waters on March 17.

Driven to the boats with only a scant moment in which to snatch up water and biscuits and then separated upon the wide sea, it is a curious fact that every person aboard was saved. Even the parrot of the captain's wife arrived safely at home. The survivors in the two boats reached home within twenty-four hours of each other.

De Viaria and his men sat together in the smoking room of the Sailors' Home in Cherry street. De Viaria was the spokesman.

"We sighted a school of whales, with maybe ninety or 100 in it," he said, "and all four boats went after them.

"I struck a whale of maybe fifty or sixty barrels. He sounded two or three times, but we killed him, and then we set a flag to call the ship down to us.

"I looked for the ship. There she was, about half a mile away. She had all sails set, with her foreyard aback, waiting for signals.

"Then I saw flags go up to all three peaks. That means 'all boats come in.' While I watched I saw her heel over. It was dusk. The last I saw of her was her yard ends in the air.

"Then the mate's boat, with the captain aboard, came down to me. They were waving hats and handkerchiefs, meaning 'cut loose.'

"The captain got all four boats together and divided up the men. I had nine all told in my boat, and each of the others had ten, counting the captain's wife in the mate's boat.

"The captain gave each of us a pail of water and maybe ten or twelve pounds of biscuit. He said: 'Steer west, by north, one-half north.'

"It was a clear night, but no moon. We watched for the captain to flash a light to keep together. We saw the light at 8 o'clock, and then at 9. That was the last we saw.

"When morning came there was no boat in sight.

"Then I made up my mind to take my own course and steer due west for Dominica."

The weather was fine until the last two days, when it took two men to bail out the seas that combed over the quarter.

Suddenly, on March 28, about 11 a. m., the lookout shouted "Land!"

De Viaria held his course until he saw a long point to the north, sailed beyond it and recognized the harbor of Port Smith. At 6:30 that night they landed, exactly eleven days and nights after the boats started away from the ship in company.

"We were so weak when we got ashore," said De Viaria, "that we could not stand up, but we got over that pretty soon."

Third Mate Hobart R. Reynolds told the story of the sinking of the ship and the adventures of the boats.

Three of the four boats had got fast to whales at once, he said, and the first mate had brought a big cow whale alongside and made it fast in the tackles on the port side of the bark. A bull whale had broken from the school, and suddenly appeared about two ship's lengths away from the bark.

"There's a big bull close alongside," cried Capt. Jenkins. "Better go after him, Mate."

The mate's boat was within striking distance within a few moments. They drove a harpoon deep into the whale.

The big breast struck out with a speed which set fire to the whaleboat where the line ran out, and made straight for the ship. He struck her fairly on the starboard side amidships as she lay hove to.

The whale sank at once.

The bark was sixty years old. The whale crushed in her side and she began to careen at once. Capt. Jenkins, his wife, the steward and cabin boy were all that were left aboard.

The mate, seeing that the ship was in distress, cut loose from the whale and went to the captain's aid.

The steward tried to get at the provisions below, but could get nothing but a box of ship's bread. The captain secured four pails of fresh water, and with the bread and parrot abandoned the ship.

After dividing up the bread and water to his men. They discovered that spray had spoiled the water. It was all salt.

"Well, boys," he said, "it's all up with us, but I'll see what we can do to reach Barbadoes." A little later he sighted the captain's boat. The captain divided what fresh water was left between the two boats.

Fortunately their voyage was not long. At 9 o'clock they sighted smoke, and the Borderer, bound with coal from Baltimore to Chile, sighted them. After picking up the captain and third mate's boats, the Borderer cruised about and found the second mate's boat.

All were hoisted aboard, boats and all. The Borderer cruised about in circles, looking for the fourth boat, until dark, and then went off. She landed Capt. Jenkins and his men at Pernambuco.

The picture on top shows how the Kathleen was sunk by a collision with a whale. The dark arrowed lines in the map show how the survivors put out in boats, one for Pernambuco, Brazil, and the other for the Isle of Dominica. The light lines indicate the route of the survivors to New York.

When Whiskers Were Unpopular.

"I suppose I will surprise my young readers," writes T. P. O'Connor, "when I tell them that I remember the time when a man who wore a beard was regarded as something of a phenomenon, and, indeed, as scarcely gentlemanly, but so it was. At the bar a young barrister who wore a beard or a moustache would so outrage the etiquette of the profession that he would be refused a hearing by some judges and by others so sneered at as to make solicitors unwilling to employ him. A judge who has only just left the bench professed one day, while he was listening to a junior, not to understand what he was saying and, when, at last, the unfortunate junior began to shout the judge sweetly remarked that it was very difficult to understand any gentleman who insisted on putting a hair screen on his upper lip."

Where Religion Is Fatality.

Writing of the Moors of Tangier, a traveler reports: "Almost every spring there is an epidemic, more or less pronounced, of small-pox, and the number of pitted faces is very large. Mothers are anxious that their children should pass through the ordeal early and with this end in view place them in the way of contagion. I know one poor woman who had a pet son of perhaps eight or nine. One day she came like Rachel, sorrowing and not to be comforted for his loss. 'Oh, God!' she cried, 'what can I do? God knows it was not my fault that my boy did not take the disease in time; for three successive years I borrowed the blankets in which others had died of the smallpox, directly they were buried, and it was only this year he took it. Now he is gone, and I am left alone!'"

Mismated Names.

The union of the given name with the surname often makes an amusing combination. Sometimes it is accidental, but more often designed. The story that went the rounds of the newspapers some time ago that Governor Hogg of Texas had named his two daughters Ura Hogg and Ima Hogg, it is gratifying to know, has been denied. A case in the east of Columbus has come to the notice of the observer. A gentleman who bears the common name of Case has named his little daughter "Ura" Case.

M. A. Bridge, the well-known chief clerk in the office of the state dairy and food commissioner, has named a son "Brooklyn." Brooklyn is not an uncommon name in itself, but Brooklyn bridge is somewhat startling.

Maine's Old-Time Fast Day.

Maine is one of the few old states that still observe more or less seriously an annual fast day. Gov. John F. Hill, in his proclamation, which is very brief, says: "This day, revered by the Fathers, comes to us consecrated by the observance by many generations. It is appropriate that we should continue to respect a custom so deeply enshrined in the hearts of the people, and I earnestly recommend that the day be observed in a manner consistent with the purposes for which it has been set apart."—New York Times.

The Schemakha Earthquake.

Schemakha is a city to the westward of Baku, the seaport of the Russian oil region, and lies in an area often devastated by earthquakes. On Jan. 31, last (Russian date), a shock destroyed the town and a fire that broke out laid it in ashes. Thousands of persons perished by the shock, which overthrew the public buildings and churches into which they were crowded. All but a dozen houses of the 5,770 constituting the town were destroyed. The ancient mosque that had survived for centuries was leveled to the ground and it is probable that the city will be abandoned.

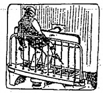
WORLD OF SCIENCE.

LATE INVENTIONS AND DISCOVERIES OF IMPORTANCE.

Novel Arrangement Devised for the Benefit of Would-Be Train Robbers —Machine for Measuring Cloth or Paper—Pneumatic Canning Device.

Protection for Express Cars.

Below is shown a novel arrangement for intercepting the operation of train robbers who make a practice of sneaking aboard trains at obscure stations in the night and keeping in hiding until the train reaches the locality of confederates posted along the road, and then suddenly taking position on the platform of the blind baggage or express car behind the tender, to cover the engineer and fireman with guns, and thus force them to stop the train for the operations of the confederates. The invention consists of a trap mechanism, adapted to be sprung by the robber on taking position on the platform, to grip him against the tender or handrail of the car, and the inventor also suggests a further paralyzing treatment in the form of a powerful electric current to hinder the robber in his efforts to escape. The three plates shown in the floor of the platform provide the releasing device for springing the trap as soon as the intruder places his weight on them. About the same height with the top of the handrail, and resting normally against the end of the car, is a metal plate or a board attached to the outer end of a horizontal piston rod, the latter entering a cylinder and holding a coiled spring under compression. As soon as the tripping plates are depressed the piston is released and throws the board forward to bind the robber. It is pretty rough treatment, but probably no more than he deserves and the result is a captured burglar and prevention of the contemplated robbery. J. S. Johnson of New York city is the inventor.

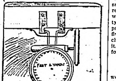


Measures Cloth or Paper.

Aside from the waste of time incurred in measuring cloth or paper with a yardstick or other small measure there is danger of losing count, incurring a loss of material if the goods are being measured for sale or inconvenience if the work is being laid out for use. John H. Nieman of Petersburg, Neb., has recently designed a simple machine for performing this work automatically without the loss of time or material.

As shown in the illustration, there is an indicating and recording dial carried by a circular casing with a revolving shaft mounted in a sleeve over the dial. This shaft has a worm gear and the revolving disk has corresponding teeth around its edge. The machine is shown mounted at the end of a counter or table, the two screw plates allowing it to swing freely downward until the wheel on the end of the shaft strikes against the edge of the support. The wheel is provided with a rubber tire and its frictional contact with the material to be measured is further strengthened by the weight of the machine.

To put the measurer in operation the goods to be measured are inserted beneath the wheel and drawn across the counter as rapidly as may be desired, the revolution of the wheel turning the dial and recording the length of the piece. The dial is held on the toothed disk by a central screw which can be loosened slightly to swing the zero around to the revolving finger or pointer on the disk, thus permitting the counter to start at the cipher for each measurement. The device may be attached to a heavy weight lying on the counter if preferred.



Rubber-Tired Wheel Actuates the Recorder.

The Nature of Nerve Stimulation.

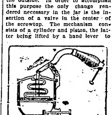
The complete theory of nerve stimulation recently furnished by Professor Mathews of the University of Chicago is concisely stated as follows: The irritability of nerve protoplasm varies inversely with the stability of the hydrosol state of its colloids. Stimulation is gelation, and is brought about by negative electrical charges. Chemical stimulation is really an electrical stimulation due to the charges the ions bear. Negative charges stimulate, positive charges prevent stimulation. The nerve impulse is due to a progressive precipitation of colloids by negative charges, the negative charges being regenerated by the precipitation of each succeeding mass of colloids. The negative variation, in other words, stimulates each succeeding segment of the nerve, and is regenerated by the change it produces in the colloids. Anaesthetics prevent precipitation. It is not the valence, in ultimate analysis, which produces stimulation, but the movement of the charge, chemical solution being thus identical with stimulation by light.

Statistics of Double Stars.

In his introduction to his fourth list of new double stars discovered and measured with the 36-inch telescope of the Lick observatory, Prof. Aitken gives the following statistics of general interest. In his systematic search for new double stars he has pointed upon and examined 10,900 stars. Of these 530 had already been catalogued as double by earlier observers, but only 308 of them were as close as 5 seconds. In the stars examined Prof. Aitken found 301 other double stars all unrecorded and all less than 5 seconds in distance. It thus appears that a systematic examination of the whole heavens on this plan would result in doubling the number of double stars now known. Of Prof. Aitken's discoveries about 10 per cent have distances exceeding 4 seconds, 70 per cent have distances not exceeding 2 seconds, about 43 per cent have distances not exceeding 1 second, about 21 per cent have distances not exceeding ½ second.

Pneumatic Canning Device.

The principal cause of the spoiling of fruit canned for winter use is the action of the air inside, which induces fermentation of the alcohol in the juice of the fruit, ultimately passing to the final stages of decay. By ordinary methods of canning it is almost impossible to exhaust this air entirely, and it is to aid in this work that the apparatus here shown has been designed by William E. Fredericks of Portland, Ore. The intention of the inventor is to make the machine exhaust the air from the can and then seal it automatically without allowing a return of the air from the outside. In order to accomplish this purpose the only change rendered necessary in the jar is the insertion of a valve in the center of the screwtop. The mechanism consists of a cylinder and piston, the latter being lifted by a hand lever to draw the air from the jar through the connecting mouthpiece. When the jar is filled and the cover screwed in place the vacuum producer is set on the cover with the valve open and the piston at its lowest point. As the lever is depressed the piston pulls the air from the jar, and when the screwhead at the outer end of the lever strikes the projecting rod at the bottom of the cylinder the rod is driven inward, turning the valve and completing the sealing process. The apparatus is then removed, the vacuum inside the jar retaining the valve in its closed position. When it is desired to open the can a turn of the valve admits air and makes it easy to unscrew the cover.



Sealing Jar by Atmospheric Pressure

Fast Automobile.

M. Serpolette has invented an automobile, called "The Easter Egg," because it presents an egg front to the wind, which has attained a speed of seventy-six miles an hour. The only recent achievement approaching this was W. K. Vanderbilt's machine, sixty-eight miles an hour, while M. Serpolette beat Fournier's best record by five seconds. An Englishman purchased the machine, paying $11,000 for it. This is the highest price ever paid for a twelve horse power machine.

Exploration of Greenland.

A Danish scientific expedition to the west coast of Greenland has been authorized by the government. It consists of Herr L. Mylius, Eridsen Outher, Count Harold Moltke, painter, and Herr Knud Rasmussen. The expedition will spend eighteen months in studying the natives and the country, and will work its way up to Cape York and Peary's first winter station.

Chances for Porto Rico.

A Porto Rican industry which promises a brilliant future is that of raising silkworms. Experiments have been going on in the island for more than three months, and it has been demonstrated that a silkworm can be raised which will make the largest cocoon known to naturalists.

To Save Labor.

It is stated at Newport, Me., that new patent-made machine cans will be used almost entirely in many of the sardine canning factories in that city and vicinity during the coming season, and a new soldering machine has been perfected, that will in time do away with the sealing by hand.

The Scepter.

The scepter was the emblem of power. As the silver wand, so familiar in cathedrals, was once hollow, containing the "virge," or rod with which chastisement was inflicted upon the choristers and younger members of the foundation, so the royal scepter represented the right to inflict punishment. Hence the expression, "to away the scepter," implied the holding of regal dignity. The scepter with the dove possessed the additional signification of the Holy Ghost, as controlling the actions of the sovereign. The same idea was conveyed by Rheims by the beautiful ceremony of letting loose a number of doves at the coronation of the French kings.—Good Words.

Sent to Conference Committee.

Gen. Grosvenor had just been telling a story. When he reached the climax he paused expectantly, but nobody laughed. They looked at him in a reproachful manner, and the general, with some irritation, tartly explained the point of the joke. They then laughed, but it was an effort, and Sereno Payne said:

"Grosvenor, you are deteriorating. Formerly anyone could see your jokes after one application."

"Yes," replied the crestfallen Grosvenor, abjectly, "and now they have to be sent to a conference committee."—New York Times.

Book Agent's Trick.

The "personally selected" victims of book agents schemes have been afflicted in a new way. Agents are now canvassing the suburban towns in a way that is particularly aggravating. To the servant who answers the ring, the agent delivers a bundle for the mistress of the house. When she opens it she finds that it contains two very ordinary books and a letter addressed to her. "Because of your known interest in books," says the letter, "we have left these volumes for you to purchase at the nominal price of $2.65, that we may properly introduce this great work. They are really worth $6, but we want to place a few of these sets in the hands of people who will appreciate them," etc. This necessitates keeping the books until the agent calls again, or putting them on the piazza and allowing the agent to take the chance of their being stolen.—New York Evening Sun.

Held on to a Chair.

Palmer, Mo., May 19th.—Mrs. Lucy Compton has for the past eight or ten years suffered a great deal of pain and sickness. She had Kidney Trouble with an awful pain in her back, which was so bad at many times that she could scarcely get about at all.

"I have been down with my back for the past eight or ten years," she says, "and sometimes so bad I could not get around only by holding on to a chair or some other object.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have given me more relief than anything I have ever used.

"After I had used the first box I was almost entirely cured of this dreadful trouble.

"I can truthfully recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any woman suffering as I had suffered for so long."

Mrs. Compton's cure was certainly a remarkable one.

Retort Courteous.

"How did she get here?" At a famous dancing assembly this was quite audible comment made by several married belles when a beautiful young matron, as yet on the outskirts of the exclusive set, entered the room. The newcomer, whose first appearance it was, proved herself quite equal to the occasion. She had a nodding acquaintance with nearly every woman in the room. Some of them even went to her luncheon parties. Calmly turning to the most supercilious critic in the room, she echoed, as though in reply:

"How did I get here? I drove here, my dear Mrs. Crossbeam. Did you walk?"—Lippincott's.

The Graceful Girl.

No girl who walks properly is ungraceful. No girl who walks improperly can be graceful for any long time. The charm of accurate poise of the body, of graceful movement of the limbs, and of the bringing into play of all the portions of the human structure intended by nature to be used in walking, make in themselves some strong attractions not only to the intelligent observer, but to the less cultured; for no one is so dull of comprehension as to be unable to appreciate what is beautiful and a delight to the eye.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Almost Discouraging.

"We are going to have a number of beautiful libraries," said the happy man.

"Yes," answered the gaunt person with the lustrous eye. "It is a terrible responsibility to put upon this generation. I don't know who is to write the books worthy of such magnificent surroundings."—Washington Star.

An All-Over Feeling.

"I feel a presentiment," said the shad, as he passed up the river, "that something terrible is going to happen to me."

"Ah," replied the sturgeon, "a vague presentiment, eh?"

"Vague, nothing. Why, I feel it in my bones."—Philadelphia Press.

Pa's Idea of Ships.

"What is an airship, pa?"

"A ship that puts on airs, my son."

"Is an airship, like other ships, called 'she?'"

"Certainly; didn't I just say that an airship was a ship that puts on airs?"—Smart Set.

Positively Rude.

"I say, me good man," began the dude, as he entered the butcher's dissecting room, "have you—aw—any meat for a puppy, doncher know?"

"Sure thing," replied the butcher. "Want to eat it here or take it with you?"—Chicago News.

Well Armed.

"They must have plenty of arms in Venezuela to carry on this interminable war."

"I expect they have. In these revolutions every man is his own revolver.—Baltimore News.

I have rarely seen anyone commit suicide to escape to-day; they always run from to-morrow.

CIVIC FEDERATION QUIETLY PREPARING TO RECEIVE OVERTURES.

TO SETTLE THE MINERS' STRIKE

SECRETARY OF FEDERATION HOLDS LONG CONFERENCE WITH MITCHELL.

ABSOLUTE QUIET PREVAILS

MINERS GIVE NO SIGNS OF RESORTING TO ACTS OF VIOLENCE.

Hazleton, Pa., May 20.—The visit of Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation, to strike headquarters and his conference with President Mitchell of the United Mineworkers late Saturday night was the only incident of any importance that claimed the attention yesterday of the labor leaders and others around the Valley hotel. As neither Mr. Easley nor Mr. Mitchell would say anything regarding their meeting, there was much speculation as to the object of the visit of the secretary of the Civic Federation. Mr. Easley laughed at the stir which his arrival caused and said there was not the slightest significance attached to his trip here. He reiterated that he came here merely to look over the ground and to keep himself informed of the general situation. He denied that he brought any plan for a settlement of the strike. Mr. Easley also said he Carried No Message back with him from Mr. Mitchell. He would not discuss his visit to the Ohio senator at Washington on Friday. His talk with the miners' national leader lasted two hours. He again saw Mr. Mitchell for a few minutes yesterday morning and left for New York at 10 a. m. Despite the denials of the labor leaders, the members of the Civic Federation and the coal operators, all of whom have thus far rigidly adhered to the policy of absolutely refusing to anticipate any move in connection with the strike, it is believed here that the Federation is quietly preparing to receive any proposition that might possibly be offered by either side. This belief is strengthened by the fact that only twenty-four hours had elapsed from the time the conference was held at Washington between Senator Hanna, President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. Easley, and the latter's arrival here.

Absolute Quiet Reigns.

Absolute quiet reigned at the headquarters and throughout the Lehigh valley. Although it was Sunday there was little rest for President Mitchell and his two secretaries. Excepting Mr. Easley he had no visitors, and he gave his uninterrupted attention to a large batch of mail pertaining to the strike in the anthracite field and to miners' business in bituminous localities. The strike now enters upon its second week. The week just ended was the first, it is said, in the history of the hard coal trade, that no coal was mined in any part of the region. No disturbances of any consequence have been reported anywhere. President Mitchell said that he could not yet say when the special national convention to be called for the purpose of considering the advisability of involving the bituminous miners in the anthracite strike will be held. He has not yet received the consent of the two districts still needed to make up the five that are necessary under the rules to call a special convention.

ROMANCE OF A PRINCESS.

Not a Poor Student, But a Dashing Lieutenant of Horse Is Grand Duchess' Lover.

St. Petersburg, May 20. — Grand Duchess Helen didn't run away with a long haired, hungry student, as reported, but with a dashing lieutenant of horse. The latter is now in Siberia, where the czar proposes to keep him for the present at least, but Nicholas was unsuccessful in his attempt to send Grand Duchess Helen to a cloister. To the officer who brought the czar's letter, she said:

"Tell his majesty that Cousin Whirlwind (this is Helen's telling nickname) is too fond of living to bury herself alive."

The remarkably energetic young lady is now staying with her father, Grand Duke Valdimir. She and the lieutenant were on the way to London when arrested.

GERMAN SHIP IS LOST AT SEA.

Steamer Ehrenfels of the Hansa Line Wrecked on the Way From Calcutta.

Aden, Arabia, May 20.—The German steamer Ehrenfels, belonging to the Hansa line of Bremen, was lost on May 9 in latitude 12 degrees north, longitude 56 degrees east, while bound to Hamburg from Calcutta. Part of the crew has been landed at this port. The captain and forty other persons who were on board the ship left in small boats, and nothing has since been heard of them.

MORE TIME FOR THE DANISH.

Island Treaty Question Postponed Until September.

Washington, May 20.—In view of the action of the Danish rigsdag, which sets aside the Danish West Indian treaty question until after the elections in September, Secretary Hay and Mr. Brun, the Danish minister here, will prepare for submission to the senate a protocol extending the time allowed for the ratification of the treaty.

Killed by an Automobile.

Toledo, Ohio, May 20.—The first fatal automobile accident occurred here yesterday when James T. Bralley, the well known Independent Telephone magnate, while speeding in his auto, collided with May Schock, a thirteen-year-old girl riding on a wheel. The girl was instantly killed.

Santos-Dumont to Marry.

Paris, May 20.—Santos-Dumont, the aeronaut, is reported engaged to be married to a relative of a prominent Brazilian resident of this city.

SIX CHILDREN DROWN.

Four Deaths Are Due to a Violent Storm.

Preston, Minn., May 20. — A severe electric storm burst over this town at 3 o'clock Saturday night, causing extensive damage to property and the loss of four lives. H. M. Conkey went out to his stable to attend his horses soon after the storm began and was killed by an electric bold that descended just as he was entering the stable door. Chimneys, fences and signs were blown down all about the town. Ten miles west of here there was a cloudburst. The Root river began rising so rapidly that Herman Willbright, a young farmer, hurried his wife and three children into a buggy and started for high ground. He was obliged to ford a gully that is ordinarily dry. Here an unexpected stream, five feet deep and roaring like a mill race, caught and overturned the buggy, and swept the three little ones to sudden death.

Triple Drowning in North Dakota.

Neche, N. D., May 20.—Yesterday afternoon, while W. M. Symington, a prominent farmer of Pembina county, was attempting to cross the Pembina river in a scow containing four of his sons and a fifteen-year-old nephew two miles above this place the boat collided with a sunken log, throwing its occupants into the water, swollen high with recent rains. Three of his sons were drowned, but the nephew and youngest son were saved by clinging to overhanging brushes.

FLOOD IN WISCONSIN.

Many Hogs and Sheep Are Drowned and Much Damage Is Done.

Sparta, Wis., May 20.—A cloudburst occurred in the eastern part of this county, causing much damage to farmers and railroad companies. Three long bridges on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road near Oakdale were carried away and the track was washed out in several places. Sectionman Borroson, who was out on a hand car inspecting the track near West Salem, was caught by No. 56 and killed. Many hogs and sheep were drowned and much damage was done to crops, highways and bridges. Numerous small outhouses were carried away. Lightning also caused considerable damage in Monroe, Juneau and Vernon counties.

Buildings Are Wrecked.

McGregor, Iowa, May 20. — Three brick buildings were wrecked by a terrific electrical storm that swept over McGregor, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain. Lightning struck the three buildings occupied by Freze's jewelry store, the Metropolitan saloon and a billiard hall and all collapsed. Four men are hurt, but not severely. Sewers were washed out by the flood. The property loss is fully $10,000.

IOWA SUFFERS SEVERELY.

Railroad Tracks Washed Out and Much Damage Done to Crops.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 20.—The Chicago Great Western railroad was a severe sufferer from a cloudburst Saturday night, both on the Des Moines and Chicago divisions. More than 150 feet of track and grading were destroyed at Fairbanks, seven miles this side of Oelwein, and about 200 feet was wiped out east of Oelwein on the Chicago division. The storm did immense damage to crops, a strip a mile wide and twenty-five miles in length being almost denuded of vegetation.

-o-

Dubuque, Iowa, May 20. — A cloudburst occurred here Saturday night. Two inches of rain fell in one hour, causing washouts on the Illinois Central between here and Waterloo. Several miles of track on the Great Western between here and Oelwein were washed out.

-o-

Independence, Iowa, May 20. — A cloudburst and high wind did great damage in this county. Gulleys were washed along the Illinois Central tracks, wrecking a freight train one mile east of here. Nine cars were ditched. All the small streams are swollen and almost every bridge in the county washed out.

EIGHT DIE IN NEGRO RIOT.

Colored Outlaws and Murderers Burned Out.

Atlanta, Ga., May 20.—An effort by officers of the law to arrest negro outlaws who had barricaded themselves in a store resulted Saturday in the most fatal riot in the history of the city. Eight men were killed, including three policemen, a white citizen and four negroes. Six people, black and white, were wounded. The most exciting scenes prevailed at the place of the disturbance and all available policemen, with the military, called out by the governor, had all they could do to keep down a general riot. An entire block of buildings were burned before the conflict terminated.

TOLL BRIDGE FOR HASTINGS.

Heatwole Introduces Bill Providing for One Over the Mississippi.

Washington, May 20.—Representative Heatwole has introduced a bill to amend the act for the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at Hastings to provide that the city may charge tolls.

Dr. Arons Discharged.

West Superior, Wis., May 20.—Dr. W. C Arons, examined in the municipal court on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, was released by Judge Hally, who held that the promises of a cure made were not misleading, and that a case similar to the one in question had been cured by the "Bonesetter."

Morris in Darkness.

Morris, Minn., May 20. — Fire damaged W. P. Fowler's electric light plant yesterday afternoon to the extent of several hundred dollars. As a result the village will be without light until necessary repairs are made.

Too Wet to Seed.

Fargo, N. D., May 20. — Continued rain for the last thirty-six hours practically ends all hopes of seeding the low lands along the Red river to wheat. By the time the fields dry up the season will be too late for anything except barley or flax.

Illegal Fisher Sentenced.

Excelsior, Minn., May 20. — Louis Johnson of Minneapolis yesterday received a sentence in Justice Sullivan's court of twenty days for illegal fishing in Gray's bay.

TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST

TORNADO LEAVES DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN ITS WAKE.

TEXAS TOWN ALMOST WIPED OUT

STORM SWEEPS FOUR STATES, BUT HITS TEXAS THE HARDEST.

HAD NO CHANCE FOR ESCAPE

DEATH-DEALING TORNADO DROPS DOWN WITHOUT ANY WARNING.

Dallas, Tex., May 20, 2:15 a. m.—Advices from all available sources here last night were that a disastrous tornado swept across Texas yesterday, causing loss of life and almost incalculable damage to property.

The cyclone is believed to have originated on the gulf coast at a point almost directly south of Goliad, and traveled in a northeasterly direction as far as Kentucky. It left desolation behind in four states, but Texas seems to have suffered more than the others.

Two Hundred Are Killed.

At 10 o'clock last night there were to reports current concerning the fate of the historic town of Goliad. Both of them were sufficiently distressing. One was that fifty lives were lost and much of the town destroyed. The other was that not less than 200 persons were killed and that nearly every structure there was demolished. The high wind which prevailed over that portion of the state which lies east and south of here has demoralized the telegraph and telephone service.

Leaves Death and Desolation.

Houston, Tex., May 20.—T special to the Post from Goliad, Tex., says: At a quarter to 4 yesterday afternoon a tornado struck the beautiful and historical town of Goliad and left death and desolation in its pathway beyond the power of pen to portray. A correspondent reached the scene at 7 o'clock on a special train from Victoria, Tex., bearing doctors, nurses and medicines, friends and relatives of Goliad people and the O'Connor Guards. The scene which met the eye on reaching the Scene of Destruction, which was in the western part of the city, was appalling. Between Church and Patrice streets, which run north and south, a distance of a mile in length only one house was left standing, and scarcely a vestige of man could be seen. Very little damage was done except within these boundaries, a width of 250 yards. The tornado was preceded by a heavy hail storm and a deep rumbling sound, but no one had any premonition of the disaster, and there was No Opportunity for Escape for refugees, as the tornado dealing death and disaster was all over in a few moments. The section which has most suffered was the residence portion, the lower part being the negro settlement, while the upper part contained many residences. The Methodist and Baptist churches, and the Baptist parsonage, both just completed, and the negro Methodist church, were destroyed. The Episcopal church was badly damaged and fully 100 houses were totally destroyed.

CUBANS ARE REJOICING.

Festivities in Celebration of Change of Government Becomes General.

Havana, May 20. — The festivities in celebration of the change of government became general all over the island yesterday. In almost every town and village an elaborate program of popular rejoicing has been arranged. Sunday here, as in all Spanish countries, is not given over altogether to religious observances, but is largely a holiday devoted to recreation and amusement. In Havana appropriate services were held in the churches in the morning and high mass was celebrated by the archbishop in the cathedral where the bones of Christopher Columbus were formerly buried, but after midday the whole city gave itself up to frivolity. Gov. Gen. Wood and the other American officers had a busy day cleaning up odds and ends. In addition to the many other social demands upon him, Gov. Gen. Wood took breakfast at the Fronton, where the directors of the "Jaialia association" presented him with a magnificent silver service and Mrs. Wood with a diamond ornament.—At 6 o'clock in the evening the merchants of Havana marched to the palace in a body to bid the governor general farewell, and for an hour he was kept busy saying "muchisimas gracias," so flattering were the compliments bestowed upon his administration and so earnest the expressions of regret at his departure. Both Gen. and Mrs. Wood, as well as the American officials generally, have been the recipients of many evidences of the high esteem in which they are held. The cabinet presented Gen. Wood with a gold watch, suitably inscribed, and the ladies of Havana gave Mrs. Wood a silver service; but these are only a few of the gifts bestowed upon them.

FIVE MEN KILLED.

Fatal Collision on the Burlington Road in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., May 20. — Five men were killed and four others more or less injured in a collision on the Burlington's Billings line.

Two Drowned.

Menominee, Mich., May 20.—Ed Boatmann of Marinette, Wis., and Caroline Garnier, aged sixteen, of this city were drowned in the river yesterday by the capsizing of a rowboat. Boatmann leaves a wife and four children.

Refuses to Sell to Americans.

Berlin, May 20.—At the annual meeting of the Einigkeit Chemical works at Brunswick Commerzienrath Hilbert denied that there was any intention on the part of Germany to sell out to the American potash syndicate.

THE RED RIVER.

Hydrographic Investigations in the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota.

The Red River of the North and its valley occupies a unique position among the streams and valleys of the United States. Collecting the waters from between the two great northern arms of the Mississippi system, this river takes its course almost directly north, uniting with numerous streams draining the lake region of Central Canada, and finally reaching Hudson bay through Lake Winnipeg and the Great Nelson river system.

The Red River valley, besides bringing the arctic slope for a distance of over 200 miles within the United States, represents an equally unique position among the agricultural districts of the West. It is safe to say that no equal area within the four Northern States, lying on the Great Plains, immediately west of the 97th meridian, possesses a more productive soil or has such promise of rapid future development. The Red River valley, originating at Big Stone lake with a width of only a few miles, spreads its V-shaped valley northward in a broad, level plain attaining a width of no less that seventy or eighty miles at the international boundary. The Red River of the North takes its tortuous course for its length in America. The valley is not a valley of erosion, but the bed of an ancient glacial lake built up by a Lacustrian deposit to a thickness of thirty to seventy feet. The stream represents the very youngest type of river development. Indeed, on each side of the main stream large areas lie with such gentle slope that definite channels have been unable to develop; and the heavy clay soil, with the impervious clay beneath, preventing underground drainage, has given rise to extensive areas where the water stands late into the summer months, unless artificially drained.

The Red River of the North has eroded a channel varying from 100 to 300 feet in width and from twenty to sixty feet deep, and which has an average fall of only six inches to the mile. The capacity of the river, however, is sufficient to carry off the surplus water from the summer's rains and the spring waters from the melting of an average winter's snowfall, or when the snow melts suddenly, with the aid of rain, the river is incapable of caring for the surplus water, and the resulting flood has been known to extend over the middle of the valley in places for a width of from ten to fifteen miles. When the early settlers came into this region the undrained surface presented an aspect most forbidding; but by perserverance in draining, through ditches, and roadmaking, the aspect has altogether changed.

The Red River Valley of the North has been aptly called the "Nile of America." True, it flows northward; its broad, fertile valley is formed of a Lacustrian or alluvial deposit; and it is, in a sense, still subject to occasional inundations. The total area within the United States covers between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 acres, or is considerably greater than the productive area of the Nile. The Red River valley is located in a region having cold winters, which renders the land unproductive for one-half the year. The Red River valley lies on the border of the semi-humid area, receiving an average annual precipitation of about twenty inches, sufficient to produce the large crops for which this valley is famous, even though the moisture is very uncertain in its distribution. However, depending upon variable cyclonic storms for its rainfall, which varies from fifteen to thirty inches, it is seldom that conditions favor a maximum crop yield of which this rich soil is capable.

As the country develops and intensive and diversified agriculture results, the question is not alone that of drainage and getting rid of the surplus water in wet seasons, but also that of equal importance, how to conserve and utilize this water during dry seasons, or dry periods of each season. The Nile valley, with a productive area only three-fourths the area of that of the Red River valley within the United States, and with crude methods of irrigation and agriculture, was able, in 1890, to support a population of about 6,000,000 people; while the population of the Red River valley, is less than one-thirtieth of that number. The Red River valley, for climatic reasons, can never hope to equal in productiveness that of the Nile, yet, with intensive agriculture, which is rapidly developing, who will dare predict what the future shall be, when its natural resources are fully developed? The one question in either of the areas above compared has been that of the natural development and the water resources. The demand has been growing for a number of years that some efforts be made to determine whether a better control of the surface waters of the Red River valley could not be accomplished. In response to these demands, and recognizing their importance, the United States government has, through the hydrographic division of the United States geological survey, taken up the work in the Red River valley, with the view of determining the annual discharge and capacity of the principal streams, the location of possible reservoir sites, where water may be stored not only to relieve the spring floods, but to be used later for power and irrigation. Guage stations are being maintained along the Red River and on its principal tributaries, and the results of these investigations will be published each year, as a part of the annual report of the United States Geological Survey.

FLICKERTAIL FIREMEN.

Valley City Preparing to Entertain Them in June.

The people of Valley City are arranging to give the state firemen a great blow-out on the occasion of the annual tournament, June 3 to 5. An elaborate program has been arranged. The first day will be devoted to a business session, with a grand ball in the evening. The second and third days will be given to the parades and races, with a big banquet Thursday night. There will be automobile, motorcycle and bicycle races, with band concerts and base ball.

Hobson Is Persistent.

Washington, May 15.—The sub-committee on naval affairs had under consideration yesterday the bill to place Capt. Richmond P. Hobson on the retired list, but no conclusion was reached. Capt. Hobson addressed the sub-committee, saying he should be placed on the retired list on account of the condition of his eyes.

BRITONS ARE THANKFUL.

President Roosevelt's Prompt Action Is Appreciated.

London, May 17.—The colonial secretary, Mr. Chamberlain, to-day wrote to the foreign office, asking Lord Lansdowne to very gracefully acknowledge and accept Mr. Roosevelt's offer of assistance and informed the foreign office that Mr. Chamberlain had cabled to the governor of St. Vincent to-day asking for information as to the best method of utilizing the United States offer. Until the governor's answer is received nothing definite could be done.

The colonial office especially asks the Associated Press to announce that any relief intended for the inhabitants of the Island of St. Vincent can, for the present, be safely sent and will be wisely distributed if addressed to the governor of the Windward islands, St. Vincent.

GREETING TO YOUNG KING.

President Roosevelt's Letter Is Delivered to Alphonse.

Madrid, May 17.—The United States special envoy to the coronation of King Alfonso, Dr. J. L. M. Curry, yesterday morning presented President Roosevelt's letter to his majesty, as follows:

"Great and Good Friend: In the name of and in behalf of the government and the people of the United States, I desire to present their sincere felicitations on the occasion of your majesty's majority, and to assure you of their friendship and good wishes for the welfare of your majesty and your majesty's people. I trust your life will be long and happy, and that your reign will live in the affections of your people and bless them with peace, prosperity and happiness, and I pray God to have you in his safe and holy keeping. Your good friend,

—"Roosevelt."

The queen regent yesterday received in audience the foreign missions appointed to attend the coronation. The function was surrounded with great ceremonial. Dr. Curry and Mr. Simpkins, the secretary of the special embassy of the United States, were ushered into the royal reception hall immediately after the papal nuncio, and before all the other envoys.

CANNOT BE STOPPED.

Decision of President Roosevelt as to the Supply Camp at Chalmette.

Washington, May 17.—As the president, after considering the report of Col. Crewder, has decided that he cannot interfere with the cattle shipments at Port Chalmette, La., and as the executive is the only branch of the government clothed by the constitution to pass upon the application of laws of neutrality, as expressly affirmed very recently by the Louisiana courts, it is not believed here that the Louisiana State authorities will seek to make an issue with the federal courts by undertaking to do what the president himself has not seen fit to do. It is presumed that in due course the executive's decision will be communicated to the governor of Louisiana, who first brought the Port Chalmette operations to the attention of the national government.

PAUNCEFOTE DYING.

British Ambassador Is Near Death's Door.

Chicago, May 16. — Esther Dowie, fote of Preston, the venerable British ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps in Washington, is critically ill, and there is every reason to believe that his death is imminent. He is past seventy years, and his advanced age forbids the hope that he will rally from his present attack. Lord Pauncefote's chief ailment is rheumatic gout, which has attacked his heart and other vital organs. This disease has laid him low many times in the past several years, but his vigorous constitution and pluck always brought him back to a fair degree of health. It is now considered certain that death is a matter of a few days.

COMMITTEES HOLD REINS.

Haiti Is Without a Head, but Is Many Guiding Hands.

Washington, May 17.—The state department has received the following cablegram from United States Minister Powell at Port-au-Prince respecting the political crisis in Haiti:

"A committee of eleven has been organized for the conduct of affairs. The chairman of the committee is ex-President Canal. Committees of this character have been organized in all of the cities of the republic. All quiet at present."

CANAL PACTS ARE COMPLETE.

Secretary Hay Is Prepared to Submit the Instruments to the Senate.

Washington, May 17.—The negotiations between Secretary Hay and the ministers from Colombia, Nicaragua and Costa Rica, looking to the acquirement of the necessary rights for the construction by the United States government of either the Panama or the Nicaraguan canal have at last been concluded, and to-day the secretary of state will be able to send to the senate three treaties covering the ground.

Fight Lost on Foul.

St. Louis, May 17.—The boxing bout at the West End Athletic club last night between "Kid" Abel of Chicago and "Tommy" Sullivan of New York ended in the fourteenth round amid scenes seldom enacted within the squared arena. Sullivan practically won the battle on a foul blow delivered below the belt, but lost the decision because his manager, becoming excited, jumped into the ring at a time when his protege was almost helpless from the punishment he had received.

Murder and Suicide.

Montgomery City, Mo., May 17. — William S. Green has shot and killed his divorced wife and committed suicide. His wife was granted a divorce a few days ago.

Fell to His Death.

Crystal Falls, Mich., May 17.—A drop of 200 feet to death was the fate of Wanta Hill, a miner employed at the Hope property here yesterday.

Five Die in a Hotel Fire.

Point Pleasant, W. Va., May 17.—The American hotel burned here last night. Five of the guests perished.

Sweden's General Strike.

Stockholm, May 17.—A general strike in support of the universal suffrage movement went into effect to-day.

IS NOT THROUGH

SCIENTISTS PREDICT ANOTHER ERUPTION SHORTLY ON ST. VINCENT.

MUCH WORSE THAN REPORTED

INHABITANTS MUCH ALARMED AT CONTINUOUS AGITATION OF CRATERS.

GREAT DESTITUTION PREVAILS

NEARLY TWO THOUSAND DEATHS ON THE ISLAND HAVE BEEN REPORTED.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, May 17. — Scientists who have come here from the British Island of Trinidad predict another volcanic eruption on St Vincent within a short time.

The damage done to St. Vincent by the volcanic eruptions is now known to be considerably greater than was at first estimated. The present uneasiness of the inhabitants of the island is increased by the continuous agitation of the volcanic craters.

Friday morning, May 9, large stones and volcanic dust fell in the neighborhood of Georgetown for two hours, terrifying the people there. A cloud of hot vapor then passed over that part. Two eruptions of less magnitude that the first occurred Saturday, May 10, and from then until yesterday fire and smoke has been ascending at intervals from the craters. Owing to the great heat it is still impossible to approach The Soufriere Volcano from the leeward side. It is believed that the Rabacci crater, in the Windward district of the island, has also erupted. From a distance La Soufriere, although less violent, still wears a cap of dark clouds which is lumined every now and then by flashes of red light. Volcanic dust fell here again yesterday but fortunately there have been also several heavy rain showers which have washed away the dust from the grass and restoring verdure of the fields. The condition of the atmosphere is also improving.

Owing to the destruction of several estates the sugar and arrow root industries of St. Vincent are seriously injured. Destitution prevails among the laboring classes, who are without homes, without clothes and hungry. Nearly two thousand deaths on this island have been reported. Bodies have been discovered in houses In Life-Long Attitudes, presenting gruesome spectacles. There are decomposed bodies in many houses, and, in order to guard against disease, it will probably be necessary for the authorities to burn these dwellings, owing to the many difficulties in the way of those who have the matter in hand hundreds of bodies have not yet been interred.

As wide areas of ground which formerly produced foodstuff have been devastated there is an abnormal demand for breadstuffs and a consequent scarcity of food supplies. The prices of food are advancing. The destruction of the livestock of the island has also caused a rise in the price of meat. A British warship has arrived here from Trinidad, bringing provisions for the relief of sufferers.

SUPPLIES FOR A MONTH.

Dixie's Cargo Sufficient for Urgent Needs of Sufferers.

Washington, May 17.—It is stated at the war department that the supplies and stores shipped to Martinique and St. Vincent on the cruiser Dixie from New York and on the collier Sterling from San Juan undoubtedly will be sufficient to meet the urgent needs of the suffering people for fully a month to come. The present efforts of the government officials are directed to supplementing the food supplies contributed by the people so as to make them immediately available and to devise a system of distribution. Secretary Root has authorized the officers of the commissary department at New York to purchase any additional supplies that may be necessary to supplement those contributed by private persons for shipment to the scene of the disaster. Consequently private donations of flour will be supplemented by a proper supply of yeast by the government and with codfish and other food supplies which require other articles to make them available for food.

The government already has expended a little over $100,000 of the available appropriation of $200,000, and as much of the balance as necessary will be utilized. The administration anticipated the action of congress in providing for the immediate relief of the situation with the result that the Sterling sailed from San Juan with supplies within five hours from the time the appropriation became available and the Dixie sailed from New York with additional supplies in exactly twenty-nine hours after the president signed the act making the appropriation. These two vessels carry more than thirty-six days' rations for 50,000 people, together with a proportionate amount of clothing, tents, etc.

RACE IS EXTINGUISHED.

Baptism of Fire Lays Half of St. Vincent Waste.

Chicago, May 17.—A special to the Record-Herald, dated Fort-de-France, Island of Martinique, W. I., May 14, says: St. Vincent has passed through a veritable baptism of fire and the results are only less terrible than those that followed the eruption of Mount Pelee, destroying the town of St. Pierre and its environs, with their 30,000 or 40,000 inhabitants.

Mount Soufriere has been in activity for nine days and its victims are numbered by the thousands. A line drawn from Chateau Belaire to Georgetown would divide the island of St. Vincent into halves. There is probably no human being alive north of it.

Already 1,000 bodies have been recovered, and it is known that many hundreds more lie buried under the ashes. It is conservatively estimated that 2,000 have been lost. This includes most of the Carib Indians, which means the practical extinction of a race that was found here by Columbus four centuries ago.

An old Indian prophecy that the Caribs would be sacrificed to the fire god which they worshipped has thus been fulfilled. Of the Caribs only a few individuals remain on the islands of St. Lucia and Dominica.

SEEK KING'S LIFE

ANARCHIST PLOT AGAINST ALFONSO HAS BEEN DISCOVERED.

SIX ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

DYNAMITE CARTRIDGES WERE TO BE THROWN DURING THE PROCESSION.

YOUNG KING TAKES THE OATH

CEREMONY TAKES PLACE IN ACCORDANCE WITH ANCIENT USAGE.

Madrid, May 20. — An anarchist plot against King Alfonso has been discovered and six arrests, including that of Gabriel Lopez, an employe of an insurance company, have been made. Dynamite cartridges were found on the premises where Lopez was arrested. Lopez says he received a package of cartridges from another anarchist with instructions to throw them at the moment of the passage of the royal carriage in Saturday's procession.

The discovery of the plot against the king is confirmed by the newspapers here. It is now said that nine dynamite cartridges were seized. Further arrests have been made, and the prisoners include six medical students, a printer, a carpenter and a mason. The captured cartridges are being analyzed by military authorities.

Lunatic Frightens Alfonso.

The splendid ceremonies Saturday in connection with the attaining of his majority by King Alfonso were attended by an incident which, while insignificant in itself, for the moment created considerable excitement among those who witnessed it, and in the chamber of deputies, where the story first arrived in a more sensational form than the facts warranted. It appears that just as the royal coach emerged from the Plaza de Armas into the square in front of the palace, amid the sound of cannon, a young man among the sightseers behind the cordon suddenly pushed through the ranks of soldiers and police and rushed toward the door of the chariot, with his hat in one hand and holding outstretched in the other a paper. Before he reached the door the state lackeys and equerries Hurried to the Scene and quickly overpowered him, though not before the disturber had received a severe mauling. The prisoner was taken to the guard room of the palace, where he was interrogated. The letter he had in his hand proved to be an address to the king, stating that the Infanta Maria Terese, who was with the king in the royal coach, had promised him her hand, and begging the king, as the brother of the infanta, to accede to the marriage. The prisoner was carefully searched and it was found that he carried no weapon. His remarks about the Infanta Maria Terese left no doubt as to his mental condition. The king witnessed the struggle with the lunatic, and he believed that an attempt was being made upon his life. He turned deathly pale and he displayed considerable nervousness.

King Takes the Oath.

King Alfonso Saturday attained his majority and became king in fact, as well as in name, having reached the age, sixteen, prescribed by the constitution. Beautiful weather favored this, the central day of the fetes. At an early hour all the bands of music of the troops composing the garrison marched through the principal streets, playing lively marches, to the royal palace, where they performed beneath the windows of the king's apartments. The royal procession was formed on the Plaza de Armas, in front of the palace, and shortly before 2 p. m. proceeded to the chamber of deputies, where, in the presence of the senators and deputies, the king took the oath to uphold the constitution. The procession was a spectacle of medieval magnificence. The return to the palace was made the occasion for an ovation for the young king.

DATTO RULY IS UGLY.

Moro Chief in Mindanao Defies the Americans.

Manila, May 20. — Gen. Chaffee returned here yesterday from Lake Lanao, in the interior of the island of Mindanao. He said he saw several Moro dattos while there and had most satisfactory interviews with them. Nearly all the dattos, and especially the surviving sultans, claim to entertain friendly feelings toward the United States. In view of a cablegram which Gen. Chaffee received from Gen. Davis, who is in command of the American forces on Mindanao, and in which it appears that Datto Ruly has apparently refused to return the animals he captured from the American army, Gen. Chaffee is not prepared to say that there will be no more fighting in Mindanao. Gen. Davis reports that although it may be necessary to bring this datto to terms, his resistance of the American forces must necessarily be slight. Datto Ruly's forts are situated on a high hill. They could be surrounded by a line of American skirmishers, who would prevent the datto from obtaining water and who could thus force a practically bloodless victory in a few days.

Servian Cabinet Quits.

Belgrade, Servia, May 20.—King Alexander has accepted the resignation of the Servian cabinet. M. Passios, formerly a Radical, has been entrusted with the formation of a new ministry.

Vesuvius May Fall In.

Rome, May 20.—The government stationed dispatch boats along the coast fronting on Mount Vesuvius, warning vessels to keep a safe distance, as the main precipice looking toward Pompeii is about to fall in. All roads leading to the summit are closed.

Pauncefote Improving.

Washington, May 20.—Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, was reported to be slightly improved yesterday. His condition is said to be satisfactory.

MOUNT PELEE AGAIN ACTIVE.

Glowing Red Clouds and Showers of Cinders Create Consternation.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 18. —Last night great flashes of very bright light were emitted from Mount Pelee. They were visible from here. Thick glowing red clouds, interspersed with flashes of light, are issuing from the volcano this morning. Showers of cinders, lasting for twenty minutes, accompanied the activity. The people in the districts of Lorrain, Marigot, St. Marie and La Trinite are panic-stricken. The authorities are now waking up to the fact that looting is being carried on in an extensive scale at St. Pierre. M. Vallin, who has been appointed by cable general attorney for the firm of Van Romondt, arrived from St. Pierre last night. He says that on his arrival there yesterday morning he found that thieves had broken open the firm's safe and that bank notes were lying on the ground all around. He had to call his assistants to him for protection against the looters, who were closing in on him to rob him. Eventually about forty of the thieves were arrested and brought here.

CARING FOR REFUGEES.

American Officer Cables Information of What Is Being Done.

Washington, May 18. — Secretary Moody has received the following cablegram from Commander T. C. McLean of the Cincinnati:

"St. Lucia, May 16. — Six thousand refugees have come into Fort-de-France. Three thousand have come into Kingston. Northern portions of Martinique and St. Vincent very many people perished. Others suffering for food and water. Very great difficulty relieving and saving so many people scattered over large areas. Numbers of people to be fed and cared for said to be reduced by mortality. Have coaled here. Return to Fort-de-France (and) St. Pierre to-day. Will endeavor to recover records of American and British consulates at St. Pierre. If remains of officials are found will bury with military honors."

ST. VINCENT GROWING SMALLER.

Sea Encroaches From Ten Feet to Two Miles.

Kingston, Island St. Vincent, May 18. —A correspondent of the Associated Press has just returned here from a visit, on horseback, to the devastated district of this island, during wrich he traveled fifty miles and penetrated to within five miles of the Soufriere crater.

The ash-covered area of St. Vincent exceeds that of Martinique, which the correspondent has also explored. The most conservative estimate of the death rate here now places the number at 1,700. About 1,300 bodies have already been interred.

The entire northern part of the island is covered with ashes to an average depth of eighteen inches, varying from a thin layer at Kingston to two feet or more at Georgetown.

The crops are ruined; nothing green can be seen; the streets of Georgetown are cumbered with heaps of ashes resembling snowdrifts.

It is estimated that the sea has encroached from ten feet to two miles along the coast near Georgetown and that a section of the north end of the island has dropped into the sea. This is apparently verified by the report of the French cable ship Pourier Quarter that soundings now show seven fathoms, where before the outbreak there were thirty-six fathoms of water.

Lieut. Benjamin B. McCormick, commanding the United States steamer Potomac, now in these waters, has called on Gov. Llewellyn and offered him the sympathy of the United States and any assistance he is able to render. The Potomac has also landed what she can spare of her foodstuffs. The governor expressed his thanks and said there was no immediate need of help.

FRANCE WAKES UP.

Funds for Martinique Sufferers Are Being Raised.

Paris, May 18.—Provincial France seems now to fully grasp the situation in Martinique. Most of the towns and communes throughout the country are actively at work, raising funds and voting resolutions of sympathy with the sufferers. The government is placing collection boxes in all the postoffices.

The total Martinique relief fund at noon to-day was 450,000 francs.

BOGUS WAR THEIR AIM.

Secret Revolutionary Society in the Philippines.

Manila, May 18. — The constabulary has unearthed a secret revolutionary society, similar to the Katipunan, which was organized in the middle of April. It was discovered through a municipal official of Bulucan, who was solicited for a subscription to a fund to buy arms. The object of the society was to create a semblance of a revolution, and then demand that congress grant independence to the Philippines. The leaders have been arrested. The members are obscure persons, who are not known by Filipino politicians or the insurgents. The movement is believed to have been suppressed.

Gen. Chaffee has concluded his negotiations with the Moros in Mindanao. He has also visited the Island of Samar and will return to Manila to-morrow.

CIVIL WAR WILL NOT BE AVERTED

Delegates From South Arrive With Intent of Forming Government.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, May 18.—There were further disturbances here last night. A mob attacked the palace, but the rioters were fired on by the presidential guard and eventually dispersed. Some of the attacking party were killed or wounded, according to report. A number of delegates from the southern towns have arrived here with the intention of forming another provisional government. The revolutionists in the North have rejected the overtures made to them with the object of averting civil war. They took this action after raising a loan of $50,000, guaranteed by the customs receipts of Cape Haitien, and Gonaives, the two ports in their hands. The Northern army, consequently, will soon begin its march on Port-au-Prince.

Tried to Drown Himself.

Milwaukee, May 18. — Malcolm McCulloch, a well known telegraph operator, tried to drown himself in the lake at the foot of Wisconsin street, but was pulled out by Patrolman Peck and several employes of the Northwestern Railway company, who were near. He was taken to the emergency hospital.

High School for Delano.

Delano, Minn., May 18.—The Delano independent school district election voted $7,000 in bonds for a high school building.

CAUGHT NAPPING

GAYNOR AND GREENE ARRESTED AT QUEBEC AND TAKEN TO MONTREAL.

OFFICERS WORK VERY QUICKLY

PRISONERS ARE HUSTLED ON BOARD A TUG WHICH ELUDES PURSUIT.

EMBEZZLED GOVERNMENT FUNDS

WERE INDICTED IN GEORGIA IN CONNECTION WITH SAVANNAH FRAUDS.

Quebec, May 17.—Col. John F. Gaynor and Capt. W. D. Greene, who forfeited their bail at Savannah early in March and fled to Canada, were placed under arrest by officers connected with the United States secret service and Chief Carpenter of the Montreal detective force yesterday. The arrests were made on warrants issued in Montreal, Chief Wilkie's men assisting the Canadian officers to make the arrests.

The men were hurried on board a swift little tug which had been kept in waiting at the wharf. Ten minutes after Greene and Gaynor were safely on board the boat steamed out into the river and started toward Montreal. The officers moved so quickly that neither of the prisoners were given opportunity to consult counsel. When notified of her husband's arrest Mrs. Gaynor at once consulted Mr. Tachereau, her husband's attorney. A tug was chartered and an unsuccessful attempt was made to overtake the boat on which Gaynor and Greene were being carried away. An attempt was made to head off the tug at Three Rivers, but without success.

Plans Worked Well.

Montreal, May 17.—Marion Erwin of Macon, Ga., district attorney for the Southern district of Georgia, swore out warrants before Judge Desnoyes calling for the arrest of John F. Gaynor and Capt. Greene, the two contractors indicted in Georgia for connection with the Savannah frauds. Gaynor and Greene have been for some time past stopping at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. The extradition of wealthy Americans in Quebec has in the past been attended with a great deal of difficulty, and so Mr. Erwin, following out a plan of action devvised to secure possession of the two men, laid his information in the Montreal courts. The warrant was then intrusted to Chief Carpenter of the local detective bureau, who, with some of his assistants, went to Quebec and arrested the men, placed them on board a tug and started for this city.

Think It Is Kidnapping.

The Spray passed Sorrel at 11:45. She is due here about 3:30 a. m.

The warrants upon which Gaynor and Greene were arrested in Quebec were sworn out by Marion Erwin of Macon, Ga., who has been for some time in this city. He is advised by the law firm of MacMaster & Hickson, and the warrants were given into the hands of Chief of City Detectives Carpenter to execute. The warrants charge the men with embezzlement from the United States government, and were issued by Judge La Fontain, who thereby compels them to appear before the extradition commissioners in Montreal.

The pursuit of the tug Spray by the Quebec authorities is probably due to a misunderstanding of the situation owing to the quick arrest there. The provincial police at Quebec evidently think Gaynor and Greene were kidnapped by American officers.

Hatched in Washington.

Washington, May 17.—The arrest of Messrs. Gaynor and Greene was the result of a carefully prepared and well matured plan devised by the government officials, acting under instructions of the department of justice of the United States.

TO REPEAT DISASTER.

Prophet Declares That St. Pierre Will Have Second Visitation.

Elgin, Ill., May 17. — Dr. William G. Todd, a somewhat well-known prophet, says that the disaster at St. Pierre and eruption of the volcano at Mont Pelee will be repeated on or about June 5. He associates the recent eruption with the new moon, which appeared on that date, and says that the coming of another new moon on June 5 will find the crust of the earth in the vicinity of Mont Pelee in such a shattered condition that the eruption will be inevitable.

AGONY FOR MOTHER.

Unable to Rescue Her Child, Who Was Being Burned to Death.

New York, May 17. — Crippled with rheumatism and unable to move from her bed, Mrs. William Wagner of Newark, N. J., saw her daughter Edna, two and a half years old, burn to death within a few feet of her bed. While her nurse was absent the child procured matches, and, while playing with them, set fire to her clothing and the curtains.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Emporia, Kan., May 17. — James H. Dumprope, aged seventeen years, who killed his traveling companion, George Crowley, near here on March 26 and then placed his body, weighted down, in the Neosho river, was yesterday found guilty of Manslaughter in the third degree. Dumprope pleaded self-defense, but admitted having taken $20 of the dead man's money.

Girl Orator Poisoned.

Hudson, Wis., May 17. — Miss Jeannette Scott, the second-honor contestant in the intercounty declamatory contest, has been painfully injured by poison ivy. It is feared she will not be able to go to River Falls to compete for the district prize.

Judge Humphrey Dying.

Hudson, Wis., May 17.—Judge Herman L. Humphrey, who has been very ill for three weeks past with nervous complications, is now in a critical condition, with little hope of recovery.

THE LAST TRIBUTE.

Late Lieut. Gov. Stone of Wisconsin Is Buried at Watertown.

Watertown, Wis., May 16. — The funeral of the late Lieut. Gov. Jesse Stone was held yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large concourse of people from all parts of the state. Among those in attendance were the state officers and a large representation of the state legislative body. The public schools were closed and business was suspended during the hours of the funeral. The services at the Congregational church and at the grave were conducted under the auspices of the Masons, of which body Mr. Stone was a very prominent member. There was an abundance of floral offerings.

HIS HANDS SHATTERED.

North Dakota Farmer Has His Hands Over Gun's Muzzle.

Minot, N. D., May 16.—Lacy Grooms, a farmer, while driving west of town, shot both his hands with a shotgun, blowing off two fingers of his right hand and tearing a hole in his left hand. He was riding in a wagon, resting the butt of the gun, a double-barrelled one, on the bottom of the box, and had his hands crossed on the muzzle. A small boy sitting in front of him received some shot in his temple and one coat sleeve was ripped completely off his arm.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

Life Imprisonment Recommended for Edward Dennis.

Clarinda, Iowa, May 16—A jury found Edward Dennis guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing, Dec. 18 last, of Oscar K. Miller, and recommended life imprisonment. Miller was a working man who was found dead in the sand house of the Wabash railroad, his head being badly crushed. Dennis and two companions, Eugene Mason and Wesley Irwin, were arrested, charged with the crime. The trials of Mason and Irwin begin to-day.

SHOT TO SAVE LIFE.

Coats, Accused of Murdering Braatz, Puts Up Defense.

Minot, N. D., May 16.—The evidence in the Coats murder trial is not all in but will probably be completed to-day. Coats admits shooting Braatz, but says it was dark and that Braatz was coming at him in a way which led him to believe that he meant to kill him, so Coats shot in self-defense. The shot tore a hole in Braatz's jaw and he died almost instantly. All the evidence tends to prove the truth of Coats' story, and it is believed he will be freed.

HENDERSON WINS.

It Will Remain the Capital of Sibley County.

Henderson, Minn., May 16.—The special election held in Sibley county yesterday on the proposition of removing the county seat from Henderson to Gaylord resulted in favor of Henderson by a majority of 134.

Saved by Steam Pipe.

Lead, S. D., May 16.—While working about the mouth of Pluma shaft, Thomas Peacock, an employe of the Pluma company in Northeast Lead, lost his balance and only saved himself from a fall of 200 feet by grasping a hot steam pipe. He had dropped several feet before reaching the pipe. It was some time before he could be rescued, and the flesh was burned on the inside of his hands. He escaped other injury.

Robbed a Postoffice.

Madison, Wis., May 16—J. W. Francis pleaded guilty in the federal court to robbing the postoffice at Blair, Trempealeau county, last November, and was sentenced to prison at Stillwater for two years. He had been in jail since November and recently made a desperate attempt to escape. The robbery netted $240 in cash and $480 worth of postage stamps.

Passed Away in Southland.

Olivia, Minn., May 16.—P. W. Heins, one of the wealthiest citizens of Renville county and an early settler in Olivia, died at Melbourn, Fla., whither he had gone for his health. His death removes one of Olivia's most enterprising citizens. He left a widow and two sons. He was a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Big Black Hills Trout.

Rapid City, S. D., May 16. — McRae Hartgering has the distinction of having landed the largest trout caught along Rapid creek this year. He brought into town a fish twenty-two inches long that dressed three pounds. The trout fishing has been excellent in Rapid creek this spring.

Instantly Killed.

Missoula, Mont., May 16—Willard Sly, a Northern Pacific car repairer, was caught under a flat car forty-five miles east of here and killed. The car had been wrecked and was being hoisted by a derrick, when the hoisting apparatus dropped the car upon Sly, who was instantly killed.

Rehearings Denied.

Pierre, S. D., May 16.—The supreme court denied the petitions for a rehearing in Coughran Vs. Hollister, Kirby vs. Berguin, Mach vs. Blanchard, Sutton et al. vs. Apex Mining Company et al., Case vs. Eichenger et al., Dunn vs. National Bank Park & Grant vs. Robinson et al.

Slaughter of Gophers.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 16.—The gopher bounty season in Brown county closed May 10. The total amount paid in bounties was $5,965.76, representing the slaughter of 298,188 gophers.

Big Pulp Mill to Be Built.

Marquette, Mich., May 16—The Munising Paper company, which is to build paper and pulp mills at Munising costing $450,000, has been incorporated for $1,000,000.

Judge Accommodates Farmer Jurors

Fargo, N. D., May 16.—On account of the busy season Judge Pollock excused the district court jurors and put over the criminal cases till next term. Farm work in the valley was so delayed that the agricultural members of the jury would have been heavy losers.

Judge's Condition Serious.

Deadwood, S. D., May 16.—Judge F. J. Washabaugh is in a serious state of health, and was unable to convene the circuit court Monday, as previously ordered.

WORST NOT OVER

SOUFRIERE ON ST. VINCENT IS STILL IN DESTRUCTIVE ERUPTION.

FULLY 1,600 KNOWN TO BE DEAD

IMPOSSIBLE TO REACH THE BURNING DISTRICT BY LAND OR SEA.

A GOVERNOR'S INHUMAN ACT

GAVE ORDERS WHICH PREVENTED ESCAPE OF PEOPE FROM ST. PIERRE.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, May 16. —The Soufriere volcano on Island of St. Vincent is still in destructive eruption. The terrific cannonade can be heard a hundred miles away. The reports are followed by columns of smoke, rising miles in the air. Immense balls of colored fire also issue from the crater. Lightning is playing fiercely in the upper sky and the whole northern part of the island is one mass of traveling flame. It is impossible to reach the burning district by land or sea, and there are no means of estimating the destruction wrought to life and property.

Kingstown, the capital of St. Vincent is still safe, though showers of ashes and pebbles are continually falling down. The volcano itself is invisible. It has just been officially reported that there were 1,600 dead up to yesterday at St. Vincent.

Isle Is Devastated.

London, May 16. — The governor of the Windward islands, Sir Llewelyn, telegraphs to the colonial office from the Island of St. Vincent under date of May 13, as follows:

"I arrived here yesterday and found the state of affairs much worse than had been stated. The administrator's reports show that the country on the east coast between Robin Rock and Georgetown was apparently struck and devastated in a manner similar to that which destroyed St. Pierre, and I fear that practically all living things in that radius were killed.

"Probably 1,600 persons lost their lives. The exact number will never be known. Managers and owners of the estates, with their families, and several of the better class of people, have been killed.

"A thousand bodies have been found and buried. One hundred and sixty persons are in the hospital at Georgetown. Probably only six of this number will recover.

"All the best sugar estates in the Carib country are devastated and the cattle are dead.

"The eruption continues, but is apparently moderating."

Fort-de-France in Danger.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, May 16. —The signal station here reports that a large fire was seen last night in the direction of Fort-de-France, Martinique. The British steamer Savan, Capt. Hunter, arrived here yesterday morning and reports Mont Pelee to be still in eruption. The trend of the flow from the volcano is ot the north.

The search parties who are removing the dead from St. Pierre have discovered safes and molten precious metal in dwellings and stores of the town. No one is permitted to penetrate into St. Pierre beyond the street running along the sea front, and a cordon of soldiers has been placed around the town. The St. Pierre cathedral is all down with the exception of one tower, and of the theater the walls alone are now standing. The convent, which contained 200 girls and 36 nuns, has disappeared, as has the college, where 70 boys and 22 priests and professors were domiciled. Many thrilling and hairbreadth escapes from the eruption of Mont Pelee are reported.

Further Calamity Presaged.

London, May 16.—The Fort-de-France correspondent of the Times in a dispatch describing the present condition of Mont Pelee, says that volcano is still rumbling and that three luminous points on the lower slopes of the mountain, which are casting incandescent rays, seem to presage a further calamity.

ESCAPE WAS CUT OFF.

Governor Surrounded St. Pierre With Soldiers and Police.

London, May 16—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Barbadoes, B. W. I., who visited St. Pierre on board the royal mail steamer Solent, has learned from a Dr. Artler, who miraculously escaped the disaster, that when the governor of Martinique, M. Moutet, and the insular officials had declared that all danger from an eruption of Mount Pelee was past a cordon of armed soldiers and policemen was placed around the town to prevent the people from leaving. Dr. Artler, however, went to the suburb of Morne Rouge. He was riding back to St. Pierre when the explosion occurred. He turned and fled precipitately across the mountains to Fort-de-France.

With the exception of the prisoner who was confined in a dungeon at the time of the explosion Dr. Artler is really the sole survivor of St. Pierre.

HEAVILY LADEN SHIP SINKS.

Six Hundred and Fifty Native Passengers From Madras and Crew Lost.

London, May 16. — A dispatch from Rangoon, British Burmah, says a lifeboat belonging to the British steamer Camperta, overdue at that point from Madras, has been picked up in the Bay of Bengal. A lifeboat and boom belonging to the Camorta has also been picked up near Krishna lightship on the Madras coast by a vessel searching for the missing steamer. It is believed that the Camorta foundered on May 6. Besides the 650 passengers, who were natives, the Camorta had a crew of 89.

Strange Cattle Disease.

Nashua, Iowa, May 16.—The veterinary surgeons are unable to cope with a new disease that is affecting the cattle near here. The cattle chew and make every attempt to eat their food, but are unable to swallow.

Diffenbaugh Declared Insane.

Helena, Mont., May 16.—J. A. Diffenbaugh, prominent in Masonic and Elk circles, has been adjudged insane. He was past exalted ruler of the Elks of Baltimore. He recently attempted to commit suicide.

CONGRESS.

House Discusses the Naval Appropriation Bill.

Washington, May 15.—The naval appropriation bill occupied the attention of the house throughout the day, Mr. Dayton of West Virginia speaking on the need of strengthening our naval battle line, while Messrs. W. W. Kitchin of North Carolina, Fitzgerald of New York, Metcalf of California and Maynard of Virginia strongly advocated the building of warships in government navy yards. The debate took a wide range at times. Mr. Rhea of Virginia speaking in criticism of the administration's Philippines policy, while Mr. Elliott of South Carolina presented the advantages of the proposed Appalachian forest reserve.

In the Senate.

During the greater part of the senate session yesterday the fortifications appropriation bill was under consideration. Mr. Proctor of Vermont offered an amendment providing that no part of the appropriation made should be used for producing disappearing gun carriages. The amendment precipitated a debate which continued for two hours and had not concluded when the measure was laid aside for the day.

TAMMANY LEADER RESIGNS.

Croker's Successor Does Not Find the Job a Bed of Roses.

New York, May 16. — Lewis Nixon, leader of Tammany Hall for nearly six months, resigned that position yesterday at a meeting of the district leaders held in Tammany Hall. While the resignation was not entirely unexpected it was not thought that Mr. Nixon would take such positive action until a later date, first waiting the action of the leaders to see if they would give him a vote of confidence. Instead of this he refused to allow any vote of confidence and went so far as to say that he could no longer retain his self respect if he remained as leader. This action followed a deadlock at the meeting of the sachems of the Tammany Hall society Monday when Mr. Nixon's intention of retiring Thomas L. Feitner as grand sachem was frustrated by a tie.

BOERS WILL RENDEZVOUS.

Lord Kitchener Expects That Conference Will Be Large.

London, May 16.—Lord Kitchener has notified the war office that representatives of all the bodies of Boers throughout the Transvaal and Orange River colonies are gathering at Vereening for the conference, which begins to-morrow, and that he has arranged that the delegates shall not be impeded in reaching the rendezvous. Consequently the assemblage is expected to be large. The decision reached regarding the peace terms will later be submitted to the British. A delegation, consisting probably of the same Boer leaders who went to Pretoria recently, will be deputized to convey the decision to Lord Kitchener.

TO HONOR LONGFELLOW.

McCleary Presents Favorable Report on Statue Bill.

Washington, May 16.—Representative McCleary of Minnesota yesterday presented a favorable report from the house committee on the library bill for a pedestal of the statue of the poet Longfellow to be erected in Washington. The report refers to Longfellow's splendid contributions to literature and to the national spirit of his writings. The statue is to be furnished by the Longfellow Memorial association, of which Chief Justice Fuller is president, and the pedestal, to be furnished by the government, is to cost $4,000.

O'GORMAN AT VATICAN.

The Pope Expresses Admiration of Roosevelt and Ireland.

Rome, May 16.—The pope received in audience yesterday Bishop Thomas O'Gorman of Sioux Falls, S. D., a member of the American commission appointed to confer with the pope regarding church questions in the Philippines. The pontiff expressed his pleasure at the coming of the mission and his admiration of President Roosevelt, especially of his "political good sense." He also said he felt that a debt of gratitude was due to Archbishop Ireland.

DEATH LIST GROWS.

Two More of the Injured at Sheraden, Pa., Succumb.

Pittsburg, May 16.—The casualty list resulting from Monday's disaster at Sheraden continues to grow. Two deaths were reported this morning, swelling the death list to twenty-six. It is believed this will be increased to forty before the last reports are received from the hospitals and homes.

The number of injured is constantly increasing and the known list now exceeds 350. Many, however, are not serious.

DANES IN DEADLOCK.

Each House Refuses to Concede Anything to the Other.

Copenhagen, May 16. — The conference committee of the Rigsdag which is considering the treaty with the United States for the sale of the Danish West Indies is at a complete deadlock, each party maintaining the resolution of its own house.

If the houses, after meeting separately, readhere to the previous resolutions the question will be completely shelved.

ASSASSIN IS EXECUTED.

Balschenff, Slayer of Sipiaguine, Sent to His Doom.

London, May 16.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Central News says that Balschenff, who assassinated M. Sipiaguine, the Russian minister of the interior, April 15, was executed last Monday.

Canada Makes Donation.

Ottawa, Ont., May 16.—The Canadian parliament yesterday voted $50,000 for the relief of the sufferers of Martinique and St. Vincent. Half of the amount will go to each.

Franchises Forfeited.

Austin, Tex., May 16.—The charters of 782 domestic corporations and the permits to do business in Texas of 88 foreign corporations will be declared forfeited by the secretary of state today for not paying their franchise tax.

Washout Causes a Wreck.

Ellis, Kan., May 16.—A washout yesterday on the Colby branch of the Union Pacific railroad caused a freight wreck in which George Engle, engineer, was killed, and the fireman and two brakemen were badly injured.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER VIII. (Continued.)

"When my logical formula came back I thought of it," he said. On inquiring as to whom it was who rung me up on that fateful occasion, I learned that the number was 0017 Kensington and that—"

"Gates' own number at Prince's Gate," Bell exclaimed. "The plot thickens."

"It does, indeed," David said, grimly. "It is Wilkie Collins gone mad, Gaboriau in extremis, Du Boisgaboy suffering from delirium tremens. I go to Gates' house here, and am solemnly told, in the midst of surroundings that I can swear to that I have never been there before; the whole mad expedition is launched by the turning of the handle of a telephone in the house of a distinguished, trusted, if prosaic citizen. Somebody gets hold of the synopsis of a story of mine, Heaven knows how—"

"That is fairly easy. The synopsis was short, I suppose?"

"Only a few lines, 1,000 words, a sheet of paper. My writing is very small. It was tucked into a half-penny open envelope—a magazine office envelope, marked 'Proof, urgent.' There were the proofs of a short story in the buff envelope."

"Which reached its destination in due course?"

"So I hear this morning. But how on earth—"

"Easily Enough. The whole thing gets slipped into a larger envelope, the kind of big-mouthed affair that enterprising firms send out circulars and patterns with. This falls into the hands of the woman who is at the bottom of this and every other case, and she reads the synopsis from sheer curiosity. The case fits her case, and there you are. Mind, I don't say that this is how the thing actually happened, but how it might have done so. When did you post the letter?"

"I can't give you the date. Say ten days ago."

"And there would be no hurry for a reply," Bell said, thoughtfully. "And you had no cause for worry on that head. Nor need the woman who found it have kept the envelope beyond the delay of a single post, which is only a matter of an hour or so in London. If you go a little farther we find that money is no object, hence the £1,000 offer and the careful, and doubtless expensive, inquiry into your position. Steel, I am going to enjoy this case."

"You're welcome to all the fun you can get out of it," David said, grimly. "So far as I am concerned, I fail to see the humor. Isn't this the office you are after?"

Bell nodded and disappeared, presently to return with two exceedingly rusty keys tied together with a drab piece of tape. He jingled them on his long, slender forefinger with an air of positive enjoyment.

"Now come along," he said. "I feel like a boy who has marked down something rare in the way of a bird's nest. We will go back to Brunswick Square exactly the same way as you approached it on the night of the great adventure."

CHAPTER IX.

The Broken Figure.

"Any particular object in that course?" David asked.

"There ought to be an object in everything that even an irrational man says or does," Bell replied. "I have achieved some marvellous results by following up a single sentence uttered by a patient. Besides, on the evening in question, you were particularly told to approach the house from the sea front."

"Somebody might have been on the look-out near the Western Road entrance," Steel suggested.

"Possibly. I have another theory: Here we are. The figures over the fanlights run from 187 upwards, getting gradually to 219 as you breast the slope. At 1 o'clock in the morning every house would be in darkness. Did you find that to be so?"

"I didn't notice a light anywhere until I reached 219."

"Good, again. And you could only find 219 by the light over the door. Naturally you were not interested in and would not have looked for any other number. Well, here is 218, where I propose to enter, and for which purpose I have the keys. Come along."

David followed, wonderingly. The house in Brunswick Square was somewhat irregular in point of architecture, and Nos. 218 and 219 were the only matched pair thereabouts. Signs were not wanting, as Bell pointed out, that at one time the houses had been occupied as one residence. The two entrance halls were back to back, so to speak, and what had previously been a doorway, leading from one to the other, had been plastered up within comparatively recent memory.

The grim and dusty desolation of an empty house seemed to be supplemented here by deeper desolation. Not that there was any dust on the ground floor, which seemed a singular thing seeing that elsewhere the boards were powdered with it, and festoons of brown cobwebs hung everywhere. Bell smiled approvingly as David Steel pointed the fact out to him.

"Do you note another singular point?" the former asked.

"No," David said, thoughtfully; "I—stop! The two side shutters in the bay windows are closed, and there is the same vivid crimson blind in the center window. And the self color of the walls is exactly the same. The faint discoloration by the fireplace is a perfect facsimile."

"In fact, this is the room you were in the other night," Bell said, quietly.

"Impossible!" Steel cried. "The blind may be an accident, so might the fading of the distemper. But the furniture, the engravings, the fittings generally—"

"Are all capable of an explanation, which we shall arrive at with patience."

"Can we arrive at the number over the door with patience?"

"Exactly what I was coming to. I noticed an old pair of steps in the back sitting room. Would you mind placing them against the fanlight for me?"

David complied readily enough. He was growing credulous and interested in spite of himself. At Bell's instigation he placed the steps before the fanlight and mounted them. Over his head were the figures 218 in elongated shape and formed in white porcelain.

"Now, then," Bell said slowly. "Take this pocketknife, apply the blade to the right-hand lower half of the bottom of the figure 8—to half the small o, in fact—and I shall be extremely surprised if the quarter section doesn't come away from the glass of the fanlight, leaving the rest of the figure intact. Very gently, please. I want to convince you that the piece comes away because it is broken, and not because the pressure has cracked it. Now, then."

The point of the knife was hardly under the edge of the porcelain before the segment of the lower circle dropped into Steel's hand. He could feel the edges of the cement sticking to his fingers. As yet the full force of the discovery was not apparent to him.

"Go out into the road and look at the fanlight," Bell directed.

David complied eagerly. A sharp cry of surprise escaped him as he looked up. The change was apparent. Instead of the figures 218 he could read now the change to 219—a faintly indifferent 9, but one that would have passed muster without criticism by ninety-nine people out of a hundred. With a strong light behind the figures the clumsy 9 would never have been noticed at all. The very simplicity and ingeniousness of the scheme was its safeguard.

"I should like to have the address of the man who thought that out," David said dryly.

"Yes, I fancy that you are dealing with quite clever people," Bell replied. "And now I have shown you how utterly you have been deceived over the number we will go a little further. For the present, the way in which the furniture trick was worked must remain a mystery. But there has been furniture here, or this room and the hall would not have been so carefully swept and garnished whilst the rest of the house remains in so dirty a condition. If my eyes don't deceive me, I can see two fresh nails driven into the archway leading to the back hall. On those nails hung the curtain which prevented you from seeing more than was necessary. Are you still incredulous as to the house where you had your remarkable adventure?"

"I confess that my faith has been seriously shaken," David admitted. "But about the furniture? And about my telephone call from Mr. Gates' town house? And about my adventure taking place in the very next house to the one taken by him at Brighton? And about Miss Gates' agitation when she learnt my identity? Do you call them coincidences?"

"No, I don't," Bell said promptly. "They are merely evidences of clever folks taking advantage of an excellent strategic position. I said just now that it was an important point that Mr. Gates had merely taken the next door furnished. But we shall come to that side of the theory in due course. Have you any other objections to urge?"

"One more, and I have finished for the present. When I came here the other night—provided, of course, that I did come here—immediately upon my entering the dining room the place was brilliantly illuminated. Now, directly the place was void the supply of electric current would be cut off at the meter. So far as I can judge, some two or three units must have been consumed during my visit. There could not be many less than ten lights burning for an hour. Now, those units must show on the meter. Can you read an electric meter?"

"My dear fellow, there is nothing easier."

"Then let us go down into the basement and settle the matter. There is pretty sure to be a card on the meter made up to the day when the last tenant went out. See, the supply is cut off now."

As Steel spoke he snapped down the hall switch and no result came. Down in the basement by the area door stood the meter. Both switches were turned off, but on Bell pressing them down Steel was enabled to light the passage.

"There's the card," Bell exclaimed. "Made up to 25th June, 1895, since when the house has been void. Just a minute whilst I read the meter. Yes, that's right. According to this card in your hand, provided that the light has not been used since the index was taken, should read at 1521. What do you make of the card?"

"1532," David cried. "Which means eleven units since the meter was last taken. Or, if you like to put it from your own point of view, eleven units used the night that I came here. You are quite right, Bell. You have practically convinced me that I have been inside the real 219 for the first time to-day. And yet the more one probes the mystery the more astounding does it become. . . . What do you propose to do next?"

"Find out the name of the last tenant or owner," Bell suggested. "Discover what the two houses were used for when they were occupied by one person. Also ascertain why on earth the owners are willing to let a house this size and in this situation for a sum like £80 per annum. Let us go and take the keys back to the agents."

Steel was nothing loth to find himself in the fresh air again. Some progress had been made like the opening of a chess match between masters, and yet the more Steel thought of it the more muddled and bewildered did he become. No complicated tangle in the way of a plot had ever been anything like the skein this was.

"I'm like a child in your hands," he said. "I'm a blind man on the end of a string; a man dazed with wine in a labyrinth. And if ever I help a woman again——"

He paused as he caught sight of Ruth Gates' lovely face through the window of No. 219. Her features were tinged with melancholy; there was a look of deepest sympathy and feeling and compassion in her glorious eyes. She slipped back as Steel bowed, and the rest of his speech was lost in a sigh.

CHAPTER X.—The House of the Silent Sorrow.

A bell tolled mournfully with a slow, swinging cadence like a passing bell. On winter nights, folks passing the House of the Silent Sorrow, compared the doleful clanging to the boom that carries the criminal from the cell to the scaffold. Every night all the year round the little valley of Longdean echoed to that mournful clang. Perhaps it was for this reason that a wandering poet christened the place as the House of the Silent Sorrow.

For seven years this had been going on now, until nobody but strangers noticed it. From half-past seven till eight o'clock that hideous bell rang its swinging, melancholy note. Why it was nobody could possibly tell. Nobody in the village had ever been beyond the great rusty gates leading to a dark drive of Scotch firs, though one small boy bolder than the rest had once climbed the lichen-strewn stone wall and penetrated the thick undergrowth beyond. Hence he had returned, with white face and staring eyes, with the information that great wild dogs dwelt in the thickets. Subsequently the village poacher confirmed this information. He was not exactly loquacious on the subject, but merely hinted that the grounds of Longdean Grange were not salubrious for naturalists with a pedatory disposition.

Indeed, on moonlight nights those apocryphal hounds were heard to bay and whimper. A shepherd up late one spring night averred that he had seen two of them fighting. But nobody could say anything about them for certain; also, it was equally certain that nobody knew anything about the people at Longdean Grange. The place had been shut up for thirty years, being understood to be in Chancery, when the announcement went forth that a distant relative of the family had arranged to live there in future.

What the lady of the Grange was like no one could say. She had arrived late one night, accompanied by a niece, and from that moment she had never been beyond the house. None of the large staff of servants ever left the grounds unless it was to quit altogether, and then they were understood to leave at night with a large bonus in money as a recompense for their promise to evacuate Sussex without delay. Everything was ordered by telephone from Brighton and left at the porter's lodge. The porter was a stranger; also he was deaf and exceedingly ill tempered, so that long since the village had abandoned the hope of getting anything out of him. One rational being they saw from the Grange occasionally, a big man with an exceedingly benevolent face and mild, large blue eyes—a man full of Christian kindness and given to largesse to the village boys. The big gentleman went by the name of "Mr. Charles," and was understood to have a lot of pigeons of which he was exceedingly fond. But who "Mr. Charles" was, or how he had got that name, it would have puzzled the wisest head of the village to tell.

And yet, but for the mighty clamor of that hideous bell and that belt of wildness that surrounded it, Longdean Grange was a cheerful looking house enough. Any visitor emerging from the drive would have been delighted with it. For the lawns were trim and truly kept, the beds were blazing with masses of flowers, the creepers over the Grange were not allowed to riot too extravagantly. And yet the strange, haunting sense of fear was there! Now and again a huge black head would uplift from the coppice growth, and a long, rumbling growl come from beneath a double row of white teeth. For the dogs were no fiction. They lived and bred in the fifteen or twenty acres of coppice round the house, where they were fed regularly and regularly thrashed without mercy if they showed in the garden. Perhaps they looked more fierce and truculent than they really were, being Cuban bloodhounds, but they gave a weird color to the place and lent it new terror to the simple folk around.

The bell was swinging dolefully over the stable turret; it rang out its passing note till the clock struck eight and then mercifully ceased. At the same moment precisely as she had done any time the last seven years, the lady of the house descended the broad, black oak staircase to the hall. A butler of the old-fashioned type bowed to her and announced that dinner was ready. He might have been the butler of an archbishop from his mien and deportment, yet his evening dress was seedy and shiny to the last degree, his patent leather boots had long lost their luster, his linen was terribly frayed and yellow. Two footmen in livery stood in the hall. They might have been supers playing on the boards of a traveling theater, their once smartly cut and trimmed coats hung raggedly upon them.

As to the lady, who was tall and handsome, with dark eyes and features contrasting strangely with hair as white as the frost on a winter's landscape, there was a far-away, strained look in the dark eyes, as if they were ever night and day looking for something, something that would never be found. In herself the lady was clean and wholesome enough, but her evening dress of black silk and lace was dropping into fragments, the lace was in rags upon her bosom, though there were diamonds of great value in her white hair.

And here, strangely allied, were wealth and direst poverty; the whole place was filled with rare and costly things, pictures, statuary, china: the floors were covered with thick carpets, and yet everything was absolutely smothered in dust. A thick, white, blankety cloud of it lay everywhere. It obscured the china, it dimmed the glasses of the pictures, it piled in little drifts on the heads and arms of the dingy statues there. Many years must have elapsed since a housemaid's brush or duster had touched anything in Longdean Grange. It was like a palace of the Sleeping Beauty, wherein people walked as in a walking dream.

The lady of the house made her way slowly to the dining room. Here dinner was laid out daintily and artistically enough—a gourmant would have drawn up to the table with a feeling of satisfaction. Flowers were there, and silver and cut glass, china with a history of its own, and the whole set out on a tablecloth that was literally dropping to pieces.

It was a beautiful room in itself, lofty, oak panelled from floor to roof, with a few pictures of price on the walls. There was plenty of gleaming silver glowing like an argent moon against a purple sky, and yet the same sense of dust and desolation everywhere. Only the dinner looked bright and modern.

There were two other people standing by the table, one a girl, with a handsome, intellectual face full of passion but ill-repressed; the other, the big, fair man, known as "Mr. Charles." As a matter of fact, his name was Reginald Henson, and he was distantly related to Mrs. Henson, the strange chatelaine of the House of the Silent Sorrow. He was smiling blandly now at Enid Henson, the wonderfully-beautiful girl with the defiant, shining eyes.

"We may be seated, now that madam has arrived," Henson said, gravely.

He spoke with a certain mocking humility and a queer, wry smile on his broad, loose mouth that filled Enid with a speechless fury. The girl was hot-blooded—a good hater and a good friend. And the master passion of her life was hatred of Reginald Henson.

Negro's Canning Diplomacy.

Apropos of a point he desired to make, Hamilton Mabie told this story at the Aldine association the other evening, of an old negro who experienced religion, and of his master, whose conversation was punctuated with profanity. It was just after the Civil war. The negro had been the colonel's body guard as a slave, and remained in that capacity even after receiving his freedom. He joined the Presbyterian church.

"Look here, George," said the colonel, "tell me about this predestination and the elect. You don't believe your old master is doomed to hell, do you? Don't you think he will go to heaven with the elect?"

Respect and love for the old, swearing master did not overcome the newly-acquired religion, but there was cunning and diplomacy in his answer:

"I nevah heahed of nobody," replied George, "who done got 'lected who wuz not a candidate."—New York Times.

Shouter for Church Services.

"Shouters," to advertise church services, are the latest. The experiment—a strong-lunged man who hesitated not to use his voice on Suday evening in crowded streets—was tried at North Clark and Michigan streets, Sunday night.

"Glorious song service at Moody's church, Chicago and La Salle avenues!" he proclaimed, so loudly that he could be heard two blocks away. "Come and have a glorious time. Fine song service!"

The "shouter" said that the practice of distributing printed cards on Sunday evening among the theatergoing crowds had been entirely discontinued, but that it had been found many pedestrians either refused to take notice, or, having received them, tossed them away a few steps farther on. "But," he said, "they can't help hearing my voice. One man stopped for further information, and then said he was going to the church service."—Chicago American.

One Hug, One Cent.

A jury decided to-day that an unwelcome hug constituted damages to the amount of 1 cent, and, accordingly, rendered judgment in that sum against Richard Langan, who was sued by Mrs. Lizzie Cecil for forcing his affections upon her.

Langan is a retired capitalist. Mrs Cecil and her husband rented their home from him. On the pretense of having repairs made, Langan went to the Cecil home, and made himself so agreeable that the woman showed him a small crucifix.

So far from putting Langan into a devout frame of mind, the sight of the crucifix caused him to place his arm around Mrs. Cecil's waist. Such is her story. Langan swore that he merely brushed by her, and begged pardon for so doing.—Louisville (Ky.) Special to New York World.

Labouchere on Savagery.

Can we be very much surprised that foreign nations do not regard our methods of war as highly chivalrous? We are selling by auction the estates of the Boer leaders in the field. As the only persons who can buy them are the representatives of the Transvaal millionaires (their principals living in London in palaces or enjoying themselves on the Riviera), they are the only bidders. The estates are, therefore sold for a mere song, as shark no more bids against shark in the Transvaal than in a mock auction at home. On the other hand, Delarey has released Lord Methuen, scorning to keep a wounded man prisoner.—London Truth.

A Studio Secret.

"Sometimes," sighed the weary papa, as he tried in vain to quiet the turbulent infant, "I wish I was a photographer."

"And why," nonchalantly asked the mother, as she turned to another chapter.

"Because a photographer seems to be the only man on earth who can make a baby look pleasant when it doesn't wish to."—Chicago News.

He Had.

"Haven't you any occupation?" asked the woman at the kitchen door, after listening to his tale of woe.

"A hunter? Of what?"

"Grub, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

DEFINITION OF "TEMPERAMENT"

No Wonder This Poor Child Was All at Sea Over the Question.

The half-dozen blocks about Dupont circle in Washington include the homes of as many scientists of national reputation. These gentlemen, of course, know each other and meet frequently. Not long ago one of their neighbors began to wonder whether such intimate intercourse among scientists was a good thing, his cogitation having had its rise in the following incident:

His little daughter has just reached the age where she asks 200 questions a day. About a month ago her father spoke of some author as lacking the proper "temperament" for writing on history. That word "temperament" apparently took root in the youngster's mind. What was temperament? She asked that question twice an hour for an entire week. Finally her father gave her a note to Professor —— and sent her off to find out. That scientist answered the query as follows:

"Temperament is an individual tendency to the rise of a certain mental state."

Father and daughter wrestled with that a little while and then applied to a second member of the scientific group for help.

No. 2 called temperament an ensemble of physical and mental traits arising from fundamental constitutional differences in individuals."

This put the little girl's father completely at sea. So No. 3 was tried. His judgment was that "temperament is the psychic resultant of the whole organic life of the individual."

By this time, says the Washington Star, hope was abandoned. But when No. 4 volunteered to make it clear the family spirits revived. "Temperament is a general disposition of the mind," he wrote, "the distinctions of which depend on the dominance of one or the other of the physiological systems." And now the family dictionary is worn out.

PRODUCED AN ARTIFICIAL PEARL

One Was Produced in the Shell of a Fresh-Water Mussel.

A ball of beeswax introduced into the shell of a living fresh-water mussel has resulted in producing the most remarkable artificial pearl in existence. It is about an inch and a half in length, oval in form and pink in color, and is now the property of the Smithsonian institution.

The ball of wax was placed near the hinge of the bivalve, which, being kept in a tank of fresh water, was carefully watched. The irritation of the wax caused the mollusk to protect itself by coating the foreign object with a smooth coating of pearl stuff—the same material as that which is used in lining the inner surface of its shell. In the case in question the result was an enormous pearl. Owing to pressure, however, the wax ball lost its spherical shape and became oval in form.

At the end of two years the mussel was taken out of the tank and opened and the pearl removed. The wax afterward contracted owing to dryness, which caused the pearl shell to crack. This accident, while destroying the commercial value of the pearl, made it possible to observe the thickness of the nacreous covering, which is somewhat greater than that of an ordinary sheet of letter paper. If the pearl were not flawed, says the Washington Star, it would be worth an enormous sum of money, but even as it is it is priceless as a curiosity.

Joke on Commander Mulligan.

Lieutenant Commander Richard T. Mulligan's reverence for discipline is traditional among naval officers, and therefore, in accordance with custom in both army and navy, is a perpetual challenge for the enlisted men to experiment as far as they may with safety in evasion or breach of regulations. The triumph achieved in that direction by a petty officer compelled even Mr. Mulligan to smile when the story was told at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Annoyed by the rough skylarking of a group of "jackies" who were off duty, Lieut. Commander Mulligan, without reflecting on the opening furnished, called to the nearest warrant officer:

"Master at Arms, clear that deck of every —— —— last one of those —— lubbers."

"Every —— —— last one of you —— lubbers clear that deck," bellowed the Master at Arms, in the same breath with his "Aye, aye, sir," and as the sailors dispersed, convulsed with laughter at the terms of the command, the man turned to his superior and gravely reported, "The deck is clear, sir."

A senior officer who has religious scruples had overheard all, and stood aghast. With a glance in his senior's direction, Mr. Mulligan, as soberly as he could, remarked, "Master at Arms, when you pass my orders in future you need not be so —— literal."—New York Times.

MRS. ANNA MARTIN.

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache dizziness and irregularities, and life seemed dark indeed. We had used Peruna in our home as a tonic and for colds and catarrh and I decided to try it for my trouble. In less than three months I became regular, my pains had entirely disappeared, and I am now perfectly well."—Mrs. Anna Martin.

Miss Marie Johnson, 11 Columbia, East, Detroit, Mich., is Worthy Vice Templar in Hope Lodge No. 6, Independent Order Good Templars. Miss Johnson, as so many other women also have done, found in Peruna a specific for a severe case of female weakness. She writes:

"I want to do what I can to let the whole world know what a grand medicine Peruna is. For eleven years I suffered with female troubles and complications arising therefrom. Doctors failed to cure me, and I despaired of being helped. Peruna cured me in three short months. I can hardly believe it myself, but it is a blessed fact. I am perfectly well now, and have not had an ache or pain for months. I want my suffering sisters to know what Peruna has done for me."—Miss Marie Johnson.

Miss Ruth Emerson, 72 Sycamore St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for two years with irregular and painful menstruation, and Peruna cured me within six weeks. I cannot tell you how grateful I feel. Any agency which brings health and strength to the afflicted is always a welcome friend, and to-day the market is so filled with useless and injurious medicines that it is a pleasure to know of so reliable a remedy as you place before the public."—Miss Ruth Emerson.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

Peruna is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled, "Health and Beauty." It will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

St. Jacobs Oil and Vogeler's Curative Compound Cured Him.

"I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism for many years. I was laid up with Rheumatic Fever for nine weeks in 1894, and again for sixteen (16) weeks in 1896. I tried many medicines I saw advertised and others I was recommended; finally I was induced to take Vogeler's Curative Compound, which did me more good than all other medicines. In fact, I feel quite a different man since I have been taking the Compound. All my neighbors and friends are quite surprised to see me about and looking so well. I can only say that Vogeler's Curative Compound taken internally and by using St. Jacobs Oil outwardly acted like magic in my case. I had been taking medicines for years without obtaining benefit, but Vogeler's has practically cured me. ERRAND OF MERCY

DIXIE SAILS FOR MARTINIQUE WITH PROVISIONS AND OTHER SUPPLIES.

ARMY OFFICERS MAKE RECORD

NEVER, EVEN IN WAR TIME, HAVE THEY DONE SUCH QUICK WORK.

AMERICANS ARE CONTRIBUTING

WORK OF RAISING FUNDS BEGINS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

New York, May 16—With food enough on board to feed the entire population of Martinique for a week, the cruiser Dixie yesterday sailed from this port. She will arrive at her destination Monday.

Never, even during war time, did the army subsistence department make such a record in collecting a shipload of food supplies. It was done in twenty-four hours. Col. D. L. Brainerd brought from Philadelphia three carloads of supplies needed to make up the shipment and purchased the rest here. The Dixie's cargo comprises 900,000 rations.

There is $5,000 worth of medicine in the cargo and three army surgeons, Dr. J. B. Church, Dr. J. H. Reilly and Dr. J. B. Clayton, accompanied the party. They took along a plentiful supply of surgical instruments.

The chamber of commerce met yesterday in special session to ratify the action taken by its president, Morris K. Jessup, for the immediate relief of the survivors of the Martinique disaster by the purchase of the food supplies on the steamer Madiana, and the sending of additional supplies on the steamer Fontabelle on Saturday and to take further action for the relief of the sufferers.

Response Comes Quickly.

Washington, May 16.—Practically all those who were named by the president to serve on the Martinique relief committee have wired their acceptance and have indicated a willingness to enter heartily into the work of raising and receiving contributions in aid of the sufferers. Already large amounts are reported as having been received and the president is much gratified at the prompt response to his appeal.

Secretary Hay has received the following cablegram from Consul Aymo in answer to the secretary's inquiry as to whether fresh water and supplies are needed:

"Water not needed, but food imperative for 50,000 refugees. I have cabled this to the governor of Porto Rico, answering his querry as to what was wanted. I shall stay here to distribute the supplies. The Cincinnati is here."

Adjt. Gen. Corbin has received a cablegram from San Juan, Porto Rico, saying that the collier Sterling sailed to-day with supplies for Martinique.

Members of the house appropriations committee are averse to calling a special meeting of the committee for the purpose of considering an additional appropriation for the relief of the people of Martinique. They say that until it is demonstrated that the amount of $200,000 already appropriated is not sufficient to meet the needs of the sufferers, it will be inadvisable to appropriate an additional amount in view of the widespread donations now being made and the relief work that is being done to succor the living and care for the dead.

SYMPATHY IN CASH.

Americans in Paris Lose No Time in Collecting Fund.

Paris, May 16.—The meeting yesterday, called by the American chamber of commerce to raise funds for the relief of the West Indian sufferers, was well attended and over 12,000 francs was subscribed in a few minutes to aid the destitute people at Martinique. The proceedings were brief and business-like. Henry Vignaud, the United States charge d'affaires, presided. President Francis Kimba of the chamber of commerce explained the object of the meeting, and H. Peartree moved and H. Valois seconded a resolution expressing the sympathy of the Americans of Paris with France in her sorrow. A committee was appointed to take charge of the American fund.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

D. P. O'Neill came up from the southern part of the state on Tuesday and left yesterday for Norman county, where he has a crew of men at work putting in two sections of land to flax. He reports that the country around Fargo is all afloat, and that what grain has been seeded is being drowned out.

Reports from the country around here are to the effect that all of the grain now in the ground is doing nicely, and the prospects for a big crop are exceedingly good. There has been a great deal more seeding done around here than many people are aware of—in fact this section has been one of the most favored in the Red River Valley.

Postmaster Richardson has been compelled to order 100 more boxes for the postoffice to accommodate the increasing number of patrons. This makes the third order for new boxes Mr. Richardson has made within a year, which would indicate that Thief River Falls has been growing more rapidly than most people are aware.

Conery, Kenison & Robinson, have closed the deal for the purchase of the Odd Fellow's lot and in company with John Kivel will erect a building of brick 50x80 feet. A part of the down stairs will be occupied by the C. O. D. clothing house, while the other part will be rented. The upstairs will be used for an opera house. Work on the building will be commenced at once.

While out riding last Friday evening S. F. Staples counted the number of new buildings that have been erected in the city during the past thirty days and found the total number to be just 112. We doubt if there are many towns in the state that can compare with Thief River Falls in the number of buildings built this spring, and yet there is not a vacant house or store building in the city and a large number more will be built before the season ends.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 5, 1902,

1 o'clock p. m.

Pursuant to notice board of County Commissioners met in extra session this day.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Hearing was then had on the following ditch petitions:

Gervais ditch No. 1, Carl F. Stenhammer and others petitioners.

Sanders and Nordon ditch No. 1, Rasmus Oen and others petitioners.

Rocksbury and North ditch No. 1, Lars Ilan and others petitioners.

Rocksbury and Sanders ditch No. 1, Math Barzen and others petitioners.

On motion duly carried the hearing on the above petitions was adjourned to May 19, 1902, at 1 o'clock p. m.

Hearing was then had on Garnes and Emardville ditch No. 1.

On motion duly carried the auditor was instructed to strike off of viewers' report all of the assessments or damages awarded to lands in sections 14, 23 and 26, twp 151, R. 41.

On motion duly carried viewers' report was accepted and the following order was made:

Order Establishing Ditch.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }

In the matter of the petition of M. O. Sortedahl and others, for a public ditch in the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the said board of County Commissioners of the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, at a special meeting of said board duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for said ditch in the above entitled matter, on the fifth day of May, A. D. 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day; and it appearing by proper evidence that due notice had been given of the pendency of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon and that George A. Ralph, the civil engineer appointed by this board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report in the office of the county auditor of said county, and that the viewers appointed by said board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of said county auditor, the said board of county commissioners did, at the time above specified, proceed to hear said petition and said viewers' report thereon, and said board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

First: That the said civil engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

Second: That the said viewers appointed herein have duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

Third: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded.

Fourth: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said reports of said engineer and said viewers are complete and correct, after having stricken off the assessments in sections 14, 23 and 26, Twp 151, range 41.

Fifth: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said viewers' report and said engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the county auditor of said county.

Now, therefore, as conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the board of county commissioners of the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at said special session of said board held at the time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and the specifications of said civil engineer made and filed herein, and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the viewers made and filed herein.

It is further ordered, that the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the county treasury of said county on warrants to be drawn and attested by the auditor of said county and signed by the chairman of this board of county commissioners, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

Given under our hand this fifth day of May, A. D. 1902.

By the Board,
James Sutor,
Chairman,
Board of County Commissioners,
of Red Lake County,
Minnesota.

Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor and ex-officio clerk of board.

Hearing was then had on viewers report on Rocksbury ditch No. 1.

On motion duly carried viewers report was accepted and the following order was made:

Order Establishing Ditch.

State of Minnesota } SS
County of Red Lake }

In the matter of the petition of M. C. Harlow and others, for a public ditch in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the board of county commissioners of the county of Red Lake State of Minnesota, at a special meeting of said board duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for said ditch in the above entitled matter, on the fifth day of May, A. D. 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day; and it appearing by proper evidence that due notice had been given of the pendency of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon and that W. C. Smiley, the civil engineer appointed by this board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the county auditor of said county, and that the viewers appointed by said board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of said county auditor, the said board of county commissioners did, at the time above specified; proceed to hear said petition and said viewers' report thereon; and said board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

First: That the said civil engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

Second: That the said Viewers appointed herein have duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

Third: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded.

Fourth: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said reports of said engineer and said viewers are complete and correct.

Fifth: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said viewers' and engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the county auditor of said county.

Now, therefore, as conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the board of county commissioners of the county of Red Lake, Minnesota, at said special session of said board held at the time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and the specifications of said civil engineer made and filed herein; and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the viewers made and filed herein.

It is further ordered, that the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the county treasury of said county on warrants to be drawn and attested by the auditor of said county and signed by the chairman of this board of county commissioners, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

Given under our hand this 5th day of May, A. D. 1902.

By the board,
James Sutor,
Chairman
Board of County Commissioners,
of Red Lake County,
Minnesota.

Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County auditor and ex-officio clerk of board.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1902. NUMBER 21

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

E. G. VALENTINE

Republican Candidate for Congressman.

Ezra G. Valentine, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman in this, the Ninth congressional district, was a visitor in the city Monday. Mr. Valentine is a very pleasant gentleman to meet and he was very agreeably surprised while here by the many offers of support he received from leading Republicans in this city, it being his first visit here, and he did not expect much support in this section, his strong support being in the southern part of the district, where he resides and is well and favorably known. He had nothing but praise to say of opponents, and is conducting a very friendly campaign. On Tuesday he visited St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls, and will again visit this county before the close of the campaign. In order that the voters here may become better acquainted with this gentleman, we publish the following sketch of his life:

Ezra G. Valentine was born on a farm in Wyoming county, New York, August 9th, 1847, and moved with his parents to Wisconsin in 1856, where he settled on a farm near Ripon in Fon du Lac county. In 1859 the family moved to Ripon and Ezra prepared for College at Ripon Academy.

He comes of sturdy stock. His father was a farmer and mechanic who raised a large family respectably. By dint of hard labor he was enabled to give all his children a good education in both the common and high shools. He was honest and upright and kept out of debt and died poor.

The mother was a noble, christian woman, who by precept and example inspired her children to be honest, industrious and temperate.

In due time young Valentine entered Beloit College, taking a classical course in that famous institution. He worked his way through college paying all his expenses with money earned by himself. He won the prize in Greek and graduated with honor in June 1869 when not quite twenty-one years of age. Three years later he was honored by his Alma Mater with the degree of A. M. and subsequently delivered the address to the Alumni at Commencement.

After leaving college, he taught in different institutions of learning for some years, reading law meanwhile. He finally went to Chicago and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court of Illinois.

He practiced law in Chicago until December, 1882, when, having partially lost his health by overwork, he was advised to go to Minnesota. He settled at Breckenridge and as his health improved rapidly, decided to remain there and is still a resident.

He has practiced law for over a quarter of a century, and by hard and honest work, and strict attention to every detail, has obtained a large and lucrative practice. He has been interested in farming for many years and is now one of the largest farmers in Wilkin county. He is a hard worker and a thorough business man and so is able to give careful attention both to his professional duties and to his farming interests. He is truly a laboring man and is in hearty sympathy and accord with the laboring classes.

When the great question of drainage for the Red River Valley came up in 1886, Mr. Valentine was one of the first to grasp the importances of the subject. In that year a convention was called at Crookston, the result of which was a survey of the Valley in Minnesota and the appointment of a committee of fifteen to take charge of the cause of drainage. Mr. Valentine was unanimously chosen chairman of that committee. He accepted the responsibility and has never since ceased to do all in his power for the cause. He urged the legislature to make an appropriation and after laboring for this at three different sessions, he and his co-workers saw their efforts crowned with success, at the fourth trial.

Under the state law making the first appropriation of $100,000 for drainage purposes, a state drainage board was created and Mr. Valentine has been from the first and still is the president of that board. Nearly a quarter of a million dollar has been spent for drainage of the Valley under the direct supervision of Mr Valentine who has not only been the president of the board but also its legal adviser and consulting engineer, being well versed in civil engineering. All matters pertaining to this great work have from time to time, passed under his eye before presentation to the board. At his request recently, and after the last appropriation had been expended, a careful examination of the vouchers on file with the state auditor was made and it was found that all money appropriated had been accounted for to the last penny.

Two years ago Mr. Valentine was a candidate for the congressional nomination in what was then the Seventh district and was beaten after a hard but good natureedly struggle, by Congressman Frank M. Eddy. Mr. Valentine took defeat in the proper spirit and no man did more loyal, earnest and effective work for the whole ticket than did he.

In coming before the people this time for the congressional nomination Mr. Valentine has many things in his favor. He is one of the best known men in the state as well as one of the ablest. He has devoted much of his time for the past sixteen years to the public welfare, and has neither asked nor received one cent for his services which time has shown to be worth tens of thousands of dollars. He is the friend of the people, and the laboring men's interests and his interests are identical. He is a tireless worker and a thorough, up-to-date business man. No man knows the needs of the district as he does and no one would look after these interests with greater care.

HON. EZRA G. VALENTINE.

CONTRACT LET.

And Work Commenced on New School Building.

The contract for the building of the Thief River Falls new high school building was let last Friday to N. C. Bachelor, of La Crosse Wis., for $13,000, and must be completed before Sept, 1st. Miss Francis, a bright young lady who is acting as agent for Mr. Bachelor will have charge of the building and she has sub-let the contract for digging the basement to A. O. Hanson, who already has the work nearly completed. The building is to be located a little west and south of the center of block 65, and will front both north and south.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that bids on the heating plant for the School Building to be erected by Independent School Dist. No. 18 of Red Lake Co. Minn. will be opened at 2 p. m. June 9th, 1902. All bids to be sealed and accompanied by a certified check for $200 made payable to Ind. School Dist. No. 18. The School Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Signed, ETHEL M. STAPLES,
Clerk.

D. B. Bakke, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, is prepared to receive Homestead Entries and make Final Proofs. Office at his residence on the East Side.

TAKE A THINK!

Did you ever think about what kind of coffee you drink? Some of it is pure--some impure--some no earthly good--some is the very best and looks like amber and has the taste of nectar. We keep that kind.

12½c a lb. Is a good mixture for the money. No one can keep a better at the price.

20c a lb. Is a fine coffee—the best we know of for the money. It makes an elegant drink. Try it and you will come back for more.

30c and 35c a lb. Are both Mocha and Java and the very best coffee you can buy—you get purity, strength and flavor in these.

HIMLE'S STORE

Unusual Example of Generosity.

South Germany's oldest monastery, the Benedictine abbey at Wessobrun, founded in 735 and confiscated in 1803, has been restored to the Benedictine order by Baron Von Cramer-Klett, a Protestant, and will soon be reoccupied by the monks. The baron bought all the land and remaining buildings of the old abbey for 900,000 marks from the Bavarian state and sold them to the Benedictines for a nominal sum.

Last of California's Forests.

In the northern portion of San Jose county, Cal., and lapping over into San Mateo county, lies the so-called Big Basin, a bit of the primitive forest. The exact area of the tract is about 2,500 acres. It contains one of the finest stretches of woodland which remains in the state. The characteristic tree is the giant redwood. It has been proposed to convert the basin into a forest preserve.

Senator Clark's Immense Wealth.

On the first of every month Senator Clark of Montana draws a check for $900,000 and sends it to the contractors who are building his railroad from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles. These checks do not decrease his capital, being met from income from investments, so that when the railroad shall have been completed the Montana man's capital will have suffered no diminution.

Original "Stars and Stripes."

William M. Bunker, the past president of the California Society Sons of the American Revolution, asked the congress, whose session just closed at Washington, to provide for the care of the "Stars and Stripes" monument, which he discovered in an old church in East London, England. It bears the Washington arms and marks the burial place of Elizabeth Washington.

"Father of Base Ball."

Rev. Dr. Lewis W. Mudge, of the class of '62, Princeton University, who is known among the Princeton graduates as the "father of base ball," has accepted the call from the Central Presbyterian church of Downingtown, Pa. Dr. Mudge was the organizer and captain of the first team in 1859, pitching afterward for five consecutive years.

Women in Business.

The last census report gives the number of women wage earners in the United States as 4,000,000, the number having more than doubled in ten years. Bookkeepers, stenographers, cashiers and telephone operators made up a large proportion, while the women engaged in trade increased from 20,000 to 228,000.

Blame the Kaiser.

Herr Kaufmann, whose election as second burgomaster of Berlin the kaiser declined to sanction, on account, it is supposed, of his former political opinions, has suddenly become mad. Some people in Berlin are ascribing his madness to disappointment in consequence of the kaiser's action.

To Preserve Old Landmark.

A movement is on foot to save from destruction the fourteen monolith columns on the old Colonnade Hotel, New York, built in Lafayette Place by John Jacob Astor over fifty years ago and soon to be demolished. They are to be used, if at all, in a decorative scheme in Bryant Park.

What He Wanted.

George W. Perkins tells a story of an Irishman who while walking with his friend passed a jewelry store where there were a lot of precious stones in the window. "Would you not like to have your pick?" asked Pat. "Not me pick, but me shovel," said Mike.

Reward for German Marines.

Kaiser Wilhelm has given orders that a gift of money, the Chinese war medal, a letter of honorable mention and a book called "German Marines in the seige of Pekin in 1900," shall be presented to the family of every marine that was killed at Pekin.

This Dog Deserves the Monument.

There is to be erected to a dog a magnificent monument in the very middle of the Alpine glaciers. This noble four-footed preserver of life was a magnificent St. Bernard and had saved during his life time no fewer than forty people.

To Form Model Plantation.

A company, including Chicago and New York capitalists, has bought 10,000 acres of land in Coahoma county, Miss., with the view of developing it into a model plantation. The investment already represents an outlay of $300,000.

Decrease of Crime in Ireland.

Ireland is astonishing criminologists by the remarkable decrease in the number of its criminals. The statistics show a decrease of 10.2 per cent as compared with the figures of 1899.

As to Friends.

Much as worthy friends add to the happiness and value of life, we must in the main depend on ourselves, and every one is his own best friend or worst enemy.

A Venerable Sculptress.

Anne Whitney, who has just finished the statue of Charles Sumner for Cambridge, Mass., is 80, being older than the great Senator when he died.

END THE LONG WAR

THAT SEEMS TO BE THE DESIRE OF BOTH BOER AND BRITISH LEADERS.

PEACE PRACTICALLY ASSURED

THE FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT DEPENDS ON CONVENIENCE OF BOER LEADERS.

THE DELAY IS ONLY TECHNICAL

MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS SAYS EVERYTHING IS SETTLED.

London, May 25. — The Associated Press has every reason to believe that peace in South Africa is practically assured. How soon it will be announced depends, apparently more upon the convenience of the Boer leaders than upon the inclination of the British government. The private and official advices received in London from South Africa all point to the same conclusion. The delay is technical, and to end the long war seems to be the desire of both British and Boer leaders. The latter, however, are unable to convince all their followers of the wisdom of acquiescing to the terms of peace. Information as to what transpired at yesterday's meeting of the cabinet is closely guarded, but it is not likely that the cabinet transactions were

Of Vital Importance.

The surmise of one well-informed person places the sum total of the deliberations of the cabinet ministers at a decision regarding points of the peace agreement of entirely minor importance. Another surmise is that the cabinet has merely sent a rather mock ultimatum to South Africa which can be used by the Boer leaders in explanation to their forces. Both these surmises probably contain an element of truth, but neither can in any way affect the widespread belief in the best informed quarters that the end of the war has come. In fact, these persons who are best acquainted with the actual details of the present negotiations only qualify the optimistic expression of opinion by guarded reservations concerning the extent of the personal control of the Boer leaders over their comrades.

Take Extreme Precautions.

Were the Boers a thoroughly disciplined force, dependent upon the action of their general officers, peace would probably be proclaimed now; but Botha, De Wet and the other generals seem themselves unable to positively guarantee the degree to which their example will be followed. The delegates at Veeringen, according to information in possession of the war office, are fairly evenly divided. Consequently extreme precautions are exercised both in London and Pretoria to prevent any premature action or report which might adversely influence the burghers. The most pessimistic forecast heard only admits that a few isolated bands of irreconcilables may be left in the field.

Says It Is All Settled.

A member of the house of commons who is in close touch with the government, said to a representative of the Associated Press that he believed everything was settled and that the British terms would be found unexpectedly liberal. The British public is still quite ignorant of the course of events in South Africa and there are no demonstrations on the London streets, although on all sides the question is asked: "Is it peace?" On the other hand, the stock exchange throughout the day was a seething mass of brokers who eagerly bought South African shares, while long after the closing of the exchange nearly a thousand brokers crowded Throckmorton street and did a frantic curb business on the strength of the peace outlook.

RAIN OF SCRAP IRON.

Rock Falls, Ill., Has a Fall of Extremely Hard Substance.

Rock Falls, Ill., May 25.—Yesterday morning this city was visited with a heavy meteoric shower. About ten pounds of the meteoric iron fell at different places, while from all over the city reports come that portions of the iron were found at different places.

A heavy piece of the meteor fell on a cement sidewalk, causing an indentation of an inch. Pieces of the iron fell on buildings and caused them to ignite, but did no damage.

At first it was the generally accepted theory that the substances came from Mount Pelee and had been carried in space above the action of gravitation.

RETURNS TO FRANCE.

President Loubet Entertains the Czar at a Farewell Luncheon.

St. Petersburg, May 25.—The French squadron escorting President Loubet left Cronstadt yesterday for France. The czar, M. Loubet and the czarina proceeded together on the royal yacht Alexandria and boarded the armored cruiser Montcalm, where the president entertained their majesties at luncheon.

Nicaragua Is Accommodating.

Washington, May 23.—Minister Corea of Nicaragua has been empowered by his government to convey assurances to the government of the United States of Nicaragua's disposition to make and change in the base lines of the projected treaty providing for the construction of a Nicaraguan canal to meet the wishes of the United States government.

Stopped by the Referee.

Baltimore, May 25.—Referee Mantz stopped the bout at the beginning of the tenth round between Young Peter Jackson and Harry Walsh of Canada and awarded the decision to Jackson. Walsh was practically knocked out.

Population Increase.

Washington, May 25. — The total number of immigrants landed at New York from Jan. 1 of the present year to the last day of April was 178,603. This number has been largely increased by arrivals this month up to date.

CONGRESS.

Senator Dubois Discusses the Philippine Question.

Washington, May 24. — A temperate and carefully prepared speech was delivered in the senate yesterday on the Philippine bill by Mr. Dubois of Idaho. He confined himself almost entirely to a discussion of the commercial and industrial aspects of the Philippine question, his purpose being to show that it would be a disadvantage to the people of this country to retain the islands. Whatever of profit there might be in them, he said, would accrue to a few capitalists who, by their development of the resources of the archipelago through cheap labor, would come into competition with the agriculturists and manufacturers of the United States in the markets of the world.

An earnest and forcible reply to Mr. Dubois was made by Mr. Beveridge of Indiana, who contended that the development of China's resources would be of advantage in trade and commerce to the United States, as the industrial development of other nations had been.

In the House.

The house devoted the day to private pension bills and to a few other minor measures. In all 106 private pension bills were passed. The house adjourned until Monday in order to participate in the Rochambeau ceremonies to-day.

PRESIDENT IS DINED.

Enjoyable Function on Board the French Warship.

Annapolis, May 25. — The luncheon given yesterday on board the French battleship Gaulois in honor of President Roosevelt was one of the most memorable incidents of the visit of the distinguished French soldiers and sailors to this country, who are here to join in the celebration of the unveiling of the monument to the memory of Gen Rochambeau, which takes place in Washington to-day. As soon as the president came aboard the Gaulois, accompanied by his daughter and Secretaries Root and Moody, he was met by Ambassador Cambon, Gen. Brugere and Admiral Fournier and escorted to the cabin of the officers. Here a general handshaking, congratulations and preliminary refreshments ensued. Then followed the luncheon tendered to President Roosevelt by the French ambassador. After the delicacies of a choice French menu had been discussed Ambassador Cambon arose, and in the name of President Loubet of the French republic, bade a hearty welcome to all present. He was especially complimentary in his allusions to President Roosevelt. In proposing the health of President Roosevelt Ambassador Cambon said that in extending the invitation to the chief magistrate of the United States he wished to emphasize the fact that he was acting as the direct and personal representative of President Loubet of the French republic. President Roosevelt replied in his happiest vein, though speaking with unusual deliberation, as though he measured every word he uttered. He concluded by offering a toast to President Loubet.

MILES HAS LESS AUTHORITY.

Breach Between the Officer and the President Widens.

Washington, May 25.—Whether Gen. Miles will retire from the army or show his resentment in such a way as to further widen the breach between himself on the one hand and the president and the secretary of war on the other, are questions that are being asked here in connection with the issuance of an order which prevents the commanding general from acting as secretary in the absence of Mr. Root or Assistant Secretary Sanger. The issuance of this order is understood to indicate a widening of the breach between Gen. Miles and his superior officers. Gen. Miles is resentful and that he will show his feelings on the matter is generally expected by those who know him best. Another order issued by the executive is understood to be aimed at Gen. Miles. It deprives Col. Ward, adjutant under Gen. Miles, of the duty of acting as adjutant general of the army in the absence of Gen. Corbin. This assignment will hereafter be filled by the assistant adjutant general.

CARDINAL IRELAND.

How His Name Is Connected With the New York Archdiocese.

Rome, May 25.—The Vatican is discussing the probability of the archdiocese of New York, sending in the name of Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, Minn., with the names of Bishop Charles McDonnell of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Auxiliary Bishop John M. Farley of New York, as candidates from whom the propaganda shall select a successor to the late Archbishop Corrigan. The belief in this possibility is based on the idea that the Catholics of the archdiocese are ambitious to have a Cardinal as the archbishop, and that none of the American archbishops or bishops have such a good chance of obtaining the scarlet berretta as Archbishop Ireland.

MARY ELLEN IS FREE.

Mrs. Lease of Kansas Says She Will Not Wed Again.

Wichita, Kan., May 25—Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease, formerly a Kansas politician and stateswoman, but now an author and reporter in New York, to-day secured an absolute divorce from her husband and custody of three minor children.

The divorce was granted on the grounds of neglect and desertion. They have been married thirty years. She claims to have always supported herself. The Leases have lived apart for ten years.

Politics is said to have separated them. Mr. Lease is a druggist here, and takes no interest in public affairs. He did not appear in court this afternoon.

The trial lasted fifteen minutes. An effort was made to keep Mrs. Lease's presence here secret, also the trial, but both schemes failed. She says she will not remarry.

Committee Secretary Resigns.

Helena, Mont., May 25.—J. C. Auld, chairman of the Republican state central committee, has received the resignation of Secretary J. M. Burlingame, recently appointed receiver of the Great Falls land office. His successor will be appointed at the next meeting of the committee.

Child Chokes to Death.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 25. — The five-year-old daughter of F. C. Massee, a prominent attorney, was choked to death by swallowing a candy marble.

MANY LIVES LOST

AWFUL DISASTER IN A COAL MINE IN CROW'S NEST PASS DISTRICT.

160 MINERS ARE ENTOMBED

OUT OF 200 MEN AT WORK BUT A SCANT THIRTY-FIVE ESCAPE.

CARELESS MINER RESPONSIBLE

LIGHTS HIS PIPE CONTRARY TO RULES AND EXPLOSION FOLLOWS.

Fernie, B. C., May 25. — Because a careless miner lighted his pipe contrary to the rules of the mine, probably 160 intombed men are dead in the Crow's Nest coal mine near here.

At 7:30 Thursday night a terrible explosion occurred. There were in the mine 200 men, and only 35 escaped. These say that the explosion was due to coal damp ignited by a match held by a miner in the act of lighting his pipe, in defiance of regulations.

The bodies of nine of the victims have been recovered. Coal damp is making the work of rescue exceedingly dangerous, a number of the workers being prostrated. The town has about 5,000 population and hardly a household has not a heartrending sorrow. Notwithstanding this the women beg piteously that those remaining shall not go down into the shaft, to probably Die of Suffocation.

Scenes of infinite pathos are seen about the mine and village. The people are in a frenzy of bereavement. The explosion occurred in shaft No. 2 and was followed instantly by an equally tremendous explosion in shaft No. 3, where the majority of the men were at work. A short tunnel connects the workings.

To add to the horror of the situation another explosion is expected at any moment. Should it come there will be no hope that those entombed by the first will be rescued, while the rescuers themselves are in great danger. There is also danger of a life destroying fire. The work of rescue is being hurried and assistance from all available sources is being secured.

HE CURSED AND DIED.

Washington Murderer Approaches Speedy Death by the Noose in No Penitent Mood.

Whatcom, Wash., May 25. — Alfred Hamilton, alias Alfred Hawkins, was hanged yesterday morning for the murder of D. M. Woodbury at Anacortes, Sept. 7, 1899. He cursed the sheriff when he read the death warrant to him, and rushed up the scaffold stairs two steps at a time. Hamilton, who was a fisherman, went into Anacortes on the Afternoon of Sept. 6. After disposing of his catch for more than $1,000 he started to hold-up the town. During the night and the next afternoon he enforced his commands at the point of a pistol. The city marshal attempted to arrest him, but Hamilton got the drop on the officer and marched him into a neighboring building. Woodbury followed and expostulated with Hamilton, who shot him fatally.

BEDE'S CLEAR FIELD.

Joseph B. Cotton Will Not Oppose J. Adam Bede.

Duluth, May 25.—Joseph B. Cotton has definitely refused to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress in this district. He is one of the attorneys for the United States Steel company and an able and popular gentleman. J. Adam Bede continues to be the only Republican candidate for the nomination, and the Democrats thus far have made no sign that they know there is going to be an election.

IN THE SWEEP OF THE FLOOD.

Northwest Territory Suffers Loss of Life and Property.

Medicine Hat, N. W. T., May 25—The river has risen beyond all previous records. A number of houses distant from the river bank are flooded. The water is still rising rapidly, and greatly endangering property. At Lethbridge the bridge over the Belly river has gone out. Yesterday a man, evidently dead and half submerged, was seen by B. T. Whitney, lying over a boat sweeping down the river.

HILL WILL TALK.

He Will Address Manufacturers on "Commercial Expansion."

Chicago, May 25.—James J. Hill, head of the Great Northern railway lines, will be the principal speaker at a dinner to be given at the Auditorium hotel Wednesday evening, June 4, by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. His subject will be "Commercial Expansion."

Big Fight July 25.

San Francisco, May 25. — James J. Jeffries and Robert Fitzsimmons have agreed upon the final details for their battle here on July 25. The amended articles of agreement were signed late yesterday afternoon at the Central theater, Billy Delaney representing Jeffries and Fitzsimmons being present in person.

Babcock Greatly Improved.

Washington, May 25.—Representative Babcock returned from Atlantic City yesterday greatly improved in health. The executive committee of the Republican congressional committee in a few days will select campaign headquarters in Chicago and New York with a branch headquarters in Washington.

Two Drowned.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 25. — Gottlieb Wagner of Dickeyville, Grant county, Wis., was thrown from his wagon seat while crossing Indian creek and drowned. The daughter of Joseph Hencku fell from a bridge spanning the creek and was drowned.

Drowned While Bathing.

Reedsburg, Wis., May 25. — Claude Busch, aged sixteen years, was drowned. He, with a few other boys, were in bathing and stepped in a hole and never came

DECORAH'S BAD FLOOD.

Two Lives Lost and $100,000 Worth of Damage Done.

Decorah, Iowa, May 25.—A cloudburst Wednesday morning caused a flood in Dry run, a small stream running from Conover to Decorah, and resulted in damage exceeding $100,000. The Milwaukee railroad tracks from four miles east of Conover were washed away in spots and very few if any of the bridges escaped damage. Several were swept away entirely and it is not expected that trains will be running on this road for more than a week.

The water was blockaded as it came down the valley by bridges, and as the last one, just at the edge of the city, was torn away, the flood swept over the central part of the residence district, carrying fences, sidewalks and small movable buildings before it, while barns and dwellings to the number of nearly thirty were either moved from their foundation or floated several blocks. One family was carried three blocks in their home and escaped by cutting a hole in the roof and climbing into the second story of another dwelling against which their house lodged. Two deaths resulted from the flood. John Garver died from heart disease and a three-year-old child of Charles Clark was swept from its mother's arms when she was carried from her feet by water. There were numerous narrow escapes on the part of the citizens.

THOUSANDS ARE IN DIRE WANT.

Rush to Thunder Mountain Results in Terrible Conditions.

Butte, Mont., May 25.—The attempt to rush into the Thunder mountain district before trails are passable has resulted in several thousand men being blockaded on the Stites trail in Northern Idaho, and they are reported to be in desperate needs. A letter, sent out from Stites by Thomas Cosgriff of this city states that three pack trains with provisions have been started out from that point for the relief of the men on the trail. The advice is sent out to warn people not to attempt to get into Thunder mountain over the Stites trail for at least a month. It is feared that many fatalities have resulted from the attempts already made. The snow is deep and the trail dangerous.

RAYMOND'S BIG FIRE.

Kandiyohi County Town Sustains a Loss of $27,000.

Raymond, Minn., May 25.—A disastrous fire broke out in C. L. Gent's livery barn and before the fire department could render any service the barn and its contents, including nineteen head of horses, were burned. F. A. Upaeth's hardware and furniture store and G. Stob's mercantile establishment were also totally consumed by the flames. Several other buildings were made into wrecks before the fire could be checked. At the time it seemed that the business part of the town would be gutted by the flames, and the Willmar fire department was ordered out. Loss about $27,000; insurance, $13,000.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Five Hundred Dollar Fine Imposed for Failure to Pay Alimony.

Helena, Mont., May 25.—Because he did not pay alimony, $9 a week, as decreed by the court, pending a hearing of the application on the part of his wife for divorce, Judge Smith fined Charles Hageman, Jr., son of a well known butcher, $500 and sentenced him to five days in the county jail for contempt of court. Judge Smith also delivered a scathing lecture to Hageman, who pleaded inability to pay the alimony. The severe penalty imposed has created a sensation.

MERCHANTS ARRESTED.

Sixty-two Muscatine (Iowa) Business Men Violate Sunday Closing Law.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 25.—The county attorney, in instituting proceedings against sixty-two merchants for breaking the Sunday closing law. The clerks' union began the agitation by arresting two grocers. The latter, for spite, announced a determination to make the clerks sick of the undertaking, and will attempt to stop Sunday street cars and Sunday morning papers. Also to prevent the selling of railroad tickets for points in Iowa.

GLORY FOR CRUM.

His Name on Roll of North Dakota Regiment.

Washington, May 25. — President Roosevelt has signed the bill which places the name of Paul Crum of Fargo, N. D., on the records of the war department as a member of the First North Dakota regiment.

Young Man Is Convicted.

Le Mars, Iowa, May 25.—Mrs. Minnie Engles, on behalf of her daughter, Miss Emma Engles, inspired an action against John Reintz, of one of the most prominent families in Plymouth county, and the state has secured a conviction. Last fall the young woman failed to prove her case when she sued young Reintz. Both families are well known. Seven weeks ago Miss Engles gave birth to a child.

Saved Their College.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 25.—As the result of a mass meeting of citizens, Sioux Falls will retain the Norwegian Lutheran college which the citizens of Albert Lea, Minn., had decided to ask the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran synod, soon to meet at Minneapolis, to remove to the place. Sioux Falls people have decided to contribute $10,000 for the enlargement of the college.

Death From the Clouds.

Cottage Grove, Minn., May 25.—Luther Wier, a prominent and prosperous farmer of Washington county, was instantly killed by lightning while at work in a corn field at his home near Lake Elmo.

Killed in a Wreck.

Helena, Mont., May 25.—A Kalispel special says Guy Croffoth of Troy, Mont., was killed, and Bridge Foreman Collins was badly injured in a work train wreck on the Jennings branch of the Great Northern.

Six-Year-Old Drowned.

Piedmont, S. D., May 25. — Mary Doyle, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Doyle, was drowned in Elk creek. She was playing along the stream and fell into the channel, which was running bank-full.

CITY IS WIPED OUT

EARTHQUAKE COMPLETELY DESTROYS A LARGE CITY IN GUATEMALA.

SEVERAL THOUSAND ARE KILLED

FRIGHTFUL DESTRUCTION IS WROUGHT IN LESS THAN A MINUTE.

OTHER TOWNS BADLY WRECKED

PROPERTY LOSS, IT IS ESTIMATED, WILL PROBABLY REACH $50,000,000.

Hamburg, May 25. — A special dispatch to the Hamburg Boersen Halle from Guatemala says the town of Quezaltenango has been wholly destroyed by an earthquake which lasted three-quarters of a minute. Several thousand lives were lost, but the exact number is not known at this time. Business is suspended in Guatemala and a great part of the coffee crop has been destroyed.

It was reported from Guatemala City, Guatemala, April 20, that earthquake shocks, which were general throughout that country April 18, 19 and 20, partly obliterated the town of Quezaltenango and badly damaged Amatitlan, Solola, Nabuala, Santa Lucia and San Juan. Two hundred persons were reported killed, mostly women, and many people were injured. Quezaltenango has a population of about 25,000 people, is handsomely built and well paved and has a richly decorated cathedral, several other churches and a fine city hall.

Several Thousand Killed.

Washington, May 25. — The earthquake reported in a Hamburg dispatch resulting in the destruction of the city of Quezaltenango, Guatemala, was identified here as that which really occurred on the 18th of April and which has been described to some extent in the American newspapers. Information received here at the Guatemalan legation shows that the city was wholly destroyed and that San Marcos and several other towns were partially destroyed.

The Guatemalan officials decided to reconstruct the city of Quezaltenango on a plain some distance from the site of the original place. Reports regarding the loss of life are incomplete, but they indicate that at least several thousand persons were killed and that the property loss approximated $50,000,000 in the April earthquakes.

FLEE FROM CATACLYSM.

Fear Threatens to Depopulate Island of Martinique.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 25.—The flight of the panic-stricken inhabitants of this island, by every means of transport, continues. Heartrending scenes are witnessed among the crowds which throng the water front and the offices of the local government. The steamships Versailles and Ville de Tanger have sailed with 450 refugees for West Indian and South American ports. Both these vessels were crowded with persons up to what their captains considered the limit of safety. The departure of these steamships was attended by another demonstration of the frantic eagerness of the people to get away. Many persons who had tried to secure passage on the vessels were seen standing on the wharves and weeping because they had been unable to sail. The people of the poorer classes are going to the southernmost points of the island, as far as possible from the volcano. The natives are very superstitious and unreasoning in their fear of another eruption.

Relieving the Distressed.

The United States steamer Dixie, having landed 600 tons of supplies, left here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon for St. Vincent. The United States cruiser Cincinnati has also sailed. There are no American warships here now, but they will all probably return in two or three days. Nearly all the scientists and newspaper correspondents have gone to St. Vincent.

YOUNG CORBETT WINS.

Gets Decision Over Broad in a Ten-Round Contest.

Denver, May 25.—William H. Rothwell, better known to the sporting world as "Young Corbett," gained the decision over "Kid" Broad of Cleveland, Ohio, at the end of a fast and furious fight. Broad put up a very good fight, and in the ninth round had Corbett groggy, but the Denver lad came back strong and finished the round fresh. At no time was there any time lost, both men being willing to lead and force the fighting whenever necessary. The contest was for half the gross receipts, 75 per cent of which goes to the winner and 25 to the loser, and the featherweight championship of the world.

TO REFUSE THE GIFT.

Stevens of Texas Introduces Resolution Refusing Emperor's Present.

Washington, May 25.—Representative Stevens of Texas yesterday introduced a resolution that is directly aimed at the tender of a monument of Frederick the Great to the United States. It sets forth that the United States should not accept from any foreign nation, or erect in any public place, any statue of any king, emperor, prince or potentate who has ruled or is now ruling any nation by the supposed divine right of kings.

Hanged for Wife Murder.

Boonville, Mo., May 25. — Charles Reeves, alias "Spinner," was hanged here yesterday for the murder of his wife Feb. 24. Twenty-five Missouri sheriffs attended the execution.

Gov. McMillin of Tennessee has pardoned John Jones, who is serving a two years' sentence in the penitentiary for manslaughter. He killed a man who dishonored his home and publicly taunted him with his wife's dishonor. The first jury disagreed and the second convicted him.

FOR GRANDPA'S SAKE.

My grandpa went to war long years ago,
I never saw him, but they told me so,
And how, after a battle, sad news came,
Among the "missing" was my grandpa's name.

They never heard of him again, they said,
And so we know that grandpa must be dead;
And when I think of him, so good and brave,
I wish we knew where he had found a grave.

When Decoration day comes, every year,
I feel so sad, and sometimes shed a tear,
To see the soldiers' graves all spread with flowers,
While grandpa cannot have one rose of ours.

So if some little Southern girl should know
A nameless grave where never blossoms grow,
I'd love her so, if there some flowers she'd lay
For grandpa's sake, this Decoration day.

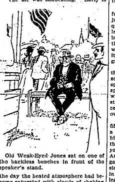
The Last Charge.

BY J. WHITFIELD SCATTERGOOD.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Dressed in his only suit of navy blue, Old Weak-Eyed Jones sat uncomfortably on one of the backless benches in front of the speakers' stand. The post adjutant was reading the post orders. The boys in blue, scattered hither and thither, bent an attentive ear and held their yellow-corded hats to one side to shade their fading eyesight from the waning sun.

Far away under the trees of the park lounged hundreds of people. Polite attention prevailed among those within hearing distance; farther away the hum of voices and shouts of unsuppressed laughter arose on the air in unmistakable volume. This was sacrilege to the ears of Weak-Eyed Jones. To him no event was more solemn than the present, and it seemed the same dignity and reverence he felt should actuate the conduct of others.



Old Weak-Eyed Jones sat on one of the backless benches in front of the speaker's stand.

The air was suffocating. Early in the day the heated atmosphere had become saturated with clouds of choking dust, which rolled into the city behind hundreds of incoming farmers' conveyances. But Weak-Eyed Jones took it all with a generous degree of humility and uncomplaining. A young couple at his elbow indulged so busily in conversation he could not hear the voice of the adjutant, yet he bore it silently. Even though his obscure sight, years before made almost useless by a rebel minie ball, which carried away the bridge of his nose and grazed both eyes, was powerless to penetrate the dust-heavy distance between him and the speaker he was secretly happy.

His meditations were cut short by a sudden commotion at his elbow. People were hurrying from their seats; the program must be over. He was carried along with the rest, towards the speakers' stand, but he hadn't gone far when he noticed some one trying to speak. Above the noise he just caught the last phrase: "Will close with a selection by the young ladies' quartette."

Then it wasn't over yet! There was to be one more number! He tried to be seated, but a buxom country woman jostled hard against him, nearly sending him off his rheumatic legs.

The quartette commenced to sing, but their voices were drowned in the tumult of confusion.

Presently a drum corps somewhere out in the street struck up "Marching Through Georgia"—the line commenced to form. Hurried along with the throng, Weak-Eyed Jones took up a marching position with others of his blue-coated comrades. The heat was still more stifling here, as they stood waiting for what seemed like hours. Presently Weak-Eyed began to grow faint. The morning had found him physically indisposed, but never yet having missed meeting with his soldier-comrades on the thirtieth of May, he didn't propose to to-day. It might be the last time—probably it would—but he'd go this once!

The band up the street struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner"—he was conscious of the column moving. He had stood still so long his legs were almost stiff and action made him stagger, but with the use of his cane he maintained his balance and managed to move along. Shouts of "Hurrah! Hurrah!" greeted his ears from every side. Proudly he lifted his head and threw his shoulders back with unctious military dignity.

The ovation continued with increased enthusiasm as they passed up the street. Someone tried to retaliate with a "Hurrah for the boys of '61!" but the voice was lost in the lusty tide of cheering for "The boys of '98!" Following the squad of soldiers came a bicycle brigade, men on horseback, and, lastly, wagon loads of flower girls dressed in white—wagons for strong, healthy girls, while decrepit old veterans must go afoot.

As the long line rounded a corner and passed from the boulevard into an east and west thoroughfare, Weak-Eyed Jones tottered. Bravely he pulled his remaining strength together and ambled on, his faltering footsteps unable to beat time to the rapid music. Many of his comrades, too, had long since forgotten how to march. And how few they numbered now—these veterans!

Mount Zion cemetery was a beautiful spot—lifted above woods and sky just beyond where the lake nestled quietly between two hillsides—the valley, with its ribbon of a rivulet, winding verdure-laden at its woody base, the azure heavens outlining its great white gates, its marble monuments, its flowering shrubbery, its trees of green, with rare exactness beyond.

Weak-Eyed Jones raised his eyes to the hill yet in the distance. He could see but the outline of the hallowed spot rising against the lurid sky. His spirit was awed! The heavy march was telling on his weakened body, his steps were getting more and more uncertain. A momentary dizziness came over him.

"Hark!" Suddenly the music of the fifes and drums floated to his ears with a strangely familiar sound. It took him back to the front again, back to the days of '63! Once more he was a youth—strong, vigorous, in arms! And could this, then, be Thomas' brigade?—and yonder—yonder hill—Missionary Ridge where, proudly drawn in battle array, the Confederate legions awaited them calmly with a welcome of leaden death?

And whence all this rub-a-dub-dub, rub-a-dub-dub, that fired the very blood within the veins? Ah! Foolish question! Why ask when there was Soffels, the drummer boy? Nobody but Soffels could drum like that! Soffels was the only one who could make his drum "talk" in accents so clear and true—now gay, gay as the morning sunlight; now sad—sad as the hour of death, as he turned the tide of battle into victory or defeat!

"Take the rifle-pits at the base, then halt and reform!" Weak-Eyed Jones heard the order as clear as on the day it fired the souls of thousands of Union soldiers to battle and to victory. The march of many feet was heard; the glint of polished bayonets seen. The stars and stripes stood straight to the breeze as like clockwork that human phalanx moved to obey.

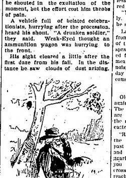
Was that the foe there, entrenched at the base of the hill, calmly waiting with muskets primed and ready? But never a man did he see falter. Onward they pressed, with music soaring and flags flying, into the fray and into the face of death. Then, when the first volley had been met and passed, they were over the breastworks and upon the foe. He felt an absence about him then. He looked for Billy. Billy was gone! A bullet had carried him down at the first onslaught, he concluded. Then he saw the men in the trenches waver for a moment, club their muskets for a last feeble stand. That was all; then they fled. The Federal troops, forgetting their orders in the enthusiasm of the moment, were as quickly over the ramparts and after them—through woods, over logs, past gulches, and into the face of a murderous musketry from above!

Presently Weak-Eyed reeled and fell from the marching column, striking his head as he fell. Grasping a shade tree by the side of the thoroughfare he slowly raised himself to his knees. Had he, too, been struck by a flying bullet? He put his hand to his head. Yes, there was blood! —and the bridge of his nose was gone! But he forgot the pain momentarily as he heard the order: "Charge the crest of the hill!" pass from mouth to mouth as it came from Grant. His pulses leapt. His blood fairly bounded at the words. He tried to rise and obey, but he could neither see nor walk.

"Hurrah for th'—stars an'—stripes!" he shouted in the exultation of the moment, but the effort cost him throbs of pain.

A vehicle full of belated celebrationists, hurrying after the procession, heard his shout. "A drunken soldier," they said. Weak-Eyed thought an ammunition wagon was hurrying to the front.

His sight cleared a little after the first daze from his fall. In the distance he saw clouds of dust arising.



Weak-Eyed Jones feebly raised himself upon his elbows and peered at the blood-red sun.

"The smoke of the battle," he thought. The music was still playing, clearer and louder than ever, indicating the enthusiasm of battle. Someone approached his side.

"Only a—scrape—comrade!" he said. "Never—mind me—I'll be—all right—soon. There's work—fer you—up there!" He indicated the hill with a wave of his hand.

"I tell you he's not drunk; he's sick." The man at his side addressed some one near at hand.

In pity they tried to raise him to his feet. His legs would not support him; he collapsed again at the foot of the tree.

A roll of drums floated across the valley and into the old man's ears. "Hark!" he exclaimed, raising himself with heroic effort. "I hear—th' sound o' vict'ry!" Volleys of musketry rang out on the air. "Give it—to 'em—boys!" he added.

"Chances are against him," a voice was heard to remark nearby. "He must be taken to a physician."

"Aw! He's only had a drop too much t' drink, I tell you," some one answered.

Weak-Eyed didn't hear; his whole mind, his whole being was centered in another direction. Back of Mt. Zion's crest the sun began to set, and, presently, there came the long, low, solemn roll of the drums—the slow, melancholy, almost human roll.

"Ah! it's—all—over!" he said, faintly.

Only a few women were at his side now.

"It's—over," he gasped, "an'—Billy—you'll have t'—go—with th' rest—into th' trenches—an' under th' sod. But—not—me! They said—I c'd—go home. I'm wounded. I'll—tell her—Billy—when I git—there—that you—died a-fightin'—an' a-thinkin'—o'—her! An' I'll—give—her—th' things—you sent,—her picture—an' th' testament! You've—got—mine yet—Billy, I give—'em—t'—ye, but—I'll—not need—'em."

He attempted to rise, but could not. Some one held a flask to his lips and he drank.

The procession meantime wended down the hill again.

The first columns swept past where Weak-Eyed Jones was prone upon the grass. Some one stepped out to hail some passing vehicle. The mayor's carriage aproached. "A jolly old drunk, there!" the occupants remarked, then bowled away up the street and out of hearing. Another carriage swept past without a heed, a load of flower girls drew near. The driver was beckoned to halt, but his attention was centered upon his screaming, laughing passengers.

The sun was now almost set.

Presently Weak-Eyed Jones feebly raised himself upon his emaciated elbows, peered with all the power he could muster through his almost sightless orbs in the direction of the blood-red sun and moved his lips to speak:

"Yes—they're waitin'—for me, Billy. I wish—you—was—a-goin'—too!" he said.

Later, when strange hands gathered from the wayside all that was mortal of the dauntless soldier, a withered spray of honeysuckle slipped unheeded from his nerveless grasp. In the meantime the city had resumed the noisy tenor of its way, and Memorial day and its meaning had all but become forgotten.

Battle Ground Made Sacred.

Old soldiers on Memorial day live again in the memories of the past. The fierce battles and weary marches are looked back to with pride. Of the sanguinary day at Gettysburg an eastern writer says:

"Reader, when you visit the field of the first day's fight, and you walk past the spot where Reynolds fell, and enter the woods where every gnarled tree is torn by shot and shell, you will see a line of monuments crossing your path. Pause when you reach them, stand for a time by the stone that marks the center of the Twenty-fourth Michigan Regiment and recall the day of the battle. You will then be standing near the center of the Iron Brigade. On the right of that organization was the brigade of Roy Stone, and on the left that of Col. Chapman Biddle. Walk the line of these brigades from right to left—ah, yes, you may walk the line of the whole First Corps—and you cannot step without treading upon ground every inch of which was saturated and made sacred by the blood of heroes."

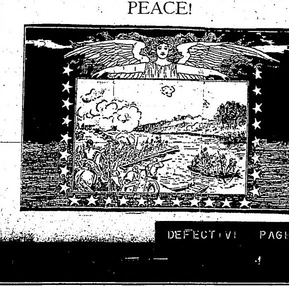
Honor the Living.

Persons of middle age who but dimly remember the closing days of the awful struggle and the scenes of joy that followed the return of the soldiers to their homes, participate in the ceremonies of the day with feelings of reverence, and the children with almost a sense of awe. Reverently and gratefully we remember the services of those who fought and suffered for the union. We can but strew with fragrant flowers the graves of the dead; we should with fragrant deeds remember the living. Not long are they to be with us. More graves call for tribute each year. Let us do the living honor while we may.

Remember the Sailors.

A worthy custom of Memorial day exercises is the strewing of flowers on the waters in memory of the sailors of the civil war who perished in the mighty conflict. And surely worthy of honor are the men who fought with Farragut and our other great naval leaders. In the exercises of the day they should never be forgotten.

PEACE!



WHEN CHAOS RULES

Writer Moralizes Bitterly Over Woe Caused by the Annual Housecleaning Craze.

Behold, the house-cleaning season cometh on apace! The time is nigh at hand when the dismal grunt of the tackpuller and the knockout blow of the tackhammer shall be heard abroad in the land. Yea, verily, we are upon the threshold of the moist scrubbrush and the weeping floor mop.

Now will the good man of the house get him up at the first streaks of dawn streaking the east and hie himself to his office, for he knoweth in his heart that the bosom of his family is no place to be when housecleaning goeth on. When the good man cometh home at the twelfth hour and sitteth down to the table with the appetite of a goat beneath his belt, behold there is nothing on his platter save a few cold, shivering potatoes and a hunk of beef, which he recognizeth as an old acquaintance.

After dinner the queen of his household standeth before him with her head done up in a dustcap and cobwebs in her eyes, asking him if he will beat the parlor carpet, but, remembering that he hath a pressing engagement, he girdeth up his loins straightway and hoofeth it downtown.

Again at eventide he cometh home and climbeth over the bureau, where standeth in the hall. He fain would eat, but there is naught wherewith to do it. As he standeth amid the wreckage and chaos of that once happy home, his better half again draweth nigh and asketh him in a seductive voice to help hang the family portraits. Thereupon the husband borroweth a step ladder from his neighbor and standeth it against the wall. The stepladder hath a broken step, but of this the man wotteth not.

As the man ascendeth the stepladder, bearing aloft the portrait of his wife's mother, the step aforesaid giveth way, and the man descendeth upon his head and throweth the picture through a window into the street, for, behold, the man falleth to the floor and great is the fall thereof. Then the man riseth up in his might and speaketh things in a loud voice which are not fit for publication.

Lastly, says the Ohio State Journal, the man goeth upstairs to seek slumber, but he findeth no place to lay his head, so he lieth down on the floor and sleepeth with his head on a hassock wotting not that he will arise on the morrow, a sore and stiffened creature. Verily the life of the head of the house to be cleaned is a burden.

SPORT IN CHINA

Unique Ways in Which the Wily Celestials Pass Away Time.

One of the most common ways of betting in China is with oranges. This goes on at the fruit stalls and also in private houses. The bet is on the number of seeds in an orange. Sometimes it is as to whether the number is odd or even, and at others as to the exact number of seeds the orange contains. If at a fruit stand, the dealer will pay the lucky guesser five times his bet, but the loser must pay the value of the orange and also five times as much as he has wagered.

Quail fighting is done on a table with a little fence about its edge. The fighting quails have been starved for some time. As they are put into the pen a few grains of rice or wheat are laid before them, and they at once begin to fight over them. They are trained for the purpose, and a good fighter is worth $100 and upward.

It is the same with the crickets. Their prize rings are little bowls. The crickets have been trained. They seem to understand their master's word, and they are urged on to the combat with straws. The Chinese understand how to feed and groom the crickets for the fray. They give them honey, boiled chestnuts and boiled rice and certain kinds of fish. They do not allow anyone to smoke near them, for they think that tobacco injures them. If the crickets grow sick they feed them upon mosquitos and red ants.

In a cricket fight the crickets are weighed before they are put in the ring. They are matched as to size and color. The betting is done just as carefully as at an English horse race. The stakes are held by a committee, which deducts a certain percentage for those who own the fighting houses. During the fight the gamblers grow excited. They scream and yell and hop up and down as one insect gets the better of the other and go almost mad when one wins.

THE WESTERN RESERVE

Section of the Country That Has Contributed Many Famous Men to the Service of the Union.

John Brown came here from Connecticut as a child of five years; and it was through the inculcation of early western reserve radicalism, operating excessively on a peculiar nature, that he was projected upon the country at large as a lurid figure, whatever its defects, not to fade from history. It has been chiefly through a certain stalwart moral stamina of its people, combined with a genius for politics, that the reserve early became conspicuous, and has all along exercised a huge influence, relative to its size, upon the state and country, says a writer in Scribner's Magazine. It has contributed six governors to the state in the time of its need, five senators and two presidents to the United States; educators, authors, scientists almost innumerable. The mere names of Wade and Giddings, of James A. Garfield and William McKinley, of Jay Cooke, financier of the war of the union, of Governors Samuel Huntington, Seabury Ford, Reuben Wood, David Tod, John Brough, and Jacob D. Cox—the latter also one of the ablest generals in the civil war, and of those other generals, Q. A. Gillmore, Opdyke, Dewey, Alger, Reilly, John Beatty and the two Paines, both major-generals, who, though entering the service elsewhere, were natives of the reserve; of such practical scientists as Edison and Brush; of such authors as W. D. Howells, James Ford Rhodes, Edith Thomas, George Kennan, Ambrose Bierce, Sarah Woolsey, Albion W. Tourgee, Thomas Jay Hudson, and Delia Bacon (of Bacon-Shakespeare fame), and of such educators as ex-President James Fairchild of Oberlin, the late Thomas W. Harvey and Burke A. Hinsdale, and Prof. George Trumbull Ladd (the world-famous philosopher and psychologist of Yale's faculty), are sufficient to attest that it was no people of mere mediocrity which Connecticut's remarkable colonizing movement placed in Ohio.

MEANT TO BE A WORLD-BEATER

The Military Station to Be Established on Governor's Island.

In the heart of the city of New York the United States is to have one of the finest military stations in the world, says a New York correspondent. Announcement was made recently for the perfection of the plans for enlarging Governor's Island, and the sundry civil bill will carry an appropriation for finishing the work. Secretary Root has been working on this plan for a long time, and it looks now as if his labors would be crowned with success. Governor's Island is to be enlarged by a breakwater and reclamation of shoal ground, so that its area will be increased from the present sixty-five acres to about 150 acres. Docks and berths will be built, so that the largest ships and transports can lie alongside the warehouses and receive or discharge cargoes by electrical appliances.

The entire terminal facilities of New York city will be available for the handling of freight, loaded cars being floated directly into the slips. Secretary Root says that when his plans are perfected the government will have a station from which an expedition of 25,000 men can be dispatched on transports, fully equipped with artillery, camp outfits, horses, tentage, etc., in three days. There will be room on the island for the barracks and tents of that number of men, and the transportation facilities of the metropolis are so great that the addition of 20,000 or 30,000 men to the ordinary traffic would never be noticed. All this right in the heart of the greatest city and greatest seaport on the continent.

Birds in Hartz Mountains.

In the Hartz Mountains nearly every family raises canaries. Some of them raise them as a business and produce 300 or 400 annually, which they may sell for $1 each. But all families, however poor, raise twenty or thirty on the side, so to speak, simply to help out the family exchequer.

The woman of the house will sit patiently presiding over the stocking machine, at the same time keeping an ear attentive to the attempts of the youthful birds at her elbow to sing. Teaching the canaries is a science. One master even holds a stick threateningly over his charge to warn them from false notes and uncertain tunes. The bird business in Germany has reached large proportions. One bird store in Leipzig employs fifty clerks.

Roosevelt's Strenuous Boys.

The Roosevelt children, by the way, have been stirring their father's strenuous blood. The youngsters are the proud possessors of some thoroughbred chickens and they had an argument as to which were the best fighters. To settle that question the boys decided to pit the chickens against each other. For several days a crowd gathered at the White House barns to watch the fun. "Papa" Roosevelt happened out there one day, when a cock fight was in full swing. He was horrified, or at least had to pretend to be, and he marched the youngsters to the White House.

VOLCANO IN WISCONSIN

THUNDER MOUNTAIN BELCHING OUT SMOKE AT AN ALARMING RATE.

SETTLERS ARE PANIC-STRICKEN

FRIGHTENED HOMESTEADERS ARE HURRYING TO THE SETTLEMENTS.

LIGHT CAN BE SEEN FOR MILES

RED-HOT BOULDER FALLS AT GREEN BAY, WIS., SIXTY MILES AWAY.

Milwaukee, May 27.—Reports reached here last night from Eagle River, Wis., Florence, Wis., and Iron Mountain, Mich., of the startling behavior of Thunder mountain, the highest point of land in Northern Wisconsin, which is reported to be belching out smoke at an alarming rate. It is known that at Green Bay, sixty miles away, a hot boulder fell on a street corner and was still red hot when morning came. The light of the mountain, it is said can be seen for miles. The reports come from localities seventy-five miles apart. According to the reports the few homesteaders are hurrying to the settlements in alarm. The strange actions of the mountain have in the surrounding counties. Thunder mountain is more of a plateau than a hill, and in the center of the mountain is a great peat bog and swamp. The mountain has been seldom visited, for it is almost a solid mass of rock, with vegetation at the top and a cedar swamp surrounding it. State geological authorities have declared it to be of volcanic origin. According to last night's reports over 100 settlers have reached Eagle River. Fiery red sunsets and a succession of severe thunder storms near the mountain have added to the general consternation.

Caused a Panic

Pelee Again Belches.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 27.—Mont Pelee was comparatively quiet Friday. Saturday the volcano belched forth a torrent of lava and mud, which rushed down the northern slope of the mountain and swept away what was left of the town of Basse Pointe. New fissures have opened in the side of the mountain.

Hundreds Leave Martinique.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, May 27. — Four hundred more refugees from the Island of Martinique have arrived here on board the French steamer Versailles, and they are all in urgent need of relief. These reugees report that the majority of Martinique property owners are either dead or have left the island. Robberies there continue, and, owing to the excessive relief distribution, the laborers of Fort-de-France are refusing to work.

Olahoma Has One.

Guthrie, Okla., May 27. — There is much excitement among the full blood Choctaws who live in the Kiamiati mountains, thirty miles northwest from Ailkohi, over the threatened eruption of what is alleged by them to be an extinct volcano. There is a hill in this range that has a crater in its top from which there is a constant volume of smoke issuing. The Indians are leaving the neighborhood. The locality is sparcely settled and not frequently visited. The Indians back up their prediction of an eruption by an Aztec legend which states that one of their armies was almost totally destroyed as the result of an eruption there.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

A Wealthy Chicago Man Seriously Wounded by Supposed Burglars.

Chicago, May 27. — Daniel Hill, a wealthy real estate owner of Morris, Ill., and partner in the firm of the George H. Phillips company on the Chicago board of trade, was shot and seriously wounded early yesterday as he lay in bed in his residence, 797 Monroe street. Six shots were fired, three taking effect, one behind the left ear, one entering his nose and the other shattering his right arm. Considerable mystery surrounds the shooting. According to Mrs. Hill, she and her husband were asleep when Mr. Hill was awakened by the forcing of a lock on the bedroom door. He reached for his revolver but before he could use it three men rushed into the room and fired at him. The first shot awoke Mrs. Hill and she rushed to the window and shouted for help. The police responded in a few minutes but in the meantime the supposed burglars had made their escape.

QUIET IN THE COAL REGION.

The Strike Situation Remains Unchanged and Nothing Doing.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 27.—Yesterday was the quietest Sabbath in the Wyoming region since the strike began. Two weeks ago yesterday there was more or less excitement everywhere because the strike order was to go into effect the following day, and last Sunday there was much talk over the coming of President Mitchell to Wilkesbarre to make his headquarters, but yesterday found the officers of the coal companies entirely deserted, the clerks having completed their pay rolls early in the week, and at the strike headquarters no one was on duty but Miss E. C. Morris, President Mitchell's private secretary.

GRUESOME DEATH LIST.

One Hundred and Fifty Miners May Be Lost.

Fernia, B. C., May 27.—It is believed at least 150 miners are lost. The disaster probably was caused by an explosion of coal dust, so great that the roof of the fanhouse was carried over the mountain top and came down in fragments. Relief parties are working heroically in four-hour shifts. Thirty-eight bodies have been recovered, but only one has been found in the past fourteen hours.

ROOSTER IS SOLE HEIR.

Relative of a Spanish Woman Kills the Wealthy Fowl and Becomes Next of Kin.

London, May 27.—A wealthy woman named Silva recently died at Lisbon and left her entire property to a "rooster." She was a fervid spiritualist, a believer in the transmigration of souls, and imagined that the soul of her dead husband had entered the "rooster." She caused a special fowl house to be built and ordered her servants to pay extra attention to the "master's" wants. The disgust of her relatives over the will caused the story to become public, and a law suit might have followed had not one of the heirs adopted the simple expedient of having the wealthy "rooster" killed, thus becoming himself the next of kin.

CONVICT IS FLOGGED.

Women Whom He Robbed See Infliction of Delaware Justice and Go Home Pleased.

Wilmington, Del., May 27. — Chief Warden Meserve of the Newcastle county workhouse whipped several criminals. Frank Allen, colored, received his first installment of Delaware justice for housebreaking in the form of an hour in the pillory and twenty lashes. Six women whose houses were robbed by Allen were present, and expressed their satisfaction at seeing him flogged. Warden Meserve drew the blood.

SMALL BOAT CROSSES CHANNEL.

Trip Over the Atlantic Is Planned in Same Vessel, Which Is Only Nine Feet Long.

Calais, May 27—A man named Kohel, aged forty-five years, left Dover at dawn yesterday morning and crossed the channel in a boat nine feet by three feet, arriving here at 3:35 in the afternoon. Kohel says he will attempt to cross the Atlantic in the same boat.

CRIME OF JEALOUS HUSBAND.

Frank Wilson Wounds Wife, Kills Her Admirer, and Then Commits Suicide.

Arkansas City, Kan., May 27.—Frank Wilson shot and seriously wounded his wife, killed Abner Canter, and then committed suicide. Wilson was jealous of Canter's attentions to his wife. All three had lived on a farm in the territory across the line from here.

DINERS TAKE A DROP.

Several Persons Injured by the Breaking of a Steel Girder.

New York, May 27.—Three hundred persons were dining on the great iron pier at Rockaway Beach last night when a steel girder snapped in two, causing the floor of the dining room to give way and precipitating the diners to the beach a dozen feet below. Several were severely bruised and one woman internally injured. The twenty thousand persons on the board walk and in the pavilions were thrown into a panic, but no more serious results occurred.

FATAL TORNADO.

Six People in or Near Union, S. C., Are Killed.

Union, S. C., May 27. — Six persons were killed and several injured by a tornado which swept over this section of the state yesterday afternoon. One wing of the storm passed through town and wrecked a number of dwellings.

No One Is Now Able to Enter the Destroyed City of St. Pierre.

Paris, May 27.—A dispatch received here from Gov. l'Huerre, dated from Fort-de-France, Martinique, yesterday, reports that there is no change in the situation there. It is impossible to enter St. Pierre.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Mail Carrier Arrested for Stealing a Bundle of Letters.

Kansas City, May 27. — Frank H. Sturgeon, one of the oldest mail carriers in the Kansas City, Kan., service, was arrested by postoffice inspectors for stealing a bundle of letters. Sturgeon was caught in the act in the postoffice. He confessed, saying that his stealings have covered a period of eight months and that debt prompted the theft. He has a family.

NORTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Wheat Seeding Finished in Nearly All Portions of the State.

The fore part of last week was very favorable for seeding, which was in progress in all sections, but was again stopped by heavy rains the latter part of the week.

On high land wheat-seeding is completed in nearly all portions of the state; but on low lands, especially in the valleys of the Sheyenne, Red and James rivers and their tributaries, much of the land is too wet to get on for either seeding or plowing. Much of the land which is now too wet to work will be sown to flax later, if the weather permits.

Oats, barley and other small grain, except flax, are being sown in all sections, and land prepared for corn.

Warmer weather the past week induced a very rapid germination of all grain that has been sown, and much of it is now up, and, without exception, looks very fine. Grass has also made rapid progress.

It will require about three days of warm, dry weather before most of the low land will be in a condition to work, although some of it is covered with water, and cannot be reached for a much longer period.

Synopsis of reports from counties in different portions of the state:

BARNES—Rogers—Wheat-seeding is well along; some oats sown; rain last Thursday stopped all work. Alderman —Wheat, oats and barley seeding nearly finished; plowing for flax going on.

BENSON—Albert—Wheat seeding is about finished: now plowing for flax; weather unfavorable. Oberon—Wheat is up and looks excellent; oats and barley are being sown; weather could not be better.

BURLEIGH—Sterling—Seeding about done; early-sown grain is up and looks well; the warm weather and rains of the past week have forced vegetation.

CASS—Lynchburg—Wheat and oats about all sown; seed germinated well; most land is too wet to work. Warren —Seeding of wheat and oats is progressing fast; early-sown wheat, is five inches high; some corn has been planted. Grandin—Wheat-seeding is about half done; that up looks very good. Casselton—Nearly all the wheat is sown that will be; work has been retarded again by rain. Buffalo—The wheat is all in; most of it is up and looking well; too wet to plow for or plant corn. Arthur—Some are through seeding wheat; low land too wet to seed for several days to come. Tower City—On account of wet weather, wheat as well as other seeding is again delayed.

CAVALIER—Milton—Wheat-seeding is well advanced, but was interrupted by rain Friday. Olga—Wheat-seeding is going on rapidly.

DICKEY—Guelph—Seeding is prevented by rainy weather, which makes grain already seeded grow well. Monango—Farm work is much delayed by wet weather, but everything that is sown is coming up fast. Wright—Wheat-seeding is about three fourths done; no more can be done on bottom lands for several days.

EMMONS — Braddock— Seeding is finished, except some flax and rye; weather excellent. Hampton—Wheat all sown; it is up and growing finely; land is being prepared for corn and flax.

FOSTER—Barlow—Wheat is up and looks well; barley and oats are being sown; plowing for flax is going on.

GRAND FORKS—Inkster — Wheat-seeding is about done, but not so much has been sown as usual. Reynolds—Seeding was done two days the past week; stopped by heavy rain. McRae —Some early-sown grain is up and looks fair; too wet to do anything.

LaMOURE—Kulm—Work is progressing slowly; first-sown grain is up and looks very fine. Edgeley—Fore part of the week was very favorable, followed later by showers which stopped work. Verona—Some wheat to be seeded yet; that sown early is up.

McLEAN—Coal Harbor—Wheat is all up and also some oats; all looking fine; flax-seeding commenced. Washburn—About all crops except flax are in; very good growing weather.

MORTON—Cannon Ball—Some oats are coming up; ground very wet; potatoes planted. Glen Ullin—Last-sown wheat is up and looks good; oats coming up; corn being planted. Sims—Showers with warmer weather brought all grain forward very rapidly; wheat is up and looks very good. Hebron—Seeding is about finished; plowing for corn done.

NELSON—Lee—Wheat-seeding progressing rapidly; oats being sown. Lakota—Wheat-seeding finished; oats nearly done; some barley and flax sown.

PEMBINA—Walhalla — Wheat-seeding practically finished; considerable up; oats and barley being sown. Drayton—No seeding done yet; land very wet. Cavalier—Little over half the wheat sown; that on low land not doing well. Hamilton—Seeding very backward; many have not commenced; land very wet. St. Thomas—Considerable seeding was done the first of the week; ground very wet. Crystal—About half the wheat sown; considerable more to be sown if weather is favorable; land very wet.

RAMSEY—Grand Harbor—Wheat and oats up and growing nicely; some flax sown. Doyan—Wheat, oats and barley all sown; wheat all up and looks fine.

RANSOM—Buttzville—Seeding mostly done; grain up and looks fine. Miller—Wheat and oats all sown; plowing for flax and barley. Anselm—Wheat, oats and barley up and look fine; plowing for corn and flax. Enderlin—Seeding three-fourths done; wheat up and looks well; no flax sown yet.

RICHLAND — Great Bend— Wheat and oats up and look very good; half the corn planted. Farmington—Wheat, oats and most of the barley is up and look well. Hankinson—A most favorable week for growing crops and they look extremely well. Power—Wheat and oats all in; plowing for corn and corn-planting general. Barrie—Grain of all kinds looks well; corn is being planted; weather very favorable.

STUTSMAN — Ypsilanti—Wheat up and looks well; oats coming up; land being prepared for corn and flax. Pingree—Considerable progress was made the fore part of the week; the latter part wet and unfavorable for work. Jamestown—Wheat nearly all seeded and much now growing above ground and looks very promising; work was interrupted by rain the latter part of the week.

SARGENT —Rutland — Wheat and oats up and looking nice; most of the barley sown.

STARK—Gladstone—Wheat most all sown; considerable oats and barley yet to be put in.

STEELE—Finley—Rain has again put a stop to seeding; a few have finished. Sharon—Wheat-seeding will be finished this week; early-sown is up and looks well.

TRAILL—Hillsboro—Not one-half of the wheat sown; some have not sown any yet; work stopped again by rain the latter part of the week. Buxton—Very little work done in the field the past week, being more or less interrupted by rain. Mayville—Another heavy rain the past week, which further delayed seeding.

WALSH—Forrest River—Seeding was commenced the past week, but was stopped by rain. Park River—Most of the wheat is sown; plowing for oats and barley general. Pisek—The wheat-seeding is finished; it is coming up nicely; oats and barley being sown.

WARD—Portal—Weather very favorable; seeding well advanced.

WELLS—Twist—Oats mostly sown; weather very cold. Sykeston—All seeding done except flax and corn; ground in fine condition, except that some soil is too wet. Delger—Small grain all up and looks good; plowing for flax; some flax has been sown.

NORTH DAKOTA A. O. U. W.

Grand Lodge and Degree of Honor Are Concluded.

The grand lodge sessions of the A. O. U. W. and the Degree of Honor were concluded at Fargo. Grand Forks was selected by both organizations as the place for the next annual meeting. The reports of officers showed the organization to be in excellent condition and the success of the graduated assessment plan has been fully demonstrated. The A. O. U. W. officers for this year will be:

Grand master workman, George A. Rluberg, Devils Lake; grand foreman, George L. Barrett, Lakota; grand overseer, J. H. Newton, Bismarck; grand recorder, E. J. Moore, Fargo; grand receiver, R. S. Adams, Lisbon; grand guide, C. E. Williams, Gardner; grand inside warden, E. N. Selby, Ellendale; representatives, to supreme lodge, Judge Kneeshaw of Pembina; H. H. Joy, Hamilton; Andrew Blewett, Jamestown. H. M. Joy was also elected delegate to the fraternal congress.

The Degree of Honor officers are:

Grand chief of honor, Mrs. Bergenthal, Ellendale; grand recorder, Mrs. Kate Blewett, Jamestown; grand lady of honor, Mrs. Minnie Sterns, Lakota; grand chief of ceremonies, Mrs. Lizzie Dinnie, Grand Forks; grand receiver, Mrs. Mary Ridley, Fargo; grand usher, Mrs. Susan Kneeshaw, Pembina; grand inside watch, Mrs. Elizabeth Pierce, St. Thomas; grand outside watch, Mrs. Maggie Murphy, Neche; supreme representatives, Mrs. A. Blewett, Jamestown; Mrs. Bergenthal, Ellendale.

General Improvement Jottings and Building Trade Tips.

Reports of new buildings in all parts of the state continue to be made. In Fargo several large contracts are under way, and builders have begun preliminaries for several others. The public library structure has advanced to the stage where observers can obtain some idea as to what the beautifully-designed pile of brick and stone will really look like. The excavation for the McHench block of stores and residence flats is completed and the laying of the foundation walls has been begun. Operations will soon be in progress for an immense plant for the Standard Oil company. The warehouse, offices and stabling will be substantial structures of brick, stone and iron. Another building to be begun within a few days will be an up-to-date printing house of brick and stone, for Walker Bros. & Hardy, and that will be closely followed by a gigantic pile of warehouses and offices for the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company; and then there will be the Northwestern Telephone company's building for its Fargo exchange and offices. Included with the latter will be the construction work incident to the undergrounding of the company's wires. Besides the structures noted, there are numerous houses and modern residences under way and projected.

Hope township is building a school house at Vang, Cavalier county, which has improved features over the average country school house. There will be two entrances, and the interior, 28x38, is divided by folding doors, either making two rooms for classes, or opening up into one spacious room for public gatherings.

The Catholics at Bowbells expect to erect a church. Rev. Father Callahan of Ellendale is working to form a body of the same denomination at Edgeley. Thomas Casey, chairman of the building committee, will receive bids until noon, May 23, for the erection of St. Anne's Catholic church at Litchville, and the Methodists at Omemee have bids for the erection of a church edifice 24x40 feet.

District school buildings are projected near Braddock, Grand Forks, Lisbon, Michigan City, Portal, Sanborn and Towner, eleven structures in all.

D. McDonald of Valley City has the contract to erect a bank building for the Stutsman County bank at Courtenay.

At Washburn, J. A. Edwards has begun work on a forty-room, brick-veneered hotel.

At Grand Forks the Great Northern has received plans for its new freight house.

CLOUDBURST AT OSHKOSH, WIS.

Heaviest Rainstorm in History of City—Farmers Lose Heavily.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 27.—The heaviest rain storm that there is any record of in this city fell here Saturday afternoon. It is said in some parts of the city to have been a cloudburst. The streets in the business portion of the city were inundated and carried torrents of water to the river, the water reaching from curb to curb and overflowing crossings and sidewalks. Cellars and yards were flooded and in the outskirts numerous chickens were drowned. After a time the deluge was turned to hail and there was much damage done to gardens and fruit, the storm was particularly hard south of the city and reports say that the farmers have lost heavily. A report reached this city that the city of Clintonville had been struck by a cyclone and that twenty persons had been killed or injured. Investigation, however, shows the report to be unfounded. Stevens Point reports a heavy storm, but only slight damage. Wires are working to all points north, which would indicate the absence of a tornado.

WARRANTS FOR STUDENTS.

Will Be Arrested as Result of an Attempted Hazing.

Chicago, May 27.—Warrants for the arrest of sixteen of the best-known students of Northwestern university were issued by Police Magistrate Ely at Evanston last night and arrests will follow to-day. The warrants were issued at the instance of members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, who are not now in school, as the sequel to the assault made upon George Tilroe, a student, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. A crowd of students attempted to haze Tilroe because of alleged disparaging remarks he made regarding the athletic team of the university. The charge against the students is disorderly conduct.

BULL OBJECTS TO HYPNOTISM.

Man Loses His Bet and May Also Lose His Life.

Racine, Wis., May 27.—Bert Peterson of Milwaukee wagered a companion $100 that he could enter a cornfield on a farm north of this city and bring a ferocious bull under subjection by hypnotising it. The animal chased Peterson, but he managed to dodge it until he reached a high board fence, which he was unable to scale. The bull rammed him through the fence with probably fatal results. Three ribs were fractured, his shoulder was dislocated and his face badly cut. He was removed to a Milwaukee hospital in an unconscious condition. When he regained his senses he said he would pay the bet.

KOBBE AT FORT MEADE.

Commander of the Department of Dakota Visits South Dakota.

Fort Meade, S. D., May 27.—An inspection of this post has just been completed by Gen. W. A. Kobbe of St. Paul, commander of this department. The general was accompanied by Col. Pond, chief quartermaster, and Col. Dwyer, chief commissary of the department. They were received here with appropriate ceremonies, there being a review in addition to the usual parade and inspection. It is expected that three new stone barracks will be built here this summer, and two more troops will arrive this fall, giving the post eight troops altogether.

AT THE MERCY OF THE WAVES.

Party on a Disabled Launch Has a Thrilling Experience.

Racine, Wis., May 27.—With a strong west wind blowing, a steam launch in charge of S. Larson and Bert Russell, and having on board a party of twenty-five women, went out on Lake Michigan yesterday. The engine was disabled and the craft rapidly drifted out three miles into the lake. The party on board became frightened and attempted to signal people on short. Two smaller launches made an effort to tow the disabled boat ashore, but failed. The Racine life-saving crew went out and after two hours hard work landed the party safely.

TWO ARE SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

Slayers of Oscar Miller Are Convicted in Iowa.

Shenandoah, Iowa, May 27. — Early Saturday the jury brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree with life sentence for Wesley Irwin, the third boy tried for the murder of Oscar Miller in a Wabash sand house last December. Edward Sennis also received a life sentence for the same crime, and Eugene Mason was acquitted.

HORSE THIEVES AT FARIBAULT.

Many Animals Have Been Missed in Vicinity Lately.

Faribault, Minn., May 27.—William Kueker of this city reports the loss of a team of horses from his farm near the city. They were evidently stolen, as a number of horses have been taken in this county during the past two months.

HIS INJURIES FATAL.

Man Who Once Survived Lightning Stroke Killed in a Mill.

Hudson, Wis., May 27—John Holberg, who was terribly hurt Wednesday in the Willow River Lumber company's sawmill, is dead. He was twisted about a shaft and many bones were broken. He never recovered consciousness.

GOV. VAN SANT SPEAKS.

Madelia Has a Market Day and Distinguished Visitors.

Madelia, Minn., May 27. — Madelia had the long-looked-for bargain day here. Gov. Van Sant and Dairy Commissioner McConnell were present and addressed a large and enthusiastic audience of farmers.

SMALLPOX PANIC AT RACINE.

Alarmed People Demand That City Authorities Take Immediate Steps to Stop Disease.

Racine, Wis., May 27.—Residents of this city, frightened on account of the spread of smallpox, induced Mayor Higgins to call a special meeting of the common council and health officers for the purpose of taking some action to wipe out the disease, which has stricken families in every portion of the city. Five deaths have been reported and more are expected.

LORD PAUNCEFOTE IS DEAD

THE DISTINGUISHED AMBASSADOR PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 27.—Amid the enthusiastic demonstrations of a great concourse of people the superb bronze statue of Gen. Count de Rochambeau, who brought the forces of France across the sea at the time of the greatest peril in the American revolution was unveiled yesterday. Seldom has an event presented so many brilliant features of military pageantry and at the same time given occasion for the manifestation of the strong bonds of friendship existing between the French republic and the United States. For the first time in its history the national capital witnessed the sight of rank on rank of French seamen swinging through Pennsylvania avenue and mingling their cheers with those of the American blue jackets and soldiers, while at the same time the French tricolors were entwined with the Stars and Stripes and the sound of "The Marseillaise" was heard along with "The Star-Spangled Banner." The ceremony of unveiling occurred at the southwest corner of Lafayette square, almost directly opposite the White House, where the massive figure of the French general has been erected. On every hand the colors of France and America were blended.

A Brilliant Assemblage.

Within this amphitheater were gathered representatives of every branch of the government, including the president of the United States and members of his cabinet, the chief justice and associate justices of the united states supreme court, the lieutenant general of the army and the admiral, of the navy, senators and representatives. Not less distinguished was the representation of France, designated by President Loubet, and including Gen. Brugere, the highest field officer in the French army; Vice Admiral Fournier, inspector general of the French navy; the venerable general, Count Chalendar, the descendants of Rochambeau and Lafayette and others distinguished in French military, official, literary and artistic life. With them were the French ambassador, M. Cambon, and the entire staff of the French embassy, all in brilliant diplomatic uniform, while the diplomatic corps was represented by the German, Russian, Italian and Mexican ambassadors and the ministers from many foreign countries.

President Roosevelt made a short address of welcome, after which Countess de Rochambeau performed the ceremony of unveiling the statue. Senator Lodge was the orator of the day.

PAUNCEFOTE IS DEAD.

Ambassador of Great Britain Passes Away After Long Illness.

Washington, May 27.—Lord Pauncefote, British ambassador to the United States, died at the embassy Saturday morning at 5:35 o'clock.

The improvement which had been noted in his condition during the last week received a sudden check about 5 o'clock Friday evening, when it was noticed that he was experiencing difficulty in breathing. Dr. Jung, his physician, was immediately sent for, and he decided upon a consultation with a local physician, in the meantime telegraphing for Dr. Osler of Baltimore. In his stead came Dr. Thayer of Johns Hopkins.

The patient's pulse was still good, and when Dr. Thayer left the embassy at 3 o'clock for Baltimore the ambassador was resting so comfortably that a cablegram was sent to his son-in-law, Mr. Bromley, in London, that there was no immediate danger.

Soon after 3 o'clock a distinct weakness of the heart developed and the patient's pulse began to collapse. He died so peacefully that it surprised even his physician, who feared that the asthmatic affection would prove troublesome when the end came.

His colleagues and associates in the diplomatic corps, from Herr von Holleben, his successor as dean of the corps, to the humblest attache, mourn his death as a personal affliction. Throughout his long term of office Lord Pauncefote was the kindly counselor and effective friend of his colleagues, and especially of the younger men.

"OLD GLORY" HIS SALVATION.

Haytien Fugitive Has United States Minister for Escort.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, May 27.—Tancrede Auguste, the former minister of the interior and police, left on the Paloma for Jamaica. When on the point of leaving the United States legation, where he sought refuge at the time of the disturbances which followed the resignation of President Sam, a crowd made a hostile demonstration against him, and a detachment of troops was sent to escort him to the wharf. M. Auguste finally left the legation with the United States minister, W. F. Powell, in a carriage over which was held an American flag.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

An Attempt to Assassinate Ex-Congressman Morey of Ohio.

Hamilton, Ohio, May 27.—An attempt was made last night to assassinate Former Congressman H. L. Morey. He was driving to his country residence about 9 o'clock when a shot was fired from ambush which barely grazed his face. His brother-in-law, A. L. S. Campbell, is under arrest, charged with the shooting. He has been on bad terms with Mr. Morey for some time on account of family matters.

CHAFFEE IS SEVERE.

He Disapproves of the Acquittal of Waller and Day.

Manila, May 27. — Gen. Chaffee has disapproved the action of the court-martial in acquitting Maj. L. W. T. Waller and Lieut. John A. Day of the charge of killing natives of Samar without legal process.

Gen. Chaffee says that the verdicts are a miscarriage of justice, and the findings are opposed to the evidence. He holds that while the laws of war justify summary executions in certain cases such cases did not arise in the Samar campaign. A minute review of the records leads him to decide that justice to the military service and common fairness to the helpless natives whom Maj. Waller sent to their death, his acts partaking more of unlawful retaliation than justifiable warfare, makes the case one that should not become an approved precedent for young officers. However, considering the mental condition of Maj. Waller, so much of the findings as declare the accused not guilty of murder are approved. Lieut. Day is censured because, though he knew Maj. Waller's condition, he did not counsel delay.

POLITICS BREAK UP A HOME.

Tragedy Follows in Which Attempted Murder and Suicide Figure.

Chicago, May 27.—Because his wife had sought the protection of her relatives, Nels Johnson, a North side politician, yesterday shot and fatally wounded Mrs. C. J. Cullacksen, his sister-in-law, and then committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. The shooting was the outcome of the separation of Johnson and his wife after a married life of nineteen years. Several years ago Johnson became interested in politics and since then he has refused to work. Last week his home was sold by the sheriff and Mrs. Johnson went to her sister's house to live. Johnson blamed Mrs. Gullacksen for the separation, and while intoxicated and in a fit of revenge tried to kill her.

RIOT AT A BALL GAME.

Timely Action of the Police Saves a Negro From Lynching.

Florence, Colo., May 27.—A riot at a baseball game here yesterday nearly resulted in the lynching of James Wilson, a negro. Wilson was driving a buggy and trying to pass every one on the road, which was crowded with vehicles. He collided with a buggy occupied by Ornie Carroll, a white man, and the two began a fist fight. The crowd closed around them and finally began beating and kicking the negro. A half-dozen officers rescued the negro barely in time to save his life and then only by standing the crowd off with their revolvers.

ANOTHER DASH FOR POLE.

Peary, After Return, Expects to Meet Reconstructed Windward.

Christiania, May 27. — News from Smith Sound reports that the conditions of the ice are much more favorable than last year. Peary expects to meet the Windward, with new machinery and entirely rebuilt at Cape Sabine, after making another attempt to reach the pole.

THOUSAND KILLED.

Result of the Earthquake at Quezaltenango, Guatemala.

San Francisco, May 27.—By advices brought by the steamer City of Para it is learned that in ninety seconds, 1,000 people were killed and over 4,000 maimed and crippled and the city of Quezaltenango of 40,000 people destroyed by the earthquake of April 18 in Guatemala.

Murderer Is Released.

Jackson, Miss., May 27.—Oliver Lamar, recently convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, was released from jail at Mendenhall early yesterday by a number of his friends. Sheriff Magee sent out several posses in pursuit, but Lamar has not yet been apprehended. The bars were pried off the jail from the outside. Two men supposed to have been in the gang have been arrested.

Too Warm for Uribe-Uribe.

Colon, Colombia, May 27. — The Colombian government has received news that the insurgent generals, Uribe-Uribe and Foclon Soto, had arrived at Port of Spain, Trinidad, thus escaping the pursuit of the government forces. The government regards the departure from Colombia of these men as evidence of the hopelessness of the insurgent cause in the interior of the republic.

Rebellion Practically Subdued.

Pekin, May 27.—The rebellion in Chili province has been practically subdued, but the inhabitants of the province are complaining loudly of the forces under Yuan Shai Kai, the governor of Chili, and allege that his soldiers in inflicting punishments do not distinguish between the guilty and the innocent.

Kicked to Death.

Washington, Ind., May 27. — Joseph Hubbard, an ex-convict, kicked Louis Cunningham to death in a saloon fight yesterday afternoon. Cunningham was a farmer and a son of Michael Cunningham, one of the wealthiest men in the county. Hubbard is under arrest.

Murder and Suicide.

Ogden, Utah, May 27. — Lorenzo Faulkner, aged thirty years, a railroad man, shot and killed his wife yesterday and then killed himself. His wife had left him some months ago and returned to her parents' home.

Hoosier Flour Mill Burned.

Jeffersonville, Ind., May 27. — The flour mill of R. O. Gathright & Co. at Clarksville, a suburb of this city, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $110,000.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

Greenfield, Mo., May 27.—Allie Petty, living near Arcola, shot Mrs. Friend and her daughter and then himself. The mother may recover but the others will die. Mrs. Friend had objected to Petty's attentions to her daughter.

Boy Instantly Killed.

Faribault, Minn., May 27. — Enoch Edward Christianson, an employe of O. F. Brand's nursery, fell from a wagon in a runaway accident and was instantly killed. He was fifteen years old.

FIGHT FOR RICHES

THOUSANDS FACE DEATH TO REACH THUNDER MOUNTAIN GOLD FIELD.

ENDURE TERRIBLE HARDSHIPS

ARE COMPELLED TO TRAVEL AT NIGHT OVER SNOW THIRTY FEET DEEP.

FABULOUS STRIKES REPORTED

WONDERFUL STORIES OF THE RICHNESS OF THE IDAHO ELDORADO.

Salt Lake City, May 27.—Five thousand men are struggling over snow thirty feet deep in an effort to reach Thunder mountain, the new Eldorado that promises to eclipse the gold fields of Cripple Creek and the Klondike.

Word from Salmon City, received by courier, that the trails into the mountains are lined with prospectors who, having lived for weeks in abodes built under the snow, waiting for the trails to open and for the construction of bridges across the hundreds of deep streams, up the big hills, are now working in toward the summit of Thunder mountain, braving death in their fight for riches. The undertaking is a dangerous one, as all the travel must be made by night. In the daytime the sun melts the top of the snow and the prospectors when the crust hardens and the journey can be resumed. Five cases have already been reported of men who stepped on the thin crust and immediately sunk out of sight. Their bodies will probably be recovered in the summer when the snow melts.

Must Wait Until Night,

Prospectors returning from the gold fields for supplies bring wonderful stories of the fabulous richness of the mountain. The gold field embraces an area of forty square miles and a ledge sixty feet in height is said to contain gold ore so pure that the yellow metal is easily discernible to the naked eye. Samples are brought out of Thunder mountain which assay from $500 to $50,000 a ton, and gold nuggets of almost pure gold have been shown. Strikes have already been made which have for the Caswell brothers, and more than sixty miners have claims that will bring them from $200,000 to $500,000 each. A courier from the men says that there is a shortage of provisions there now, and unless a dog train arrives within a few days the men will suffer for want of food. Flour is bringing $40 a sack, meal $20 a sack, bacon $5 a pound, small cans of baking powder, $2, and beans $5 a pound, potatoes $1 a pound, coffee $6 a pound and other provisions in proportion.

Resulted in Millions

The wild rush into the Idaho Eldorado has only begun. Towns are springing up all along the old trail into the mountain used by the Hudsons bay trappers a century ago, and fully 100 log hotels are being built. Twenty-five thousand prospectors are expected by June 1, when the snow will be melted.

MURDERER IS LYNCHED.

Mob Kidnaps the Sheriff and Deputies and Then Break Into the Jail.

Paris, Mo., May 27.—Abe Witherup, the negro murderer of William Grow, who was killed last month, was taken from the Paris jail at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, marched to the bridge on the north end of town and hanged by a mob of more than a hundred men who rode quietly into town at midnight. The mob went at once to the jail but were held back for more than an hour by Sheriff James W. Clark and Deputies Martin Clark and Polk Masterson, who stood before the entrance to the jail stockade with drawn revolvers and threatened to shoot the first man who attempted to force an entrance. The mob remained in front of the jail for nearly two hours parleying with the officers and finally marching away. The officers remained on guard but believed the mob had disbanded. About 2 o'clock several men approached and engaged the sheriff and his deputies in conversation. Then suddenly, before the officers could defend themselves, they were seized, disarmed and carried away. The mob then quickly reappeared, surrounded the jail, and with sledgehammers battered down the big iron doors. The negro made no resistance and in reply to questions confessed his guilt.

POSSES IN PURSUIT.

Five Hundred Men Hunting for a Murderer.

Atlanta, Ga., May 27.—Five or six hundred men divided into a half-dozen posses are searching the country adjacent to this city for Millard Lee, twenty years of age, the son of a well-to-do farmer, who yesterday shot and killed Miss Lilla Suttle, a young woman of nineteen, at Wesley chapel, Mount Gilead camp grounds, nine miles from Atlanta. Just as the minister had finished the benediction and before any of the worshippers had left the church, Lee, who was sitting behind Miss Suttle, leaned forward and fired at her. The first bullet entered her back, but no vital part was reached, and an instant later Lee fired again, killing the girl instantly. While the churchgoers stood astounded Lee backed out of the door and started for the woods.

MOTHER EARTH SMOKES.

Phenomena That Cause the People of Portugal to Quake.

London May 27.—A dispatch to the Central News from Lisbon says that the inhabitants of Pedroso, a place six miles from Oporto, were thrown into a condition of panic by a tornado of wind and by fire and smoke issuing from fissures in the earth. No damage was done. The phenomena are believed to have been connected with the volcanic eruptions in the West Indies.

STRUCK BY A CYCLIST.

Prominent Resident of Winona Perhaps Fatally Injured.

Winona, Minn., May 24.—An accident which will probably result fatally occurred yesterday afternoon on West Broadway in this city. B. F. Baker, aged seventy-six years, a prominent resident of the West End, was met by a bicycle rider on the sidewalk. In endeavoring to get out of the way he tripped and fell, his head striking the brick pavement. He was at once carried to the hospital where it was found that his head was fractured on one side from the crown to the eye socket. He is still unconscious and small hopes are held for his recovery. There is an ordinance in this city strictly forbidding sidewalk riding but it has not been enforced.

LAID BEFORE THE GRAND JURY.

Sioux Falls Boy Accused of Writing and Mailing Bad Letters.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 24.—William Lloyd Garrison Wallace, the fourteen-year-old son of W. L. Wallace, postmaster at Riverside, Hanson county, was arrested and brought before United States Commissioner Conway for preliminary examination on the charge of sending an objectionable letter through the mails. The epistle is alleged to have been mailed March 28 last, directed to Miss Gertrude Dorer, Chicago. The young defendant waived examination and his father and a friend furnished bonds in the sum of $300 for his appearance before the federal grand jury, which convenes at Deadwood, S. D., in September.

DAMAGED BY DELUGE.

Ten Miles of Track Washed Away on Preston Branch.

Preston, Minn., May 24.—Preston is again deluged. The train on the Preston branch has not been able to reach Preston since the washout of Saturday night. Bridges in all directions from town have been washed out. The lumber yard of the C. L. Coleman Lumber company is in worse shape than ever, as more mud has been washed in. There is now over two feet of soft mud all over the yard and lumber piles. The damage is estimated at about $1,500. Trains on the Southern Minnesota are all abandoned. Telegraph and telephone communication is cut off. In all about ten miles of track is washed out on the Preston branch.

BADGER MEDICS ELECT.

Wisconsin Homeopaths Meet in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, May 24. — The homeopathic medical society of the state adjourned sine die yesterday afternoon after listening to the reading of several technical papers and holding a business session. Oshkosh was awarded the next convention. Officers were elected as follows: President, Edward Everett, Madison; vice president, A. P. Andros, Ashland; secretary, M. A. Brandt, Milwaukee; treasurer, G. W. Patchen, Manitowoc; censor, F. A. Forsbeck, Milwaukee. Dr. M. A. Brandt was chosen delegate to the American Institute of Homeopaths, which meets in Cleveland in June.

JUSTICE MISCARRIED.

Men Charged With Inhuman Treatment Are Dismissed.

Hastings, Minn., May 24.—The case of the state against Gerald Fitzgerald and John McAuliffe, who were arrested on complaint of the St. Paul Humane society, was on trial before Justice Newell and a jury here yesterday. Defendants were charged with cruel treatment of a steer which they were driving from Inver Grove to Newport. At the close of the state's testimony the county attorney moved for a dismissal, as none of the witnesses were able to identify the defendants.

HEINZE IS DISMISSED.

Judge Clancy Drops the Contempt Proceedings.

Butte, Mont., May 24.—Judge Clancy has dismissed the contempt proceedings against F. Augustus Heinze, chief owner of the Minnie Healy mine, and John Kane, foreman of the mine, for violation of the court's order granting the Boston and Montana company permission to make a survey of the workings of the Minnie Healy mine. E. H. Wilson, the superintendent of the mine, was, however, adjudged to be in contempt, and fined $200 or to serve five days in the county jail.

ADMITS BURGLARY.

United States Marshal Gets Edward Lang for Postoffice Robbery.

Hudson, Wis., May 24.—United States Marshal Lewiston arrived from Madison and received from Sheriff Bell Edward Lang, charged with burglarizing the Wilson postoffice last week. Yesterday morning District Attorney Frear moved before Judge Helms to discharge Lang in order to turn him over to the government authorities. Permission was granted and Lewiston left with Lang for Eau Claire, where he will be arraigned. Lang admits burglary of a store, but claims he did not get anything.

Strikers Losing Their Jobs.

Fargo, N. D., May 24.—More of the Fargo workmen have joined the strikers and the number now out is fully 75 per cent of those normally employed. There seems some indications of a conference, but it is not yet determined. New men are coming in from the outside and taking the place of the union men.

Drowned in Fountain Lake.

Albert Lea, Minn., May 24.—Arthur Ege, about fifteen years of age, was drowned in Fountain lake under peculiar circumstances. He and other boys were fishing at the bridge and young Ege threw a small boy's hat into the water, but when he went after it he slipped from a timber and could not get out.

Caught a Big Black Bear.

Butternut, Wis., May 24.—H. V. Buskirk, a trapper, caught a large black bear on Beaver Creek last Monday. The animal weighed 620 pounds, and is as large as has ever been caught in this county. The pelt brought $20.

Winona Man for Orator.

Winona, Minn., May 24. — Secretary Irwin Shepard, of the National Educational association, has accepted an invitation to deliver the Memorial day address at the state normal school at Charleston, Ill.

LEAVE THE ISLAND

FRENCH GOVERNMENT MAY ABANDON WHOLE OF MARTINIQUE.

THOUSANDS HAVE ALREADY LEFT

TRANSPORTATION ARRANGED IN CASE EVACUATION MAY BE NECESSARY.

IN GREAT FEAR OF LIGHTNING

FORT-DE-FRANCE FEARS DESTRUCTION BY MYSTERIOUS FLUID.

Paris, May 24.—The ministry of the colonies did not receive any dispatches from the Island of Martinique yesterday. Gov. l'Heurre's last message, dated May 21, does not contain anything not covered by the press dispatches.

The government is considering the possibility of the necessity arising for the evacuation of Fort-de-France and even of the whole island. The ministers do not believe that any such emergency will arise, but they are taking all the necessary measures to meet it if it does. The minister of the colonies, M. Decrais, cabled a message to Gov. l'Heurre instructing him to make all possible arrangements for the embarcation of all the inhabitants of Martinique in the event of circumstances necessitating evacuation.

According to late advices received here, quiet is restored at Fort-de-France and there has been no general exodus of the population, though 1,000 persons have gone to the Island of Guadeloupe and the Island of St. Lucia, and 3,000 more have removed to the towns and villages in the extreme southern part of the island. Those who remain at Fort-de-France are calmer.

In Fear of Lightning.

Fort-de-France, May 24. — The city was in darkness on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The light plant was shut down by order of the mayor. The people are afraid that the electricity will attract the lightning and destroy the city. Many citizens had threatened to destroy the plant unless it was closed down.

Twenty persons convicted of looting have been sentenced. Many of the people are leaving here. There are 6,000 refugees in the public buildings. All want to leave the island.

The scientists and others on the United States naval training ship Dixie yesterday afternoon visited the ruins of St. Pierre. The eruption of Mount Pelee on the 20th was much greater than the previous one of May 8. The northern city is now entirely buried and new fissures are opening. Prof. Jaggar, the Harvard geologist, says the volcano is now in a most dangerous condition to the whole island. There is no evidence of lava.

The people were killed by an explosive volcanic tornado, which bore with it a wave of burning gas. No lapilli were found, but there was much volcanic dust, which bore a great similarity to that at Pompeii, but was more destructive. The entire island is in danger. There is plenty of food here.

The Dixie discharged part of her supplies here and sailed to-day for St. Vincent. After unloading there she will return to Fort-de-France.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

Rumors Are Rife but Nothing Doing.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 24.—The tenth day of the anthracite coal miners' strike passed off very quietly, not a single incident developing which would in any way tend to change the present situation. Rumors were rife that something was about to take place that would alter the status quo conditions of the negotiations, but these were promptly denied by leaders of both sides to the controversy. The action of the convention of the three district executive committees no doubt had much to do with these rumors. The members of the committees spent the greater part of the time lounging about strike headquarters and absolutely nothing was done. President Mitchell kept close to his office all day. He would say nothing regarding the call for the special national convention which will meet in Indianapolis, probably three weeks hence.

TINTYPE AIDS TO CUPID.

Photographer Mixed the Pictures and the Twain Are One.

Chicago, May 24.—By mixing up some tintypes four years ago a traveling photographer at the Rockford county fair did something which ended in a romance yesterday. Dwight Noble of Chicago had his picture taken. So did Isabel Merkl. They were strangers to each other. The photographer put one picture of Noble in the envelope with the tintypes of Miss Merkl. One of the young woman's pictures went into Noble's envelope. Acquaintance and courtship followed and yesterday the twain were made one.

FIRMIN IS CAUTIOUS.

He Will Not Enter Port-au-Prince at the Head of His Troops.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, May 24.—The Northern army, commanded by Gen. Firmin, has halted at Arcahaie, two days' march from here. Gen. Firmin is said to have formally declared that he does not intend to enter Port-au-Prince at the head of his troops. The United States cruiser Topeka arrived here from Port Royal, S. C., to protect American interests. The presence of the warship in these waters has had an excellent effect. The situation of affairs is improving.

Killed by a Storm.

Toledo, Ohio, May 24.—A terrific electrical and windstorm passed over Northwestern Ohio yesterday afternoon. Two persons were killed, one fatally injured and many others less seriously injured. Much damage was done in the oil fields.

Old Man Killed by Train.

Lake Crystal, Minn., May 24.—William Jenkins was instantly killed by west-bound train No. 3. He was eighty-five years old and a pioneer in this community.

CONGRESS.

Senate Sends Message of Congratulation to Cuba.

Washington, May 22.—Before the senate resumed consideration of the Philippine bill yesterday it adopted a resolution congratulating the republic of Cuba on its entry into the family of independent nations and the secretary of state was directed to transmit the resolution to the president of the new republic.

Mr. Wellington of Maryland opposed the pending Philippine measure and said the action of the United States in the islands was indefensible as the attack of the hordes of hell upon God. He declared that above the army and the war department and the president were the American people, and in his judgment, they were responsible for the condition of affairs in the Philippines because they had placed the dollar above the man.

Mr. Bacon again denounced the concentration policy pursued in the Philippines.

In the House.

The house began consideration of the immigration bill yesterday. The principal speech was made by Mr. Shattuc of Ohio, chairman of the committee on immigration. He was especially severe in his condemnation of the manner in which immigrants are introduced through Canada and by Canadian railway and steamship companies.

ENGINEERS MAY WORK.

But They Must Be Given an Eight-Hour Day at Present Wages.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 23.—The three anthracite executive committees of the United Mineworkers of America, at their joint meeting yesterday, decided to permit the engineers, firemen and pumpmen to remain at work provided the coal companies grant them an eight-hour day at present wages. If these demands are not granted by June 2, the men shall then suspend work. The action of the committees is not as drastic as was looked for. Under the instructions issued the protectors of the mines, if granted the concessions, can remain at work no matter how long the strike of the mineworkers shall last. No other information was given out regarding the proceedings of the meeting. The three boards will again meet this evening. It is said that nothing was done in regard to the matter of involving the bituminous miners in the present struggle, but the subject may come up to-day. There was no news from any part of the region. Everything was extremely quiet.

Michigan District Will Join.

Bay City, Mich., May 22.—The Michigan district, United Mineworkers of America, has joined the three striking anthracite districts of Pennsylvania in a request to National President Mitchell for a national convention of all the miners of the country to discuss a general strike of all mineworkers.

CUBAN FESTIVITIES CONTINUE.

Government Machinery Will Be Idle Until They Close.

Havana, May 23.—President Palma took up his official residence at the palace yesterday and received many visitors, but he transacted no business. Governmental machinery and business will remain at a standstill during the festivities, which will not close until next Friday. President Palma's inaugural message is not yet completed. He hopes, however, to be able to send it to congress when the latter meets Friday. The keynote of the message will be the necessity of harmonizing the factions in the island and working in unison for the success of the republic. The message will be strong in its expression of gratitude to the United States, and of the desirability of the closest commercial relations. It will devote also considerable space to the necessity of diversifying and stimulating the industries of the island.

MRS. DALE LOSES HER HUSBAND.

Chicago Man Divorces Woman Accused of Poisoning Her Child.

Chicago, May 23. — Harvey S. Dale, manager of the Union Mutual Life Insurance company in this city yesterday was granted a divorce from his wife by Judge Neely. Elizabeth H. Dale, the wife, sprang into prominence some time ago when she was accused of having poisoned her child at Hoboken, N. J., but was acquitted of the charge. Her present whereabouts are not known to her former husband, and the story has come from the East that she and Elbert Waller, whose name was mentioned at the time of Mrs. Dale's arrest, are now in Holland. Mrs. Dale is said to have considerable property and Dale has stated that Waller was supported by her entirely for several years and that he exerted a hypnotic power over her.

JOKE CAUSES AWFUL TRAGEDY.

Man Tries to Scare His Wife and She Is Fatally Burned.

Junction City, Kan., May 23. — Mrs. W. G. Snoke, wife of Corporal Snoke of the Ninth artillery band, stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., died at her home here yesterday of burns received as the result of a joke perpetrated by her husband. Mrs. Snoke had hidden in an outbuilding and in a spirit of fun locked her husband out. Snoke poured some gasoline on the stone steps and lit it, intending to frighten her. The flames were drawn in under the door and enveloped Mrs. Snoke, who died several hours later in terrible agony. She was conscious to the last and exonerated her husband, insisting that his act was intended as a joke.

Big Coal Combine.

Chicago, May 23. — The Chronicle says: Consolidation of all the coal interests in Indiana, covering 117 mines with an annual output of 6,000,000 tons and of a value of $15,000,000, in one big corporation with headquarters in this city will be effected within a month.

Record Price for Cattle.

Chicago, May 23.—The highest price for Texas cattle in the history of the stock yards was paid yesterday for a carload belonging to Charles McFarland of Aledo, Tex. The cattle averaged 1,255 pounds; $6.85 was paid.

Taylor Is Happy.

Washington, May 23.—The state department has received a cablegram from Consul Pearson at Genoa, Italy, stating that Margaret Taylor has been delivered to her father and that the two sailed for home yesterday.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER X. (Continued.)

"Madam has had a refreshing rest?" Henson suggested. "Pardon our anxious curiosity."

Again Enid raged, but Margaret Henson might have been of stone, for all the notice she took. The far-away look was still in her eyes as she felt her way to the table like one in a dream. Then she dropped suddenly into a chair and began grace in a high, clear voice.

". . . And the Lord make us truly thankful. And may He, when it seemeth good to Him, remove the curse from this house, and in due season free the innocent and punish the guilty. For the burden is sore upon us, and there are times when it seems hard to bear."

The big man played with his knife and fork smilingly. An artute observer might have imagined that the passionate plaint was directed at him. If so, it passed harmlessly over his broad shoulders. In his immaculate evening dress, he looked strangely out of place there. Enid had escaped the prevailing dilapidation, but her gown, of gray homespun, was as severe as the garb of a charity girl.

"Madam is so poetical," Henson murmured. "And charmingly sanguine."

"Williams," Mrs. Henson said, stoically, "my visitor will have some champagne."

She seemed to have dropped once again into the commonplace, painfully exact as a hostess of breeding must be to an unwelcome guest. And yet she never seemed to see him; those dark eyes were looking, ever looking, into the dark future. The meal proceeded in silence, save for an oily sarcasm from Henson. In the dense stillness the occasional howl of a dog could be heard. A slight flush of annoyance crossed Henson's broad face.

"Some day I shall poison all those hounds," he said.

Enid looked up at him swiftly.

"If all the hounds around Longdean were poisoned or shot it would be a good place to live in," she said.

Henson smiled, caressingly, like Petruchio might have done in his milder moments.

"My dear Enid, you misjudge me," he said. "But I shall get justice some day."

Enid replied that she fervently hoped so, and thus the strange meal proceeded, with smiles and gentle words from Henson, and a wild outburst of bitterness from the girl. So far as she was concerned, the servants might have been mere automatons. The dust rose in clouds as the latter moved silently. It was hot in there, and, gradually, the brown powder grimed like a film over Henson's oily skin. At the head of the table Margaret Henson sat like a woman in a dream. Ever, ever, her dark eyes seemed to be looking eagerly around. Thirsty men seeking precious water in a desert might have looked like her. Ever and anon her lips moved, but no sound came from them. Occasionally she spoke to one or the other of her guests, but she never followed her words with her eyes. Such a sad, pathetic, pitiable figure, such a gray sorrow, in her rags and snowy hair.

The meal came to an end at length, and Mrs. Henson rose suddenly. There was a grotesque suggestion of the maronette in her movement. She bowed, as if to some imaginary personage, and moved with dignity towards the door. Reginald Henson stood aside and opened it for her. She passed into the dim hall as if in absolute unconsciousness of his presence. Enid flashed a look of defiance at him as she disappeared into the gloom and floating dust.

Henson's face changed instantly, as if a mask had fallen from his smug features. He became alert and vigorous. He was no longer patron of the arts, a wide-minded philanthropist, the man who devotes himself to the good of humanity. The blue eyes grew cold and cruel, there was a hungry smile about the loose mouth.

"Take a bottle of claret and the cigars into the library, William," he said. "And open the window, the dust stifles me."

The dignified butler bowed respectfully. He resembled the typical bad butler of fiction in no respect, but his thoughts were by no means pleasant as he hastened to obey. Enid was loitering in the hall as Williams passed with the tray.

"Small study and window open, miss," he whispered. "There's some game on—oh, yes, there is some blessed game on again to-night. And him so anxious to know how Miss Christiana is. Says she ought to call him in professionally. Personally, I'd rather call in an undertaker who was desperately hard up for a job."

"All right, Williams," Enid replied. "My sister is worse to-night, and unless she gets better I shall insist upon her seeing a doctor. And I am obliged for the hint about Mr. Henson. The little study commands the staircase leading to my sister's bed room."

"And the open window commands the garden," Williams said, drily.

"Yes, yes. Now, go. You are a real friend, Williams, and I will never forget your goodness. Run along—I can actually feel that man coming."

As a matter of fact, Henson was approaching noiselessly. Despite his great bulk, he had the clean, dainty step of a cat; his big, rolling ears were those of a hare. Henson was always listening. He would have listened behind a kitchen door to a pair of chattering scullery maids. He liked to find other people out, though as yet he had not been found out himself. He stood before the world as a social missioner; he made speeches at religious gatherings and affected the women to tears. He was known to devote a considerable fortune to doing good; he had been asked to stand for parliament, where his real ambition lay. Gilead Gates had alluded to Reginald Henson as his right-hand man.

He crept along to the study, where the lamps were lighted and the silver claret jug set out. He carefully dusted a big arm chair and began to smoke, having first carefully extinguished the lamps and seen that the window leading to the garden was wide open. Henson was watching for something. In his feline nature, he had the full gift of feline patience. To serve his own ends he would have sat there all night watching, if necessary. He heard an occasional whimper, a howl from one of the dogs; he heard Enid's voice singing in the drawing room. The rest of the house was quite funeral enough for him.

In the midst of the drawing room Margaret Henson sat still as a statue. The distant, weary expression never left her eyes for a moment. As the stable clock, the only one going on the premises, struck ten, Enid crossed over from the piano to her aunt. There was an eager look on her face, her eyes were gleaming like frosty stars.

"Aunt," she whispered; "dear, I have a message!"

"Message of woe and desolation!" Margaret Henson cried. "Tribulation and sorrow on this wretched house. For seven long years the hand of the Lord has lain heavily upon us!"

She spoke like one who was far away from her surroundings. And yet no one could look in her eyes and say that she was mad. It was a proud, passionate spirit, crushed down by some bitter humiliation. Enid's eyes flashed.

"That scoundrel has been robbing you again," she said.

"Two thousand pounds," came the mechanical reply, "to endow a bed in some hospital. And there is no escape, no hope, unless we drag the shameful secret from him. Bit by bit and drop by drop, and then I shall die, and you and Christana will be penniless."

"I dare say Chris and myself will survive that," Enid said, cheerfully. "But we have a plan, dear aunt; we have thought it out carefully. Reginald Henson has hidden the secret somewhere, and we are going to find it. The secret is hidden not far off, because our cousin has occasion to require it frequently. It is like the purloined letter in Edgar Poe's wonderful story."

Margaret Henson nodded and mumbled. It seemed almost impossible to make her understand. She babbled of strange things, with her dark eyes fixed on the future. Enid turned away, almost despairingly. At the same time the stable clock struck the half-hour after ten. Williams slipped in with a tray of glasses, noiselessly. On the tray lay a small pile of tradesmen's books. The top one was of dull red, with no lettering upon it.

"The housekeeper's respectful compliments, miss, and would you go through them to-morrow?" Williams said. "To-morrow is the last day of the month."

Enid picked up the top book with strange eagerness. There were pages of figures and cabalistic entries that no ordinary person could make anything of. Pages here and there were signed and decorated with pink receipt stamps. Enid glanced down the last column, and her face grew a little paler.

"Aunt," she whispered, "I have got to go out. At once; do you understand? There is a message here; and I am afraid that something dreadful has happened. Can you sing?"

"Ah, yes; a song of lamentation—a dirge for the dead."

"No, no; seven years ago you had a lovely voice. I recollect what a pleasure it was to me as a child; and they used to say that my voice was very like yours, only not so sweet or so powerful. Aunt, I must go out; and that man must know nothing about it. He is by the window in the small library now, watching—watching. Help me, for the love of Heaven, help me!"

The girl spoke with a fervency and passion that seemed to awaken a responsive chord in Margaret Henson's breast. A bright gleam crept into her eyes.

"You are a dear girl!" she said, dreamily; "yes, a dear girl. And I loved singing; it was a great grief to me that they would not let me go upon the stage. But I haven't sung since—since that—"

She pointed to the huddled heap of china and glass and dried, dusty flowers on in corner. Enid shuddered slightly, as she followed the direction of the extended forefinger.

"But you must try," she whispered. "It is for the good of the family, for the recovery of the secret. Reginald Henson is sly and cruel and clever. But we have one on our side now who is far more clever. And unless I can get away to-night without that man knowing, the chance may be lost forever. Come!"

Margaret commenced to sing, in a soft, minor. At first the chords were thin and dry, but gradually they increased in sweetness and power. The hopeless, distant look died from the singer's eyes; there was a flush on her cheeks that rendered her years younger.

"Another one," she said, when that song was finished, "and yet another. How wicked I have been to neglect this balm, that God sent me, all these years. If you only knew what the sound of my own voice means to me! Another one, Enid."

"Yes, yes," Enid whispered. "You are to sing until I return. You are to leave Henson to imagine that I am singing. He will never guess. Now, then!"

Enid crept into the hall, closing the door softly behind her. She made her way noiselessly from the house and across the lawn. As Henson slipped through the open window into the garden, Enid darted behind a bush. Evidently Henson suspected nothing so far as she was concerned, for she could see the red glow of the cigar between his lips. The faint sweetness of distant music filled the air. So long as the song continued Henson would relax his vigilance.

He was pacing down the garden, in the direction of the drive. Did the man know anything? Enid wondered. He had so diabolically cunning a brain. He seemed to find out everything, and to read others before they had made up their minds for themselves.

The cigar seemed to dance like a mocking sprite into the bushes. If Reginald Henson was afraid of one thing, it was of the dogs. And in return, they hated him as he hated them.

Enid's mind was made up. If the sound of that distant voice should cease for a moment, she was quite sure Henson would turn back. But he could hear it, and she knew that she was safe. Enid slipped past him into the bushes, and gave a faint click of her lips. Something moved and whined, and two dark objects bounded towards her. She caught them together by their collars and cuffed them soundly. Then she led the way back, so as to get on Henson's tracks.

He was walking on ahead of her now, beating time softly to the music of the faintly-distant song with his cigar. Enid could distinctly see the sweep of the red circle.

"Hold him, Dan!" she whispered. "Watch, Prance; watch, boy!"

There was a low growl, as the hounds found the scent and dashed forward. Henson came up all standing, and sweating in every pore. It was not the first time he had been held up by the dogs, and he knew, by hard experience, what to expect if he made a bolt for it.

Two grim muzzles were pressed against his trembling knees; he saw four rows of ivory flashing in the dim light. Then the dogs crouched at his feet, watching him, with eyes as red and lurid as his own cigar. Had he attempted to move, had he tried coercion, they would have fallen upon him and torn him in pieces.

"Confusion to the creatures!" he cried, passionately. "I'll get a revolver; I'll buy some prussic acid and poison the lot. And here I'll have to stay until Williams locks up the stables. Wouldn't that little Jezebel laugh at me if she could see me now? She would enjoy it better than singing songs in the drawing room to our sainted Margaret. Steady, you brutes! I didn't move."

He stood there rigidly, almost afraid to take the cigar from his lips, while Enid sped, without further need for caution, down the drive. The lodge gates were closed, and the deaf porter's house in darkness, so that Enid could unlock the wicket without fear of detection. She rattled the key on the bars, and a figure slipped out of the darkness.

"Good heavens, Ruth, is it really you?" Enid cried.

"Really me, Enid. I came over on my bicycle. I am supposed to be round at some friend's house in Brunswick Square, and one of the servants is sitting up for me. Is Reginald safe? He hasn't yet discovered the secret of the tradesman's book?"

"That's all right, dear; but why are you here? Has something dreadful happened?"

"Well, I will try to tell you so, in as few words as possible. I never felt so ashamed of anything in my life."

"Don't tell me that your scheme has failed!"

"Perhaps I need not go so far as that. The first part of it came off all right, and then a very dreadful thing happened. We have got Mr. David Steel into frightful trouble. He is going to be charged with attempted murder and robbery."

"Ruth! But, tell me. I am quite in the dark."

"It was the night when—well, you know the night. It was after Mr. Steel returned home from his visit to 219 Brunswick Square."

"You mean 218, Ruth."

"It doesn't matter, because he knows pretty well all about it by this time. It would have been far better for us if we hadn't been quite so clever. It would have been far wiser to have taken Mr. Steel entirely into our confidence. Oh, oh, Enid, if we had only left out that little sentiment over the cigar case! Then we should have been all right!"

"Dearest girl, my time is limited. I've got Reginald held up for the time, but at any moment he may escape from his bondage. What about the cigar case?"

"Well, Mr. Steel took it home with him. And when he got home he found a man, nearly murdered, lying in his conservatory. That man was conveyed to the Sussex County Hospital, where he still lies; in an unconscious state. On the body was found a receipt for a gun-metal cigar case set with diamonds."

"Good gracious, Ruth, you don't mean to say—"

"Oh, I do. I can't quite make out how it happened, but that same case that we—that Mr. Steel has—has been positively identified as one purchased from Wales by the injured man. There is no question about it. And they have found out about Mr. Steel being short of money, and the £1,000, and everything."

"But we know that that cigar case from Leckhart's, in North street, was positively—"

"Yes, yes. But what has become of that? And in what strange way was the change made? I tell you that the whole thing frightens me. We thought we had hit upon a scheme to solve the problem and keep our friends out of danger. There was the American at Genoa who volunteered to assist us. A week later he was found dead in his bed. Then there was Christiana's friend, who disappeared entirely. And now we try further assistance in the case of Mr. Steel, and he stands face to face with a terrible charge. And he has found us out."

"He has found us out? What do you mean?"

"Well, he called to see me. He called at 219, of course. And directly I heard his name I was so startled that I am afraid I betrayed myself. Such a nice, kind, handsome man, Enid; so manly and good over it all. Of course, he declared that he had been at 219 before, and I could only declare that he had done nothing of the kind. Never, never have I felt so ashamed of myself in my life before."

"It seems a pity," Enid said, thoughtfully. "You said nothing about 218?"

"My dear, he found it out. At least, Hatherly Bell did for him. Hatherly Bell happened to be staying down with us, and Hatherly Bell, who knows Mr. Steel, promptly solved, or half-solved, that side of the problem. And Hatherly Bell is coming here to-night to see Aunt Margaret. He—"

"Here!" Enid cried. "To see Aunt Margaret? Then he found out about you. At all hazards, Mr. Bell must not come here—he must not. I would rather let everything go than that. I would rather see auntie dead and Reginald Henson master here. You must—"

In the distance came the rattle of harness bells and the trot of a horse.

"I'm afraid it's too late," Ruth Gates said, sadly. "I am afraid that they are here already. Oh, if we had only left out that wretched cigar case!"

Two Things You Can't Do.

Wonderful as is the human body in its mechanism and its adaptability to its surroundings, there are some very simple things that it cannot do. For example, a man cannot rise from a chair without bending forward or putting his feet under the chair or on each side of it. Another impossible thing is for a man who is closely blindfolded to stand without support of any kind for five minutes at a stretch without moving his feet. If he does not move his feet at all he will be pretty sure to topple over in a minute or two. A blind man, however, can do it, because he is used to doing without his eyes.—Philadelphia Record.

His Profession.

"Please, sir," began the beggar, "would you give a poor man a dime? I can't get work at my trade, and—"

"Why," stormed the prosperous-looking pedestrian, "I just gave you a dime at the other corner! What is your trade, anyway?"

"I know you gave me that dime, sir," said the beggar, "but you see I'm a retoucher by profession."—Baltimore American.

Back Talk.

Mr. Spatz—It's not polite to yawn in the presence of company the way you did.

Mrs. Spatz—I know that; but I did put my hand up to my mouth and—

Mr. Spatz—That's not suffieient. You should use something that would completely conceal your mouth.—Philadelphia Press.

Right in It.

"I have been making a tour of the South," remarked J. B. Joseph. "I was greatly amused on alighting from the train on the Georgia Central, in Savannah. The station is surrounded in all directions with a lot of saloons. In great illuminated letters over one of these saloons was the sign:

"'Open all night.'"

A Tryst.

Benevolent Gentleman—My little boy, have you no better way to spend this beautiful Sunday afternoon than by standing before the gate idling away your time?

Boy—I ain't idling away my time. There's a feller inside with my sister, who is paying me sixpence an hour to watch for pa.—Tit Bits.

They'd Come Back.

"Rimer's having some success with his poems, now, I believe."

"Nonsense! What makes you think that?"

"He told me he was holding his own."

"Just so. He's just realizing that he might as well hold them as send them away."—Philadelphia Press.

Get a Peppery Cook.

"Cooks," said the wise woman, "vary their cooking according to their personal characteristics. Get a characterless cook, and you will find tasteless viands set before you. Did you ever notice that a good cook is a very peppery sort of person, as a rule?"—New York Times.

There'd Be Few.

"Do you know what I'd do if I had the management of the air-ship contest at the St. Louis fair?" asked Goldsborough of Sterlingworth.

"What would you do?"

How to Be Happy.

Philadelphian—Yep; but you know our politicians are a little grasping, and we wanted William to retain his clothes, at least.—New York Times.

WITTY REPROOF GIVEN TO JUDGE

Shakespearean Quotation a Perfect Fit for the Situation.

One of the most successful of Philadelphia's many noted criminal lawyers—he may be referred to here as "B."—was once engaged in the defense of a notorious thief whose case was very weak, indeed. The presiding judge was not a man of presence, was famously irritable, and possessed very little of the respect and admiration of the lawyer. When the evidence was all in, the judge made the suggestion that, as the case against the accused seemed very clear, indeed, it should be submitted to the jury without further argument. But the lawyer insisted that an effort be made in his client's behalf, bad as the case appeared to everybody present. Then he launched forth into one of his celebrated exhibitions of vocal pyrotechnics, filled with dazzling figures of speech, fine periods of verbal nothingness and many and apt quotations from Shakespeare which were bent and colored to fit the circumstances of the case under consideration. Time flew, and the lawyer talked—talked until interrupted from the bench with a sharp:

"Lawyer B.! It is half-past one o'clock, sir!"

"Well, Your Honor, what of that?" asked the orator.

"You know very well, sir," came from the bench, "that this court is in the habit of adjourning each day for lunch at 1 o'clock—1 o'clock, sir! The court has waited half-an-hour for you, sir—half-an-hour!"

The lawyer looked amazed; then, taking a step forward and extending his right hand, the forefinger pointing reprovingly at the judge, he said:

"I know Your Honor is a great lover of Shakespeare—that the truths and the philosophy of the great bard are familiar to you. But I fear Your Honor does not always apply what he knows of Shakespeare to the circumstances of the moment. I have in mind a line in 'King Lear' that reads: 'The lean, lank and hungry judge would hang the guiltless rather than eat his mutton cold!' With Your Honor's permission, I will close my speech at this point."

The writer regrets that he does not know if the thief was acquitted.

CRAMP COMPLIMENTED BY CZAR

Russian Ruler Pleased with Answer of Famous Shipbuilder.

Charles H. Cramp, the veteran shipbuilder of Philadelphia, told the other day of his visit to Czar Alexander of Russia, the father of the present ruler, when he received the first order for constructing in his yards a warship for the great empire of Northern Europe.

"The Czar received me standing among some dozen or more of his naval dignitaries," he said, "and while he was graciousness itself, I was none the less embarrassed. You see, I was not used to that sort of thing and really was wondering every minute just what would happen and what I would be expected to do. The Czar stood rather close to me as we talked, and I found myself wishing I were a bigger man as he towered above me. Then, all of a sudden, he asked:

"'Mr. Cramp, in what school of naval architecture were you educated?'

"'Your Highness,' I answered, 'I was educated in my father's yards. We founded a school of naval architecture.'

"What put that into my head I will never know," continued Mr. Cramp, "but it took the trick. The Czar caught me by the hand and said: 'Mr. Cramp, you were educated in the school that I am glad to have build ships for my navy.'"

Canned Food.

It is amusing enough to discover that the cattle rancher, though 1,000 cows come up to water at his tanks every day or two, will yet serve condensed milk from cans that come from New Jersey, that his beef bears the mark of Kansas City, that even his poultry and eggs are imported at enormous prices from Kansas. His butter also comes canned. If it were not for the patient Chinese gardener even the best irrigated valleys would be without fresh vegetables. But if the Southwesterner fails in gardening he does delight in flowers, vines and shade trees. They relieve the monotony of the gray desert, and link him with his old green home in the East. He will let his fields go thirsty in time of drought before he will allow the rose bushes and the pepper trees in his front yard to suffer. Indeed, so industrious has he been in surrounding himself with shade and verdure that he is open to criticism for overdoing the matter, overcrowding his small grounds. An irrigated valley town in blossom is a marvel long to be remembered.—The Century.

Refused a Fortune.

Lawyers will hardly find wireless telegraphy so productive of fees as was the telephone, litigation over which put millions into their pockets. Prof. Bell had a strenuous time. He took the first working model of his instrument to John A. Logan and offered "Black Jack" a half interest for $2,500, saying that it would do away with the telegraph and that there would be millions in it. Logan replied: "I dare say your machine works perfectly, but who would want to talk through such a thing as that, anyway? I advise you to save your money, young man." Bell then offered a tenth interest to an examiner in the Patent Office for $100 in cash. It was refused. That tenth interest was worth $1,600,000 in 15 years. The giant intellect that refused it is still examining patents.

Gold Pantryman Pensioned.

Among the official announcements that have appeared in the last few days is one to the effect that the first yeoman of the gold pantry at Windsor Castle, has retired from the service of the king on a pension.

To the uninitiated the title sounds like so much Greek. As a matter of fact, the first yeoman has charge of the gold plate which belongs to the crown, the value of which is said to be £2,000,000 ($10,000,000.) So it is easily seen that the quaintly-named post is by no means a sinecure.—London Special Cable to New York Herald.

Treasure in Sunken Steamer.

A dispatch from Vancouver states that a contract to raise the sunken steamer Islander, which was sunk last summer by a collision with an iceberg, has been let by the agent for Lloyd's to the Sureties Hope company of Seattle. The work is to be commenced within sixty days. The Canadian Pacific Navigation company made a search for the Islander after she sank, but failed to locate her, owing to the great depth of the water. When the steamer sank she had on board $35,000 in gold, consigned to the Dominion Express company in Vancouver, and many people coming out each had various amounts, which brought the total value of the treasure in the charge of the purser up to over $100,000.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Burning Heat.

Star City, Ark., May 26th.—A very remarkable case has just occurred here.

Mr. W. H. McFalls has been suffering severely for two years with an ailment that puzzled the doctors and everybody. The trouble seemed to be all in his head, which had a burning sensation all the time.

Sometimes this burning pain in the head would be worse than at other times, but it never left him.

At last he tried a new remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and was agreeably surprised to find that the burning gradually disappeared.

An attack of La Grippe has laid him up for the last few weeks, but Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished his old trouble entirely.

His son, George, used a few of the Pills which his father did not need, and they have done him so much good that he says he would not take ten dollars a pill for the few he still has left.

No Doubt of That.

Bessie—Well, if he was after mine he could have it.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

I Feel So Tired.
How often do we hear this and similar expressions from tired, overworked women and weary men, who do not know where to find relief. For that intense weariness, so common and so discouraging, we earnestly recommend Vogeler's Curative Compound. It is not a stimulant but a true blood purifier and strength restoring tonic, safe and sure, which will gradually build up all the weak organs in such a way as to be a lasting benefit. A fair trial of a free sample bottle which St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., of Baltimore, Md., will send you for the asking, will convince anyone of its wonderful medicinal value. It will drive all impurities from the blood, give nerve, mental and bodily strength and vigour and make the sufferer wholly a new being. It creates an appetite, makes one sleep and makes the weak strong. Do not forget that Vogeler's Curative Compound is made from the formula of a London physician, who has given years of study to same. Sample bottle free from St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore.

A FLORIDA WATERLOO

By W. H. COWES.

"You, 'Poleon," yelled Aunt Judy from the wash-house door, "wey you gwine? Come back heuh, you trifin', black rascal. Didn't Ah tell you to stan' right by dat wringah until Ah was through wid you?"

"I was des gwine down to see if Mist' Jimmy's boat was tied," said the recreant Napoleon, as he shifted his weight from one black, sun-cracked, bare foot to the other.

"Yaas, I 'specs dats w'at dat extry fishhook is a hangin' in dem kinks behine you' ear fo'; and w'at you got in you' han'? Dat's a box o' wu'ms, sho's Ise alive. 'Pears like you ain't got sense enough to bell a buzzard, 'Poleon!"

Napoleon rolled his eyes cautiously around towards a clump of saw palmetto in the edge of the "scrub," where a wide, straw hat could be seen above the tops of the palmetto fans, and a knotty fishpole waved jerkily. Would she see it? Napoleon's heart almost stood still as Aunt Judy's eyes turned in that direction, but old eyes that are dimmed by many years of sewing and standing over the steaming washtub are not as sharp as young ones.

"Tek dis basket er clo'es and hang 'em out on de line," she continued, "and bring me er coal outer dat fiuh. Look lak Ah dest mus' tek a res'."

Napoleon complied, holding the coal between two sticks while Aunt Judy puffed for a light. A smile crept over his face. He knew what Aunt Judy's "resses" meant. Then, taking up the basket, he went out to the clothesline, keeping carefully in view of Aunt Judy. Gradually he worked around, as he saw Aunt Judy's head nod, until her face was hidden by the door jamb.

"Dat boy ain't so bad," mused the old lady. "He dest kin' o' childish. Get kin' o' frisky sometimes lak any boy gwineter, do w'at got some stiffness in he backbone. Guess Ah'll—Ah'll—let him——" There was a long pause. A big, green horsefly came droning in and settled on Aunt Judy's head, standing out strongly against the gray, twine-wrapped strands of wool. Aunt Judy was asleep. Napoleon came and peeped in at the door. Softly putting down the basket, he stole noiselessly over to the palmetto, and two figures raced off toward the bayou.

A little creek made around from the bayou, over which was a wooden bridge.

"Sam," said Napolean, "Aunt Judy is gwineter wake up 'fore long. 'Speck we better fix dis bridge," and with a mischievous glitter in his black eyes he commenced removing some of the loose boards lying across the two poles which formed the only passage across the muddy creek.

"We'll des fix some er dese fans across de openin'," he chattered, an unfilial light spreading over his black, shiny face. The two young imps soon had dead, brown palmetto leaves over the opening.

"Now, we'll des get out on dat ole log, and drop our lines in de Blackhole," said Sam.

Aunt Judy nodded and drowsed, giving forth a gentle snore, occasionally broken by fitful snorts. The pipe still hung, loosely held, between her two good teeth. The fire was long ago extinct. Suddenly she started up.

"Great Zion! Ah mus' get dem clo'es offer dat line. 'Poleon!" No answer. "'Specks he dun traipsed off wid dat Sam Williams. He gotter quit dat havishness. Yassir, here's de basket. Ah'll des slip down to de bayou and see. Hope he got summer dese band-spurs in his foots," she muttered as she made her way toward the path which led to the river. As she emerged from the fringe of trees which ran a short distance from the bayou, she saw the recreants perched on the drift log which ran out into the water.

"Come back hyeh, yo' triflin' black rascal!"

"Dere dey is, and dat 'scoun'l is smokin' Unc' Pete's pipe, and, my blessed, dat Sam is got one, too!"

Breaking off a long, wild-plum switch, she waddled, as fast as her physical make-up would permit, toward the boys. When she arrived at the bridge, the boys turned and saw her, but only for a second. There was a scream, a crashing of sticks, and a mighty sputtering.

"Help, help! 'Poleon! Sam! Oh, Lordy, help me outer dis! Oh! Oh! Dis some er you rascals' debbilishness. Oh! Ah'll frail you! Come, dat's good boys, and help you' old aunty out!"

The boys, at first frightened by what they had done, hesitated about leaving the stronghold of the log, but soon saw that Aunt Judy was wedged fast between the two poles, and her ample extremities were well fastened in the mud.

"What's the matter? Is you fell through?" inquired Napoleon. Sam kept a discreet silence.

"No, Ise asleep in bed," howled Aunt Judy. "W'en Ah gets outer dis, Ah'll frail you to a frazzle end. Dat's w'at Ah will."

"Now, Aunt Judy," said Napoleon, "what you gwineter frail us fo'? Somebody mus' er fixed dat bridge whilst we was er sittin' on de log. I believe you mus' er fixed it to ketch us on de way back."

Aunt Judy gasped. Such impudence was too much.

"Say, Aunt Judy," went on Napoleon, "ef we helps you out, will you let us off on de whippin'?"

"Nossir," said Aunt Judy. "Ah'll des maul you."

"Den stay dere," said Napoleon, getting bolder as he realized that Aunt Judy was really helpless, and with a nod to the awe-struck Sam, he started back to the log. It was too much.

"'Poleon, oh, 'Poleon! Come help you po' old aunty out!"

But the wicked Napoleon was steely hearted as his namesake. He could not afford to let mere emotions interfere with future prospects.

"Ef you'll help me out, 'Poleon, Ah'll mek a promise."

"What," said Napoleon, eagerly.

Aunt Judy was beginning to see a light. "No, Ah d' know 'bout dat, elder," she said thoughtfully. The water was cold and the poles were anything but comfortable, but Aunt Judy was built of sterling stuff. Napoleon began to hedge.

"W'at was you gwineter promise, aunty?" he inquired with affected carelessness.

"Well,—of—you—oh, Ah d' know neider."

"Go on, aunty."

"Well, looky here, boys, if you'll only help you' po' ole aunty out, Ah'll get you all the doughnuts and cracklins you kin hole."

"Nossir," said Napoleon. "You gotter promise not to tech a ha'r o' our heads 'fo' we lets you out." There was a long pause.

Then Aunt Judy said, "Well, boys, guess Ah'll batter do it."

In ten minutes she was out, floundering on the grass. They helped her to her feet.

"Now, boys," said she, still retaining a grasp on each muddy black paw, "Ah ain't gwine tech a hair on you' heads, but Ise des natchelly gwineter frail you backs till de world looks level."

Old Uncle Pete, over in the clearing behind the trees, stopped hoeing and listened for a moment to sounds which came floating on the evening breeze.

"Huh! 'Pears lak dem folks oveh todes de bayou is always a-killin' hawgs", he said to himself.

Excelled in Science.

America's place in the scientific world is the subject of an interesting discussion in Popular Science Monthly. This journal points out that while we have produced many great inventors and are, perhaps, contributing more than a share to practical engineering, manufactures and agriculture, we do not stand equally high in the domain of pure science. If the pure sciences were divided into nine groups—that is to say, mathematics, astronomy, physics, botany, chemistry, geology, zoology, physiology and anthropology-psychology—and the United States excelled in one branch, it would be sufficient. It is, however, admitted we are inferior to several nations in mathematics, physics, chemistry and physiology, and we are inferior in reputation, though obviously not so in performance, in zoology, botany and anthropology-psychology, but we are probably doing work of greater volume and value than any other nation in astronomy and in geology.

Valor of Rough Riders.

The King of Siam has an army corps of 500 elephants. A corp of half as many American rough riders of the western ranges would make the lumbering beasts pack their trunks and quit the field in one, two, three order.

It takes the editor to make a long story short.

DERIVATION OF WORD "LOAFER"

Originally Came from Spain—Josh Billings' Famous Definition.

The question as to the derivation of that word "loafer," which Mr. Rhodes' will is likely to elevate from the slang dictionary, is already getting acute. Despite "Notes and Queries," and the derivation, through Hans Breitman, from "that lofer (lover) of yours always hanging around here," the word is Spanish, and, like galoot, and others, came from Mexico, through Texas to the states. It is the Anglicized or Americanized form of gallofero, "an idle, lazy vagabond," passing as any student of Bartlett knows, through glofero, and glofer, to lofer, and ending up with the pretense of having something English or American about it, as "loafer," a man who has no casual connection with the loaf he does not earn.

Of the loafer, Josh Billings has given, in his "Alminax" a description which would have gone to Cecil Rhodes' heart, as of the type of man who was not to inherit Dalham or any other property that was his, if he could help it: "The loafer is a thing who is willing to be despised for the privilege of abusing others. He occupies all grades in society, from the judge on the bench clear down to the ragged creature who leans against lampposts and fights flies in August. He has no pride that is worthy and no delicacy that anybody could hurt. During his boyhood he kills cats and robs hens' nests. During middle life he begs all the tobacco he uses and drinks all the cheap whisky he can get at somebody else's expense, and does die at last." The loafer in America would seem to be more pronounced than his British brother, if we take Mr. Henry W. Shaw—Josh Billings—as authority.

Dr. Burton's Airship.

Dr. Burton, who is now conducting experiments under the British war office, claims to have completed an airship better than that of Santos-Dumont. It is a combination of balloon and aeroplanes. By a system of aeroplanes and framework between the balloon and the car he claims to have conquered the problem of rising and descending without having recourse to dropping ballast or emitting gas. An automatic water-balance apparatus keeps the airship horizontal. Even passengers walking about the deck would not disturb the ship's equilibrium. The balloon will be 180 feet long, eighty feet more than Dumont's, with a deck of 104 feet, driven by six propellers of entirely new form, act in motion in pairs by three petrol motors 45-horse power each. One pair is placed in the bow, one amidships, and one in the stern. The three motors, fed by 216 gallons of petrol distributed in thirty-six cylinders, will weigh 1,150 pounds. The ship will carry seven men and will be capable of remaining in the air forty-eight hours, maintaining a speed of twenty-five miles an hour.

Miss Shannon's Fable

Winona Shannon is said to be developing into a writer of fables. Here is one of Miss Shannon's most recent efforts:

"There was once a great actress who had for years been on intimate terms of acquaintance with a very convenient sore throat.

"One day the great actress was walking in the fields when she saw a savage bull approaching her at a businesslike gait. She tried to scream for help, but the throat, which had never up to that time been really sore, suddenly struck for shorter hours, and refused to speak above a whisper.

"'Why do you thus fail me in my hour of need?' asked the great actress in despair.

"'Because,' answered the sore throat, 'you used me so often when my services were not needed that I think it is just about time I got a whack at the game.'"

This fable teaches that poor excuse is a friend indeed.—New York Times.

When the Beef Trust Squeezes.

A party of sightseers stood in the gallery overlooking the floor of the produce exchange, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. One young woman in the party, supposing she was viewing the stock exchange, asked her city friend which crowd on the floor represented the bulls and which the bears. The city friend informed her that the bulls and bears were in the south end of the building.

"Where is the beef trust?" asked the young woman.

"The beef trust doesn't do business here," was the reply.

"I am so sorry," said the young woman; "we were told that the beef trust was squeezing, and we did want to see it."

"The beef trust," answered the city friend, "is very human. It prefers to do its squeezing on the quiet."

Flexibility of English.

The strength of the English language lies in its wonderful flexibility. Place side by side a scientific instrument of the procession of the equinoxes, a milliner's description of a new Parisian hat, a baseball reporter's story of a double play at second base and an electrician's account of the burning out of an armature, and you have four different languages incomprehensible to the general reader, yet all in this wonderful English of ours. Persons of ordinary intelligence know the meaning of 10,000 words. There are 20,000 words in a standard dictionary, of which, then, 240,000 are in an unknown tongue to the average man.

Work is a great thing to keep man's mind off his troubles, unless work happens to be his trouble.

Mrs. D. Arnold, President German Woman's Club, Grand Pacific Hotél, Los Angeles, Cal., Relieved of a Tumor by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I suffered four years ago with a tumor in my womb, and the doctors declared I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation, which I dreaded very much and hesitated to submit.
"My husband consulted an old friend who had studied medicine, although he was not a practising physician, and he said he believed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure me. That same day I took my first dose, and I kept it up faithfully until twelve bottles had been used, and not only did the tumor disappear, but my general health was very much improved and I had not felt so well since I was a young woman.
"As I have suffered no relapse since, and as I took no other medicine, I am sure that your Compound restored my health and I believe saved my life."—Mrs. D. Arnold.
$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.
When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone," and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

VOL. XIX. THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1902. NUMBER 22

A FINE CHANCE.

For Small Villages and Farming Communities.

It may not be known to many people in Minnesota that a free library may be had for the asking by applying to the Minnesota State Library Commission. This commission was established by the legislature in 1899, and a system of free traveling libraries was begun in January, 1900, as soon as funds were available. Libraries have been added from year to year, until there are now 200 in circulation. A traveling library contains 25 or 50 carefully selected books packed in a neat case, with blanks, catlogues and necessary directions for the circulation of the books. A library will be loaned to any village town or community upon application of at least 10 resident tax-payers who will form a local library association and agree to be responsible for the proper care of the library. A fee of $1.00 for 50 books, and $.50 for 25 books is charged for each library to cover cost of transportation both ways. The books may be retained six months, but will be exchanged oftener if desired. The traveling libraries are especially designed for the use of farming communities and small villages which cannot support a local public library. They are also of great service to small public libraries which cannot have frequent accessions of new books. They should also serve as an incentive to the establishment of libraries in small villages and towns.

The appropriation for the year 1902–3 will be available August 1st, and new libraries will be ready for circulation in the Fall. Those wishing to take advantage of this splendid opportunity to get the best books free of cost should make application as soon as possible to Miss Gratia Countryman, Secretary of the Minnesota State Library Commission, Public Library, Minneapolis, who will furnish application blanks and full information.

To Purchase a Chemical.

H. E. Ives, J. C. Dahl, Arthur Lage and R. B. Dantley, of the St. Hilaire village council and Chris Fellman, chief and B. E. Burkee, secretary of the fire department, were in the city Tuesday looking over the Thief River Falls fire department chemical engine. They were much pleased with the engine and will probably purchase one for the St. Hilaire department in a short time.

As Usual.

Bradley & Beardsmore opened up their new bowling alley on Tuesday. It is much better than the old one and the boys will undoubtedly do a good business. The opening night witnessed a matched game between the teams from Main and La Bree avenues. As usual the former team was victorious.

WATER CURE

Given W. J. Kelley for Dropping His Gun.

The following taken from the Minneapolis Journal, is published without comment, except we will say that Kelly is now out of danger:

Thief River Falls, Minn., June 2.—The genuine old-fashioned Philippine water cure was administered with what threatened to be serious consequences in this city Saturday evening. The victim was W. J. Kelly, formerly a corporal in Company H. of Luverne Minn., and the perpetrators of the outrage were veterans of the Spanish-American and Philippine wars.

The origin of the trouble was on Memorial Day. The veterans had decided to organize a firing squad to participate in the exercises, and being short of the required number Kelly was invited to "fall in." In executing one of the manual of arms he lost control of his rifle, which dropped to the ground to the delight of the assembled crowd and the disgust of his comrades in arms.

The next evening several of the ex-soldiers encountered Kelly in a local resort and proceeded to administer the "cure." The victim was thrown upon his back and his jaws forced apart with a cane after which about a bucketful of ice water was poured into his throat through a funnel attacked to a liquor syphon. At the end of this treatment the recipient was found to be in a semiconscious condition and a physician was hastily summoned. By the time the doctor arrived however the victim was sufficiently recovered to arise unassisted, and it is understood that no permanent injury will result. It is stated no arrests will follow. Lieutenant Smiley, who command the squad on Memorial Day emphatically disclaimed and knowledge of the affair.

NEW QUARTERS.

City Library Removed to its New Home.

The Thief River Falls public library was on Tuesday removed to its new home recently built north of the city hall. A large number of new books have recently been received and placed upon the shelves, among them being a set of encyclopedias. After July 1st the library will be free.

A Brilliant Entertainment.

The shining lights gave a delightful wind-up to a successful season in a swell luncheon at the home of Mrs. H. M. Hansen Saturday afternoon, May 31st. Covers were laid for fifteen. Three members of the club were absent and five fortunate substitutes partook of the dozen courses of dainties. The dining room was beautifully decorated with smilax and red roses and illuminated by red candles. The souvenirs were small "shining lights" in the form of individual candle sticks. Brilliant repartee, toasts and stories enlivened the occasion and each guest departed hoping to be present at many more such banquets.

Boat at Sheriff Sale.

Anton R. Erickson, deputy sheriff of Beltrami county, was in the city yesterday, returning from Red Lake agency whither he went to levy upon a steamer, the Martin Kelly, the property of the Red Lake Falls Lumber company. The levy is made to satisfy the judgement of James Gray, for personal injuries received while in the employ of the company. The amount is something like $3,500, and the boat will be sold June 1.

Looks Up All Right.

News from Washington is to the effect that the Red Lake bill will be passed at this session without a doubt. The Minnesota delegation is unanimously supporting it and has been placed ahead of the Morris bill for the opening up of the Cass Lake reservation.

Teachers Summer School.

To Teachers of Red Lake and Adjoining counties.

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin its session on Monday, July 14, at 9 a. m. at the High School building in Red Lake Falls and continue four weeks, with the following corps of instructors: Supt. P. J. Kuntz, of Owatonna, Minn., conductor and instructor in the higher branches and mathematics; Pres. J. C. Sathre, of the Crookston Business College instructor in the common branches; Miss Lydia E. B. Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adapt the work to their needs than at any prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefits from attendance upon a first class school. Each of the faculty is especially adopted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lend us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teacher's Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
Frank Jeffers,
County Supt.

ROOSEVELT TAKES A PART

PRESIDENT DELIVERS AN ORATION AT ARLINGTON CEMETERY.

Washington, June 1. — The sleeping heroes of the Civil and Spanish wars were given reverent homage at the national capital. The president, cabinet, officers of the army and navy, the organizations of veterans and the public by thousands, with flowers and flags, made a pilgrimage of the cemeteries. At Arlington, where 30,000 soldiers are buried, the principal exercises were held. There the president and his cabinet, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army Torrance and many distinguished personages of official and private life were gathered. Department Commander Bingham called the audience to order and the choir rendered a cantata with deep feeling. Assistant Adjt. Gen. Chase read the "orders" and Edwin B. Hay delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg speech.

The President Speaks.

At the conclusion of more music the president arose and delivered his oration to a hushed crowd. After a preliminary statement the president said the American army was just carrying to completion a small but peculiarly trying war. He deplored the cruelties committed by troops, and said that every effort was being made to reduce them to the minimum and punish the offenders. The fact that the misdeeds were committed under great provocation was no excuse. Lynchings of infinitely greater cruelty than any act of an American soldier were committed occasionally in this country, and "the men who fail to condemn these lynchings and yet clamor about what has been done in the Philippines are indeed guilty of neglecting the beam in their own eye."

Fighting to Establish Liberty.

He referred to the charges of rapine, murder, outrages of women and lawless cruelty made against the "Lincoln hirelings" by the Confederate congress, and said "the men who thus foully slandered you have their heirs in those who traduce our armies to-day."

The Americans in the Philippines were fighting to establish liberty and as soon as the Filipinos showed their capacity for freedom by their power of self-government it would be possible to decide whether they are to exist independently of us or to be knit to us by ties of friendship and common interest. When that day will come it is not in human wisdom to foretell.

At the conclusion Gen. Torrance delivered an address, followed by the singing of "America" and the benediction.

Monument Unveiled.

New York, June 1.—The unveiling of the soldiers and sailors' monument in Riverside park, a shaft that cost a quarter of a million, was the principal feature of the observance of Memorial day. An impressive parade of Grand Army posts, national guard regiments, regulars, bluejackets and marines from the navy yard was reviewed by Gen. Miles and Admiral Barker, Generals Howard and Brooke and Mayor Low.

Costly Bust Unveiled.

Philadelphia, June 1.—Decoration day here was characterized by the unveiling of the bronze bust and pedestal erected to the memory of the late President McKinley by the Philadelphia letter carriers. The principal oration was delivered by Former Postmaster General Smith.

Fairest Weather Conditions.

Chicago, June 1. — Chicago observed Memorial day under the fairest weather conditions. Great crowds witnessed the parade of Civil and Spanish war veterans, which was composed of seven divisions. Gov. Yates, Maj. Gen. MacArthur, Mayor Harrison, Gen. J. C. Black and others reviewed the procession. At the cemeteries the usual decoration of graves was accomplished in the morning.

Usual Ceremonies at Lincoln's Tomb.

Springfield, Ill., June 1. — The ceremonies at Lincoln's tomb were of the usual order. The sarcophagus in which the body formerly rested before being put in the base of the monument was covered with flowers. The Memorial day program was carried out at the monument in the afternoon, preceded by a parade.

The Day at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, June 1. — Memorial day was observed here by the almost general suspension of business. The parade was composed of eight divisions. The graves of soldiers in all cemeteries were strewn with flowers and appropriate services were held.

Of Unusual Interest.

St. Paul, June 1.—St. Paul gave itself up to the observance of Memorial day. A few of the stores were open in the morning, but in the afternoon business was generally suspended. The veterans' organizations held exercises at the St. Paul cemeteries in the morning, and, assisted by school children, decorated the graves of veterans. The veterans of the Spanish war were not forgotten, and the few graves of those that have died since the close of the war were decorated. The Spanish war veterans also had a prominent place in the exercises.

Ten Days of Grace.

Louisville, June 1.—As a result of a conference between the Indiana and Kentucky state boards of health the Kentucky board agreed to postpone the quarantine order which was to become effective June 1, for ten days.

Schley Is Orator.

Bangor, Me., June 1.—Rear Admiral Schley delivered the Memorial day address here. The address, though brief, was a graceful tribute to the defenders of the nation in the Civil and Spanish-American wars.

Band of Indians Descend Upon a Ranch and Kill Governor.

Tucson, Ariz., June 1.—El Correo de Sonora of May 28 says the Yaqui Indians are again on the warpath. On Tuesday a band of Yaquis visited Lacarmen, a hacienda near Hermosillo, and killed the governor of the ranch and a servant, besides carrying off the provisions and the best stock on the place. Another band visited the ranch of Don Juan Maytorena, near Guaymas, and raided it, the occupants having escaped when they saw the Indians approaching. Several other haciendas were visited and robbed.

SUPPRESSED IN SPAIN.

Message to President Roosevelt Was Not Forwarded.

Paris, June 1.—It is announced in a dispatch to the Patrie from Madrid that Senor Sabanio, leader of the Biscayan national party, sent a long cable message to President Roosevelt, congratulating him on the establishment of the republican form of government in Cuba, and that the Spanish censor suppressed the message. It is further asserted that the Spanish government ordered the prosecution of Senor Arana and that President Roosevelt has "instructed the United States legation at Madrid to ask for explanations."

ARREST FACE DOCTOR.

Police Say That He Practices Without a Legal License.

Chicago, June 1.—Dr. E. Wesly Johnson, the physician in charge of Miss Mae Thompson, who died Thursday under mysterious circumstances, last night was placed under arrest and will be held by the police until the case has been more fully investigated. There is no specific charge lodged against him, but the police claim that he was practicing medicine without a license and that his treatment of the girl in placing upon her face a close mask may have been instrumental in causing her death.

HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Temporary Critical Nature of the Illness of Attorney General Knox.

Washington, June 1.—Surgeon General Rixey of the navy admits that Attorney General Knox was dangerously ill Wednesday. His patient was not only threatened with pneumonia, but also with acute Bright's disease. Radical remedies applied in time have prevented a collapse, but, though all danger is now passed, Mr. Knox will be forced to keep to his bed during the next few days. He contracted his illness Tuesday while driving in a storm in light clothing.

SMOOTH SAILING FOR TAFT.

His Mission to Rome Has Every Prospect of Success.

London, June 1.—Cabling from Rome, the correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says the Taft mission to Rome has every prospect of success. The Vatican is willing to allow the monasteries and convents in the Philippines to be under civil law and it will permit the expropriation of their property. The American government, continues the correspondent, will authorize the creation of new dioceses in the Philippines, to be under American bishops only.

TO SUCCEED PAUNCEFOTE.

Michael Henry Herbert Is Mentioned for the Place.

London, June 1.—The Hon. Michael Henry Herbert, who is nominally secretary to the British embassy in Paris, will probably be the next British ambassador to the United States, in succession to the late Lord Pauncefote. Mr. Herbert's appointment will probably not be announced until the remains of Lord Pauncefote arrive in England. The only question in regard to Mr. Herbert's selection is the approval of King Edward.

Artillerymen Injured.

Wichita, Kan., June 1.—While preparing to fire a Decoration day salute here a gun belonging to Battery A, Kansas state artillery, exploded prematurely, wounding three members of the battery, one of whom was fatally hurt.

Viewed by the Shah.

Berlin, June 1. — The annual spring parade of the garrisons of the Berlin military district was held on the Tempelhof field. The weather was superb. The shah of Persia was present in an open carriage drawn by four horses.

Andrews Will Stay in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., June 1.—In a signed statement Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews says he intends to remain with Nebraska university several years unless the regents decide otherwise or his health fails.

BEHIND THE SCENES

By HAROLD DEAN

Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Publishing Company

Fannie had dreamed of going on the stage as long as she could remember—since the first time she was taken to the theater and sat prim and proper between her parents. The lights, the music, the wonderful panorama back of the footlights, the applause, the contagious enthusiasm—all appealed to her fervent imagination and left an indelible mark. She had sought every opportunity to go and had reveled in dreams of one day emerging from these mysterious wings and bowing before an applauding multitude.

At first she kept her ambition secret, but as she grew into young womanhood it slipped out little by little. Her mother frowned, her father laughed, and her brother teased her. But it made no difference, excepting to strengthen her desire.

And now she actually was going to invade that wondrous realm yclept the green room. Oh, bliss! Oh, joy! Of course papa and mamma and brother Ned would be furiously angry if they knew it, but they need not know until she had made her start and then they would be so proud of her that it would be all right. And then there was Tom. She trembled a little as she thought of the effect on Tom. He had given her such emphatic advice to "cut it out" at the mere mention of a stage career, and had pointed out the dangers and hardships of the life so strongly that she scarcely dared to think of what he might say or do if he knew. And Tom loved her so dearly—and she really was very fond of Tom. But one cannot sacrifice a career to girlish sentiment. If he really loved her he would be proud to see her a great actress and she could marry him anyway and he could travel with her—might even be her manager. Yes, on the whole, that would be the very thing.

She was very nervous about it all, though. She rather shuddered at the memory of that nightmare of standing in line in the dirty alley together with a score or more of bedraggled young women who had appeared in answer to an advertisement in the newspaper for "extras." The atmosphere of stale beer and cigarettes still clung to her and had cost her great extravagances in the matter of perfumes and much persistence in the matter of baths. But she had been taken, greatly to the disgust of the shoving, sneering crowd.

"There's a fresh one, better try her," the stage manager had said to his assistant. "She'll be fine in that ballroom scene. Have ye got any good clothes?"

To be sure she had, and so the bargain was closed. It was for a week's run and she had been stumped at first as to ways and means to get away from home for seven consecutive nights until so late an hour. But ambition conquers all things, and she had arranged it with her dearest friend, who lived in a distant suburb, to spend the entire week with her. She had to tell Ethel all about it, but Ethel was to be trusted. It was a trifle risky, she admitted, but what wouldn't she risk to get on the stage. Then she had taken an apartment in an obscure hotel under an assumed name and was prepared for her debut. Of course it was not what would be deemed proper by the censors of good society, but there was nothing really wrong about it. Still she trembled a little at the thought of what Tom might say or do if he heard of it. But the theater was not one of the more prominent, but rather a cheap stock affair, and there was little chance of Tom's going there. And when she got a regular engagement she would fight it out with him. Then she would tell him he must take her with her art or leave her to pursue it alone.

She was a trifle disappointed at the first impression of "behind the scenes." It was all so confused and dirty and unfinished. It seemed more like an old lumber room than a fairyland. The dressing room to which she was assigned, together with two other "extras," was so little that only one could move at a time where it required the extending of an arm or elbow. The others stood against the wall. It was so squalid and dirty that Fannie insensibly drew up her skirts. One of the girls smoked cigarettes and both used slang and even profanity freely. Their conversation and stories, which were principally about the other sex, nearly nauseated her. But she reflected that this was only the beginning. Soon she would be a real actress and have a room to herself.

She dropped her fan and nearly upset the scene.

Everything went off nicely on the opening night and Fannie was given a word of commendation by the stage manager for the way she carried herself in the ball scene. She was not a bit frightened and was worried only lest somebody in the audience might recognize her. But that would be impossible with her make-up. It ran along very nicely until the third night, when as she glanced out at the audience the first face she saw was that of Tom. Yes, Tom, right there in the fourth row in the parquet. In her surprise and consternation she dropped her fan and nearly upset the scene. She stood staring at the familiar face as in a trance until a harsh voice from the wings recalled her.

"Pick up that fan, you —— lobster. Pick it up quick and come out of that trance or I'll wring your infernal neck. There ain't no ghosts out there."

It was the stage manager, and she recovered herself instantly, picked up the fan gracefully, and went on with her business. When the scene was over she went to the dressing room all atremble. Had he seen her and what would he do and say? Well, anyway, there was no backing out now. Still she really loved Tom and she knew she would be heartbroken if he left her. So perturbed was she that she scarcely noticed that the call boy brought a note for "Jen," the roommate who smoked cigarettes and was a "drug store blonde."

"Fannie!" "Tom!"

"Here's a go," remarked that young woman. "Freddie Holmes is out there in the audience and wants to put up a nice little supper after the show. Has a friend with him and wants to know if I can't bring along one of the other girls. Well, won't I? Freddie is a rum guy and always does it right. Wine and all that sort of thing. Want to go, Mag?"

"Do I? Swell supper and wine instead of ham sandwich and beer. Well, I guess."

"All right," responded "Jen;" "they'll be around on the stage after it's over. Freddie's a friend of the press agent."

Fannie had only one more scene on, the last, and her disguise was more complete in that. She eyed Tom narrowly and decided that he had not recognized her. He was laughing and chatting with a companion—a sporty looking character, and looked not at all perturbed.

After the last scene she gave the other two girls the right of way in the dressing room, as they were in a hurry to keep their engagement. She heard the introductions on the outside and overheard the discussion between "Jen" and "Freddie" as to which restaurant they would go to. While it was still going on she completed her dressing, opened the door and walked out—and directly into Tom.

"Fannie!"

"Tom!"

The exclamations were identical as to time and inflection. Which was the most surprised is a matter of conjecture to this day. Yes, there was Tom talking with that horrible "Mag," and evidently was the friend of "Freddie's" who was to take her to the little wine supper.

It was a case for mutual explanations and they withdrew to an obscure corner and had them. As a result Tom withdrew from the supper party and Fannie finally and forever gave up her histrionic ambition. Both swore to eternal secrecy regarding the entire affair and fully forgave each other.

Which was about the best way out of it—wasn't it?

Thoughts of Kafir Moralist.

The following is an extract from a letter signed "J. G. Mohafi": "Proper Kafir beer is our own food, and the beer that makes the black people drunk is stuff that is mixed with spirits of wine and other kinds of rubbish. How can we walk in the narrow path if some dishonest brothers spoil.

"Sir, if you drink proper Kafir beer you will never get drunk. No, not even if you drink till you busty. I have before written in the Post and pointed out to my brothers that they must not drink rubbish, otherwise they will go off the narrow path and land in the prison cells; I nearly was in the broad path not to clean my yard once a time; and my advice is still the same, viz., drink good beer and keep your back yard clean; I am an education native, and am a teacher in my spare time, and I do my duty by teaching the young to drink pure unmixed beer even at my tea parties. I use my influence."—Bloemfontein Post.

CHARACTER TOLD BY THE THUMB

What a Keen-Eyed Scotland Yard Detective Has Learned.

"There is no more sure test of a person's character than the thumb," said one of the keenest members of the Scotland Yard detectives the other day, in the course of conversation.

"To those who understand thumb language the thumb is the most telltale trademark on the body, for it is a member that is always entirely overlooked. I never place any reliance on the word of a woman whose thumb closes inside her palm when she speaks, and a person who shuts the first and closes the fingers over the thumb is absolutely untrustworthy.

"If, in the course of conversation with a man concerning one of my cases, I notice that his thumb is pressed closely against the forefinger, I know then he is doing his utmost to deceive me, and is willing, if he gets the chance, to tell me deliberate falsehoods in order to put me off the track. On the other hand, if the thumb is well extended, and stands out, then I know the man whom I address is of a sympathetic nature, and full of good intentions.

"Notice when a man shakes hands with you. If his hand is soft, and the grasp almost imperceptible, that man is of a weak and vacillating nature. He may have sincere and good motives, but, being by nature weak, he is easily led, and therefore not to be trusted. Notice when your lady-friend talks with you. Watch her thumbs, and if her sentiments are of a particularly lofty nature her thumb will tell immediately if she means what she is saying. A woman with a large and well-extended thumb has a heart that might be envied by anybody."

GLAD SEASON SURELY AT HAND

Signs and Symptoms by Which One May Recognize Spring.

"Well, spring has come at last," yawningly said the Old Codger, as he sat in his back-tilted chair with his feet comfortably placed on the railing of the veranda. "The grass is comin' up, the trees are buddin', the boys are fightin' in the streets every day, the sweet scent of the what's-its-name is in the air, the so-and-so's are swingin' and singin' on the swayin' boughs, the clatter of the borrowed lawn mower is beginnin' to be heard in the land, and the coal dealer commences to treat his follow-men like equals.

"Last year's jokes are beginnin' to appear in the newspapers, spring poems are bein' sprung, the patent churn man comes smilin' up the road, we begin to read items about little girls dyin' from the effects of jumpin' the rope four hundred times apiece, my nephew, who mistakes laziness for intellectuality, is hintin' about his willin'ness to accept a lucrative situation, the man who knows it all has got a bad cold from changin' his underwear too previously, Aunt Matilda is browin' a jar of herb decoctions that I know from painful experience will be potent enough to burn a hole in a brass monkey; and I've got aches and pains and yawns and symptoms and the allovers till I can scarcely sit down or stand up, or go to bed, or do anything else with any degree of comfort. Yes; I think the glad springtime has got here at last."—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Cabman Not Satisfied.

When D. M. Osborne, the Auburn manufacturer, and one of the most last campaign, was visiting in London an English friend remarked that it was impossible to satisfy a London "cabby," no matter what one gave him.

"I think I can do it," said Mr. Osborne, and they took a hansom driven by an Irishman. After riding three or four blocks they got out, and Mr. Osborne handed the driver a sovereign. He was walking away, when the driver called him back. The driver was fingering the gold piece lovingly. The possibility that he was going to protest against being paid so much entered the American's head. It vanished when the "cabby" said:

"I say, sir, an' don't you think it a bloomin' shame to break this for a drink?"

Mr. Osborne handed over a shilling.

"I was wrong," he said, when he rejoined his English friend. "You cannot satisfy a London cabman."—New York Tribune.

Just the Same.

They were old friends, and had been sweethearts in their younger days. There was silver in her hair and snow in his, and they sat and talked of old times when they were young. They did not speak of dates. It was simply "when we were young." Their first meeting, their first quarrel, the last kiss, their last quarrel, were all gone over. Perhaps they both warmed a little over the recollections.

At last he said:

"Aye, Jennie, an' I haena loved anybody since you. I hae never forgotten you!"

"John," she said, sweetly, and with a little moistening of the eyes, "you're just as big a story-teller as ever, an' I believe ye jist the same!"

Coronation Costumes.

Lace studded with gems is one of the trimmings that will be worn extensively at the coronation ceremonies. In addition to amethysts, garnets and other semi-precious stones, sapphires, emeralds and even diamonds will be used, the stones costing from $4 to $200. The lace need not be very heavily studded to make it extremely costly. Roses and lilies of the valley, it is said, will be the popular coronation flowers.

Wine is an enemy to the buyer and a friend to the seller.

MURDER BY SCIENCE

Microbes of Disease Furnish Humanity with New and Terribly Effective Weapon.

A subtle and horrible method of taking life has been placed within the means of unscrupulous men of science. Modern study of bacteriology has placed a new and terribly effective weapon in the hands of humanity. It is a weapon with which entire communities and towns may be stripped of their inhabitants. Wholesale deaths may be brought about without even directing suspicion toward the perpetrator of the crime, and, what is more, the man who seeks to deal out death in this way may select the specific disease he wishes to employ in carrying out his purpose. All of these menacing possibilities have developed through the advanced study of bacteria and the various uses, beneficial and otherwise, to which micro-organisms may be put. The fact has been established beyond all question of doubt that most contagious diseases are spread through microbes, and added to this knowledge is the additional information that each disease has its own specific kind of bacteria, which may be cultured and produced in countless numbers.

As an indication of the extremes to which a man may go in making use of his knowledge of microbes, the case of an Austrian medical student is given. This student had devoted a good deal of time and much energy to the study of bacteriology. He was familiar with the various forms of microbes common to different contagious and infectious diseases, and knew how to use them with deadly effect. Recently the young man attempted to extort money from a rich widow by threatening to scatter disease germs in her room if she refused his demand. The woman at first was inclined to laugh at his threat, but finally he became so insistent and maintained such a menacing attitude that she reported the matter to the police and the medical student was arrested. When taken into custody there were found in his possession test tubes containing a sufficient number of bacteria to have carried death to half the residents of the town if properly circulated. The tubes contained cultures of cholera, typhoid fever, and lockjaw microbes, and showed conclusively that the young student was prepared to carry out his threat.

This, it is believed, is the first instance on record when a crime of this character has been brought to the attention of the authorities, but it by no means represents the possibilities of such a misapplication of scientific discoveries. The possibilities along this line are as a matter of fact almost limitless.

DYAK HEAD HUNTERS

Civilization Unable to Stamp Out Dreadful Custom in Borneo.

The dreadful custom among the Dyak natives of Borneo of hunting for the heads of fellow-creatures has unhappily not yet been quite stamped out.

There is, unfortunately, strong reason to believe in a story current among the Sea Dyaks dwelling along the banks of the Batang Lupar river, in Sarawak (the district of Borneo ruled over by Rajah Brooke) that the town of Lobo Antu, near the source of this stream, and hardly twenty miles distant from the frontier lines of Dutch Borneo, has been invaded and raided by a force of Land Dyak tribes from that country and about twenty or thirty of the peaceful inhabitants ruthlessly murdered.

What lends color to the gruesome story, says the New York Press, is the fact that, although preparations are being hurriedly made in Kuching, the capital of Sarawak, for a strong expeditionary force to be sent into the interior, great secrecy as to its purpose and destination is maintained by the official authorities.

The custom of head-hunting is as old as the hills among the Dyaks, and is similar to the scalp hunting of the Indians. The belief among the Dyaks is that every head captured in one of these inhuman raids, after it has undergone a process of cleansing and ritual at the hands of the medicine men, becomes a martial spirit for the individual and tribe to whom it has unluckily fallen a victim. Great jealousy exists among the tribes with regard to the numbers each can muster for war, and if any tribe is in this respect inferior it at once sallies forth to remedy the defect in this gruesome manner.

Individual head-hunting exists, also, the heads gained by these individual sportsmen becoming for the most part votive offerings at the shrines of Love. It is no uncommon thing for a young Dyak lady to refuse to entertain proposals from her lovers till a certain number of these horrible trophies can be laid at her feet.

In spite of the most stringent police regulations this fearful custom still exists, but it speaks well for the administrative powers of Rajah C. Brooke that in Sarawak itself head-hunting seldom occurs, and if it does, as in the case of the last dreadful incident, the delinquents come usually from the dominions outside his jurisdiction.

If two pounds of beef cost 80 cents, how much is a whole cow worth?

VIEW THE HOLY CITY

Thousands of Mohammedans Now Making the Annual Pilgrimage to Mecca.

This is the time of the year when the annual pilgrimage to Mecca occurs and again there comes the sad story that cholera prevails among those who are arriving in the sacred city. From 200 to 300 persons are dying daily. Cholera is nearly always a feature of these annual pilgrimages, but the evil is particularly serious this year, and fears are expressed that its ravages will reach an alarming extent when the great flood of pilgrims arrive at the port of Jeddah on their way to Mecca.

It is difficult to estimate the number of pilgrims who annually visit the holy city. Only those who pass through Jeddah are counted with more or less accuracy. The large caravans that travel south through the Arabian desert, have never been counted and only rough estimates have been made of the number of people coming by these land routes. It was estimated in 1814 that the total number of pilgrims visiting Mecca in that year was 70,000. It is believed that this year the total will reach over 200,000. Of late years the number of pilgrims has greatly increased, but their generosity in gifts is much on the decline. This is probably due to the fact that the world of Islam has been feeling very poor for years past.

In the early ages of Mohammedanism it was considered obligatory for every one of the faithful to visit the sacred city at least once in his lifetime. The pilgrims have never been so numerous in the later history of Mohammedanism. In the early days the Kalifs were building towns in the desert as stopping places for the pilgrims and did a great deal to facilitate the journey and make it comfortable. The fact that this solicitude for the well-being of the devout has not been manifest for a long time may account in part for the falling off in the number of pilgrims. The members of a single caravan on the way to Mecca in the thirteenth century rode on 120,000 camels.

Poverty does not destroy virtue, nor does wealth bestow it.

IS OWNER OF WONDERFUL ANIMAL

This Man's Cat Is Entitled to the Palm for Cuteness.

J. Clark King of Woodmont, Pa., is confident that he has a cat which for intelligence has all the other smart cats of the country beaten to a standstill.

He writes in the Philadelphia Record: "I have been greatly interested in the reports of your Nosegay readers concerning the wonderful sagacity of their pet cats, and, but for the fact that I possess a smart cat myself I would be inclined to believe that some of the contributors were not adhering strictly to the truth. As my cat, however, has exhibited a greater degree of intelligence than any you have heard from I cannot for a moment question a single story that has been printed.

"This wonderful cat was only a commonplace puss until an opportunity occurred a few days ago permitting me to demonstrate his cuteness. My wife had been in the habit of feeding the cat regularly before our dinnertime, but a couple of days ago she overlooked puss in her haste. He mewed once or twice impatiently, and seeing no dinner forthcoming scampered into the garden. In a minute he was back, carrying something in his mouth. What do you suppose it was? A sprig of forget-me-not!"

Fashionably Chastened.

"I quite like Mrs. A. now," said one of her acquaintances. "I used to think her insufferable, but I never saw any one so improved; I wonder what has changed her?"

"She is chastened," answered her friend. "She finds that she is not half so smart as she thought she was, and the position she expected to take is not so easy to acquire, consequently her manners to the world at large are much more acceptable. A little disappointment is a great sweetener to the disposition. Mrs. E., who used to be so haughty, has become as cordial as possible, since her husband lost half his fortune in Wall street, and Miss S., who used to snub all men who came near her, is becoming quite agreeable, now that she finds that they avoid her. This is so often the case that when I see a radical change in the manners of a person I always find that he or she has been chastened."

IRISHMAN WAS NOT PERTURBED

But the Chances Are He Was Right in His Diagnosis.

It was down on Gest street where "Shavings" Mannix saved the lives of four people that a crowd of young fellows were standing in front of a saloon. One owned a bulldog of the rough-necked and low-browed variety. The teeth of this dog protrude, and there is a fierce gleam in his little red eyes. The owner of the canine was holding it by the collar as it was vainly trying to break loose and gnaw some one's leg off.

A little old Irishman named Finnerty came down the street. His clay pipe, the bowl of which was turned upside down, was in the corner of his mouth and his dinner pail was in his hand. Just as he came opposite the gang the dog gave a sudden jerk and broke loose. He made one leap and the teeth of the canine were fastened in the seat of the old man's trousers. Three shakes of the head, a series of growls, a lot of profanity, and it was all over. The owner grabbed the dog and pulled him off. With him came half of the trousers.

The only unconcerned man in the crowd was Finnerty. He looked at the dog quizzically, shifted the pipe to the other corner of his mouth and said:

"Begorrah, Oi tink dat dom dog would boite."

Then he skirted fences in getting home, and he had to walk sideways.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SHAFTER'S FAMOUS DOLLAR WATCH

It Furnished "Official" Time at His Headquarters.

During the action before Santiago Gen. Shafter carried a so-called "dollar watch," a timepiece upon which he placed great stress as to its infallibility, although many of his immediate associates were skeptical about its accuracy.

One sultry day, preparatory to the noonday meal, a group of officers were trying to settle a dispute as to the exact time of day. The discussion became heated, as each championed the reliability of his particular "infallible," and personalities seemed imminent as Gen. Shafter made his appearance.

He was appealed to to settle the controversy. The general slowly drew his watch from his pocket and said with marked deliberation: "Gentlemen, the official time of this post is 11:47."

The emphasis on "official," says the New York Times, left no doubt as to the result of further discussion, and although all indulged in a hearty laugh at the speaker's expense Gen. Shafter's confidence in his "chronometer" was unshaken.

Trip to London.

A young married friend of mine has recently had staying with him his wife's mother, a very dear old country woman, to whom the ways of London are as a sealed book.

The bedroom which the old dame occupied looks out upon the railway, and as London was enveloped in fog for two or three days during her visit she experienced a good deal of annoyance, from that apparently necessary nuisance, the fog signal.

On the first morning of the fog, coming down after a somewhat restless night, she inquired the cause of the banging which she had frequently heard. Her son-in-law told her that it was due to the fog, and as the old lady did not ask any further questions the matter was dropped.

On her return to the country, however, she was full of the wonderful things she had seen in London.

"Did ye see a Lonnon fog, granny?" said one of her listeners one evening, when London was again the all-absorbing topic.

"Aye, that I did!" replied granny; "and heard un, too!"

"Heard un, granny?" inquired another interested listener; "how didst hear a fog?"

"Why," answered the old lady, perfectly in earnest, "Lonnon fog bain't like ours; every now and then it goes off wi' a rare bang!"

How the Banana Was Named.

The banana was named musa, after Antonius Musa, the freedman and physician of the great Augustus of the Romans, says Linnaeus. The sapientums—the wiseness—in its name is a graceful tribute to it as the "wise man's food, for, incredible as it may seem, it is perhaps the best food product of the earth, being far more productive than either wheat or potatoes—the staple food of the other nations.

Long ago it was calculated that it is 133 times as productive as wheat and forty-four times as productive as the potato; in other words, that the ground that would give thirty-three pounds of wheat or ninety-nine pounds of potatoes would, as far as mere space is concerned, give 4,000 pounds of bananas, and with a fractional amount of the same trouble.

It has been called the "prince of the tropics," says the Longman's Magazine, because it takes the same place, only to an even greater degree, in these hot countries than wheat, rye and barley take in west Asia and Europe and that rice takes in India and China.

LONG WAR ENDED

LORD KITCHENER OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCES SIGNING OF PEACE TERMS.

BOERS GIVE UP THE STRUGGLE

NEWS IS RECEIVED IN LONDON WITH DEMONSTRATIONS OF JOY.

BRITONS ARE WILDLY JUBILANT

PRAYERS OF THANKSGIVING OFFERED UP IN ALL THE CHURCHES.

London, June 3.—Peace has been declared after nearly two years and eight months of a war which tried the British empire to its uttermost and wiped the Boers from the list of nations.

The war has come to an end with Lord Kitchener's announcement from Pretoria that he, Lord Milner and the Boer delegates had signed "terms of surrender." This announcement had been anticipated for several days, and it was definitely forecasted in these dispatches; but its receipt Sunday afternoon took the nation by surprise, as everybody had confidently believed that the house of commons would hear the first news to-day. The edge of the anticipation with which Great Britain awaited the promised statement in the house of commons from Mr. Balfour, the government leader, was still further dulled by the following message from King Edward to his people, which was issued after midnight:

"The king has received the welcome news of the cessation of hostilities in South Africa with infinite satisfaction, and that peace may speedily be followed by the restoration of prosperity in his new dominions, and that the feelings necessarily engendered by war will give place to earnest co-operation on the part of his majesty's South African subjects in promoting the welfare of their common country."

How greatly King Edward's insistence that peace in South Africa be secured prior to his coronation influenced the present agreement will probably not be known until the private memoirs of the present regime are given to the public.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Utrecht, Holland, Mr. Kruger was informed shortly after 9 o'clock last night that peace had been declared. He had been asleep. "My God," he said, "it is impossible." Mr. Kruger and his entourage, the dispatch continues, hope to be permitted to return to the Transvaal. This, however, is quite unlikely.

Message From Kitchener.

London, June 3. — An official cablegram from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Saturday, May 31, 11:15 p. m., says:

"A document containing terms of surrender was signed here this evening at 10:30 o'clock by all the Boer representatives as well as by Lord Milner (the British high commissioner in South Africa) and myself."

The news of peace in South Africa contained in the foregoing dispatch from Lord Kitchener was not expected in London yesterday. Soon after the receipt of the dispatch, however, the news spread to the clubs and hotels and was received with much enthusiasm. The church bells were rung to acclaim the good news. A crowd gathered at the Mansion house and the lord mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, announced from the balcony that terms of surrender had been signed in South Africa.

Received With Great Joy.

Lord Kitchener's definite announcement of peace was received at the war office at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was communicated to King Edward and all the members of the cabinet before it was given to the public. Last night the Sunday evening calm of the London streets was broken by enthusiastic singing, shouting and horn-blowing. The hotels, the clubs, the public houses and the streets were not the only places where the people were actively demonstrating their joy. The peace news was announced in the churches, and by some congregations it was received with applause. In all the churches of London prayers of thanksgiving were offered and special hymns were sung.

Must Pay the Interest.

Pretoria, June 3. — A proclamation which was issued Saturday in connection with the signing of the peace terms declares that, notwithstanding the proclamations of Mr. Kruger that interest on the bonds of the Transvaal republic would be suspended so long as the war lasted, such interest shall begin to accrue June 1. June 26 and June 27, the days of King Edward's coronation, have been proclaimed public holidays here.

Canadians Are Joyful.

Ottawa, Ont., June 3. — The peace news from South Africa was greeted here by demonstrations of joy. The bell in the city hall was rung for ten minutes. The mayor arranged for a demonstration to-day to celebrate the ending of the war. Flags will be hoisted on public and private buildings; a royal salute will be fired at noon and the school children will be given a half-holiday. At night there will be a display of fireworks and a military parade.

BANDITS MAKE BIG HAUL.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars in Silver Bullion Stolen.

Durango, Mex., June 2. — Brigands yesterday attacked a mule pack train which was conveying silver bullion to the value of more than $100,000 from the mines of the Pieramide Mining company at San Joe de Gracia to Mazatlan. The guard was driven off and one man was killed. The bandits secured the silver and fled into the mountains.

HAAS GOT $60,000 IN ST. PAUL.

Missing Grocer Who Had "Get-Rich-Quick" Scheme Is Found to Be Paroled Convict.

St. Paul, June 3.—It is charged that the amounts secured by Albert Haas, the missing grocer, from St. Paul people who wanted to get rich quick will amount to more than $60,000. It also developed that Haas was a paroled convict, being under sentence for embezzlement in the Minnesota penitentiary. It is thought he is in Toronto. Property valued at $6,000 belonging to Haas has been found. People in every walk of life intrusted Haas with their money to invest, hoping to receive the large dividends he promised. Haas rented a fine house, wore diamonds, and drove a fast horse. He opened a grocery and sold groceries cheaper than other grocers could buy them. He informed his newly made friends that he was in the real estate business and was making money so fast he did not know what to do with it.

TORNADO IN BLACK HILLS.

Twenty Buildings Wrecked in the City of Lead.

Lead, S. D., June 3.—A small tornado struck this city, demolished about twenty buildings and injured three persons, but not fatally. The names of the injured are: William Adams, both legs broken and badly bruised, serious; Adams' daughter, caught in shattered building, badly bruised and internally injured; Evart Peterson, arm broken and otherwise hurt. The storm struck the town at the northeast corner and swept everything in its path. Adams' butcher shop was among the buildings in the path of the wind and was blown to pieces. Adams and his little girl were in the building at the time and were unable to make their escape. Peterson, who was also injured, was in an adjoining building, which was torn to splinters. The property damage in this city is estimated at $150,000. From here the storm passed on to Terraville, a few miles distant, where it demolished five buildings, four of which were residences. So far as learned no one was seriously injured at that place.

MINNESOTA PIONEERS.

Old Settlers of Morrison and Adjoining Counties Meet.

Royalton, Minn., June 3.—The old settlers' association of Morrison and adjoining counties met here. Those who have lived in Minnesota for forty years or more are eligible to membership. There was a goodly attendance and the sessions have been very interesting. Nathan Richardson, founder of the association and its president, is here. He is now over seventy-three years of age, and has been a resident of the state since 1855. One feature of the meeting was the golden wedding anniversary of R. D. Kinney and wife, who came to Minnesota in 1851. He was the first school teacher in Morrison county, teaching at Fort Ripley in 1851-2. The following officers were elected: President, N. Richardson; secretary, R. D. Kinney; treasurer, William Pedley.

BLACK HILLS TRAIN RUNS AWAY.

Terrific Run Down the Hill Toward Deadwood.

Deadwood, S. D., June 3.—A runaway train made a terrific run from Englewood down the eight-mile slope toward this city, and the ten cars piled up on top of one another in a ditch near Pluma.

One man was killed and two others seriously injured. The dead man is Charles Freeman, an employe of the Burlington & Missouri River railroad at Englewood. When the train reached Kink station the engineer lost control, and it came on toward Deadwood at a seventy-mile clip, gaining speed at every moment.

At Pluma it struck a safety switch and the ten cars, filled with coke, were hurled into a ditch. The main line and that of the Deadwood Central were blocked for several hours.

INVESTIGATE GOLD FIND.

Prairie du Chien Discoveries Attract Expert Attention.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 3.—Dr. Weidmann of the state geological society, and Dr. Lehner, chemist in charge of gold and silver assays at the state university, and Prof. Weithrecht of St. Paul spent the day here, presumably investigating the gold and silver discoveries. While they gave out no information as to the results of the investigation, their presence is taken as very favorable. This is Dr. Weidmann's second visit, and, being accompanied by Dr. Lehner, would indicate that they regarded the mining prospects at Prairie du Chien as certainly worthy of more extensive investigation than the society had previously made.

JUDGE DUNPHY DIES.

One of Earliest Settlers of Duluth Passes Away.

Duluth, June 3.—Judge John Dumphy, with one exception the earliest settler at the head of the lakes and for many years a prominent citizen of Duluth, died here, aged eighty-eight years. He settled her in 1856. A family of six grown children survive him. There are three sons—James, John P. and Carl, and three daughters—Katie, who is teaching school in the City of Mexico; Julia, living at home, and Angela, a teacher in the West Superior public schools.

PRACTICE ENDS FATALLY.

Man Loses His Life Learning to Jump Off and On Trains.

Racine, Wis., June 3.—While practicing jumping off and on passenger trains of the Milwaukee railway at Corliss yesterday Charles C. Bensen fell under a milk train and both legs were severed above the ankles. He was brought to a hospital in this city where he died. Before dying he said that his right name was Charles C. Maloney and that he was aged twenty-two years and that his home was at 295 Third avenue, New York. His parents are said to be well-to-do.

Storm Damages Crops.

Burlington, Iowa, June 3.—The heaviest rainstorm of the year struck Burlington yesterday morning, damaging crops and residence property. It is estimated that the rainfall was six to eight inches.

Fire in Milwaukee Block.

Milwaukee, June 3.—Fire in the Miller block at Broadway and Wisconsin street destroyed $50,000 worth of property. The two upper floors and the Spencerian business college were destroyed.

MINERS' BIG MOVE

UNION CLAIMS THAT NEARLY ALL FIREMEN AND PUMPMEN WILL QUIT.

IS NOW A FIGHT TO A FINISH

NEITHER SIDE SHOWS THE SLIGHTEST DISPOSITION TO YIELD.

WILL TAKE STRIKERS' PLACES

SURPRISINGLY LARGE NUMBER OF MEN VOLUNTEER THEIR SERVICES.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 3.—The eve of what is looked upon as a most important week in the progress of the anthracite coal miners' strike, finds the entire region in an apprehensive mood.

At 7 o'clock this morning the order of the United Mineworkers of America calling out all the stationary engineers, firemen and pumpmen unless the companies grant them an eight-hour work day at present wages, will go into effect and no one can foretell the outcome of the new move. Victory for either side will be of immense advantage, and both parties to the controversy are striving with all the power at their command to win. If the union succeeds in shutting down the pumps the mine properties will suffer damage that may reach into millions of dollars, and if the employers should be able to keep the water out of their workings without the aid of organized labor it means that the power of the union in the anthracite region has reached its limit, and that all help in the effort to force the mine owners of the great army of 147,000 men must come from some outside source. The mineworkers say they will preserve the property of the companies if the engineers, pumpmen and firemen are given what they ask for and the companies say they will permit no outsiders to fix the hours and wages of their men. Neither side shows the slightest disposition to yield, and in the words of one mining superintendent, "it's a fight to a finish." There is a fear throughout the coal belt that the coming week will witness more or less serious disturbances. It is claimed by the union that nearly all of the pumpmen and firemen will quit work and that about three-fourths of the engineers will also refuse to continue work. This claim was privately admitted by a company official familiar with the situation. While the plans of the union have not been made public it is known that a thorough system has been mapped out with a view of getting out those men who will refuse to quit to-day. A house-to-house canvass will be started, which, no doubt, will have considerable effect. The methods that have been adopted in regard to the non-union men who will take the strikers' places, are not known.

To Grant the Demands

Big Army of Special Officers.

Practically all the non-union men to be employed are now in the region. The companies say that the number of those who have volunteered to fill strikers' places has been surprisingly large, and that no difficulty has been encountered in selecting good men. An army of approximately 3,000 armed coal and iron policemen, sworn in under a law of the state, is in the field ready to protect these men and the mining properties. There are also scattered throughout the country, it is said, about 1,000 men who are doing secret work for the companies.

A journey through the thickly populated parts of this (Wyoming) district yesterday found that the idle mineworkers are greatly incensed at the importation of strangers. At a meeting of the engineers, firemen and pumpmen employed in the collieries of the Susquehanna Coal company, Alden Coal company and the two collieries of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company, held at Nanticoke yesterday, it was decided by a vote of about 2 to 1 not to strike. About seventy men attended the meeting.

BORAX IS HARMFUL.

Results of Experiments Upon Four Men for Two Years.

Berlin, June 3.—Experts attached to the imperial health office have published a bulky pamphlet giving the results of their protracted experiments to determine the effect of borax upon the human system. The tests were made upon four men and were carried on for two years. According to the pamphlet, the tests have proved that the borax in the human system retards the assimilation of albumen and fats and interferes with the renewal of tissues. A single dose of borax remains in a man's body for eight days. The continued use of borax, even in small quantities, causes an excessive loss of liquids and a decrease in weight without increasing the subject's thirst and hunger. In some cases, the experts declare, these phenomena assumed a threatening aspect.

STEYN IS PARALYZED.

Acting President of Transvaal Gives Parole.

Pretoria, June 3. — Acting President Steyn of the Transvaal is suffering from paralysis and will not participate further in the peace conference at Vereeniging. He has given his parole and has gone to Krugersdorp, about fifty miles south of here.

Wants Big Money.

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 3—Suit has begun in the supreme court at White Plains by Miss Sadie Scott of New Rochelle for $50,000 damages against the New York Central Railroad company for injuries she received in the Park avenue tunnel wreck. Miss Scott's suit makes the twenty-sixth action for damages now pending against the corporation as the result of the tunnel horror.

MEAT FAMINE IN CHICAGO.

Prices Advancing and Quality Becoming Poorer.

Chicago, June 3.—The meat famine is here. To-day every consumer of meat in Chicago will feel its effect in one form or another. Some will go without fresh meat because of the advance in price. Others will be obliged to subsist on a poorer quality than they are accustomed to using. Butchers as well as teamsters are likely to be involved in the controversy before the week is out. There is no denying the fact that there is abundance of beef on hand to supply all of Chicago, but it is out of the reach of the consumer. As the strike of the teamsters grows the hardship and inconvenience occasioned to the masses of the people increased it is apparent that the conflict is hurting the poor man most. Not only is the price of meat being raised, but the quality is steadily deteriorating. The controversy appears to be as far from settlement as it was the day the strike was declared.

AUTO KILLS AND MAIMS.

A Powerful Machine Dashes Into Dense Crowd on Staten Island.

New York, June 3.—A powerful electric automobile built for the sole purpose of breaking the kilometer and mile records for electric machines at Saturday's speed tests of the Automobile Club of America at Grant City, Staten Island, swerved when within a few hundred yards of finishing one of the fastest miles ever made by any kind of machine, and, plunging into a crowd of sightseers, hurled them to the right and left with frightful force. One man was killed outright. The sharp nose of the machine hit him in the chest as he struggled to get out of the way, and as he fell the steel spokes of one of the wheels, having rid themselves of the wooden rim, entered his body at three different points, killing him instantly and mangling his body. Seven persons, including two women, are known to have been injured by the plunge of the big machine, and it is estimated that at least twenty others sustained slight injuries.

MINES KILL THE TROOPS.

Revolutionists Intrenched at Bocas Prevent Advance.

Kingston, Jam., June 3.—The British steamer Atrato, Capt. Stranger, arrived here yesterday from Colon, Colombia. She reports that there was heavy fighting at Bocas del Toro last week. The revolutionists are said to have mined the town of Bocas. While the government troops were marching into Bocas to recapture it the mines were exploded and almost all the government troops were killed. The revolutionists still remain in possession of Bocas. Colon and Panama are the only towns on the isthmus now in the control of the government and troops are being poured into these two ports with the hope of stemming the revolutionary advance. The revolutionists are winning so much sympathy upon every hand that the government has decided to reorganize its forces.

FURNACEMEN STRIKE.

Three Thousand Men at Youngstown Thrown Out of Work.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 3.—The furnacemen's strike, affecting all the independent and the Republic Iron and Steel company's furnaces in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys, began yesterday morning. The Hubbard furnace, the only one in operation yesterday, closed down last night, throwing, all told, 3,000 men out of work. No United States Steel corporation mills are yet affected, but president McMahon of the union asserts that some of them will be closed within a few days.

KIDNAPPING IN CUBA.

Child Murdered After Ransom Money Had Been Paid.

Havana, June 3. — A child has been kidnapped and murdered in Cienfuegos. After the kidnapping 60 centens (about $300) was asked for its ransom. This was paid and the kidnappers got away. Afterward the child was found murdered.

HONORS FOR GOODNOW.

Decoration Will Be Bestowed Upon the Consul General.

Pekin, June 3.—The government proposes to bestow a decoration on John Goodnow, the United States consul general at Shanghai, in recognition of his services in maintaining peace in the central provinces of China in 1900.

DIES TRYING TO SAVE A GIRL.

Oliver Tichenor of Indiana Loses Life in Effort to Rescue Young Woman.

Vincennes, Ind., June 2. — Oliver Tichenor was drowned in Long Pond, near Patoka, while endeavoring to rescue Miss Helen Caruthers, who had fallen into the water.

GOV. TAFT ILL AT ROME.

Conference With Cardinal Rampolla at Vatican Has to Be Postponed.

Rome, June 3.—Gov. Taft of the Philippine commission is suffering from tonsilitis. Consequently his meeting with Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, arranged for Saturday, was postponed.

KILL MANY CHINESE.

Government Troops Have Another Clash With the Rebels.

Pekin, June 3. — Yuan Shai Kai, the governor of Chili province, reports that the troops have again encountered the villagers, killing many of them, and that the villagers are surrendering their arms.

FARM HAND MURDERS GIRL.

Kills Daughter of His Employer and Tries to End His Own Life.

Keosauqua, Iowa, June 3.—At Cantril, a small town eleven miles south of here, Albert Hale, aged twenty-one, shot Dona Donohue, aged sixteen, through the heart and then shot himself. Hale shot the girl on the street in the presence of several persons. He will recover. Hale was a farm hand who had been working for the girl's father.

ALL FOR SCIENCE

MONT PELEE'S CRATER EXPLORED BY PROF. ANGELO HEILPRIN.

TAKES HIS LIFE IN HIS HANDS

ASCENT TO THE TOP OF THE CRATER MADE IN FACE OF GREAT DANGER.

VOLCANO RESENTS INTRUSION

WHILE THE PROFESSOR IS AT THE SUMMIT VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS OCCUR.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, June 3.—The National Geographical society has scored a great triumph through its representative here, Prof. Angelo Heilprin, who, Saturday morning, with three guides, ascended to the top of the crater on the summit of Mont Pelee. Prof. Heilprin is also president of the Philadelphia Geographical society.

While on the summit several violent explosions occurred, but, notwithstanding the thousand dangers surrounding him, Prof. Heilprin spent a long time taking careful observations. Looking down the crater, he found a huge cinder cone. The crater opening is a vast crevasse 500 feet long and 150 feet wide. While engaged in this task the lives of the members of the expedition were

Continually in Danger, and one particularly violent explosion covered Prof. Heilprin from head to foot with the viscid matter. He persisted, however, and found, as had been suspected, that there were three separate vents for the volcanic matter. Meanwhile Mont Pelee, seeming to resent the intrusion of man into her awful territory, belched out huge volumes of steam, ashes and boiling hot mud. Prof. Heilprin made the important discovery that the crater of Falaise has an eruption at the same time as the summit crater and ejects precisely the same matter. Both craters showed a new phenomenon during the professor's visit, when mud was thrown up in high columns, while heretofore the mud has bubbled or boiled out and flowed downward in huge streams. There is reason for fear that great damage may result of this mud to the rich plantations still uninjured. The ascent was made on mules to an altitude of 700 meters, the line of ancient vegetation. There leaving the mule that had carried him the professor proceeded on foot to the site of Lake Palmiste. He found the lake completely dried up and crossed the bed, passing up a slope to the crater's edge. This, which had formerly been a high bluff, Prof. Heilprin found had fallen into the crater. This is the first important verified topographic alteration noted. Prof. Heilprin remained at the summit crater over two hours. When he returned to Vive he resembled a statue of mud. The weight of ashes and mud he carried on his person, the horrible atmosphere he breathed and the fearful difficulties he encountered reduced him to a condition of extreme fatigue notwithstanding the fact that he ascended Mont Pelee from the most accessible and easiest side.

From the Outbursts

ST. VINCENT IN DANGER.

American Scientist Believes the Island Will Subside.

Kingstown, St. Vincent, June 3.—La Soufriere volcano is still active. Another eruption occurred at 3 o'clock on Friday morning. It was accompanied by a thunderous noise and a shock of earthquake, while volumes of dense vapor ascended to such a height that they were visible from Kingstown. The vapor formed a thick cloud over the crater of the volcano and this cloud was illumined as by fire. In the crater itself the lightning was more vivid than upon and previous occasion. No damage was done and the eruption ceased at the end of an hour.

The American scientist who started to ascend La Soufriere is still striving to reach the summit. During the intervals when the volcano was quiet yesterday he reached a point almost half-way up the mountain. He reports, to the awe of the inhabitants, that the island of St. Vincent may subside. There are clear indications, he says, that a considerable portion of the leeward district will subside.

MAHA VIJINA CAN COME.

Siamese Prince Will Visit the President This Fall.

Washington, June 3. — The Siamese minister called on Secretary Hay to ascertain if President Roosevelt would be pleased to receive Prince Maha Vijina, son of the king of Siam, who contemplated visiting the United States before returning to his own country from attending the coronation ceremonies in London. Mr. Hay gave assurances to the Minister that the prince would be cordially welcomed. The prince will probably remain in Europe until early fall. His visit to America will consume several weeks.

Strawberries Plentiful.

Menomonie, Wis., June 3.—Arrangements are now being made to harvest the largest strawberry crop in Dunn county ever known. Large contracts are now being made for shipment to Eau Claire, Superior, Duluth and St. Paul. One grower in this city estimates that his crop will yield 50,000 quarts. Home-grown berries will be on the market this week, when there will be a slump in present high prices.

Under the Wheels.

Hinckley, Minn., June 3. — Elmer Stubchfield, twenty-two years of age, was killed by the north-bound fast freight. He had jumped the train at this point and fell under the wheels while walking over the cars.

In Memory of McKinley.

Lincoln, Neb., June 3. — A chime of ten bells was dedicated to the memory of William McKinley in this city last night. They are placed in the dome of the largest church in the city, St. Paul's Methodist.

TAPS ARE SOUNDED.

Charleston Exposition Has Passed Into History.

Charleston, S. C., June 3. — At midnight Saturday night President Wagner turned of the electric lights, the buglers sounded "taps," a salute was fired and the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition passed into history. The exposition opened on the first of December last and the six months of its existance made a very brilliant season for Charleston. The first half of the time was not prosperous for the fair, but during the last three months great crowds have viewed it. The enterprise will be a loss financially and the stockholders will receive none of their subscriptions back. Loss will probably fall on the bondholders and there are a few outstanding debts, though the showing in this respect will be much better than was predicted. Otherwise the success of the exposition is unquestioned.

DEATHS AT A FIRE.

Four Persons Lose Their Lives and Several Are Injured.

New York, June 3. — Max Kasten, thirty-two years old, and Mrs. Lydia McKrew, the same age, lost their lives yesterday in a fire which swept away many buildings at Rockaway Beach. Thomas S. McKrew and his five-year-old son Frank, Martin Hanson, twenty-eight, and Morris Kasten, seventy-five, were injured and taken to a hospital in Long Island City. Several hours later young McKrew and the father were reported to be dying. The buildings for the most part were of the frame type, usual at the seaside resorts, and the loss is estimated at about $120,000. After the fire had been controlled the body of a man was found burned to a crisp in one of the buildings. He is supposed to have been a candymaker. A number of persons received slight burns. The fire appears to have started in the kitchen of Kasten's hotel, probably from the explosion of a gasoline stove or from a pot of candy boiling over.

FATAL BICYCLE COLLISION.

One Man Is Dead and Another Fatally Injured.

Lancaster, Pa., June 3. — One man dead and another dying is the result of a bicycle collision which occurred here Saturday night. The victims are Walter Powell and Daniel Treewitz, each aged about seventeen years. Powell is a speedy amateur bicyclist. Paced by Treewitz, he was training for a race on Wheatland avenue. It was dark and neither bicycle had a lantern. Powell, thinking he had outstripped Treewitz, turned to find him, and they collided, both being thrown violently to the street. Powell was carried unconscious to St. Joseph's hospital near by. His skull was fractured and he died yesterday, without having regained consciousness. Treewitz, who at first was not thought to have been seriously hurt, developed alarming symptoms yesterday from internal injuries, and there is but little chance for his recovery.

FRENCHMEN SAIL AWAY.

Rochambeau Commissioners Return to France.

Boston, June 3. — The sentiments of gratitude felt by the members of the mission delegated by the president of France to come to America to attend the unveiling at Washington of the statue of the Count de Rochambeau found final expression yesterday afternoon on the battleship Gaulois, which conveyed the mission to this country, and which late in the afternoon left for Lisbon, whence it will go to France. A dinner was served on the battleship, attended by special representatives of President Roosevelt, representatives of the State of Massachusetts and the city of Boston, the members of the French embassy at Washington and the members of the Rochambeau mission.

KILLED FOR REVENGE.

Cincinnati Blacksmith Killed for Opposing Strike.

Cincinnati, June 3. — Michael O'Donnell, smith for the Emerson Carriage company, was assaulted by unknown parties and died. As O'Donnell continued at work he was recognized as the leader of those opposing the impending strike. It is supposed that this murder was due to revenge. He leaves a widow and five small children.

HOBOES USE GUNS

YANKTON (S. D.) POSSE OF CITIZENS IN PURSUIT OF THE GANG.

OPEN FIRE ON CITY OFFICERS

MADE A DISTURBANCE AND WERE REQUESTED TO MOVE ON.

TWO OF THE TOUGHS WOUNDED

FUGITIVES ARE SUPPOSED TO BE A GANG OF HOLD-UP MEN.

Yankton, S. D., May 31. — Two men shot and a posse in pursuit of others, with a certainty that they will be severely dealt with if caught, is the result of an effort last evening to make a gang of hoboes move out of Yankton.

Complaints came to the city officers yesterday afternoon that a gang of toughs were on the river front, making the neighborhood uncomfortable. Immediately after supper Marshal Pierson, with two police officers, went to see them, and ordered them to move on. There were eight in the gang. They immediately assaulted the officers. Pierson was getting the better of the one who had attacked him when one of the others covered him with a gun and ordered him to

Threw Up His Hands.

Pierson obeyed. As the man approached he struck up the gun and the man fired at Pierson, but missed, and immediately fired again, and once at one of the other officers. The officers returned the fire and the hoboes broke and ran for the undergrowth in the river bottom near at hand. One hobo was shot in the hip and another in the head and arm. One other was shot but escaped into the brush with the rest of the bunch.

A large crowd of citizens, who vow they shall not escape, are in pursuit. The fugitives are not tramps, but hold-up men from some city. They were well dressed and the two captured had splendid revolvers.

PRESIDENT PLANS LONG TRIP.

Will Probably Visit Place Where the Rough Riders Were Organized.

Washington, May 31. — President Roosevelt is arranging for an extensive Western trip in the fall. He began by accepting invitations from the Republican clubs of Chicago to a union banquet, and then an invitation to visit the state fair at Springfield. He expects to carry out this plan and then go west through Iowa and other states of the Northwest, and then may go through the Southwest as far as San Antonio, Tex., where he and Gen. Wood organized their rough rider regiment at the beginning of the war with Spain. The San Antonio fair will be held on the grounds where Roosevelt organized his rough riders, and the people have extended a cordial invitation to attend this fair from Oct. 18 to 29.

CONVENTION IS ENDED.

North Dakota Sunday School Workers Finish Sessions.

Mayville, N. D., May 31.—The state Sunday school convention closed yesterday after a most successful session. The newly elected president, H. E. Pratt, presided in the absence of the retiring president, Mr. Wylie. The conferences and discussions conducted by Mr. Day and Mr. Orchard continued to be stimulating and helpful. Rev. Gamble conducted the devotional services, which closed the final session. The convention will be held in Fargo, May 26 to 28, next year.

CHILDREN IN A WRECK.

Street Car Crashes Into a Trailer, Injuring Fifteen Persons.

Peoria, Ill., May 31.—Fifteen persons were injured in a street car accident here. The accident occurred on Second street, where a heavily loaded trailer was crashed into by a car following it. The cars were all heavily loaded with school children returning from the field day exercises at Glen Oak Park. Scenes of wildest confusion followed the crash. The police ambulance removed some of the injured to the hospitals, while others were taken to their homes.

Buried Under Tons of Earth.

Deadwood, S. D., May 31.—Two tons of earth and loose stones fell on William Hoisington while excavating for a sewer in Deadwood, inflicting injuries that may prove fatal. He was completely buried, and it was several minutes before he could be dug out and removed. He was severely cut about the face and head and one leg was broken.

Dynamite Trout.

Glenwood, Wis., May 31.—Ed Casey, Ross Casey, Hose Weed and Mike O'Rourke were arrested at Downing by Game Warden Klofonda for dynamiting trout and fined $25 and costs, amounting to about $50 in each case.

Almost Fatal Accident.

Lisbon, N. D., May 31. — Carelessly handling a loaded shotgun nearly cost Oscar Harlan his life. His right hand was terribly lacerated, and when found was fast bleeding to death.

Small Child Killed by Train.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, May 31.—The two-year-old child of Thomas Philpot was struck and instantly killed by the 10 o'clock freight on the Illinois Central here.

$7,000 Fire at Downing.

Downing, Wis., May 31.—Fire caused by the explosion of a lamp destroyed A. H. McCabe's store and Hull's market and icehouse and a livery stable. Loss, $7,000; insurance, $3,500. Other business places narrowly escaped.

Wants Damages for Spill.

Soult Ste. Marie, Mich., May 31.—Because he was thrown from his cutter B. McEvoy has commenced suit against the city for $5,000. Stones left in the street are declared to have been the cause of the accident.

DEAD FROM POISON.

Boys Eat Deadly Roots—One Is Dead; Physicians Save Others.

Helena, Mont., May 30.—As a result of eating the root of a poisonous plant, supposed to have been water parsnip, Guy White, the six-year-old son of F. D. White, is dead, and two other boys, Harry White, aged five, brother of Guy, and Roy Brooks, a cousin, were saved only by strenuous efforts of two physicians. While wandering around near the Boyd creek the boys found the plant, the roots of which they found to be quite palatable, and of which they ate freely. Shortly afterward they became violently ill and a physician was summoned. When he arrived the older boy, Guy, was in convulsions, dying within half an hour.

ANDREWS NOT MENTIONED.

Has Not Been Offered Presidency of Wisconsin University.

Milwaukee, May 30.—The story from Lincoln, Neb., that Chancellor Andrews has been offered the presidency of the University of Wisconsin, is denied by the regents. Dr. A. J. Puls, a member of the committee which has the task of selecting a new president, said the report was without a word of truth. The name of Dr. Andrews, he said, had never come before the committee. He said the office was still open and nothing would be done until the meeting of the board of regents June 14.

ONLY ONE IS HURT SERIOUSLY.

Great Northern Flyer Is Wrecked Near Grand Forks.

St. Paul, May 30.—The Great Northern coast train, the flyer, headed for St. Paul, was wrecked at Ojata, near Grand Forks, yesterday morning, resulting in the injury of four persons. The most dangerously injured is Frank D. Heffron. When the train was approaching Grand Forks the tender of the engine left the tracks and the coaches were overturned in a swamp caused by the recent heavy rains. The wreck is considered remarkable in that there were no fatalities.

HEN ADOPTS KITTENS.

Storm Killed Her Chicks, and She Appropriated Feline Babies.

Baraboo, Wis., May 30. — Sanford Miller of Lloyd has a hen with some feline characteristics. A few days ago a family of kittens and a brood of little chickens arrived in the Miller home, and during one of the severe storms the birds lost their lives. The hen at once adopted the kittens, and during all the day and night sits upon their nest and keeps them warm, while the old cat mews and purrs near by, and watches the proceedings with no little concern.

EXTRADITE FORGER.

Canada Will Give Up a Man Wanted at Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., May 30.—Local officials are making out the papers in the case of Forger Saunders to secure his extradition to this state. Saunders was convicted of forgery, and escaped jail the night before he was to start to Bismarck to serve a five-year term. The Canadian authorities held that his was an extraditable case, and the papers will be sent by Gov. White to the state department at Washington, then to Ottawa and Winnipeg.

ALLEGED ELOPERS CAUGHT.

Dan Starr Is Arrested in Huron by Wisconsin Sheriff.

Huron, S. D., May 30.—Sheriff William Mahon of Grant county, Wis., yesterday arrested here Dan Starr, who is alleged to have eloped from Lancaster, Wis., last fall with Mrs. A. Nichols. He returned with the officer to Lancaster, where he will meet the woman, who was arrested a few days since in Mitchell. Starr is a single man but the woman has a husband and several children in Lancaster.

SARAH DENIED NEW TRIAL.

Convicted of Poisoning Husband and Given Life Sentence.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 30.—Sarah Kuhn, sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering her aged husband at Delta by placing poison in his beer, was denied a new trial by the supreme court this morning, though Justice Weaver filed a dissenting opinion, in which he asserted the woman might be the victim of prejudice, and that the theory of suicide had not been wholly disproved.

TRIP ON MISSISSIPPI.

Wisconsin Editors Will Spend Two Weeks on the River.

La Crosse, Wis., May 30.—The Wisconsin Press association will have a two weeks' trip on the Mississippi river this summer as a feature of the annual outing. Plans are now being made by the officers. While the itinerary has not been completed, the association will make stops at the principal points, and La Crosse will be visited. It is expected the attendance will be the largest in the history of the association.

IS A FATAL SPOT.

Woman Going to Funeral of Child Is Killed as It Was.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, May 30—Mrs. Herbert Heskett yesterday was killed by an Illinois Central train while on her way to the funeral of a child killed at the same place. The babe she was wheeling was thrown into the creek and will die. The body was strewn along the track.

Newton Gets Principalship.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 30. — Prof. F. E. Newton, who has been instructor in civics and history in the high school, has been elected to the principalship of the West Side high school at Kankakee, Ill. The position is a very desirable one and will take him back to within a few miles of his home.

Body Ground to Bits.

Menomonie, Wis., May 30. — Fred Wahlstrom, aged twenty-four, was instantly killed at Knapp, this county, at an early hour yesterday morning while attempting to board a freight train. His body was cut to pieces.

Farmer Tired of Life.

Glenwood, Minn., May 30.—Ole Folberg, aged about forty years, a well-to-do farmer of White Bear Lake township, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. He leaves a family.

BEAST GOES WILD

ELEPHANT IS ENRAGED BECAUSE A MAN OFFERS HER A BEER GLASS.

HURLED VIOLENTLY TO THE GROUND

ANGRY ANIMAL THEN KNEELS ON THE MAN AND CRUSHES HIM TO DEATH.

HIS BODY IS BADLY MANGLED

TRAINERS DRIVE THE ANIMAL AWAY AND REMOVE THE BODY.

New York, May 30.—"Tops," a female elephant of the Forepaugh and Sells circus, killed a man yesterday at the show ground of the circus in Brooklyn. He was Joseph Blunt of Fort Wayne, Ind. He went to the elephant inclosure, where the animals were waiting for their breakfast, and each stuck out his trunk to "shake hands" as Blunt passed down in front of them, it being the custom of the trainers to salute each elephant with a gentle tap. Blunt had a beer glass in his hand and when he approached "Tops" he thrust it at her. The act seemed to offend her and she seized him with her trunk, and, after hurling him violently to the ground, knelt on him and crushed him to death. The trainers drove "Tops" back and recovered the body.

OVATION FOR HANNA.

Ohio Republican Convention Honors the Senator.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 30.—The ticket: Secretary of state, Lewis C. Laylin of Norwalk; judge of supreme court, William B. Crew of McConnellsville; food and dairy commissioner, Horace Ankeny of Xenia; member of the board of public works, William Kirtley, Jr., of Defiance.

The Republican state convention, which has been a continued ovation here all week to Senator Hanna, closed last evening with a great demonstration in his honor, to which he responded in a characteristic speech. The convention was distinguished for harmony on the chorus for Hanna in all that was done. One of the last reconciliations was that of Senator Hanna and Former Gov. Asa S. Bushnell of Springfield. The latter had been here all week, but Bushnell and Hanna never spoke as they passed each other's quarters. They had not spoken since the memorable contest for the senatorship in 1897. Before going to the convention yesterday they met in the most cordial manner. Senator Hanna and George B. Cox of Cincinnati also had a friendly farewell last night after a contest during the day over nominations. What were called the Hanna men won on all ballots, but Cox supported none of the winners. Gen. Grosvenor was heartily received as the permanent chairman, as was Gen. Dick when he read the resolutions.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS.

Nominate a State Ticket and Indorse the Administration.

Wichita, Kan., May 30.—The Republican state convention last night nominated the following ticket: Governor, ex-Congressman W. J. Bailey; lieutenant governor, D. J. Hanna; secretary of state, Joseph R. Burrow; auditor, Seth G. Wells; supreme justices, H. S. Mason, J. C. Pollock, A. L. Greene, A. H. Ellis, E. W. Cunningham; congressman-at-large, C. S. Scott. The feature of the convention was the strong Roosevelt sentiment. The platform warmly indorses the national administration.

NEGROES WANT TO LEAVE.

Will Ask Congress for $500,000,000 to Help Them Emigrate.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 30.—A petition to the president and congress of the United States asking for an appropriation of five hundred million dollars to assist negroes to leave the United States has been prepared by the International Emigration and Commercial association, an organization of negroes in session here. The petition recites a long train of abuses to which it is claimed the negroes are subjected. It is claimed that in many of the states the negro is denied all social and political recognition, and that his constitutional rights are constantly violated. The leading spirits in the convention are Bishop Turner of Georgia and ex-Minister to Liberia Heard.

TO PROTECT THE MINES.

Big Coal Companies Swear in Special Officers.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 30.—Some coal operators and superintendents held a secret meeting at one of the coal offices yesterday afternoon. It is understood there was a general discussion of the situation and what steps should be taken to protect the properties of the coal companies in case trouble should follow the installment of new men in the places of engineers, firemen and pumpmen who might quit work next Monday. The big coal companies continue to swear in special officers.

Mill and Lime Plant Burn.

Manistique, Mich., May 30. — Fire yesterday totally destroyed the shingle and the mill of the White Marble Lime company and the alcohol and acitrate lime plant of the Burrel Chemical company. The estimated loss of the former firm is $25,000 and the latter about $100,000. Both carried insurance.

Premiership Given Up.

Paris, May 30. — The resignation of the premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, was formally communicated to the cabinet at its meeting yesterday. Public announcement of the resignation will be made June 3.

Mass for Corrigan.

Rome, May 30. — A most imposing requiem mass for the late Archbishop Corrigan was celebrated in the Jesuit church yesterday morning. Bishop Macs officiated. The church was crowded.

PRAISED BY BUENCAMINO.

Civil Government Doing Wonderful Work in the Philippines.

Washington, May 31. — Gen. Filepe Buencamino of Manila, formerly Aguinaldo's secretary of war, called on the president yesterday in company with Secretary Root. He told the president that his mission to Washington was to correct some of the false reports that have been put in circulation with a view to discrediting the work of both the civil government under Judge Taft and the army. The civil government, he told the president, was doing a really wonderful work for good in the islands and it had been ably seconded by the army. The stories of cruelties perpetrated by our soldiers, he said, were either wholly untrue or greatly exaggerated. Judge Taft's commission had the entire confidence of all rightly disposed natives. The Filipinos, he said, love Judge Taft, for he has never once deceived them, and they know him to be their friend.

WILL FIGHT TO THE END.

Anthracite Coal Strike Cannot Be Settled.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 31.—The local coal operators do not credit the report, originating in New York, that a settlement of the miners' strike is imminent. One operator says it is doubtful whether the strikers would be permitted to return to work now at the old wages. They could probably return as individuals, but not in a body and representing a union. At strike headquarters nothing was known of a contemplated settlement. National Board Member Fallon says the strike could not be settled off-hand, as some persons imagined. If the coal companies had a proposition to make looking to the return of the men to work, a convention of miners would have to be called and the terms offered by the operators passed upon. This would take time.

CHICAGO GOES HUNGRY.

Thousands Unable to Get Beef at Any Price.

Chicago, May 31.—Thousands of persons in Chicago were unable to buy beef yesterday at any price, and it is declared that the shortage will be felt far more seriously to-day. Two hundred butchers on the Northwest side have decided to close their shops until the teamsters shall be granted the concessions asked and many others will be forced to close because of their inability to get fresh meat. A number of the Jewish butchers have agreed that they will not buy any more meat from the yards until the strike is settled. For the first time since the strike began violence was used yesterday and the men are becoming so much excited over the situation that more clashes are feared.

CHARGES AGAINST GOV. DAVIS.

Baptist Church Accuses Him of Drunkenness and Other Things.

Little Rock, Ark., May 31.—The supplementary charges upon which Gov. Jeff Davis was expelled from the Second Baptist church of Little Rock are as follows:

"Unchristian conduct and declaration of non-fellowship; scandalizing church; calling members traitors and hypocrites; defiance to church; misleading the public; aspersion of private character; causing publication of scurrilous attacks; arrogant, defiant, dictatorial, impertinent, refractory, dominating."

The charges preferred by the discipline committee were:

"Drunkenness (three charges); drunkenness and gambling; drunkenness and misconduct; drunkenness and ill-treating negroes; gross sins against the church."

BRIDGES WASHED AWAY.

Rivers in Oklahoma Territory Are on a Rampage.

Guthrie, Okla., May 31.—Residents of Woodward report Santa Fe bridges over both the North Canadian and South Canadian rivers washed out and the city isolated. This is on the Panhandle division. Six hundred feet of the South Canadian bridge are gone and all the wagon bridges over the Cimarron in its route of over 200 miles through Oklahoma. Rivers are again rising on account of the rains. In the city of Woodward the water stood two feet deep in the streets as the result of a water spout in the hills near there. Reports of additional damages are coming in from all portions of the territory. Mrs. Wilcher and son were drowned in Tiger creek, near Pokins.

DON'T LIKE STATUE GIVING.

Agrarians of Germany Displeased at the Emperor.

Berlin, May 31. — The unpleasant things which are being said about Emperor William and the ministry because of his majesty's presentation of a statue of Frederick the Great to the United States are, strange to say, all from the Agrarians, who are normally ministerialists, but who are now embittered against the government because of differences regarding the tariff. The Agrarians, through their newspapers, attack the imperial chancellor, Count von Buelow, for failing to persuade Emperor William from giving the statue, which they say was a political blunder because his action has not been appreciated in the United States.

WU'S QUEUE PULLED.

Startling Experience While on a Visit to an Insane Asylum.

Milledgeville, Ga., May 31.—Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, who delivered an address at the Georgia military college commencement yesterday, suffered the mortification of having his queue vigorously pulled by an inmate of the state insane asylum which he inspected before the school exercises began. The minister cried out in Chinese and English and his nerves were badly shaken before his tormentor was overpowered.

Release of Barrows.

Washington, May 31.—An order has been issued for the release of Capt. Fred Barrows of Minneapolis. He was convicted of fraud in the Philippines and sentenced to prison at Leavenworth, but will be given his freedom.

Commits Suicide While Sick.

Humboldt, Neb., May 31. — Thomas Maxwell's wife left the house. A searching party found a bit of clothing on the bank of the Nemaha river, and on this clothing was a note bidding the husband and family good-bye. She was ill.

FLOOD THE MINES

READING COMPANY'S THIRTY-SIX COLLIERIES WILL BE ALLOWED TO FLOOD.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK OF THE STRIKE

OTHER MINES WILL BE SAVED FROM FLOODING AT ALL HAZARDS.

SPECIAL OFFICERS SWORN IN

BITUMINOUS MINERS SAID TO BE OPPOSED TO GOING ON STRIKE.

Shamokin, Pa., June 1. — Unless the Reading Coal and Iron company changes its present plans thirty-six collieries, employing 24,000 men and boys in the ninth district, will be allowed to flood next Monday.

Three of the best collieries of the company in Schuylkill county will be saved from flooding by the company at all hazards. A force of 250 coal and iron policemen are ready to guard non-union engineers and firemen, who will take the present incumbents' places in case they quit Monday.

District President Nichols made a statement here to the effect that the matter of proceeding against what he terms the coal trust through the state authorities is being considered and declares such action may be taken. Mr. Nichols says that the engineers will strike on Monday, and that the demand for an eight-hour day made on behalf of the firemen, engineers and pump runners will not be withdrawn under any circumstances.

Violence at Wilkesbarre.

An agent for a West Virginia coal company, who has been in Wilkesbarre the past week hiring men to go south, was assaulted by striking miners and their sympathizers at a Slavish settlement in the northern part of that city. The party making the assault said the agent was endeavoring to get the anthracite miners to go to West Virginia to take the places of strikers there. The representative of the coal company tried to escape by jumping on an electric car as it was passing, but he was pulled from the car and severely beaten. All the coal companies are commissioning special officers to guard their property.

The committee representing many of the engineers of the Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys were at President Mitchell's headquarters in Wilkesbarre yesterday. The committee says the men they represent are opposed to going out on strike.

Operators Are Firm.

New York, June 1.—The reports that have been incirculation for the past day or two that the strike of the anthracite miners will be settled through the influence of outside parties early next week were positively denied on behalf of the operators.

Bituminous Men Oppose Strike.

Indianapolis, June 1.—It can be stated positively now that President John Mitchell of the United Mineworkers' organization left here Thursday night in great perplexity over the situation in the bituminous fields and seriously questioning the advisability of calling a convention to consider a general strike. The sentiment is almost unanimous against it.

STRIKE WILL GO ON.

Packing Concerns Refuse to Grant Demands of Striking Teamsters.

Chicago, June 1.—The four big packing concerns of the stock yards at conferences held yesterday with the union labor representatives representing the striking teamsters refused absolutely to grant the concessions asked for or any part of them, and went on record as being unalterably opposed to the recognition of union labor in the yards. Thousands of persons had their usual supply of meat cut off yesterday and many others who were able to buy a little meat here and there paid fancy prices for it. All throughout the city butchers closed down and many of them will not open again until the strike has been settled.

HORSES KILL A TIGER.

Two-Year-Old Fury From India in a Fight on Circus Train.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 1.—A two-year-old Indian tiger was killed in a fight with horses on a circus train while en route from Goshen to Poughkeepsie early yesterday. The tiger, which had recently been imported, escaped from its wagon denn while the train was in motion. It crowled over the tops of four wagons and entered a car containing thirty horses. A fierce battle ensued, the panic-stricken horses plunging and kicking at the savage intruder. When the train reached here the tiger was found dead under the hoofs of the horses. Six of the horses were badly scratched and bitten.

KEANE STORY DENIAL.

No Foundation for the Report That Pope Will Name Him.

Rome, June 1.—The statement published by the Daily Mail of London that at the consistory to be held June 9 the pope will nominate Archbishop Keane of Dubuque, Iowa, to succeed the late Archbishop Corrigan of New York, is without foundation. It appears now to be extremely improbable that the pope will depart from his customary practice of appointing an archbishop's successor from among the clergy of the diocese in which the vacancy occurs.

Aeronaut Is Killed.

Kingston, Jam., June 1. — Harry Hicks, an aeronaut, was killed at Kingston Point, a summer resort, yesterday. In some manner he lost his hold on his parachute and fell about 800 feet, striking on his head.

Many Injured in Collision.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 1.—A car carrying forty passengers and a freight car collided on the new Paltz & Poughkeepsie electric line and a dozen passengers were badly hurt. The ends of both cars were crushed in.

HORSES ARE FOUND.

Two Teams Are Located and Two Men Arrested.

Madison, S. D., June 1.—Officers of Minor county have been here for two days unearthing a nest of horse thieves who have been operating in that and adjoining counties east. Stephen Parks and Sy Allen, who have been living with the latter's mother on a farm five miles south of this city, have been arrested and taken to Howard for a hearing, which will take place next Monday. A team stolen from the barn of H. Hauk, three miles north of Howard, last Sunday night, was found in possession of Parks and Allen on the place south of here, and also a team supposed to belong to a man at Pipestone. The men arrested have been here since January and have been trading in horses.

PANIC ON RIVER BOAT.

Diamond Jo Steamer Crashes Into Bridge Protection at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., June 1.—The heavily loaded passenger packet Dubuque of the Diamond Jo line pulled away from the levee at this city yesterday and was caught in the swift current and before her powerful engines could be put in motion crashed against the iron wedge-shaped protection of the bridge pier. Her side was badly damaged. Immediately after the accident women on the boat became panicstricken, and it took the combined efforts of the officers and crew to prevent serious trouble, several running to the sides of the boat in an effort to jump overboard. Order was restored without serious injuries. The boat was repaired and proceeded down river.

STRANGERS HAVE UPPER HAND.

George W. Sherwood of Duluth Dies With Money Unprotected in Bank.

Duluth, June 1.—Geo. W. Sherwood, a pioneer resident of Duluth, is dead at Santa Cruz, Southern California. He had $14,000 in the bank there and parties that are unknown to the relatives here have an order for it which the bank hesitates to pay.

The relatives here have instructed the bank to not pay until there is investigation.

It is now believed in Duluth that Dr. T. J. Story, who has mysteriously disappeared, has gone to India to perfect himself in the study of theosophy. It is said that he announced a long time ago that he expected a summons from there and when it came he could not disregard it. It is believed that Dr. Story and the mysterious Mr. Watson are the same.

CHOLERA CUTS OFF CAREER.

Lieut. O. H. Rask, St. Paul, Dies in the Philippines.

St. Paul, June 1.—The second American officer to die of cholera in the Philippines was Lieut. Olaf Harald Rask, of the United States marine corps, formerly an officer of the fifteenth Minnesota and for several years a newspaper man in the Twin Cities, whose death took place Thursday at Bacoor, near Manila. The fact was reported in a cable message received yesterday at Washington by Secretary Moody of the navy department. The message added that Lieut. Rask was buried the same day.

JAILBREAKER GIVES UP.

One of Five in South Dakota Returns—Bloodhounds Fail.

Sturgis, S. D., June 1.—Van Hoose, one of the five Meade county jailbreakers, has given himself up. Two went south into the Hills, one north and two east. A reward of $25 for each man has been offered by Sheriff Smith. Bloodhounds failed after ten miles of trailing. Scofield and Caldwell, charged with horse stealing, know the country well. A dozen parties are now searching. The men cannot get out of the country.

S. D. PURDY DIES.

Chief Engineer of Burlington Division Victim of Wreck.

La Crosse, June 1. — S. D. Purdy, chief engineer of the northern division of the Burlinton, who had both legs cut off in the wreck of the official inspection party's train at Alma yesterday, died at the La Crosse hospital this morning at 9 o'clock. He had no hope of recovery from the time of the accident and his legs were not amputated.

New Bank at Spring Valley.

Spring Valley, Minn., June 1. — On the application of Everett Jones, J. B. Langum, Julius Krouse, N. T. Cummings and Obe Clouse the controller of the currency, under date of May 24, has authorized the organization of the Spring Valley National Bank of Spring Valley. Other prominent capitalists and farmers will be included. A modern fire proof bank building will be erected in the near future.

St. James Boy Stole Father's Team.

Yankton, S. D., June 1.—The son of a saloonkeeper at St. James, Minn., who had a team stolen last Wednesday night, was arrested here last night with the team in his possession. The night the team was stolen a store at St. James was broken into and a considerable amount of jewelry stolen. It is believed the boy is guilty of both crimes.

Collector Murphy Testifies.

Fargo, N. D., June 1.—The evidence of the state in the embezzlement case against Mark Murphy is completed and Murphy is on the stand in his own defense. Murphy was deputy collector of customs at portal and is charged with having failed to account for all the money taken in.

Conductor Crushed Between Cars.

La Crosse, Wis., June 1. — August Hacker of Portage, extra conductor on the Milwaukee road, was crushed between two cars and had one foot run over in the yards here yesterday. It is thought he cannot recover.

Spear Fish With a Light.

Appleton, Minn., June 1. — J. Brown and Albert Hanson, two young men of this town, were brought before Judge Countryman, charged with spearing fish with artificial light. Upon trial they were found guilty and fined $25 each or thirty days in jail.

Killed by a Runaway.

Red Wing, Minn., June 1.—Andrew Lundquist, residing on an island opposite this city, was thrown from a wagon in a runaway, sustaining injuries from which he died.

The Crimson Blind

By Fred M. White

CHAPTER XI.

After Rembrandt.

"Before we go any further," Bell said, after a long pause, I should like to search the house from top to bottom. I've got a pretty sound theory in my head, but I don't like to leave anything to chance. We shall be pretty certain to find something."

"I am entirely in your hands," David said, wearily. "So far as I am capable of thinking out anything, it seems to me that we have to find the woman."

"Cherchez la femme is a fairly sound promise in a case like this; but when we have found the woman we shall have to find the man who is at the bottom of the plot. I mean the man who is not only thwarting the woman, but giving you a pretty severe lesson as to the advisability of minding your own business for the future."

"Then you think I am being made the victim of a vile conspiracy?"

"Not by a woman, certainly. You are the victim of some fiendish counterplot by the man who has not quite mastered what the woman is driving at. By placing you in dire peril he compels the woman to speak to save you, and thus to expose her hand."

"Then, in that case, I propose to sit tight," David said, grimly. "I am bound to be prosecuted for robbery and attempted murder in due course. If my man dies I am in a tight place."

"And if he recovers, your antagonist may be in a tighter," Bell chuckled. "And if the man gets well and the brain injury proves permanent—I mean if the man is rendered imbecile—why, we are only at the very threshold of the mystery. It seems a callous thing to say, but this is the prettiest problem I have had under my hands."

"Make the most of it," David said, sardonically. "I daresay I should see the matter in a more rational light if I were not so directly concerned. But, if we are going to make a search of the premises, the sooner we start the better."

Up stairs there was nothing beyond certain lumber. There were dust and dirt everywhere, save in the hall and front dining room, which, as Bell sapiently pointed out had obviously been cleared to make room for Steel's strange reception. Down in the housekeeper's room was a large collection of dusty furniture and a number of pictures and engravings piled up with their faces to the wall. Bell began idly to turn the latter over.

"I am a maniac on the subject of old prints," he explained. "I never see a pile without a wild longing to examine them. And, by Jove, there are some good things here. Unless I am greatly mistaken—here, Steel, pull up the blinds! Good Heavens, is it possible?"

"Found a Sistine Madonna or a stray Angelo?" David asked. "Or a ghost? What is the matter? Is it another phase of the mystery?"

"The Rembrandt," Bell gasped. "Look at it, man!"

Steel bent eagerly over the engraving. An old print, an old piece of china, an antique jewel, always exercised a charm over the novelist. He had an unerring eye for that kind of thing.

"Exquisite!" he cried. "A Rembrandt, of course, but I don't recollect the picture."

"The picture was destroyed by accident, after Rembrandt had engraved it with his own hand," Bell proceeded to explain. He was quite coherent now, but he breathed fast and loud. "I shall proceed to give you the history of the picture presently, and more especially a history of the engraving."

"Has it any particular name?" David asked.

"Yes; we found that out. It was called 'The Crimson Blind.'"

"No getting away from the crimson blind," David murmured. Still, I can quite imagine that to have been the name of the picture. That shutter or blind might have had a setting sun behind it, which would account for the tender warmth of the kitchen foreground and the deep gloom where the lovers are seated. By Jove, Bell, it is a magnificent piece of work. I've a special fancy for Rembrandt engravings but I never saw one equal to that."

"And you never will," Bell replied, "save in one instance. The picture itself was painted in Rembrandt's modest lodging in the Keizerskroon Tavern, after the forced sale of his paintings at that hotel in the year 1658. At that time Rembrandt was painfully poor, as his recorded tavern bills show. The same bills also disclose the fact that 'The Crimson Blind' was painted for a private customer, with a condition that the subject should be engraved, as well. After one impression had been taken off the plate the picture was destroyed by a careless servant. In a sudden fit of rage, Rembrandt destroyed the plate, having, they say, only taken one impression from it."

"Then there is only one of these engravings in the world? What a find?"

"There is one other, as I know to my cost," Bell said, significantly. "Until a few days ago I never entertained the idea that there were two. Steel, you are the victim of a vile conspiracy, but it is nothing to the victory which has darkened my life."

"Sooner or later, I always felt that I should get to the bottom of the mystery, and now I am certain of it. And, strange as it may seem, I verily believe that you and I are hunting the same man down—that the one man is at the bottom of the two evils. But you shall hear my story presently. What we have to find out now is who was the last tenant and who is the present owner of the house, and, incidentally, learn who this lumber belongs to. Ah, this has been a great day for me!"

Bell spoke exultingly, a light shining in his eyes. And David sapiently asked no further questions at present. All that he wanted to know would come in time. The next move, of course, was to visit the agent of the property.

A smart, dapper little man, looking absurdly out of place in an exceedingly spacious office, was quite ready to give every information. It was certainly true that 218 Brunswick Square was to be let at an exceedingly low rent on a repairing lease, and that the owner had a lot more property in Brighton, to be let on the same terms. The lady was exceedingly rich and eccentric; indeed, by asking such low rents, she was doing her best to seriously diminish her income.

"So far as I can tell, the property came

"Do you know the lady at all?" Bell asked.

"Not personally," the agent admitted. into the present owner's hands some years ago, by inheritance. The property also included a very old house, called Longdean Grange, not far from Rottingdean, where the lady, Mrs. Henson, lives at present. Nobody ever goes there, nobody ever visits there, and to keep the place free from prying visitors a large number of savage dogs are allowed to prowl about the grounds."

Bell listened eagerly. Watching him, Steel could see that his eyes glinted like points of steel. There was something subtle behind all this commonplace that touched the imagination of the novelist.

"Has 218 been let during the occupation of the present owner?" Bell asked.

"No," the agent replied. "But the present owner—as heir to the property—I am told, was interested in both 218 and 219, which used to be a kind of high-class convalescent home for poor clergy and the widows and daughters of poor clergy in want of a holiday. The one house was for the men and the other for the women, and both were furnished exactly alike; in fact, Mr. Gates' landlord, the tenant of 219, bought the furniture, exactly as it stands, when the scheme fell through."

Steel looked up swiftly. A sudden inspiration came to him.

"In that case what became of the precisely similar furniture in 218?" he asked.

"That I cannot tell you," the agent said. "That house was let as it stood, to some sham philanthropist whose name I forget. The whole thing was a fraud, and the swindler only avoided arrest by leaving the country. Probably the goods were stored somewhere, or, perhaps, seized by some creditor. But I really can't say definitely without looking the matter up. There are some books and prints now left in the house out of the wreck. We shall probably put them in a sale, only they have been overlooked. The whole lot would not fetch £5."

"Would you take £5 for them?" Bell asked.

"Gladly. Even if only to get them carted away."

Bell gravely produced a £5 note, for which he asked and received a receipt. Then he and Steel repaired to 218 once more, whence they recovered the Rembrandt, and subsequently returned the keys of the house to the agent. There was an air of repressed excitement about Bell which was not without its effect upon his companion. The cold, hard lines seemed to have faded from Bell's face; there was a brightness about him that added to his already fine physical beauty.

"And now, perhaps, you will be good enough to explain," David suggested.

"My dear fellow, it would take too long," Bell cried. "Presently I am going to tell you the story of the tragedy of my life. You have, doubtless wondered, as others have wondered, why I dropped out of the road when the goal was in sight. Well, your curiosity is about to be gratified. I am going to help you, and you, in turn, are going to help me to come back into the race again. By way of a start, you are going to ask me to come and dine with you to-night."

"At half-past seven, then. Nothing will give me greater pleasure."

"Spoken like a man and a brother. We will dine, and I will tell you my story after the house is quiet. And if I ask you to accompany me on a midnight adventure, you will not say me nay?"

"Not in my present mood, at any rate. Adventure, with a dash of danger in it, suits my present mood exactly. And if there is to be physical violence, so much the better. My diplomacy may be weak, but physically, I am not to be despised in a row."

"Well, we'll try and avoid the latter, if possible," Bell laughed. "Still, for your satisfaction, I may say there is just the chance of a scrimmage. And now I really must go, because I have any amount of work to do for Gates. Till half-past seven, au revoir."

Steel lighted a cigarette and strolled thoughtfully homeward along the front. The more he thought over the mystery, the more tangled it became. And yet he felt perfectly sure that he was on the right track. The discovery that both those houses had been furnished exactly alike at one time was a most important one. And David no longer believed that he had been to 219 on the night of the great adventure. Then he found himself thinking about Ruth Gates' gentle face and lovely eyes, until he looked up and saw the girl before him.

"You—you wanted to speak to me?" he stammered.

"I followed you on purpose," the girl said, quietly. "I can't tell you everything, because it is not my secret to tell. But, believe me, everything will come out right in the end. Don't think badly of me, don't be hard and bitter, because—"

"Because I am nothing of the kind," David smiled. "It is impossible to look into a face like yours and doubt you. And I am certain that you are acting loyally and faithfully for the sake of others who—"

"Yes, yes, and for your sake too. Pray try and remember that. For your sake, too. Oh, if you only knew how I admire and esteem you! If only—"

She paused, with a deep blush crimsoning her face. David caught her hand, and it seemed to him for a moment that she returned the pressure.

"Let me help you," he whispered. "Only be my friend, and I will forgive everything."

She gave him a long look of her deep, velvety eyes, she flashed him a smile, and was gone.

CHAPTER XII.

"The Crimson Blind."

Hatherly Bell turned up at Downend Terrace, gay and debonaire as if he had not a single trouble in the world. His evening dress was of the smartest and he had a rose in his buttonhole. From his cab he took a small square brown paper parcel, which he deposited in David's study with particular care.

He made no allusion whatever to the sterner business of the evening; he was gay and light-hearted as a child, so that Mrs. Steel sat up quite an hour later than her usual time, absolutely unconscious of the fact that she had broken a rigid rule of ten years' standing.

"Now, let us go into the study and smoke a cigar," David suggested.

Bell dragged along a deck-chair into the conservatory and lighted a Manna. Steel's offer of whisky and soda was declined.

"An ideal place for a novelist who has a keen eyes for the beautiful," he said. "There you have your books and pictures, your stained glass and china, and when you turn your eyes this way they are gladdened by green foliage and lovely flowers. It's hard to connect such a room with a tragedy."

"And yet, the tragedy was worked out close by where you are sitting. But never mind that; come to your story, and let me see if we can fit it into mine."

Bell took a fresh pull at his cigar and plunged into his subject.

"About seven years ago professional business took me to Amsterdam; a brilliant young medical genius who was drinking himself prematurely into the grave had made some wonderful discoveries relating to the brain and psychology generally, so I decided to learn what I could before it was too late. I found the young doctor to be an exceedingly good fellow, only too ready to speak of his discoveries, and there I stayed for a year. My word, what do I not owe to that misguided mind! And what a revolution he would have made in medicine and surgery had he only lived!

"Well, in Amsterdam I got to know everybody who was worth knowing—medical, artistic, social. And, among the rest was an Englishman called Lord Littmer, his son, and an exceedingly clever nephew of his, Henson by name, who was the son's tutor. Littmer was a savant, a scholar and a fine connoisseur as regarded pictures. He was popularly supposed to have the finest collection of old prints in England. He would travel anywhere in search of something fresh, and the rumor of some apocryphal treasure in Amsterdam had brought him thither. He and I were friends from the first, as, indeed, were the son and myself. Hensen, the nephew, was more quiet and reserved, but fond, as I discovered, of a little secret dissipation.

"In these days I was not averse to a little life myself. I was passionately fond of all games of cards, and I am afraid that I was in the habit of gambling to a greater extent than I could afford. I don't gamble now, and I don't play cards; in fact, I shall never touch a card again as long as I live. Why, you shall hear all in good time.

"We were all getting on very well together at that time when Lord Littmer's sister paid us a visit. She came accompanied by a daughter called Enid. I will not describe her, because no words of mine could do her justice. In a word, I fell head over heels in love with Enid, and in that state I have remained ever since. Of all the crosses that I have to bear, the knowledge that I love Enid and that she loves—and despises—me, is by far the heaviest. But I don't want to dwell upon that.

"We were a very happy party then, until Van Sneck and Von Gulden turned up. Enid and I had come to an understanding, and though we kept our secret, we were not to do so for long. From the very first, Von Gulden admired her. He was a handsome, swaggering soldier, a good-looking, wealthy man, who had a great reputation for gallantry, and something worse. Perhaps the fellow guessed how things lay, for he never troubled to conceal his dislike and contempt for me. It is no fault of mine that I am extremely sensitive as to my personal appearance, but Von Gulder played upon it until he drove me nearly mad. He challenged me, sneeringly, to certain sports wherein he knew I could not shine; he challenged me to ecarte, where I fancied I was his master.

"Was I? Well, we had been dining that night, and perhaps too freely, for I entirely lost my head before I began the game in earnest. Those covert sneers had driven me nearly mad. To make a long story short, when I got up from the table that night I owed my opponent nearly £800 without the faintest prospect of paying a tenth part of it. I was only a poor, ambitious young man then, with my way to make in the world. And if that money was not forthcoming in the next few days I was utterly ruined.

"The following morning the great discovery was made. The Van Sneck I have alluded to was an artist, a dealer, a man of the shadiest reputation, whom my patron, Lord Littmer, had picked up. It was Van Sneck who produced the copy of 'The Crimson Blind.' Not only did he produce the copy, but he produced the history from some recently-discovered papers relating to the Keizerskroon Tavern of the year 1656, which would have satisfied a more exacting man than Littmer. In the end the viscount purchased the engraving for £800 English.

"You can imagine how delighted he was with his prize—he had secured an engraving by Rembrandt that was absolutely unique. Under more favorable circumstances I should have shared that pleasure. But I was face to face with ruin, and, therefore, I had little heart for rejoicing.

"I came down the next morning after a sleepless night, and with a wild endeavor to scheme some way of getting the money to pay my creditor. To my absolute amazement I found a polite note from the lieutenant, coldly thanking me for the notes I had sent him by messenger, and handing me a formal receipt for £800. At first I regarded it as a hoax. But, with all his queer ways, Van Gulden was a gentleman. Somebody had paid the debt for me. And somebody had, though I have never discovered who to this day."

"All the same, you have your suspicions?" Steel said.

"I have a very strong suspicion, but I have never been able to verify it. All the same, you can imagine what an enormous weight it was off my mind, and how comparatively cheerful I was as I crossed over to the hotel of Lord Littmer after breakfast. I found him literally beside himself with passion. Some thief had got into his room in the night and stolen his Rembrandt. The frame was intact, but the engraving had been rolled up and taken away."

"Very like the story of the stolen Gainsborough."

"No doubt the one theft inspired the other. I set off on foot to look for Van Sneck, only to find that he had suddenly left the city. He had got into trouble with the police, and had fled to avoid being sent to jail. And from that day to this nothing has been seen of that picture."

"But I read to-day that it is still in Littmer Castle," said David.

(To Be Continued.)

Ian Maclaren's Soldier Son.

The Rev. John Watson's son has just gone off to South Africa with a regiment of volunteers from Liverpool, made up of men born of Scotch families. The father was proud of his son's chance to serve the empire, and hopes that he will live up to his soldier duties as well as he has to his filial ones. The Sunday afternoon before the soldiers started to embark they worshiped in Dr. Watson's church, and the father and son walked up the aisle together, each in the garb of his calling. The sermon was an exhortation to noble, chaste, chivalric living, conserving the traditions of the empire, of Scottish gentlemen and of their Christian professions. Dr. Watson, as he preached, suppressed the emotion of his heart, and did not betray his feeling.—Congregationalist.

Paris' New First Aid Scheme.

Paris has lately been testing a novel apparatus for rendering first aid. In design the contrivance is suggestive of a pillar letter box, containing a small medicine chest and a folding stretcher. Possession of the latter is obtained by breaking a glass panel, in the same way as the glass of a fire alarm post is broken when a fire engine is called. In addition to the key of the case, access is gained to a telephone inside communicating with the ambulance station in the immediate neighborhood. Nothing of a similar kind exists in London, although, of course, the occasional boxlike structures sheltering the ambulances of the St. John Ambulance association, remotely resemble them.—

Life of a Much-Loved Novelist.

In his forthcoming biography of William Black, the novelist, Sir Wemyss Reid tells a very entertaining story of Black's life, his relations with his friends and with the characters in his books. Black once told Sir Wemyss that of all his many stories, "Madcap Violet" was his favorite; and it is known that the scenes described in that novel were drawn direct from the neighborhood of Black's own house, in Camberwell Grove, which was known as Airlie House. The country road about has changed considerably since the story was written, but it is said that the home of James Drummond, the hero of "Madcap Violet," is still standing.

Not Exactly Comforting.

Admiral Schley was strolling around the picturesque naval cemetery at Annapolis, the other day, when, happening to meet an old sailor, he said, in a kindly way:

"Jack, this is a beautiful spot."

Saluting, the weather-beaten salt replied:

"Aye, aye, sir. And it'll be still finer, your honor, when some of our good admirals get planted her."—New York Times.

Spring School Days.

Teacher—Didn't you write this excuse for being late yourself, Henry?

Henry—Yes; but father told me to write it for him.

Teacher—And he signed it?

Henry—Yes'm.

Teacher—But I didn't know your father's name was Henry.

Henry—Guess he must have forgot.

Teacher—I think it was you who forgot, Henry.—Boston Transcript.

Jones—Why?

Brown—They merely encourage lazy parents to believe that their unruly children will all turn out geniuses.—Detroit Free Press.

The Octopus.

"What!" ejaculated the man. "Four hundred dollars for that dress?"

"Yes," answered the wife, soothingly. "It is the train that makes it so expensive."

"Ah-h-h!" groaned the husband, "that cursed railroad trust again."—Baltimore American.

Is It "Named For" or "Named After?"

Should I say that my son is "named for" his grandfather, or that he is "named after" him?

You may say either; but the weight of "named for" has some vogue in the United States, but it is no longer correct in England; "named after" is in good use in both countries.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Toast.

One evening we had toast for supper, and as we were eating, my little sister, Gertrude, aged, five, said:

"Mamma, please give me one of those pieces of bread that are rusty on both sides."—Little Chronicle.

HELPED BY LOTTERY

HISTORY OF BEGINNING OF CITY OF WASHINGTON.

Builders Had Very Humble Ideas and Little Money to Carry Them Out—Now a Sight Eclipsing the Beauty of Paris and Vienna.

Efforts to provide more decent and reputable quarters for the Chief Executive and his corps recall many interesting facts in the early history of some of the public buildings in Washington.

It was not until 1796 that the tempest-tossed Congress of the thirteen colonies saw the first evidences of the Federal city that excited the mirth of the wits, the foreboding of the timid. The circumference of the city as it now spreads out under the great dome is greatly contracted from the imposing dimensions originally laid out by the engineer, L'Enfant. Where the superb patent office now stretches in marble majesty the poetic Frenchman, inspired by recent events in Paris, had marked the site for a national tabernacle, where national events were to be religiously commemorated, where national obsequies were to be celebrated, and the dead honored by the country were to be buried and their monuments perpetuated—a sort of Pantheon to the glories of the republic. But the Frenchman's hopes and plans were early nipped, for even in those early days "jobs" and "rings" found their account. He was beset on all sides by venal legislators and self-seeking jobbers, and practically coerced into throwing up his commission in disdain, leaving the city to be completed by Andrew Ellicott.

In 1782 $500 in gold was offered, without restriction as to calling, to the citizen who should send in the accepted design for the president's house. Five hundred dollars and a lot in the new city or a gold medal were offered for the best design of the Capitol. To a generation that has became familiar with the sums annually appropriated and voted for postoffice and custom houses our forefathers will seem thrifty indeed, embarking upon city building with a grant of $19,200 from the states of Virginia and Maryland.

This, however, was supplemented by a national lottery, for which 60,000 tickets were sold and of which 16,730 were to draw prizes, the capital one being a hotel which was to cost $50,000. The price of the ticket was $7, and the prizes ranged from $10 up to the hotel. Nor need the student of current morals and manners, depressed by the laxity of our times, wholly despond when he reflects that the lottery was made use of not only in the building of our national capitol, but churches, schools, colleges, even Harvard itself, were indebted to the wheel for money to secure their usefulness.

In 1796 the president's house and the capitol were the only evidences of a city where the traveler now sees squares and monuments, edifices and gardens and parks that eclipse Paris and Vienna in beauty and taste. When the lottery failed and the sums voted by Virginia and Maryland gave out Washington was less of a city than Cahaba, down in Alabama, which was once the capital of that state and was sold for taxes. Three hundred thousand dollars were asked by the commissioners to go on with the work, and the country was distracted by such profligate outlay. The press of the times thundered against such extravagance.—Washington Times.

Too Poor to Eat Beefsteak.

Representative. Sulzer went down into the house restaurant the other day rather undecided as to what he should order for lunch, says the Washington Times. He sat down at a table, picked up a menu card and glanced over it, looked on the back cover and then threw it down, much as a man would do whose appetite was on a strike and who was endeavoring to devise some plan of arbitration.

"I really don't exactly know what I do want," he said, rather indifferently, to the colored individual who stood at the back of his chair.

"Have one of dem nice poetahhouse steaks, Mr. Sulzer," suggested the obsequious garcon.

"What!" exclaimed the New York representative. "George, you must mistake me for J. Pierpont Morgan, or a Standard Oil magnate. I'm a poor man; only a member of congress, and I can't afford to eat beefsteak. Besides I've only $64 with me to-day, and I would very much dislike to have part of the bill for my lunch charged. No, George, just bring me a ham sandwich."

Some Fool Questions.

"We all have our troubles," said the colored philosopher who runs the elevator in the postoffice, "but the worst of it is that we think no one has any but ourselves. My greatest trouble is in answering fool questions, and I get a good many of them in the course of the day. Yesterday there was a hung jury, and one of 'em asked me if we had good beds for jurymen who were kept over night! I told him I hadn't seen any yet, and I'd been here for a good while. To-day the weather bureau hung their sign as usual in the elevator. It said 'Fair,' and that's all, same as it often does. It hadn't been there five minutes when a man from up the state came in and asked me, 'Where's this yer fair at?' I told him it was in the Circuit court room if it was anywhere. 'Wall,' says he, 'I can't take it in. I've got to go to the circus.' And that's the way I get 'em right along."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

HOSPITAL SECRETS.

A Nurse Says: "Peruna is a Tonic of Efficiency."

MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

Mrs. Kate Taylor, a graduated nurse of prominence, gives her experience with Peruna in an open letter. Her position in society and professional standing combine to give special prominence to her utterances.

CHICAGO, ILL., 437 Monroe St.—"As far as I have observed Peruna is the finest tonic any man or woman can use who is weak from the after effects of any serious illness.

"I have seen it used in a number of convalescent cases, and have seen several other tonics used, but I found that those who used Peruna had the quickest relief.

"Peruna seems to restore vitality, increase bodily vigor and renew health and strength in a wonderfully short time."—MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned specialist on female catarrhal diseases, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months, without charge. Barmaids' Occupation Gone.

Barmaids are a peculiarly British institution, but there is a strong movement in Scotland to prohibit women from following this occupation. The Glasgow magistrates have decided to refuse to renew licenses in those saloons in which women are attendants. This decision has thrown 2,000 barmaids out of work in that city.—London Cable to New York World.

Breastbone of a Duck.

Dr. Robert F. Weir, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, was describing an operation he had performed for the purpose of making a new nose for a man who had lost that more or less ornamental organ. To replace the lost bony framework, Dr. Weir had made use of part of the breastbone of a duck. The doctor concluded by saying:

"The man was very well satisfied with the result; but I do not think I shall repeat the operation, for the patient persists in speaking of me as his 'quack' doctor."—New York Times.

The Lady of the Lake.

Marie Corelli, in her recent lecture upon "The Vanishing Cliff," pointed to what the Glasgow corporation proposed doing at Loch Katrine, as another evidence of the blind utilitarianism of the day. This is what the water trust proposes. They mean to add another half-million sterling to their present borrowing powers for three and a half millions in order to obtain an additional supply of 10,000,000 gallons of water daily from Loch Arklet, to raise the level of Loch Katrine and other purposes. "Let Glasgow flourish," and get good drinking water, even though the shades of the Lady of the Lake disappear from her former haunts. That seems to be the motto of the local water trust.

A Cure for Dropsy.

Ashley, North Dakota, June 2d.—J. H. Hanson of this place has found a cure for Dropsy.

For years Mr. Hanson himself has suffered with Rheumatism of the Heart and Dropsy, and of late has been so bad that he could not work.

He has tried many remedies, but nothing he could get helped him in the least, and he was growing worse and worse.

Finally he began a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and to his great delight he soon found that the Dropsical Swelling was gradually going down and that the Rheumatism of the Heart was also disappearing. He says:

"I have taken seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am feeling better than I have for five years

"I am able to work again, and if the Dropsy or Heart Trouble ever comes back I shall use Dodd's Kidney Pills at once."

Scantily Clad.

Little Augusta was at the window.

"Oh, come, quick, or you won't see it!" she called, excitedly. "He's running away!"

THE HUMOR OF LIFE.

LITTLE JESTS THAT TEND TO DRIVE AWAY DULL CARE.

The Latest and Best Definition of a Sociable Man—Why One Little Boy Did Not Fish on the Sabbath—Blessings of Poverty.

Truth Will Out.

Sunday School Teacher—I was very sorry to hear, Sandy, that you went fishing last Sunday; you should certainly set a better example than that. Now, here's a little boy (turning to newcomer) who does not go fishing on the Lord's Day. Do you, little boy?

Newcomer—No, sir.

Sunday School Teacher—Ah! I thought as much. One look in that innocent face was convincing. And why don't you go fishing on Sunday?

Newcomer—'Cause there ain't no fishing where I live.

Blessings of Poverty.

"No," mused the poor husbandman. "I do not envy the rich. I have no bitter feeling toward those who roll in wealth. My soul harbors no thoughts of malice toward the men who are popularly supposed to revel in luxury."

Here he picked up the stick with which he had been beating the parlor carpet and resumed operations, saying between strokes:

"Think—of—having—to—beat—a million—dollars'—worth—of these—dadblamed—carpets—every—spring!"

Method in Her Madness.

It was not one of those lovers' quarrels which are got up for the sake of enjoying the sweets of "making it up again," but a really, genuine affair in which both parties felt thoroughly aggrieved. They parted in anger and next day the lady wrote him the following note:

"Herewith I return all your presents, with the exception of the diamond ring, which I shall keep to remind me of your meanness and horrid conduct!"

A Puzzle Expert.

"What a bulging forehead your friend has?"

"Yes; he's a great genius at solving puzzles. Gets more prizes than any other man in the business."

"But I don't see how he can keep himself busy?"

"Oh, when he isn't employed with the regular puzzles he tackles magazine poetry."

Perfectly Satisfied.

Papa—Is the teacher satisfied with you?

Toby—O, quite.

Papa—Did he tell you so?

Toby—Yes. After a close examination he said to me the other day, "If all my scholars were like you I would shut up my school this very day!" That shows that I know enough.

During the Railroad Suit.

"Your honor," said the lawyer, "my client demands $10,000 damages."

"For what?"

"For loss of speech."

"But I thought he merely had two fingers cut off."

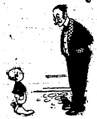
"Exactly, your honor! He is a deaf mute!"

Like Master, Like Man.

"A mule," said Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "is sho' one er de meanes' animals dat walks on feet."

"Das so," answered Mr. Cassius Colliflower; "but when you considers some o' de human folks he has to work fob, you can't blame de mule so much."

A Sociable Man.



Small Boy—Pa, what is a sociable man?

Pa—A man who, when he has ten minutes to spare, goes and bothers somebody who hasn't.

Settling a Mooted Point.

The Boston Globe has decided that "An infant in the cradle may be very rich and none the less innocent."

This really ought to reconcile a great many infants to being born just as rich as possible.

A Literal Interpretation.

"Why do we say: 'Give us this day our daily bread?'" asked a Sunday school teacher after the lesson.

"Because we want it fresh," answered a little girl.—Little Chronicle.

Money in Quinine.

"I'm surprised at his moving to Swamphurst. The place is full of malaria."

"That's just why he moved there. He's going to open a drug store."

Of No Effect.

"Hi, there, John!" cried the old man from across the field.

"Well, what's the matter now?"

"You'll never make no headway swearin' at that mule in Greek. Hit him a solid lick or two in plain English!"

Then, as he flailed his own mule, he muttered:

"These college gradivates is so queer when they gits back to business!"—Atlanta Constitution.

An Economical Parson.

"Br'er Williams, all thoo' de winter season you wuz preachin' red-hot sermonts on hell fire, en now dat de spring come you ain't got a word ter say 'bout hell fire. How come?"

"Br'er Thomas, de wayfarin' man, do' mighty foolish, mout er knowed why dat wuz. In de winter season, Br'er Thomas, coal wuz $6 a ton."

Out of Condition.

The boys were fighting when the good man arrived on the scene.

"I suppose," he said, as he pulled them apart, "that this is your parents' fault. Your training has been neglected."

"Dat's right," said Willie proudly, "if I'd had de proper trainin' I'd had him out by dis time."

Proof Positive.

"Do you think your father likes me, Mamie?"

"I am sure he does."

"What makes you sure?"

"Because it was only yesterday he asked me when you and I were going to be married, as he wanted to live with us."

Unless.

"It's too bad about those crullers you made," said the new husband, sadly.

"Why?" asked his wife quickly.

"Well," replied the husband, "they are too rich to eat, too heavy for life-preservers and too small for quoits."

Art and $.

"Are you not sometimes downcast to think that you are obliged to apply yourself to art for money?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes; "but not as downcast as I am when I am applying myself to art and not getting the money."

An Unpleasant Precedent.

"All the members of the English royal family have been vaccinated."

"I wonder if that establishes a precedent?"

"What sort of a precedent?"

"One which forces the king's family to bare arms."

No Novelty About It.

"I see that King Edward wore a gray overcoat at the Newmarket races that buttoned through the cloth, there being no fly to it. Novel, isn't it?"

"Oh, I dunno. It has been very generally admitted that there are no flies on Edward."

Fair Play.

Miss Koy (in street car)—It's really very kind of you, Mr. Crabbe, to give me your seat.

Mr. Crabbe—Not at all. We men are getting tired of being accused of never giving up our seats except to pretty girls.

Plenty of Law.

"This seems to be a lawless town," remarked the stranger.

KIDNEY TROUBLES.

Mrs. Louise M. Gibson Says That This Fatal Disease is Easily Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I felt very discouraged two years ago, I had suffered so long with kidney troubles and other complications, and had taken so much medicine without relief that I began to think there was no hope for me. Life looked so good to me, but what is life without health? I wanted to be well.

MRS. LOUISE M. GIBSON.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me well, and that is why I gladly write you this, and gladly thank you; six bottles was all I took, together with your Pills. My headache and backache and kidney trouble went, never to return; the burning sensation I had left altogether; my general health was so improved I felt as young and light and happy as at twenty."—MRS. LOUISE GIBSON, 4813 Langley Ave., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

If you feel that there is anything at all unusual or puzzling about your case, or if you wish confidential advice of the most experienced, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and you will be advised free of charge. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured and is curing thousands of cases of female trouble.

Hungry, but Fastidious.

"Lady," said the wayfarer, "I can't eat these scraps."

"You can't?" said the housewife, in surprise. "Why, you just told me you were so hungry you could eat a house."

"Yes, mum; but I meant a porterhouse."—Chicago News.

Had Reason to Doubt.

"By the way, Miss Quickstep," said the young man, brightening up a little "I am awaked to take the part of the foolkiller in a charade. How ought I to dress for the part?"

Suppressing a wild desire to tell him it would be suicide for him to act such a part, she merely replied, with a despairing look at the clock:

"I don't know, Mr. Longstayer. I don't believe there is any such person."—Chicago Tribune.

Teachers Will Meet.

The National Educational Association will hold its forty-first annual convention in Minneapolis July 7-11, 1902. This Association held its sixteenth annual convention in Minneapolis in 1875, and its thirtieth convention in St. Paul in 1890. At the Minneapolis meeting, in 1875, the Department of Manual and Industrial Education was organized, which has done much in creating and guiding the growth of manual training in the schools of the country.

The Association now numbers eighteen departments of educational work. All departments will meet at the Minneapolis convention, excepting the Department of School Superintendence, which meets in mid-winter.

These departments represent every phase of educational work, as Kindergarten, Elementary, Secondary, College, Normal Schools, Art, Music, Manual Training, Business, Child Study, Physical Training, Science Instruction, School Administration, Library, Education of Defective Classes, Indian Education, and the National Council of Education.

The programs of the approaching convention present over two hundred topics for discussion by eminent educators, representing every section of the Union.

It is estimated that not less than 10,000 visitors will attend the convention, most of whom will spend the remainder of their vacation in Minnesota or at points beyond.

All railway lines of the United States have made a rate of one fare for the round trip, plus $2.00 membership fee, with privilege of extending tickets for return until September 1st. Side-trip rates of one fare for the round trip will be granted for a certain number of days following the convention to points in Minnesota, to the Great Lakes, the Rocky mountains and the Pacific Coast. Complete Program-Bulletins will be sent to any address upon application to Secretary Irwin Shepard, Winona, Minn.

France will spend $50,000 on repairs at the palace of Versailles during the year.
